LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 21st day of August, A. D. 1925.

Present—NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of Richardetta Wilson, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.

Ordered, That the Administrator cite the creditors of said deceased to bring in their claims against said estate within six months from this date, by posting a notice to that effect, together with a copy of this order on the sign-post nearest to the place where said deceased last dwelt, and in the same town, and by publishing the same once in a newspaper having a circulation in said district, and make return to this Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest: HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

NOTICE.

All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at 23 Grove St., Norwich, Conn., within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.

HERBERT W. GALLUP, Administrator. aug22d

LEWIS ROTH VS. MAX LEVITT, et al. Order of Notice.

State of Connecticut, County of New London, August 6, 1925.

Upon the complaint of the said Lewis Roth claiming for the reasons therein set forth one thousand dollars damages returnable on the first Tuesday of September, 1925, before the Superior Court in and for said County.

It appearing to and being found by the subscribing authority that one of the said defendants, Max Levitt, is absent from this State—gone to parts unknown;

It is therefore ordered, that notice of the institution of said complaint be given said defendant by publishing this order in the Norwich Morning Bulletin, a newspaper printed in Norwich, Conn., once a week for two weeks successively, commencing on or before the 30th day of August, 1925.

JOHN H. WALKER, Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court for New London County. aug15d

LEGAL NOTICE

AT A PROBATE COURT HELD at Brooklyn, within and for the District of Brooklyn, on the 17th day of August, A. D. 1925.

Present, OSCAR F. ATWOOD, Judge.

Estate of Richardson W. Favill, late of Brooklyn, in said District, deceased.

Upon the application of Everett C. Hoffman, of Brooklyn, New York, praying that an instrument, purporting to be the last will and testament of the deceased, be admitted to probate, as appears by said application on file

Ordered, That said application be heard and determined at the Probate Office in Brooklyn, in said District, on the 26th day of August, A. D. 1925, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and that said Everett C. Hoffman, give notice thereof to all persons known to be interested in said estate to appear, if they see cause, at said time and place, and be heard thereon, by publication in some newspaper having a circulation in said District, and by posting a copy thereof on the public sign-post, nearest where the deceased last dwelt, in the town of Brooklyn, and return make of his doings to this Court.

Certified from Record.

OSCAR F. ATWOOD, Judge.

Attest, OSCAR F. ATWOOD, Judge. aug22d

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Another sharp advance in prices took place in today's stock market. The rally, embracing practically the entire list, was interrupted just before the close by a heavy volume of week-end profit taking, which followed the marking up of the call money rate from 4 to 4 1-2 per cent., the first change in about ten days. Although net losses of 1 to 4 points were scattered throughout the list, closing quotations were generally higher, with numerous gains of 1 to 10 points.

Bullish stock market sentiment was created by rising commodity prices, publication of weekly federal reserve bank statements indicating no strain on the credit situation and reports of expanding business activity contained in the weekly mercantile reviews. Bradstreet's sets forth that "more is doing in trade and industry, with fall jobbing distribution holding the center of the stage." "Each week's reports" states Dun's review, "bring out more clearly the fact that most phases of the business situation are favorable".

A sudden revival of activity and strength in United States Steel common which touched 124 3-4, the highest price reached since the culmination of the winter advance, stimulated the demand for other high grade rail and industrial issues. American Can soared over 7 points to a new record high at 247 1-2, but lost about half of its gain in the late selling movement. Baldwin closed fractionally higher at 114 5-8 after having sold as high as 115 7-8.

Havana Electric was the outstanding individual feature, soaring over 13 points to a record top at 233, or more than double the year's low of 112. With the exception of International Telephone, which broke four points, other public utilities were not seriously affected by a repetition of warnings by power company officials concerning speculation in these issues.

Pool operations were aggressively conducted in a number of specialties particularly in the food group. California Packing, Postum Cereal, Fleischmann and Reid Ice Cream all broke through their previous high levels for the year, the net gains ranging from 1 to 5 points. Other issues to better their previous top prices were American Steel Smelting, Indian Motorcycle, Eaton Axle, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, International Business Machines, General Electric, Sears Roebuck, Otis Elevator and the Howe Sound Company.

With another series of favorable monthly earnings statements foreshadowed by the July report of the Kansas City Southern, fresh buying was attracted to the carrier shares. Chesapeake & Ohio, which earned its common dividend over four times last year, crossed 106 to the highest price in a quarter of a century. Merger and dividend rumors, though unconfirmed, stimulated the demand for Southern and Southwestern common and Kansas City Southern preferred all reaching new high ground.

Stiffening of the call money rate probably was due to the calling of loans in order to meet heavy week-end demands for currency. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm tone with the strength of the Scandinavian issues as the only notable feature.

Demand sterling held steady around $4.85 3-8 and French francs were quoted just under 4.70 cents. Norwegian kroner rallied over 12 points to around 18.80 cents and the Danish kroner jumped nearly 3 points to 23.32 cents.

Henry Gomez has returned to his home in New Bedford, Mass., after spending the past few days with friends in the Village.

The wet condition of the roads Friday caused a near accident at the corner of Norwich avenue and Providence street shortly after noon. In attempting to put on his brakes while coming down Providence street hill, the driver of a coupe bearing a Rhode Island registration plate, narrowly escaped collision with a touring car that was proceeding along Norwich toward Baltic. Although the cars touched as the Rhode Island car skidded, there was no damage to either machine.

The funeral of Miss Ethel Brayton Graham, daughter of Robert Graham, was held from the residence of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Emerson, of Lisbon, at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Rev. William J. Reynolds, pastor of the Newent Congregational church, officiated. The bearers were William Burgess, Walter Drew, James Emerson and William Emerson. Burial was in the family lot in Yantic cemetery. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

A meeting of the A-o-wa-ki-ya Camp Fire Girls was held in the parlors of the Taftville Congregational church Friday evening.

THREE DAMAGE ACTIONS ARE FILED IN SUPERIOR COURT

Papers in three new suits were filed Friday with the clerk of the superior court in this city. Two are foreclosure actions and the third is brought on the common counts. Claiming foreclosure and possession of mortgaged premises, Rachel Kasowich, alias Silverstein of No. 120 Wooster St., Hartford, formerly of Lebanon and widow of Morris Silverstein has brought an action against Solomon and Morris Liebman of New Haven, Benjamin Liebman, Lebanon, Rose Solant of New London, The Broadway Bank and Trust Co., of New Haven, O. Cutler, Inc., of Colchester and The Merchants National Bank of New Haven.

According to the complaint Morris Silverstein, late of Lebanon, gave a note for $2,000 to Cordelia L. McCall and to secure the note mortgaged property in Lebanon. The mortgage has since been transferred several times, involving all those named as defendants in the action.

Michael Laboski of Erie, Pa., has brought suit against Kostanti Czaenski and Nicola Steshko of Lebanon, asking a foreclosure of mortgaged premises. A note for $1,900 was given the plaintiff on August 12, 1920 and to secure the note property in Lebanon was mortgaged. Foreclosure is now asked.

Damages of $1,000 are claimed by Lewis Rogth of New York city in an action brought against Max Levitt, formerly of Lebanon. The suit is brought on the common counts.

MOTOR VEHICLE LAWS PRINTED IN BOOK FORM

Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel has had the Connecticut motor vehicle and aircraft laws as revised to July 1 of this year printed in book form of handy pocket size. Twenty-six chapters of the public statutes are devoted to these laws, each chapter containing from one to fifteen sections.

Under the heading, "Important," Commissioner Stoeckel calls attention to the following regulations regarding licenses, registrations and fees now in effect:

"All registrations expire on December 31 at midnight in each year. A pro rata reduction in fees is allowed on application for registration to take effect after the last day of March in any year.

"Registration fees are chargeable from the first day of the month on which application is received. Operators' licenses are not pro-rated. Full fee is required for any part of the year. All fees must be also properly correct and application cards must be correctly filled out in ink or typewritten in order to prevent delays in the issuance of registration certificate or license.

"Registration fees for passenger motor vehicles, except those operated by electricity or steam, are figured at the rate of eight cents a unit of rated piston displacement, but a law of 1925 provides that all registration fees shall be figured to the nearest even fraction of the dollar in multiples of twenty-five cents.

"All applications for registration and all applications for operators' license must be sworn to before a notary, justice of the peace or commissioner.

"Remittance must be made in cash, postal money order, express order and made payable to the Secretary of the Motor Vehicle Department. Checks dated July 1, 1925, pending motor vehicle registration, will not be accepted as payment for fees for motor vehicle registration or licenses.

"Exchange will not be required on duplicate cards held up on account of the previous year. Applications for renewals of operators' licenses at which office they are to be shown their expiration date."

Preferred Coal Strike.

One of the important matters considered by the directors of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce at their meeting Friday at Bristol, was the impending coal strike which is scheduled for Sept. 1. In 1922 when a similar crisis arose, the chamber made an extensive investigation at the request of Governor Templeton.

A referendum was submitted to the members of the chamber and the vote showed that organized business of Connecticut, by an overwhelming majority, preferred a coal strike rather than to submit to the demands of the miners for the "check-off"—a plan whereby the dues of the miners are to be deducted by the mine owners from the pay envelopes and paid over to the union. The check-off is one of the present demands of the anthracite coal miners. The result of the member's vote in 1922 was telegraphed to leading mine operators and public officials throughout the country.

SEVEN AIRPLANE ACCIDENTS REPORTED IN STATE

Seven airplane accidents in Connecticut were reported to the aviation section of the state motor vehicle department for the first six months of this year. They resulted in serious personal injury in one case, in serious property damage in five cases and in slight damage in two.

Five of the accidents have been analyzed by the department, resulting in conclusions that one was due to failure to examine the fuel supply before ascending, one to defective equipment, one to confusion of the pilot and two to weather conditions. The pilots involved are William W. Malcolm, of Hartford, whose plane crashed to the ground at West Hartford; Sheldon M. Wesselcek, of New Britain, whose machine struck a stone wall in Roxbury; Ray Rufus, of Philadelphia, whose plane struck a stone wall in Naugatuck; C. A. Dixon, of New Britain whose craft collided with a road obstruction in Hartford; August Graf, of Waterbury, who fell to the ground in an airplane at Rockaway; Charles Desomb, of Hartford, who also fell to the ground in Bristol, and William G. Jeppson, of Bridgeport, whose plane struck an automobile in Stratford and seriously injured two occupants. Jeppson was a passenger in his plane by Thomas Joyce, of Stratford.

Four airplane accidents were reported to the aviation section of the department for the calendar year 1924.

The state law requires the pilot of an airplane involved in an accident to make a written report to the department within forty-eight hours of the mishap, giving the time, place and cause of accident and any injuries occasioned by it. The aviation division of the motor vehicle dept. has now been reorganized and established as an independent unit with its own records and responsible to the head of the motor vehicle department.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY HOLDS ANNUAL UICNIC

The New London County Horticultural society held its annual picnic on Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace S. Brown, at Uncasville, Conn. Members of the society and their guests were present. Delicious refreshments were served, the main feature of which was [illegible] cream [illegible] made from [illegible] cream served from [illegible] the Brown estate.

Following the supper a business meeting was held to take plans for the annual show of the society, to be held in September. A vote of thanks was extended to the society, to Mr. and Mrs. Brown for their hospitality.

The afternoon was pleasantly spent in viewing the beautiful gardens on the Brown estate, th e15,000 Flits of many colored dahlias proving a rare sight and were really appreciated by the members. Other varieties of flowers were also seen and proved of recreational as well as entertaining value.

Members of the society in attendance at the picnic were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cottrell, Miss Adelaide Smith, Annie C. Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Malcolm, Addie M. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. J. Morgan, Elizabeth Stark, Miss L. Lamb, E. Bowker, W. H. Bowker, Andrew Beran, James W. Exford, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Ewald, Mrs. Walter Donoklin, Mrs. Annie B. Newton, Mrs. A. K. Hodson, Lucy Daboll, Gustave Dumas, Mrs. Leroy Whitmarsh, Dorothy Whitmarsh, eGorge A. Birchill, Harriet W. Allen and Mrs. Freemont Torgerson.

MOOSUP CHAMBER FAVORS NEW HIGHWAY PLANS

At the Wednesday night meeting of the Moosup Chamber of Commerce the plan to relocate the highway running through this town with Norwich and Danielson as its prospective points south and north respectively was taken up and the following resolutions adopted:

Resolved, That the Moosup Chamber of Commerce, heartily approves and commends in general the plans submitted by the United Commercial Travelers for altering and improving the state highway leading from Danielson to Norwich, eliminating grade crossings and avoiding dangerous corners and thickly settled communities; bearing in mind that the details of such plan should be determined by highway engineers.

The Moosup Chamber of Commerce will have practically unanimous backing of the town citizens in any move they may make, as that body is made up of a class of men who have nothing but the town's interest at heart.

GAVE SHOWER FOR MISS STELLA BURKE

About 20 friends of Miss Stella Burke, gave a shower in her honor Thursday evening at the home of Miss Anna Mieski of 228 South Thames street. The bride-to-be received many beautiful gifts of cut glass, silver, linen and other household articles.

The evening was pleasantly spent in music and games, the feature of the evening being a mock marriage, with Miss Helen Mieski as bride and Miss Irene Nevada as groom. Miss Billie Toth capably filled the office of minister. Other enjoyable features of the evening were ukelele selections by Miss Billie Toth and piano numbers by Miss Helen Mieski.

Miss Burke is to be united in marriage next Monday with Zigmunt Isbicki, also of Norwich.

ENTERTAINED 30 FRIENDS AT BIRHDAY PARTY

A delightful birthday party was held for Miss Mary Mehrholz, Friday evening, at her home at 322 Franklin street, some thirty of her friends being in attendance. The evening was most pleasantly spent in games, music and dancing. Miss Mehrholz received many beautiful gifts in honor of the occasion and her guests extended a wish that she might enjoy many more happy birthdays.

The tourists then went to Shaffer Brothers farm in [illegible] and luncheon was served at one of [illegible] Brothers' [illegible] office was served by Miss Brewster, the tourists furnishing basket lunches. After luncheon Mr. Brewster's orchard was visited.

About 2:30 o'clock the fruit growers left for [illegible] J. Graham's farm in Lebanon. Mr. Graham's young orchard, three years old, was visited. This orchard is probably making as much growth as any similar orchard in the county or the state for that matter. Mr. Graham's old orchard, 12 years old and now bearing heavy for the [illegible], was also inspected.

The fruit growers [illegible] spent a profitable and instructive day [illegible] their homes about 5:45 o'clock in the afternoon.

FOUND SMALL FIRE IN WEST SIDE TAILOR SHOP

A few minutes after 8 o'clock Friday evening a small fire was discovered in the tailor shop conducted by Abraham Arenberg at Thames Square. A telephone call was sent in to the fire department and three gallons of chemical were used to extinguish the blaze.

The fire was caused by the overheating of the main steam press boiler used in the shop. According to his daily custom Mr. Arenberg had drawn out the water from the boiler just before he closed up the shop for the night, but he neglected to shut off the gas beneath the boiler. The result was that the boiler became overheated and the heat set fire to the [illegible]. Prompt discovery of the fire and the quick application of chemical by the firemen kept the fire from gaining any headway, and the resulting damage was [illegible]. The boiler was considerably damaged by the heat and will probably have to be replaced. The fire was discovered about fifteen minutes after Mr. Arenberg had left the shop for the night.

Large Bass on Exhibition.

Hopeville pond, which has produced many big mouth bass that have tipped the scales at 5 pounds and better, has produced a 6 and 3-4 pound large mouth bass, the fish being landed Thursday by Thomas Baldwin, who used a plug. Another bass weighing two pounds is being shown beside the big bass in the windows of Preston Bros. store on Franklin square.

Hopeville pond has turned out some heavy large mouth bass in past years, some catches running above 8 pounds. These are rare, however, but many fish above 3 pounds are taken from the pond every year.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

The school of nursing connected with the William W. Backus Hospital in Norwich, Conn., is now registering students for the September classes. This school is registered in Connecticut and the course of instruction is two years and four months given in a general hospital of 90 beds. Students must be graduates of grammar school and have one year of high school work. A new nurses' residence opened this year affords each student all of the comforts and conveniences of home.

FLETCHER POST DISCUSSES CONVENTION PLANS

Members of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, held a short meeting Friday night in the post rooms in the Uncas bank building with Commander Webster D. Copp in the chair. The American Legion convention, to be held in New London, August 27, 28 and 29 of next week was discussed and plans made to have a large number of members out for the big parade on Saturday the 29th, the closing day of the convention.

Past Commander John A. Cunningham, chairman of the On to New London committee, announced that cards were being sent out to all members of the post and that the Legionaires would meet at the New London state armory at 1:45 o'clock and all members are expected to wear the post caps. A prize is being given for the post having the most members in line and Chairman Cunningham urged the local men to go out after the prize.

A special meeting of the post is scheduled for Wednesday evening of next week when final plans for the convention will be made.

MINERS AND OPERATORS IGNORE APPEALS OF PUBLIC

Magnates Firm in Their Determination Not to Increase Costs of Production—Miners Assert That Unless the Owners Show Some Signs of Yielding Negotiations Would be Useless—This is the Last Week of Present Contract.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Both anthracite operators and miners today were apparently proceeding with their original plans for whatever action is to develop in the coal fields after Sept. 1, while citizens' committees appealed in vain for policies assuring peace.

Just last week in the life of the present working contract opens tomorrow with both sides seemingly hopelessly estranged. No single contract point or item of the still remaining between the mine owners and the men remains with any hope of immediate change in their attitude.

Operators say flatly any renewal of the contract on its expiration Aug. 31 must provide against increase in "production costs by so much as a cent," else, as for granting the men's plea for the check-off, the owners call that impossible.

The miners call this a "blanket refusal," spelling wholesale rejection of all their terms, and they take the stand that unless the owners show some signs of yielding even negotiations are useless.

The public outcry which developed at Wilkes-Barre, and the demonstration in New England, as displayed in the conference of governors called in Boston last week by Governor Fuller of Massachusetts has clearly set both operators and miners thinking. All movements of this kind are being watched closely by the respective belligerents.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, was reported to be in long distance connection with district leaders in the hard coal belt virtually all day.

CAILLAUX TO MAKE BRITAIN "A GENTLEMAN'S OFFER"

PARIS, Aug. 23.—(A. P.)—M. Caillaux, French finance minister, has gone to London to try to settle France's debt to Great Britain amounting to [illegible] Aug. As he departed he said he went with him "a gentleman's offer." He was fully conscious of France's sacrifices conferred by the war, and was confident that Mr. Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, would be a believer of Great Britain's friendship for here also.

It is known that Great Britain wants [illegible] a year and France has offered about $[illegible], but there is no indication as to the concessions [illegible] ready to make for the purpose of reaching an agreement satisfactory to both sides.

French newspapers smart under the [illegible] assertions that French citizens [illegible] less than half the taxes paid by Britain and there recent Baron Birkenhead's dictum "France will pay." They [illegible] generally, however, that M. Caillaux will make the Frenchman pay [illegible] next year, an hope [illegible] news will soften British [illegible].

The minister at the station read a [illegible] statement as follows:

[illegible] said in England that it believed M. Caillaux stood ready [illegible] London a gentleman's offer. [illegible] seems to me that a gentleman's [illegible] is the only one that one can [illegible] of settling, and it is only necessary of any sort that the French [illegible] has its case considered.

In this case Mr. Winston Churchill had before him the representation [illegible] action concerned certain [illegible] over its obligations and over its traditional reputation for honesty, but properly considered of the past and the rights which [illegible] gives it. I have, besides, full confidence in the spirit of equity of the great British people and in the understanding comprehension of the two countries' interests, which I know my [illegible] has."

PROHIBITION STATEMENT BY WAYNE B. WHEELER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The government's re-organized prohibition enforcement personnel, said a statement tonight by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the anti-saloon league, deserves the "support of the friends of law enforcement in the fight against organized liquor lawlessness."

Declaring a weakness in administration of the dry law in the past had been "lack of authority and divided responsibility," Mr. Wheeler said most of the federal prohibition administrators named to control enforcement after September 1, were "experienced and effective men and will make good if given a free hand in doing their work."

COOLIDGE TO CONTINUE CONFERENCES THIS WEEK

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 23.—(AP)—With his vacation stay in New England drawing toward a close, but the end not immediately in sight, President Coolidge intends to continue during the week the conference with government heads by which he has kept in touch with national affairs throughout the summer.

He is giving his attention just now to the appointment of a successor to the late Ambassador Bancroft of Japan, and it is likely the selection will be announced before he returns to Washington.

Whether the president will speak on Labor Day, as last year, has not been decided. He is watching closely developments in the labor situation of the anthracite industries, but is determined not to take a hand in the wage negotiations, at least before September, when the present agreement expires.

George Harvey, former ambassador to England, continued his visit today at White Court as the guest of the president. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge attended services today at the Salem Tabernacle Congregational Church. The Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd, of Stamford, Conn.-Hudson, preached.

CONNECTICUT THEATRE OWNERS MAKE PROTEST

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Connecticut theatre owners, meeting here today, voiced a vigorous protest against the threatened boycott on motion picture films against this state by the National Producers and Distributors in their fight against the new picture tax law which recently was declared constitutional by federal court judges. Practically every theatre owner in the state attended the meeting today. They were unanimous in their sentiment that Connecticut theatre owners do not want a boycott as an instrument to fight the new law.

Not only will the state exhibitors refuse to waive contract rights on films, but they will fight to prevent the producers and distributors declaring a boycott against this state, it was said. The direct result of the meeting was the appointment of a committee to attend a meeting of producing and distributing organizations to be held in New York Tuesday. The state exhibitors were given to understand today that there is every likelihood that a boycott will be declared at the meeting in New York. It will be the duty of Connecticut exhibitors, it was said, to forcibly present the attitude of the theatre owners of Connecticut as opposed to such a plan.

FRENCH COMMUNISTS PROTEST AGAINST WAR IN MOROCCO

MARSEILLES, France, Aug. 23—The communist congress after listening today to "grievances of the Mediterranean fleet," as presented by three uniformed blue-jackets, and speeches by deputies Chatem, Marty and Doriot, passed a resolution protesting against war in general and the war in Morocco in particular and then went out and fought a battle with the police who objected to the formation of a red flag parade.

The police won and routed the reds, with ten casualties among the police forces and the capture of numerous prisoners.

During meantime at the other end of the city the Workers' Socialist International, or second international, under the presidency of the American Congressman Victor Berger, worked steadily through a weighty program, the principal items on which were the question of socialists taking office in "bourgeois" governments, international relations and the extension and consolidation of the league of nations. The speakers included Arthur Henderson and Noel Buxton, of England, Dr. Rudolf Hilferding, of Germany and Leon Blum of France.

ALBUQUERQUE EDITOR IS CHARGED WITH MURDER

EAST LAS VEGAS, N. M., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Carl C. Magee, Albuquerque editor will be embroiled Wednesday in his fourth fight in the courts of the state, but this time for a different charge—the accusation of murder.

Charged with the killing of J. B. Lassetter, whom he shot during a fistic battle here Friday night with his political enemy, former District Judge David J. Leahy, Magee will appear for preliminary hearing in a justice court here Wednesday.

The Albuquerque editor left here yesterday for his home after he had been charged with killing Lassetter by a coroner's jury and after he had posted a $10,000 bond for his appearance.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Japanese Planes at Moscow

MOSCOW, Aug. 23—Two Japanese airplanes on a flight from Tokio to London, arrived at Moscow today. The soviety officials extended a warm welcome to the airmen. The flight began on July 25, and is the first of the kind ever attempted by Japanese.

British Navy Maneuvers

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Army maneuvers, the first to be held since 1913, will begin September 22 in the Salisbury Plain region, eVry special importance is attached to them by the war office since they will serve as "try out" of new weapons and appliances evolved from the exeprience of the army.

Flight of Italian Aviator

MANILA, Aug. 23—Commander Francesco de Pinedo, Italian aviator, attempting a flight from Italy to Japan, landed at Antimonon, Tayabas Province, today, to await more favorable weather for the trip to Manila. Fear for his safety had been felt after he failed to reach Manila seven hours after taking off from Cebu. It was learned that he stopped at Lucena to refuel and later descended at Antimonon because of a heavy gale.

HOPE TO PREVENT SHUT-DOWN OF ANTHRACITE MINES

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 23—Steps to be taken which it is hoped will aid in the prevention of a suspension in the anthracite region were discussed at a meeting of the anthracite business men's association here today but following an adjournment late this evening the members of the conference were reticent as to the action to be taken. The following prepared statement was given to the reporters:

"We submit that the public has a very vital interest in the outcome of the negotiations between representatives of the anthracite mine workers and operators, which negotiations must sooner or later be renewed.

"The general public is entitled to an uninterrupted supply of anthracite for humanitarian reasons if for no other reason.

"Every man, woman and child living in the anthracite producing area depends largely upon continuous operation of the mines for material comforts and a decent living. The prosperity of the mine workers and mine operators is unalterably interwoven with the happiness and future of our communities.

"Periodical uncertainty regarding a steady supply of anthracite is proving sufficient reason to encourage the use of substitutes, unless some plan is devised to overcome this, the stability of the industry is in danger. Anthracite will not be mined if it cannot be old. That would mean less work for the mine workers, fewer mines in operation, and would seriously affect the lives of every one earning a living in the anthracite districts.

"It is our seasoned judgement that a suspension of operations will be contrary to the best interests of the public and we propose to confer with the respective parties and present in detail the reasoning upon which our conclusions are based.

"We feel confident that the representatives of both mine workers and operators have no desire to approve any action or agreement which will endanger the welfare of the industry as a whole or the welfare of the public dependent upon the industry directly or indirectly, for a livelihood."

John H. Uhle, a local manufacturer presided.

LEVIATHAN TO REMAIN IN TRANSATLANTIC SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—(AP)—The Leviathan and all other ships of the United States lines will remain in their present service from New York to Europe "permanently," President Palmer of the Fleet Corporation, announced today to set at rest reports that they were to be laid up indefinitely.

Mr. Palmer was appraised of these reports by T. H. Rossbottom, general manager of the United States lines, now in Europe, who said the rumor was being taken advantage of by our competitors with the idea of reducing our future bookings." In a cable message to Mr. Rossbottom, Mr. Palmer said:

Reference to rumor about withdrawing Leviathan, there is absolutely no intention of doing so. On the contrary we intend to maintain and continue in improved service the Leviathan and all other ships of the United States lines. Preliminary results show that 1925 year will be more successful than any previous one, and from the enormous number of letters most strongly endorsing every part of the service of the United States lines from all parts of the country and from Europe, I feel that next year will be even better than this year.

"United States lines are in this service permanently and there is absolutely no ground for such adverse rumors."

The reports are understood to have developed from intimations emanating from the shipping board that, if the budget was sharply curtailed, some reduction in government merchant marine service would be necessary and that the United States lines would be the first affected.

General Gains in Industry Reported

Car Loadings Crossed the Million Mark For the Fourth Consecutive Week.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—Business sentiment continued cheerful last week with expanded manufacturing operations and a number of commodity price advances supporting indications of general gains in industry.

With car loading crossing the million mark for the fourth consecutive week, the railroad situation appeared especially bright, with optimism intensified by a series of favorable July earnings statements, virtually all the carriers which have reported so far have shown substantially higher net income than in July of last year.

Gains in the car loadings have been paralleled by the improvement in freight traffic computed on the basis of net ton miles, which for the first 6 months of the year totaled 212,500,000,000. This was an increase of more than seven billion net ton miles, or 3-8 per cent over the corresponding period last year but 5.5 per cent. under the same period of 1923 when the volume of freight was the greatest on record for the first half of any year. The increased capacity of new freight cars and the greater efficiency of loading have tended to swell the volume of net ton mile traffic.

General improvement in the iron and steel industry was noted by the weekly trade reviews, which reported that operations had been speeded up to 70 per cent. of capacity and that the month probably would show an average to 72 per cent. gains in week to week purchasers rather than any increase in forward buying, accounted for the expansion of mill activity. The firing of 1,500 additional coke ovens in Pittsburgh district provided supporting evidence of betterment in trade. The price situation showed little change.

An enlarged demand for many commodities last week was followed by a series of price advances, which embraced sugar, industrial alcohol, virtually all the non-ferrous metals and scrap iron. Quotations in crude oil and gasoline, however, were lower, but in view of the sharp reduction in the output of petroleum this action failed to affect the oil shares seriously.

Although price reductions of automobiles had been expected to stimulate business, the development of an open price cutting war has aroused some apprehension in the motor industry. The revisions by some manufacturers have been so drastic and numerous that it is now feared that the increase in new orders will be offset by the lower profits. So far this year, however, the motor industry has found conditions exceedingly profitable.

Labor troubles have been responsible for uneasiness in certain industries. The threatened coal strike has resulted in speeding up the output of bituminous coal which is now running above ten million tons a week for the first time since last winter. The building industry has been seriously hampered by the dispute between the bricklayers and plasterers, which is estimated, has tied up $300,000,000 in new construction throughout the country.

RUMOR BANDIT TROY WAS DISGUISED AS A "FLAPPER"

WORCESTER, Aug. 23—Rumors that John Troy, bandit gang leader [illegible] coming in and out of Worcester [illegible] automobile while disguised as a "flapper" persisted today although police officers who admit having heard the report said they had received no positive information which would substantiate the rumors.

Troy is of slim, youthful build and must adopt this feminine disguise with some measure of success but the police say the young gangman is not the type to hide in such a manner. They believe Troy prides himself on daring and would consider disguising him beneath his "dignity" of the atmosphere which now surrounds him. A similar report was circulated several years ago when "Jimmie" Moran, automobile thief and jailbreaker, was leading the police a chase in this city.

Investigation today by detectives brought the police no nearer to Troy's hiding place. There is a great difference of opinion within the police department regarding the bandits whereabouts. Some members believe Troy is far away from Worcester and brand all reports of having seen him as false while others claim Troy is in the city and will not leave these parts until he has fulfilled his promise of vengeance on Patrolman Daniel J. Sullivan, the man who shot his pal, Walter Derosier, during a holdup Friday morning.

Whether Derosier would be given a church funeral could not be learned od tonight. Members of the Derosier family said yesterday that the burial would be on Monday.

A visit to the home this afternoon brought response that "nothing was to be said about it." Catholic church authorities declined to discuss funeral arrangements.

FARMER SHOT INTO TRUCK FILLED WITH PICNICKERS

MIDDLETOWN, N. J., Aug. 23—Enraged because his flower beds had been trampled, a farmer near here today fired a shot gun into a truck filled with picnickers some of whom were children, one person was killed and one wounded.

The dead man was named d'Angelo, the wounded man was Albert d'Angelo of Carteret, N. J., his brother. The brothers and about 35 others were said to have been the guests of their assailant, a farmer named Ammaturo.

As the truck was leaving the farm, Ammaturo complained that the children had ruined his flowers. When the d'Angelo brothers offered him $10 to cover the damage he is said to have become enraged and fired at the truck. Ammaturo fled after the shooting.

DIED IN HIS AUTOMOBILE WHILE RETURNING HOME

DANBURY, Aug. 23—(A. P.)—Henry Smith, 68 years old, of Stamford, died in an automobile near here last night while returning to his home. Heart trouble was given as the cause of death. Smith with a party of friends had driven to Danbury and after having supper had started on the return trip. He was taken ill and his friends brought him back to the Danbury hospital. He died, however, before the hospital was reached.

Finance Minister of France Was Jeered

M. Caillaux Ignored Scurvy Treatment As He Took the Boat For London.

CALAIS, France, Aug. 23.—(AP)—When M. Caillaux, the French finance minister, who is on his way to England, determined to take the boat for the British Isles today, he was reminded of his public and private troubles by shouts from the crowd gathered on the pier "Vive Calmette!" "Vive Clemenceau!" "Vive Ignace!"

M. Caillaux will meet Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary in London to discuss Frances war debts to Great Britain. He ignored the booing and derision of his compatriots, who had not forgotten the ignominies which M. Caillaux had suffered in his own country.

Calmette was the editor of Figaro whom Mme. Caillaux shot and killed; Clemenceau brought about Caillaux's trial and exile for commerce with the enemy in wartime and Ignace was assistant to the minister of justice and prepared the prosecution.

INCREASE IN MANUFACTURE OF PASSENGER AUTOMOBILES

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Along with the summer vacationists, American automobile and oil production are traveling hand in hand to a successful season. These joint stories about the two industries came from Detroit, the motor city and from the southwestern oil fields.

The increase in manufacture of passenger automobiles in the United States was 192,760 over the same period of the preceding year. The increase in truck manufacture for the same seven months was 56,037.

Along with pipe, mother and the girls had another important automobile chore of home this summer. The increase in popularity of closed cars. One large Detroit organization building many closed bodies reported its plants were turning out 20 per cent more bodies than they had been designed for. Mr. Sloan said, that in another organization the production of closed bodies manufactured jumped from 43 per cent. last year to above 65 per cent. at present. Clarence E. Eldridge, an automobile official of Chicago said there is a possibility that ultimately closed cars may be cheaper than open because of the quantity production of the closed variety.

One of the oil problems was whether higher prices might bring production and storage so fast as to force the facing of unsettling conditions of a price drop. The week opens with several active campaigns on for large gasoline prices but such reports from the southwest that the last conditions of oil production are steady.

HINDENBURG MESSAGE TO AMERICAN BUSINESS MEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Confession that the stabilization of economic and social conditions in Germany will continue, was expressed by President von Hindenburg of Germany, in a message to American business men made public today through Merle Thorpe, editor of the Nations Business, official organ of the United States chamber of commerce.

The old commander of the kaisers army, says Mr. Thorpe said, was struck with the memberships and the reactionaries generally, declared.

"I am much gratified to hear that American business men are taking such a deep interest in the conditions of present-day Germany. The social confusion resulting from the outcome of the war, and post-war conditions which have not ended, for several years now seem depressing to foreigners. But to a readjustment of social life along stable lines. I am firmly convinced that this stabilization of economic and social conditions will continue to improve in Germany as peaceful conditions are restored among the peoples of Europe. I, for my part, am determined to do my utmost toward such restoration and preservation of peace.

SIMPLE FUNERAL SERVICE FOR VICTOR F. LAWSON TODAY

CHICAGO, Aug. 23—The city to which he gave a brilliant life of generous service will pause tomorrow as the funeral rites for Victor Fremont Lawson, late owner and publisher of the Chicago Daily News, are observed.

A PREDICTION OF GREAT FUTURE FOR PALESTINE

VIENNA, Aug. 23.—(Jewish Telegraph Agency)—The prediction that in twenty years from now Palestine will have a Jewish population of not less than two million was made by Mr. Sprinzak head of the labor and immigration department of the Zionist executive in Jerusalem, in his report to the Zionist congress today.

"Jewish immigration into Palestine averaged 3,000 monthly this year," said the report. "In the next two years this will grow to 60,000 annually. No unemployment is prevalent in the country, despite the arrival of these immigrants."

STEAMER IN COLLISION WITH TANKER OFF POINT JUDITH

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—With her bow crumpled and buckled, the steamship Rosalind, of the Red Cross line, which was in collision last night with the Texas oil tanker Harvester off Point Judith, returned to port today with its 116 passengers. Officers of the ship deemed it discuss the accident.

The Harvester, which was badly damaged on the side, where the Rosalind's bow struck it, put into Stapleton, Staten Island after the collision. The Rosalind was bound from New York to St. Johns, Newfoundland and the Harvester had not left Providence, R. I., for Port Arthur, Texas, when the accident occurred.

P.)—The French aeronats, Lieutenants Frances Coli and Paul Arnoux, both injured in the war, have gone to ramp off for the third hop on their flight to New York consident of success, but ready for a week at sea and fifteen days adrift waiting for help. They have arranged to ignite their 420-horsepower plane so that it will float indefinitely, and will carry compressed provisions and an apparatus for the distillation of sea water. Their machine is taking 2,000 litres of gasoline, and weighs four tons at take-off.

The first sailboat to be dropped will be the running gear which they need in the ocean liner plan is to cut away one cloth of the lower plane so that the ship may ride steadily, and cast out a canvas anchor to aid them. They can thus float for several hours, but if heavy seas not come they can jump out the fuel from the three big reservoirs and, if necessary, cast off the motor when the sinking should float has a big life preserver.

No date has been fixed for the flight, but the men expect to start from a favorable coast which is [illegible] and travel at the rate of about [illegible] miles an hour.

Nine men were convicted of complicity in the assassination of Sir Lee which occurred Nov. 19, 1924. The chauffeur in the car in which the conspirators were driven to the death scene received a sentence of two years imprisonment.

RACE MEETING ORGANIZED FOR THE PRINCE OF WALES

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The famous Hipodrome Argentono at Palermo, a suburb of Buenos Aires was the scene this afternoon of a race crowd faced about as the prince and President D'Alvear entered the royal box and sent up a roar of cheers.

Some amusement was caused when a number of young women appealed to the prince to present him with a bunch of violets and he smilingly acceded to their pleadings. He tossed the violets singly among the girls, and they replied by throwing flowers to the prince, who eventually retired with his hat full.

Joseph Wendig

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Joseph Wendig, 54, widely known sporting and real estate man, died today at his home on Coney Island from an attack of acute indigestion.

Until he retired five weeks ago to enter the real estate field, Mr. Wendig followed the races at Belmont Park, Aqueduck and Saratoga where he was known as a heavy bettor. In the old days he was also a habitue of Sheepshead Bay, Gravesend and Brighton Beach tracks. He is said to have plunged heavily in real estate and made a fortune in the recent Coney Island "boom."

While attending the boxing matches last night at the Coney Island stadium with Senator James J. Walker, the democratic candidate in the mayoralty primaries, Mr. Wendig complained of not feeling well. Today, after breakfast, he was stricken with indigestion and died a short time later.

Emil Goos

DANBURY, Aug. 23—(A. P.)—Emil Goos, 66 years old, a member of the seal and lumber firm of Seifert and Goos, died at his home here yesterday after a long illness. He was a member of the school board, a former member of the board of aldermen and had been active in political affairs here. He was one of the best known German residents of the state. Mr. Goos is survived by a wife and two sons.

WILLIMANTIC

Up to late Sunday afternoon, the week-end had been an unusually quiet one for the police department. Traffic over the highways leading from the city had dwindled down almost to a Fall average But one arrest was made, Max Redding, of 68 Bryant street, Springfield, Mass., by officer Bombria, on a charge of speeding on Windham Road about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Redding furnished a bond for his appearance in police court Tuesday, August 25th.

Non-Partisan and not non-Protestant will be the name under which the movement of the members of local unions will function, in the coming city elections. The word "Protestant" was misunderstood for Post was during the telephone conversation of the article which appeared in Saturday's issue of The Bulletin. The purpose of the movement as explained is to correct, to have it mean what it is not that is to use the power of the ballot as a third party. It is a matter to control and direct the reserved voting power of its members.

Paul L. Dubreuil, 63, a well known resident of this city, died at the Backus hospital, Hartford, yesterday morning after an illness of several weeks. He was born in [illegible] Mass., and was employed by the Jillson Company for a number of years. He was a member of the Holy Name society of St. Joseph's church and of the Knights of Columbus. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Mary Dubreuil, a daughter, Miss Rose Dubreuil, a sister, Mrs. Alphonse Lamoureux of this city and a brother, Joseph Dubreuil of Worcester.

The continued case of William J. [illegible] of Windham, charged with [illegible] was dismissed on motion of Prosecuting Attorney Pierre S. Gaucher after he had received notice from Frank Price of Hartford that he would be disposed of without further proceedings.

The case of Edward F. Moran versus Benjamin Thompson, to recover an alleged unpaid promissory note of $11, was heard before Justice of the Peace Curtis Dean Saturday morning. Judgment was given for the plaintiff to recover the amount with interest and costs, amounting to $8.21.

Another continuance, this time to Aug. 29, was ordered in the case of Patrick A. O'Toole, of Hartford, a truck driver charged with a violation of the automobile law by operating an overloaded truck over the highways. Two other cases now stand continued to that date, those of R. C. Comins and George Deming, of Chaplin, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

Henry W. Chamberlain, superintendent of the Windham almshouse, has given out his annual report of a bumper crop on the farm, which he conducts in connection with the almshouse. Superintendent Chamberlain believes tat the recent rains with the present drop in temperature will offset any danger of a blight and counting on this, he plans to harvest between three and four hundred bushels of potatoes this year.

J. Cyprien Paulhus, of the post office clerical force and secretary of the local board of the United States civil service commission, conducted an examination for clerk-carrier, at Willimantic post office in the town building Saturday forenoon. Five candidates took the examination.

Heavy sweaters and in some cases topcoats appeared on the streets here Friday and Saturday nights, due to the sudden drop in temperature, following Friday's rain.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

More than 150 persons were present at the reception given to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Caplet, Friday night, upon the return from their wedding trip to New York and Southbridge. They were married in St. James' church last Tuesday morning. The grand march began at eight-thirty and was led by the bride and groom. Guests and relatives were in attendance from all parts of Connecticut and some from Massachusetts. During the intermission several selections were rendered by Almedee Turcot of Danielson. The newly-weds received many gifts including silverware, linen, cut glass and money. The party came to a close at 12 o'clock and then the guests assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Dragon, parents of the bride for a luncheon. Mr. Caplet will report back for duty at the Newport Naval Training Station where he is now located some time this week. On September 15th his ship is to go to Cuba.

Funeral services for Lillian Dufresne, who died in Putnam Wednesday afternoon, were held Saturday morning, at the Sacred Heart church in Waupegan. The celebrant of the mass was Father Mathieu. The bearers were Hormisdas Charon, Napoleon Duval, Louis Fara, and Alfred Aubin. The flower bearers were Madeline Rondeau, Julienne Mandeville, Beila Desparthy, and Rachel Potvin. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery. The committal service was read by Fr. Mathieu. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Louis E. Kennedy.

The leaves on many of the fine maple trees about the borough have become severely burned by the alternate action of the sun and rain. The action is the same as that of human being getting sun-burnt, after going in bathing. The drops of rain can be compared to tiny microscopes and the rays of light passing through them inflict the burns on the leaves. Maples seem to be particularly affected in this manner.

Albert Motz and family of New York City, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Motz of East Brooklyn.

A party of Danielson young men spent the week end at Wood Street Manor Oakland Beach, R. I.

Nelson F. Richardson and Miss Sarah Chase spent the week end in the White Mountains.

Notices have been posted for a special borough meeting to be held tomorrow night in town hall. The meeting is held for the purpose of deciding what action the borough will take as regards the laying of a sewer on Broad street from the property of Ida A. Ammerman to that of Oscar J. Blais; a sewer on Winter street, between Mechanic and Spring street, and whether the borough will make an appropriation for the construction of the sewers mentioned above.

The Dollar Day committee of Danielson Chamber of Commerce has been busy obtaining suitable parking places for out of town buyers when they come here next Saturday. The location of these grounds will be announced some time during the week. Police protection will be provided by the chamber.

Exceptionally heavy automobile traffic marked Sunday. Automobiles from many states have been passing through the town all this season, but so far the majority come from New Jersey. In fact New York machines are almost as common out on the road as those of Connecticut. Every day one also sees cars bearing the registrations of far western states, California, New Mexico, Missouri, Ohio and other.

It was interesting to watch Saturday morning when men from the Arherio company took their steam shovel from the railroad yards to Mechanic street. It was necessary to run the machine over planks until it came to the hard surfaced street. Some difficulty was experienced in negotiating the hill and railroad crossing, near the coal gas house. The shovel of the machine was dropped to the ground and at the same time that power was given to the wheels it helped push the equipment up the grade. After it got to the top, it was run under its own power to a point near the state police barracks and immediately commenced work.

This marked the beginning of the construction of the new state highway between the Borough line and Elmville.

There have been many rumors as to what the Connecticut company will do in regard to its tracks, which parallel the new road. Some said that the tracks would be abandoned and busses substituted, others were that they would be replaced. An official of the company however said Sunday night that nothing definite had been decided upon and that for the present the tracks will remain in their present location.

Between quarter of and ten minutes of five, Saturday night an observer counted 45 cars going in either direction. This is nearly ten machines per minute or one every six seconds. The point at which the observer stood is in front of the Attawaugan Hotel.

A road scraper was at work Saturday afternoon, smoothing of some of the high spots on Mechanics street.

CORONER ANNOUNCES FINDING IN NASIN BOY'S DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 23—A finding has been made by County Coroner Arthur G. Bill on the death of Mike Nasin, five years old, who was recently killed by an automobile in Willimantic. The finding reads as follows: "The undersigned, Coroner within and for the County of Windham, having received notice that Mike Nasin, five years of age, had died in St. Joseph's Hospital, in the City of Willimantic from injuries caused by being struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Eleanor Lewis, on the state highway just northerly of the City of Willimantic, I viewed the body of said deceased and on the 18th day of August, 1925 I held an inquest as to the cause and manner of said death, at the police station, in said City of Willimantic.

"From the evidence taken at said quest I find that said Mike Nasin died in the said City of Willimantic, on the 17th day of August, 1925, from a fracture of the skull caused by being struck by an automobile driven by the said Eleanor Lewis. I further find that said death was not caused by the criminal act, omission and carelessness of the said Eleanor Lewis, or any other person or persons."

"I delivered the body of said deceased to his parents for burial. I file with this finding a copy of the testimony taken at said inquest." Dated at Danielson this 22nd day of August A. D. 1925.

ARTHUR G. BILL
Coroner for Windham County.

PUTNAM

Clarence Booth, professional at the Putnam Country Club broke the club record Saturday by making nine holes in 31. The course record was 32 which he made two weeks ago by beating the former mark by one. Par for the eighteen holes is 74 and Booth holds the record, 67, for the full course.

There is considerable speculation over the notice posted at the station in Thompson, that unless there is an increase in business by January 1, the station will be closed. It is signed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company. Whether it means an increase in freight traffic or passenger traffic or both is not stated, nor is the amount of increased business necessary to keep the office open stated. Thompson is on the Midland division between Putnam and Boston. There are no factories there and freight shipments have always been light. The advent of the motor truck has cut into that and the private automobile has taken part of the passenger business, but neither of the new passenger bus lines, The Acme from New London to Worcester nor the one from Providence to Springfield, passes through Thompson.

All of the officers of the Pomona Grange are at Storrs for the first three days of the week attending the annual conference of New England Grange lecturers, and many of the officers of the subordinate granges in this section are also in attendance. Safety First an All Year Topic

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24.(AP)—All year around safety work among more than 100,000 school children of Los Angeles has become an established part of accident prevention here. Formerly the teaching of safety work at public schools terminated with the starting of vacation periods.

While the wary members of a Bridgeport, (Vt.,) rescue party were at home for a night's rest, a 1,100-pound cow which had been imprisoned for hours at the bottom of an eleven-foot well shaft into which she had fallen, clambered in some manner to the earth's surface and in the morning stood near the mouth of the yawning cavern placidly chewing her cud when the men came to renew efforts to succor the animal.

WESTERLY

Liberty street in Pawcatuck, especially that section known as Berry Hill, has become one fruitful in accidents which involve not only automobiles, but pedestrians on the highway. Pawcatuck police authorities have had numerous complaints about small children who are allowed to play in the highway. Hardly a day goes by, especially when the road surface is wet and slippery, that automobiles do not skid and swing around with more or less material damage.

Saturday night at 7:45 7 year old Frank Italiano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Italiano, corner of Liberty and Downer streets was run over by the Ford truck of Samuel Servidio, of 82 Pleasant street, Westerly. The truck was reported to have been operated at a moderate rate of speed, but the child in the highway was knocked down. Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called and treated the boy at the home of his parents. Supernumerary Patrolman E. A. Kenyon of Pawcatuck visited the place and investigated the accident. Sunday morning Dr. Scanlon took the injured Italiano boy to the Westerly hospital where an X-ray was taken and it was found that the left leg was fractured just above the ankle. The patient was taken back to his home in Pawcatuck.

There are two sections in Westerly where danger to children in the highway is equally as great, on Oak street, the road to Bradford and the hill near the junction of the old south road to Hopkinton and again on Pierce street. The Westerly police department has had numerous complaints from automobilists concerning these dangerous sections of the town's highway.

S. O. S. calls on Saturday night about 9:05 were heard by Westerly radio listeners in which were sent out following the collision between the Texas Oil Companys tank steamer Harvester, and the British passenger ship "Rosalind" two miles southeast of Point Judith. Capt. Cougland Collins, formerly of Westerly, of the Point Judith Coast Guard station put out to the disabled steamers, one of which, the passenger boat, had its bows smashed in and the other its stern damaged. Capt. Amos E. Broadmeadow, of Watch Hill Coast Guard station, stood ready to respond to an emergency call, but the two boats were able to proceed towards New York.

A thick coating of oil washed down the Pawcatuck river early Sunday morning; caused by trouble with the filteration plant at the gas house of the South County Public Service company, on Canal street.

An attempt was made by Massachusetts state police, Saturday night, to "hook up" several Westerly residents with the recent sensational Worcester bandits, John Troy and Dennis Britt, two companions of Walter Derosier, who was shot in a gun battle with Worcester police.

Promoter Alexander M. Blake of the Lorraine athletic activities was busy the past week in signing up a lusty crew to represent the Lorraines of Westerly in its annual baseball game with the Crompton-Knowles team of Worcester. So successful was his efforts that one automobile party with himself, John Mooney, Alexander Blake, Jr., Richard Mitchell and Edgar Lenihan all of Westerly went to the Heart of the Commonwealth and were returning in the early hours of Sunday morning when they were challenged by the State Troopers who have orders to show no no quarter. With considerable difficulty the identities were established of the auto party who were taking away with them nothing of more value than the winning of Saturday's game of baseball. One of the troopers "complimented" one of the Westerly party by saying that he was the exact picture of Troy. Westerly homes were reached at 6 a. m. Sunday.

In special sessions of the Third District court, Friday night, before Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Jr., Samuel Miller and W. Peck, arrested by Chief of Police Brown and Police Officer Madison, while peddling bananas on Pleasant street, were fined $10 with costs, totaling $15.

Saturday noon Frank Coon of Asaway was presented in court on an intoxication charge and fined $5, with the added warning that future arrest might bring a penalty of a jail sentence.

Estate of Natalia S. B. Forsyth. Petition received to have filed and recorded a foreign will. Petition granted.

Officer Robert Kessel, of the Westerly police force, was called Saturday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock to investigate the collision of two automobiles on High street, near the junction of Friendship street. A Chevrolet sedan, operated by John Ward, owned by Jennie Ward, of 97 Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, was passing through Friendship street towards High street, just as an automobile driven by a Boston man passed along High street. To avoid a collision with this machine, as reported to the officer, the sedan was driven across High street, striking the parked Studebaker touring car of Fred Roberts. Considerable damage was done the touring car for which an agreement for settlement was made. Officer Kessel tried out the brakes of the sedan and found that they were working properly.

Captain George A. Stillman, U. S. A., O. R., of Westerly, went to Pawtucket Sunday morning to participate in the military funeral for Patroiman Peter Borsay, killed in the Mackinac boiler bursting disaster at Newport, held at 2 o'clock, from his home, 100 Hamlet street; arrangements for the burial were made by Walter G. Gatchell post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of which he was a member. In the World war at one time the deceased soldier acted as an orderly for Capt. Stillman. Capt. Stillman has recently returned to his Westerly home from a tour of field duty at Fort Terry, in Long Island sound.

Albert R. Collingon, a Mackinac steamer passenger, in a critical condition at the naval hospital, Newport, is said to have been a Pawcatuck resident, on the West Side, Westerly, when a boy.

Relatives of Michael J. Gilligan, an other Mackinac passenger and a patient at the Newport General hospital, are summer visitors at Pleasant View Beach and have occupied the cottage of Michael Clemens there.

Miss Eleanor Gill and her brother Harry were Pleasant View visitors in Westerly early Sunday morning. Miss Gill left Westerly for Providence to return to her duties as a registered nurse in Utica, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Thorp and daughter, of Pawcatuck, and Miss Mary T. Thorp, of Westerly, motored to Jamestown Saturday. Miss Thorp is to be a critic teacher in the public schools of the town, having been a grade teacher the past year in the High street new grammar school, Westerly.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Utter, son George and nurse, of Westerly, motored to Newport, R. I., Saturday.

Elder Daniel Seekater, of Westerly, was the preacher Sunday at the Bifown church, near Wakefield.

Mrs. S. J. Doty and Miss Mary L. Burdick were guests of Wickford relatives and friends Saturday.

Miss Georgia True, of Providence, formerly of Westerly, visited Westerly friends over the week-end, making the trip by automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Nichols, their son Thomas and John Alden and daughters, Lydia F. and Althea, of Westerly, were automobile visitors at Long Plain, near New Bedford, Saturday, continuing their vacation visit of two weeks at a camp further down the Cape.

Rev. and Mrs. Clayton A. Burdick returned to their camp on Yawgoog pond, Sunday evening, after a week-end visit at their home in Westerly.

Dr. E. R. Lewis, of Westerly, was a visitor at Yawgoog pond in Hopkinton, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Bromley, of Jewett City, were Westerly callers Sunday and visited the beaches. Mrs. Bromley has recently returned from an automobile tour in the Canadian provinces.

A session of the town court of Stonington, with William A. Wilcox judge and A. G. Martin, of Pawcatuck, clerk will be held this (Monday) morning in Borough hall, Stonington.

William W. Hiscox, Jr., of Brooklyn, N. Y., and his cousin, Lt. Reginald L. Dean, of Fort Humphries, Va., are guests of Pawcatuck relatives.

John Rowe was a Providence visitor Sunday.

Early Saturday morning it was discovered that the gas filling station of Armando Rossi, 31 Railroad avenue, had been entered. A side window pane of a lower sash on the east side of the building was broken to gain admission. The break was probably made sometime between the closing hour of about midnight and two o'clock in the morning. From a cash drawer the sum of $12.28 was reported to have been taken, but a box containing $9 in quarters located near-by was left by the midnight prowlers. No other goods in the contents of the small building were disturbed. Police Sergeant Michael Curtin was called to make an investigation.

Recorded at the office of the Westerly town clerk, appear the following transfers:

August 19. Arthur Chapman of Hartford to Alexander Barclay Robertson, a tract of land between Pleasant View and Weekapaug, on the north side of Atlantic avenue, Lot No. 5, rear beach lots of Harris P. Chapman.

Ernest E. Rogers of New London, treasurer of the state of Connecticut, as treasurer and trustee to Charles P. Eccleston of Ashaway, release under mortgage of a plot on the west side of Canal street with 90 foot front and extending about 440 feet to the center of the Pawcatuck river, containing 43,200 square feet, more or less.

Release of the above property by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad with a right of way to Mary A. Graf, conveyed to Charles F. Eccleston.

Charles P. Eccleston of Ashaway to Mattie D. C. Eccleston an undivided one-third interest in the above property.

Charles P. Eccleston to Robert Dresdale, Jr., an undivided one-third interest in the above property.

Charles P. Eccleston to Elizabeth Haswell an undivided one-third interest in the above property.

August 21. Richard Slaughter of Stonington to Patsy and Angelina M. DeLuca a certain parcel of land on the west side of High street.

Concettina Grilli to John Pucci et ux a certain lot of land with dwelling, frame store building and improvements on the east side of Canal street.

Marriage intentions were filed Saturday in the Westerly town clerk's office for the Robbins-Schreiber wedding, which is to be held at the Watch Hill Union chapel Saturday, September 5th. The return showed John William Moge Robbins, aged 24, born in Greensburg, Pa., May 26th, occupation general salesman; father Edward E. Robbins; and mother Luella Moore. The intending bride, Elise Wendell Schreiber, of New York, is aged 21, was born in Short Hills, N. J.; father Otto A. Schreiber; mother, Elizabeth M. Davis.

Dying and mining are Britain's old-est industries.

JEWETT CITY

Attentive listening evidenced the interest of a large audience at the Baptist Church Sunday morning, when Rev. Edwin L. Thornton, of Oyster Bay, N. Y., was the speaker. The minister drew his convincing lessons from the topic, Where do you Live? His text was John 1-39 and 40. They said unto Him, Rabbi, where dwellest thou? He said unto them, Come and see. Localizing his theme, he said one might live in Jewett City, but which one? There are many of them encompassed by identical boundaries. He carried his hearers to consider the life of Christ, and illustrated by comparison. His rough hard contact with the material world in which he lived, and his real life of peace, and devotion to the Father, ever at his side. Seated among the audience were Rev. Dr. D. A. Pitt and family of Norwich who are spending the season at their cottage near Beach Pond. The organ voluntary by Miss Ellen Prior, was of unusual excellence. The dahlia display of Maud Adams, in white and lavender and A. D. Livonia in pure pink, were from the old Chuey Watson gardens, near the church.

The Ethel May Shorey engagement, at Finn's is postponed until later.—Adv.

The grand Jewett City tennis tournament closed Saturday afternoon at Andrew MacNicol's court on Pleasant View. In the semi-finals, Rev. J. J. Tyler was defeated by E. S. Hiscox and William Dealtrey won his game from William Marshall. In the finals Hiscox took two straight sets from his opponent, Dealtrey. Hiscox was declared the champion of the exceptionally pleasant and interesting tournament. The players, were Chester Dudkowski, William Dealtry, Rev. J. J. Tyler, Bernard Wechsler, Andrew MacNicol, Leslie Hyde, Edward F. Blake, E. S. Hiscox, Rev. G. Keen Gray, James Q. Dolan, H. Gordon Willis, Herbert Thompson, William Marshall and John Le Claire.

William McNicol and family have removed to Mr. McNicol's recently purchased home in Sylvandale. Frank Goncharow will occupy the property vacated by Mr. McNicol.

Postmaster William T. Crumb has received notification of the changing of the name of Arctic, R. I., postoffice to West Warwick, R. I.

Funeral services for John Grabowska were held at St. Mary's Church Saturday morning, Rev. J. J. Tyler was celebrant of requiem mass. The bearers were Joseph Cimochowski, Bronislaw Bizylorowski, Edward Dvorewski, Kostany Zurah, Ludovic Woipheevic. Sixty members of St. Casimir Polish society attended the funeral in a body.

Albert Paquette, who has been in charge of spooling, warping, slashing, twisting and drawing in for several years in Ashland Cotton Co. mills has resigned to go into business for himself. The position made vacant has been filled by the promotion of Alex Des Jardines, who has been in charge of the parts department. Harold Tomlinson takes the latter's place and Fred Payne is the new night stock clerk.

Mrs. Joseph Zubroki is still in a serious condition at St Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, where she was taken more than ten days ago for another surgical operation.

R. R. Barber and his daughters, Alice and Mary and Harold Shattuck of Westminster, Vt., were week-end guests at W. H. Brown's.

Friday evening late, and after midnight Saturday morning, local automobile drivers encountered, with the mercury dropped to 48 degrees, a fog which for density is seldom equalled. Parties leaving Beach Pond at 3 a. m. consumed two hours reaching the town. South-bound drivers, coming in from the north, just below the Central Village cemetery, were obligated to send a man ahead in the road, while the machine followed in lowest gear. Windshields had to be left open, and the people in the cars, clad in light summer clothing, nearly perished in the dripping fog.

Mr. and Mrs. Prentice W. Chase are having a well-earned vacation for a week, Sunday they were in Westerly where Mr. Chase's parents celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Among the attendants at the Baptist Church Square meeting were Mrs. Annette Wilcox and her son, Byron C. Wilcox and family of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J. Mrs. Fred Turner of Gales Ferry, Charles Edward Prior and his son, Charles M. of Bridgeport.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Tarbox, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Tarbox, Miss Ariana Cook and J. E. Phillips attended the funeral of Mrs. Agnes Harvey in Plainfield Saturday. Mrs Harvey was a sister of E. C. Tarbox.

James Jennings, of West Willington is a guest of his brother, Dr. G. H. Jennings.

Mrs. G. W. Robinson who has been in poor health for some time, is unable to walk, without crutches, and is under the doctor's care at present.

Miss Ruth Barton and Fred Barton, has been a guest at the cottage at Ocean Lane, Long Point occupied by Miss M. A. Burdick.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Swift and daughter, Catherine, of Providence, were guests at E. H. Hiscox's Sunday.

Mrs. A. M. Hamilton of Springfield has been spending a week with her sister, Mrs. George Moeller. She is to go soon to Colorado to visit her brother.

Miss Ida Tripp returned Saturday from a two weeks' visit in South Coventry.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. French are spending their vacation in Jamestown, R. I.

Rev. G. Keene Gray accompanied the Zeezer family on their trip to Portland.

Mrs. E. W. Hiscox will substitute in Slater Library this week, during the vacation of the librarian, Miss Wilcox. Bulletin News may be left there, or at her home in Pendleton hill, between 8 a. m. and after 8 p. m. or between 11:30 a. m. and 12:30 p. m. and 5 and 6 p. m. This will be necessary, as Mr. Hiscox is out of town for a week, also.

DRIVER TRIES TO CUT IN WITH THE USUAL RESULT

(Special to the Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Aug. 23.—A bad automobile accident occurred on the state road in Sylvandale Saturday afternoon.

Sylvester Kowaski bound south, pulled out to cut in ahead of a car preceding him, and smashed into John Zarwiski, bound north. Both machines were filled with the families of the drivers. The man wholly at fault suffered only minor injuries. Mrs. Kowaski was slightly injured. Dr. Jennings was summoned and had to attend two of the occupants of the car that was proceeding in its proper place, at moderate speed, on the right side of the road. Mrs. Zarwiski and her 5-year-old boy Walter, were taken into the home of Frank Johnson nearby, for treatment. Mrs P. W. Chase, R. N. was in attendance with Dr. Jennings. The woman had seevral head bruises and cuts. The boy was thrown through the windshield, and 7 stitches were necessary to close the long deep cuts in his face and forehead. Dr Rainville took Mrs. Kowaski to his office for treatment. State Policeman Streamer from the Danielson barracks was summoned by telephone from E. F. Burleson's house nearby. Officer Henry Vegiarde took over the congested traffic situation at this busy point and the state police attended to the mix-up. Sylvester Kowaski is under arrest for reckless driving, and will be presented for trial in Justice Goss' Monday) evening. According to the local police and state constabulary, he was entirely at fault.

How He Helps His Fellow Men

"I want to tell you how much I do love Peterson's Ointment for the good it has done me. My sore was on my left leg was 4 1-2 inches by 2 1-4 inches wide—is all healed up beautifully now and then too it was so soothing on such a raw sore, I can't say enough praise for the good it has done me and will say a good word in your salve's favor." Very truly yours, Miss Kate Kull, Sigel, Ill.

"I'd rather get a letter like that," says Peterson of Buffalo, "than have John D. Rockefeller give me a thousand dollars. It does me a lot of good to be able to be of use to my fellow man.

"For years I have been selling through druggists a large box of PETERSON'S OINTMENT for 60 cents The healing power in this ointment is marvelous. Eczema goes in a few days. Old sores heal up like magic; piles that other remedies do not seem to even relieve are speedily conquered."

It stops chafing in five minutes and for scalds and burns it is simply wonderful.

The mighty healing power of Peterson's Ointment quickly clears the skin of all rashes and blemishes. Peterson Ointment Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

MYSTIC

Sunday afternoon, from 2:30 to 5:30, the exhibition of paintings at Broadway school was free to the public, giving every one an opportunity to see the fine collection. Several of the artists exhibiting were present and courteously answered any questions asked. Many improved the opportunity and in inspecting the canvases recognized several local places. Old Mystic scenes were selected for some of the paintings.

Mrs. Eva Burdick, of 21 East Main street, entertained the Daisy Moor club on her birthday Friday. Whist was played; those receiving prizes were Miss Callie Chapman first, Mrs. Burdick second. A large birthday cake was on the table and delicious refreshments were served. The hostess received gifts from those present and from other friends. Those present were Mrs. C. F. Congdon, Miss Callie Chapman, Mrs. Sarah Barstow, Mrs. Ruth Newell, Miss Maud Congdon Miss Minnie Scotland, Mrs. Ina Burdick and her daughter Miss W. Scott Reed, of Jewett City.

Miss Minnie Scotland a teacher at Albany, N. Y. university, is visiting Miss Maud Congdon.

Mrs. John E. Noyes of Groton Long Point, called on friends here Friday.

Clarence Bradley arrived at his home Friday evening for a stay over the week-end with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Seaverns, of Springfield, Mass., who have spent a few weeks in Mystic for several years, are now at Noank for an outing. Mr Seaverns is a well known artist and is engaged in painting pecures around Noank and nearby places.

Mystic has several residents interested in dahlia growing, among them George Tingley, R. D. Williams and Jesse Stinson. Sunday a number visited these gardens to see the many varieties and beautiful colors.

OLD MYSTIC

Services have been omitted in the Methodist church the past two Sundays, the pastor attending Willimantic camp meeting.

W. H. Davis a former resident here for forty-five years, but now in Willimantic, was calling on friends here recently.

Miss Agnes Austin is visiting relatives in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Williams and son, Kenneth, Mrs. Harold Williams and Mrs. H. O. Williams motored to Brooklyn, N. Y., last week. Mrs. Harold Williams' sister, Mrs. John De Graw and daughter, Gertrude, returned with them for a visit.

THE THREATENED STRIKE

From the sentiment expressed at the conference of the New England governors it doesn't appear that they believe that this part of the country should be made to suffer from a coal strike, or that the consumers of anthracite should be held up every year once by a threatened shortage and a boosting of the price. In the opinion of these men the gathering this situation can be dealt with in a large measure by the consumers themselves by demanding and using the substitute fuels which are available in sufficient quantity to meet requirements and to make the anthracite consumers independent of the hard coal region. Then if the operators and miners want to fight the matter out between themselves there will be less hardship involved for the innocent bystanders.

Then with the first of September only a week off there is a difference of opinion as to whether the strike will actually take place even though it is generally believed that it will not be a long one should it result as predicted.

With the governors of New England trying to prevent the effects of such a strike, if not actually working to prevent the strike itself, it is impossible to overlook the actions of the merchants in the coal mining region who are naturally keenly desirous that there be no strike. From the support given to it it is evident that there is strong sentiment against such a strike, and when President Lewis of the miners warns them to keep their hands off and mind their own business, none should know better than he that a strike, with the effects which are certain to fall upon them, come about as close as they wish to being their own business. They have been through the mill. They know what has been expected of them and they, as well as the consumers of the fuel, want no repetitions. They also realize what a further decrease in operations through the use of substitutes by the consuming public is going to mean in the number of miners and the amount of time mining activity is to be carried on. The consumer has been obliged to stand and suffer in the past but when he gets a chance to protect himself there is reason to believe that he will not miss it.

ENFORCING PROHIBITION

In the reorganization of the prohibition enforcement force, General Andrews has named 24 administrators as the beginning of the reorganization that takes place the first of next month. Each of these administrators is to direct the activities in his respective district and under the announced purpose of the prohibition chief this marks an important step in a determined effort to see that the dry law is carried out.

It is going to be another test of what can or cannot be done in the work of enforcement and is in accord with plans which were announced soon after the campaign was opened against rum row.

At certain of the 24 posts it is to be noted that the appointees have been designated as acting administrators. In view of the search for the best possible men that could be obtained it is to be inferred that these appointments have been made temporarily either because the men themselves are unwilling to accept the post permanently or else the chief has been forced to make men with whom he is not entirely satisfied and a temporary appointment permits of changes being made with the least evidence of trouble. Likewise it is to be recognized that under such appointments shifts would awaken less attention, and it makes it possible for the chief to put in men he really wants when he discovers them in case those doing probationary service fail to measure up to requirements.

It is not a job that everyone who has the ability would care for and there may have been many more refusals to accept such appointments than are known about. With such a reorganization, however, it should be possible to determine what can usually be done in the way of enforcement. It has been pretty generally known what difficulties are experienced under the present exercise of this police power. Sentiment will not change because of the reorganization but those who believe there has been too much fault with the enforcement authorities will have a chance to study results under the change. Enforcement thus far has borned on the farce. Can it be made any more effective?

CLEANING HOUSE

Many a department, many a business and many an industry has experienced trouble because of the friction that exists within it. When there is an unwillingness to work together, when there is a disposition to pull apart, when individualism gets control then there is invariably trouble within and a failure to get the desired results. When there is a refusal to keep step it is time for a change and that is what is being done in the department of agriculture, and why it is being done.

Last week it was announced that Dr. H. C. Taylor had ceased his connections with the department and that he had been dropped upon refusal to resign. He had declined to go as others had gone when the secretary of agriculture considered it desirable for the good of the department and the country.

A reorganization has been underway in the agricultural department as the result of the study which had been given to it by Secretary Jardine. He found sectionalism rife and when it was disclosed that there were bureau chiefs who were openly fighting the administration and thereby obstructing its policies he rightly decided that it was time for a change. Nothing more could be expected by those bureau chiefs. They had not only failed but refused to keep in step. They were bucking the organization and that is not to be tolerated whether it is in a government department or a corporation.

Secretary Jardine has dispensed with the services of several who have been devoting their efforts to sectional activity regardless of national welfare. In doing this he opposes the methods of certain ones who come from the very section of the country that he does, but it is to be realized that Dr. Jardine knows his business that he is an agricultural expert and is not unmindful of the varied interests of the country which are so closely allied with the farmers.

TRAFFIC POLICE

Word comes from Germany to the effect that plans are being made to make it more comfortable for the traffic policemen next winter by establishing foot warmers in the street for their benefit. This seems entirely feasible since there are mushroom lights at similar points lighted by electricity and there is no reason why the current could not be employed for heating purposes when needed.

Caring for the traffic police is in keeping with the same effort that was made for the motorman and conductor who used to ride on the front and back platforms of the horse and early electric cars in all kinds of weather. Gradually the need of relief was appreciated and obtained.

There are numerous communities where the position of the traffic cop has already come in for consideration. New York has erected its towers for housing them and the signally system, and many a community has erected a large umbrella for his shelter in the time of storm or during the hot days of summer. Likewise there are the booths where space permits for the protection of the man who is entitled to some relief from icy blasts or the melting sun. He has enough troubles without being obliged to put forth extra efforts in dealing with the weather. Whatever will help to keep him good natured deserves attention when the streets will permit of protective devices. There are few cities today which do not have traffic squads and the number is bound to increase. Perhaps Berlin can solve the problem of housing them and set an example that others will be quick to follow in the interest of efficiency if nothing else.

GETTING RUBBER

One large American user of raw rubber has gone to Liberia and taken a lease of a large acreage in that country for the purpose of producing rubber that a greater contribution may be made to the quantity of rubber that is required in the country. This is but one of the steps that are recognized as necessary in order to meet the present high price of rubber which is not only forcing up prices of goods into which rubber enters but is slowing up industry which is forced to curtail operations even though plenty of orders are on the books.

Production of rubber in Liberia is not a venture. It has been undertaken before and there is no reason why it should not succeed under the plan for much greater production. Conditions elsewhere give hearty encouragement to it.

But while other rubber fields are being stimulated to greater output, isn't it time that a serious move was made for the development of the Philippines along this line. The department of commerce shows that there are a million and a half acres which are capable of producing 77,000 tons of rubber a year in those islands and all that is needed is to make a start in order to get needed results. Something has been said about the handicaps that may be expected from the character of the labor there and the laws which are regarded as standing in the way of the cheap production through handling large acreages, but even the Filipinos should be alert to the importance of development and the remodeling of its laws so that such a new industry could be established. The Liberia lease would indicate that the chances were considered to be more favorable there than in the Philippines.

EDITORIAL NOTES

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

When putting away pie crust for any length of time smear it thickly all over with lard and cover with a bowl. It will keep longer.

Spread a little flour over the top of cakes before they are iced. This will prevent the icing from running off.

Use sour cream in your salad dressings if you have no other use for it.

In choosing a ham always run a clean knife into the knuckle and center. If it comes out clean and smelling sweet, the ham is good but if the knife comes out smeared and greasy looking and with strong oder the ham is bad.

To prevent lamp chimneys from cracking, put them into a pan of cold water, gradually heat until it boils and then let it cool gradually.

To remove lime which accumulates on the inside of a tea kettle, boil a strong solution of vinegar in the kettle, then rinse thoroughly before puting water in.

Iron rust may be removed (even the worst marks will yield if the worker is persistent) by applying common table salt and the juice of a freshly cut lemon to the stain and holding it over the spout of a steaming teakettle. After a few minutes repeat with a fresh application.

CLEANING WALL PAPER

To clean wall paper, first brush the walls thoroughly with a duster tied over a long-handled broom, and wipe with clean cloths until all the dust is removed. Then cut a stale loaf of bread in quarters and with the pieces lightly wipe the paper, holding the bread by the crust. Begin at the top and rub downward—never up or across.

COOK CABBAGE IN UNCOVERED KETTLE

Strong flavored vegetables such as onions, cabbage and turnips should be cooked in an uncovered vessel in a large quantity of water.

SMART WEDDING ATTENDANTS

Some of the most interesting ideas for society weddings come from England, where much attention is given the subject of dressing the wedding attendants. It is from England of course, that we take the idea of having children included in the wedding party, since no prominent English wedding would be complete without flower girls, pages or train bearers. Now they say that the smartest sort of page costumes consist of little frilled lace-trimmed shirts worn with knickerbockers of gold corded satin, shaped like blue riding breeches.

A distinguished English noblewoman dressmaker, who makes a good many bridal party outfits, often takes her suggestions from the costumes to be found in old portrait groups, copying almost exactly the costumes worn by the children in some Romney, Lawrence or Van Dyke canvas.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Heavy silk ribbon known as belting is used to make some of the smartest new sports hats.

English eyelet embroidery collar and cuff sets are returning to favor for both silk and cotton frocks.

Long fringes of pearl beads are used on colored chiffon frocks. Often they are a yard in length.

Scarfs have brilliant colors and very large designs. Straw embroidery occasionally appears as a relief note.

Very expensive pumps come in pastel shaded suede and match the frock. Those of powder blue are particularly lovely.

The popularity of the fuchsia colored hat is being challenged by the one of bright blue. Yellow, too, is coming in for a large share of attention.

CLEAR MARMALADE

To make jam or marmalade look clear without skimming it, add a piece of butter the size of an egg about a quarter of an hour before removing the fruit from the fire. The jam will look quite clear and will not stick to the jars when turned out for use.

KEEPING SWEATER IN SHAPE

Sweaters quickly lose their shape, becoming baggy and drawn, if not put on properly the first time worn. The worsted jacquette, coat or slipon should be pulled well up on the neck in the back and the sleeves should be well pulled on over the shoulders and brought close to the arm hole. This manner of putting on the sweater prevents the neck from pulling down in the back and the sleeves from getting unshapely and baggy.

LAUNDRY HINTS

It is well to make a soap jelly of the soap you use in the kitchen and laundry as it is much quicker to use than rubbing the bar.

Before laundering fine cotton soak the articles in borax water. This will help set the color and will remove the dirt without much rubbing.

Take small pieces of toilet soap, add water and put on stove until dissolved. You will have a fine soft soap for your hands.

Sprinkle clothes with hot water and they may be ironed almost immediately.

Bristle brushes may be washed with lukewarm water and a little ammonia (three teaspoons of ammonia to a quart) and then rinsed in clear water. Water is likely to injure the back of the brush. The brush, therefore, should not be covered with water, but should be washed by sousing the bristles back and forth in shallow water.

PATTERNED LISLES

The novelty stockings of this season are largely confined to the lisle materials but the designs in which they come are not confined at all. Plaid, stripe and check designs abound and they come in any number of smart color combination. Just because these stockings are not silk do not imagine they are low in price. The designs designate the cost.

RESEMBLE SUNSHADE

The hats English women are wearing at afternoon functions and garden parties at present are almost as large as their sunshades and are much the same shape. The hats, however, are the more elaborately trimmed the decorations ranging from fruit and flowers to ostrich pompoms and paradise plumes.

FOR SUMMER HOMES

A trifle unusual is a low oval bowl of gayly decorated yellow china filled with stiff and formal-looking china flowers.

IT SAVES SUGAR

If you want to bring out the sweetness and flavor of fruit, cook it slowly. It is quit unnecessary to sweeten prunes if you cook them this way.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The British Isles contain two million more women than men.

Nearly 30,000 women are employed by banks in the United States.

Mrs. Emma Leutin of Kewanee County is Wisconsin's first woman sheriff.

One theater in Germany employs women as scene shifters and stage hands.

Of forty women present at a recent social gathering in Hiawatha, Kansas, not one wore bobbed hair.

Chambermaids in the big New York hotels are organizing a union to better their conditions of employment.

Eskimo girls and women have taken to bobbing their hair, according to a traveler recently returned from the far north.

Leeds, England, believes it is the only city in the world able to boast of a woman who earns her living as a professional rat catcher.

Waiters in a big restaurant in London who went on strike recently complained that their tips were few and meager—because the chief patrons of the restaurant were women.

STIMULATE APPETITE

As an introduction to a meal there is nothing that will so pleasantly stimulate the appetite as the delicate nut-like flavor of the ripe olive in canapes and cocktails. Sardine and olive canapes are delicious. Rub sardines to a paste, with a small amount of melted butter. Add a few drops of onion juice. Spread on bread toasted on one side. Cover with a thin slice of tomato dipped in French dressing and covered with a layer of chopped egg and minced ripe olives, well seasoned.

NEWEST BANGELS

The newest bangles, from London reports for wrist and arm are being made flat, some in flexible gold and others in links of onyx combined with colored gems. The flexible bracelets are finely engraved in Italian patterns, and are proving popular among women, and satisfy the taste of those aspiring to the latest in fashions.

PATCHWORK FROCKS

The futuristic tendency so strongly shown in all the art of the day is reflected in some of the new summer frocks. These dresses are of silk, and are trimmed with patchwork designs in brilliant silks that are carefully stitched on. Sometimes these decorations take the form of simple landscapes.

RECIPES

Spiced Tomatoes: To three and one-half pounds of canned tomatoes, from which the liquid has been drained, allow two pounds of granulated sugar, a half ounce each of cinnamon, whole cloves and allspice, a quarter of a grated nutmeg and a half pint of vinegar. Boil the vinegar and spices to-boil until sugar and tomatoes and boil until the mixture is thick.

Crab Meat Salad: Soak two teaspoons of granulated gelatin in one-third of chicken broth (from which all fat has been removed) ten minutes, dissolve over boiling water; add one tablespoon of terragon vinegar, then add slowly to one-half cup of mayonnaise dressing, beating constantly meanwhile. Mix one-half cup of drained grapefruit pulp, one-half cup of canned pineapple cut in small pieces and one cup crab meat; toss lightly together, then add to the mayonnaise mixture. Turn into oiled individual timbale molds, cover and chill overnight in the refrigerator. If the chicken stock is not at hand, use strained grapefruit juice. Remove from molds and serve in nests of crisp lettuce heart leaves.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Some Questions Answered

Mr. Editor: Referring to your paper so recently as August 15, an appeal is made by a correspondent in North Franklin, signed by the writer, "Respectfully, William Glowacki." As no reply to this very proper and reasonable request has yet appeared it seems not good to me that it should pass in silence or be ignored.

In the early time, it was written, that for the instruction of his people God set some in his church, first, apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly, teachers, and it seems that with so many religious societies as we have today, this man might have the respectful attention requested.

Though not belonging to either of the instructor classes named, but feeling that it is a shame to slight an honest inquirer, I am going to undertake this task which rightfully belongs to other teachers, but with due respect.

It being proper, I will first repeat the questions, and then attempt to reply on the terms of the inquirer, viz: Without resort to the Bible:

1. Who is God? 2. What is God? 3. Where is God? 4. What does God do?

Now its seems to me that any Sunday School worker would hail this as a beautiful black-board suggestive exercise. One that might be used with great profit.

Let me try to use it in that way. The inquiries are legitimate and highly proper and therefore worth answers which I trust will be received in the spirit in which I offer them.

Then, beginning by questions:

1. God is a being, seen dimly by the natural eye in his universe, but more clearly seen by the mind's eye, which also can in some measure comprehend as well as see.

2. God is spirit, the creator of all things visible, invisible and beyond our vision, including ourselves and therefore deserving of our respect, reverence and homage.

3. God is infinite and by his presence pervades all imaginable space. In a small sense, we by thought can travel the infinite space and beyond the possible reach of our bodies, which gives us an idea of his pervading presences.

4. God's doings are apparent in the systems of his creation, in the appointment of seasons, by which we and all living creatures are supplied—and the upholding of vast systems beyond ours. 5. "If the ancients made to themselves gods, how do we know that we are not making our God?" Ans. Because of our greater intelligence we know that the thing made must ever be inferior to its maker. So when the ancients chipped and chiseled a tree into the shape of an image—then burned the chips with which to warm themselves and then bowed down and worshiped the other part, it was an ignorant performance, and yet from this even, we learn that the instinct in man leads to worship and that the worship of the true God had been lost or perverted, or that the image makers and the priests for their own profit and ease carried the unthinking people along in these customs intentionally.

The better understanding of God as spirit and they that worship him do so in spirit and in truth which comes to us through Jesus Christ and his revelations of God assures us of his reality, nearness and loving care for us as his offspring, and that he is more ready to impart his spirit to us than earthly parents are to give gifts to their children.

He will help us to discern the truth and save us from the error of thinking that all worship is a sort of idolatry. Men are forgetful. It is known that even fine arts have been neglected and lost, nor yet regained; and many thoughtful men like Mr. Glowacki are wondering, and some are fearing that the tendency today is to forget God and be swept back again into a living tide of barbarism. More might be said, but let this end a feeble yet sincere effort here to act as

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, who is mentioned to succeed the late Mrs. Helen Gardner on the civil Service Commission, is head of the National Democratic Women's Club, and has long been a power in Democratic circles. Born of an old and distinguished New York family, and married into another, Mrs. Harriman in her youth enjoyed all the advantages of high social connections, an excellent education, and extensive foreign travel. She early became associated with various activities for the unlift of women, and soon her interests spread from social to civic problems, and then to national. She aided in the election of John P. Mitchell as mayor of New York, and later became one of his municipal advisers. She was appointed by President Wilson on his Industrial Relations Committee, when were commenced her activities in behalf of Labor. During the war she held a high post with the Red Cross and rendered service at home and abroad.

From Small Beginnings

Thomas Burt, the Miner, Member of Parliament

In 1847 an English miner in the north of England looked at his little son, "Tommie" Burt, then a boy of ten years, and said: "Laddie, ye are now most a man. Ye are strong and big for the years ye have. Ye have nought to do at home, and there's no money to put ye in school. Laddie, it's the work o' the mines I'm thinkin' o' for ye. On the morrow down ye go."

The father stood and looked at the boy. That father was a miner, blackened by his work, clothed in poor clothing, ignorant and unschooled. His home was a mere hut. His food was the cheapest that money could buy or that a trifling amount of garden work could provide.

"Tom Burt went down into the mines and worked with his father and his father's friends. He became like them, rough in speech and dirty in appearance. He had had practically no chance to go to school, and he looked for nothing except a miner's life. Now the curious thing is that, in spite of what the father thought of what boy thought, and in spite of poor surroundings and lack of education or apparently of opportunities, Thomas Burt became a member of the British Parliament, a speaker of great power, and a man who was sent abroad to represent the people of his land.

"Tom" Burt used his pick and his shovel, but he kept his eyes open and his brain clear. He thought about the work he was doing and about the condition of the miners. He spoke to his fellows and urged them into action. He became an organizer, and because he was well balanced he won respect. When he was 28 he was elected by the miners to a position of trust in one of their organizations. To that trust he was faithful, and he continued to speak, to attend meetings, and to exert his thought and his effort for the good of his associates. Nine years after he had been elected to his first position of responsibility he had so thoroughly won the confidence of all who knew him that he was nominated for membership in the lower house of Parliament. He won the election and then, little by little, grew into a national leader. From one position of trust he rose to another and at 69 was made a member of the Privy Council. The labor interests in England have brought forth in modern times few leaders equal to Thomas Burt, the coal miner.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

AUCKLAND

Auckland, New Zealand, which was 'Last, loneliest, loveliest' b; Kipling, may still seem lonely to those who never visit it; but with its 150,000 inhabitants and all the trappings of a modern American or English city it has interests and activities of its own which make the average Aucklander give scant thought to his geographic isolation." So says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society dealing with one of the chief Pacific ports at which the United States fleet is putting in on its return trip from Australia.

"There are other factors that work to banish thoughts of loneliness from the minds of Aucklanders. The port has become the busy center of trade with the South Sea Islands; and the ships of some of the chief Pacific steamer lines from San Francisco and Vancouver put in at Auckland on their voyages to and from Sydney. As a result of this service Auckland theaters and concert halls are supplied with the theatrical talent and musical artists who are interesting the rest of the world.

"Auckland gives another example of the lavish way in which nature has dealt out wonderful harbors to Australasia. The main Auckland harbor, opening to the east.—Waitemata harbor—furnishes about six square miles of deep, land-locked water; and this opens upon Hauraki Gulf with an area of hundreds of square miles. A ship must steam 30 or 40 miles north from Auckland before it meets the swell of the Pacific, so well is the Gulf protected by its barrier islands.

"In addition Auckland has a back-door harbor in reserve. The city is built on a hilly isthmus only six miles wide, with its main harbor on the east, and an almost equally commodious protected body of water, Manukan Harbor, on the west. The site of the city is the narrowest point of North Island, one of the two large land masses of New Zealand; but to transfer ships from one harbor to the other—six miles apart—would necessitate a trip of more than 400 miles. At present Auckland's back-door harbor is used only for coasting steamers along the western side of the island.

"Auckland's business section lies along the waterfront on the south side of the harbor, and along Queen street, whose well paved, level surface hides a creek bed of early days. Substantial business blocks, some six and seven stories high, give the streets an aspect of an American city of a decade or so ago. The population of Auckland is about 160,000. One touch of America that will make the Blue Jackets feel at home is contributed by little peanut carts, with their cheery steam whistles, to be found on some street corners. These little devices and their roasted nuts are hardly to be found in any other non-American city. As yet, however, the popcorn wagon and the 'hot-dog' stand have not made their appearance to further Americanize the Auckland palate.

"The residence sections of Auckland rambles up the slopes of hills that rise a short distance from the harbor. The entire isthmus is covered with old volcanic cones of various sizes, the highest, Mt. Eden, reaching an altitude of 640 feet. The eminence is a favorite objective for sightseers, dividing popularity with One Tree Hill which is included in a magnificent 300 acre park. From either height one gets a magnificent view of slopes covered with cottages and gardens, the business section, the busy waterfront, the great harbor dotted with forest covered isles, and beyond the inner water gate to the Pacific. To the west one may see entirely across the island and spike out the blue waters of the sea that stretches off to Australia.

"New Zealand's famous social legislation makes itself known if one remains long in Auckland. There the discouraged strap-hanger takes a new lease on life, for the cars all display signs reading 'no standing on this car.' If a 'surplus' passenger somehow gets aboard, the car is stopped and he is politely put off. The city is free from congested tenements and the suburbs are filled with neat cottages built by the state for workmen. These are paid for at a monthly cost little greater than rent.

"All workers have a half holiday once a week in addition to all of Sunday. Saturday is the most popular half holiday, and on Saturday afternoons the streets of Auckland are almost as deserted as on Sunday. New Zealanders are ardent lovers of outdoor life, and on holidays usually make for cricket fields, picnic grounds, parks, or the harbor. Waitemata harbor is an ideal place for yachtsmen whether their craft be large or small. Auckland probably leads most seaside cities of the world in per capita boat ownership. Hundreds of workmen own boats and on holidays there is a sizable exodus by water to some of the charming 'picnic islands' near the harbor's mouth.

"Auckland is almost the exact antipodal point of Gibraltar, and has a climate not unlike that of Sunny Spain at its best. The temperature seldom rises higher than 82 degrees in summer (December, January and February) or falls much below 40 degrees in winter (June, July, and August.) The maximum temperature in Auckland in August is about 60 degrees. Palms grow in the parks beside the trees common to more northern climes. Grass remains green the year around, and Aucklanders carry on their outdoor life through winter and summer alike."

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

Stories That Recall Others

Must be Ulcerated.

Dorothy is anticipating the opening of school but in the city where she lives vaccination is insisted upon. She can use big words but she gets them mixed once in a while.

Asked if she was going back to school in the fall, she said: "Yes, but I must be ulcerated first, and I don't know whether I'm going to be ulcerated on the arm or the shoulder."

Average wages in the United States, measured by the food they will buy, are now nearly five times greater than in Rome, Vienna or Madrid.

Gained 10 Pounds In 22 Days

That's going some—but skinny men, women and children just can't help putting on good, healthy flesh when they take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

As chock full of vitamines as the nasty, fishy-tasting cod liver oil itself, but these sugar-coated, tasteless tablets are as easy to take as candy, and won't upset the stomach.

One woman gained ten pounds in twenty-two days. Sixty tablets, sixty cents. Ask Lee & Osgood Co. or any druggist for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. Directions and formula on each box.

"Get McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablet."

ORDER your coal now. Don't put it off so very late or that old chap, Procrastinate, will land you yet as sure as fate. And some cold Winter day you'll be shivering around and wishing for coal instead of having it.

EXPECT STORRS HENS TO REACH 206,000 MARK

In the forty-second week of the Storrs egg laying contest the production was 1,541 eggs or nearly forty-five per cent. These eggs raise the total to date to 206,000 eggs. If the hens keep on at the same rate they are now going it is quite a safe bet that they will reach the 250,000 mark by the end of the year on November 6. Cross has been declared at the middle of the contest year. J. C. Patton of Charlotte, N. C., is the owner of the leading pen for the week. This pen of White Leghorns laid 61 eggs. Keewaydin Farm's pen of Barred Rocks from Darien, Conn., came through second with a lay of 59 eggs. Hanson's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Ore., made third place with a total of 54 eggs. Hilltop Farm's pen of White Leghorns and R. W. Davis & Sons' pen of Barred Rocks from Rockland, Me., tied for fourth place, each pen laying 50 eggs for the week. There were no changes in the leading pen totals this week.

It might be of interest to note that the Connecticut Poultry Association is again to hold its annual poultry tour from August 31st to September 4th. These tours are held to make it possible for Connecticut poultrymen to become better acquainted with the methods and practices of successful breeders outside the state. The annual tours have always been well patronized and many valuable information absorbed on the trips. The trip this year is to include stops at many of the best poultry farms in Massachusetts and New Hampshire with one whole day of sight seeing in the White Mountains. The tour will enable some of the Connecticut poultrymen, who have entries in the Storrs egg laying contest, to meet their contestants from other states. Those desiring information of value derived from association and accommodations made on such a trip.

For the waiting hymn she sang Beautiful Land on High and for the recessional, Some Sweet Day.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service from New York, Boston and Providence, and the floral tributes were beautiful. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. Fr. Galvin. The bearers were Charles Conradey, M. J. Kelley, James Sullivan and John P. Corcoran.

WEDDINGS
Holdridge-Goodenough

The wedding of Carl Holmes Holdridge and Miss Barbara Goodenough took place at two o'clock Saturday afternoon at Ledyard Congregational Church. They were married by the father of the bride, Rev. G. F. Goodenough, the double ring ceremony being used.

The church was attractively decorated in a color scheme of yellow and white, with a bridal arch of laurel.

Leslie R. Holdridge, brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Dorothy and Miss Frieda Goodenough, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. The ushers were David Geer of New Haven, John Claire of Camden, N. J., Claire Lester and Arthur Goodenough, of Ledyard.

Before the ceremony Leybuch's Fifth Nocturne was beautifully played by Miss Emily Gallup of Norwich. She also played the Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" and the Mendelssohn Wedding March. During the ceremony Miss Gallup played softly Cadman's "At Dawning."

The bride was gowned in white flat crepe trimmed with pearls. Her veil of tulle was caught up in a pearl crown. Her shower bouquet was of bridal roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The bridesmaids wore petal gowns, one of orchid chiffon over peach, the other of sea-green over yellow, with fillets to match. Their bouquets were of peach and yellow gladioli.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Bill Parsonage, the home of the bride, where delicious refreshments were served by the ladies of the parish.

The bride's traveling costume was an ensemble suit of gray silk romaine, with a French felt hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Holdridge left by automobile for a camping trip through the White Mountains. On their return they will reside at Fairview Farm, Ledyard.

Guests were present from Brooklyn, N. Y., Long Island, Providence, R. I., Burlington, Vt., Camden, N. J., St. Paul, Minn., Quincy, Mass., New Haven, Bridgeport, Winsted, Ansonia, Waterbury, Stonington, Mystic, Norwich, Franklin, Preston and Ledyard.

The bride received many beautiful gifts, including cut glass, silver, china, linen and many other useful and valuable presents. They also received several sums of money from relatives and friends, among which was a hundred dollars in gold from the groom's parents.

Mrs. Holdridge is a graduate of Norwich Free Academy, and since attending Teachers' College, at Columbia University, N. Y. and Yale Summer School has taught for two years in Ledyard.

Mr. Holdridge who is the son of Judge and Mrs. Samuel E. Holdridge of Ledyard, also attended the Academy and Norwich Commercial School. For the past five years he has been employed in the cashier's office of the Connecticut Company. Numerous friends among the employes of the company presented Mr. Holdridge a check for $170, as a wedding gift.

It was a very beautiful wedding and was witnessed by over 200, assembled at the church.

Welles-Woodworth

Leonard Victor Welles, son of Ralph E. and Eleanor Cafferty, Welles of Hartford and Miss Inez Woodworth of Hartford, daughter of Albert E. and Nellie E. Holbrook Woodworth of Poquetanuck, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at Yantic, by Rev. Robert B. Day, rector of Grace Episcopal church. The groom is an automobile mechanic in Hartford, while the bride is a stenographer for a Hartford concern.

England's oldest road, which is believed to have been made at least 2,000 years ago runs between Winchester and Canterbury.

LOCAL POLICE CAPTURE ALLEGED BURGLAR ON NO. COVE STREET

Albert Strother, colored, 27, who claims Harrisburg, Va., as his home, was captured by Officer Frank Gwiezdowski, about 3 o'clock Sunday morning as he was running from the house at No. 30 No. Cove street which he is alleged to have ransacked. Strother, who is charged with breaking and entering, is locked up at police headquarters in default of $1,000 bonds.

Strother is said to have gained entrance to the house, which is occupied by Winfield Robbins and family. How long he was in the house is not known, but investigation by the police showed that several rooms had been ransacked although nothing was taken. The intruder awakened the family and was making his escape, according to the police when he was captured.

Officer Gwiezdowski saw Strother leaving the yard of the Robbins house and start to run. The officer put after him and captured him in the doorway of what used to be the Ferry store. Miss Mary Robbins claims to have seen the man in her room and said that he struck a match while in the room.

Strother claims to have been in Norwich only two weeks. He has been employed in a local coal yard. It is said he was in Norwich for some time last summer. At police headquarters Strother claimed he doesn't know anything of the events which brought about his arrest, stating that he was intoxicated at the time.

NORWICH MOOSE HOLD THEIR ANNUAL OUTING

Sunday was a gala day for the Norwich Moose when about 200 members of the lodge, with many members of the Norwich lodge of Eagles, enjoyed the outing and clambake, at the Norwich Fairgrounds. The members began to arrive at the fairgrounds during the morning and at noon a delicious clam crowder was served.

The afternoon program called for concert selections by the Italian band, led by Prof. Pasquale Puca, and these numbers were greatly enjoyed. Beside the music the committee in charge of the outing pulled off a series of athletic events, the prizes offered being fought for by members of the Moose and Eagles, the former organization winning most of the events of the day.

Activities started off with a baseball game between the representatives of the two lodges, the Eagles being handicapped by the loss of their baseball team captain, John Oney, who was compelled to play as a Moose, and this evidently took the heart out of them for when the dust of eight eventful innings had cleared, the score board told the sad story of 15 to 1, with the Moose owning the 15 end of the score. Players on the teams were as follows: Moose, Bruckner ss, Christenson lf, Surprise c, Murphy p, Seidel 2b, Crary 3b, Oney 1b, Kirchner rf, Keeley cf, Eagles, Guzdowski c, Bowne p, Sullivan 1b, Stranka 3b, McMahon 2b, A. Hastedt rf, A. Bruckner ss, Woodmansee cf, Goepfert lf. (Score by innings omitted because of the 5th when the Moose counted 11 runs).

Other events staged and the winners, who received handsome prizes, were as follows: fat men's race, John Oney, 1st; Frank (Scud) Guzdowski, 2nd; 100-yard dash, 1st; Woodmansee 2nd, standing broad jump, Murphy 1st, Sullivan 2nd; tug-of-war, won by Moose seven man team by 18 inches after a two minute pull.

Following the athletic events the lake was announced by "Capt." Smith, and the menu was as follows:

Steamed Clams
Drawn Butter Crackers
Baked Fish
White Potatoes Sweet Potatoes
Fried Sausage
Brown Bread White Bread
Roast Green Corn
Sliced Cucumbers Watermelon
Broiled Lobster
Cold Soda

The committee in charge of the outing, which was one of the best ever held by the organization comprised the following members: Herman Bruckner, chairman, John T. F. Burns, August Hastedt, George Seidel, Henry Schwartzburg, William R. Hastedt, Josephe Keoughan, John Oney, Benjamin Wunderlich, Frank Hupter and Carl Pierson.

NORWICH PEOPLE HURT IN GUILFORD CRASH

Two women are in Guilford Sanitarium and one is at New Haven hospital, and at least five others received minor injuries, as a result of a head-on collision between two machines at Guilford Saturday.

The crash occurred when a high-powered touring car operated by a man whose name was said to be Rozer Gallagher, of New York city, cut out to pass a furniture truck and struck a sedan coming in the opposite direction.

Both machines were badly wrecked. The sedan was operated by M. A. Ward, of Norwich, and carried as passengers Mr. Ward's wife and two children, and his two sisters. The latter two are confined to the Guilford Sanitarium.

Mrs. Ward, her husband and two daughters received minor lacerations caused by flying glass.

Miss Marie Murphy, reported to be a niece of Charles F. Murphy, deceased chieftain of the Tammany wigwam, was the passenger in Gallagher's machine. She is at the New Haven hospital where she is undergoing treatment for several lacerations about the face and throat, as well as general shock. Her condition was said to be "fair."

The injured received treatment from Dr. Varnum R. Jones, Guilford physician, before being removed to the hospitals. The slightly injured were allowed to proceed to their homes.

Gallagher was held by Constable Frederick Dudley pending investigation.

FELL DOWN SHAFT AT NEW POLISH SCHOOL

Antonio Longo, Jr., 17, of 57 Boswell avenue is a patient at the Backus hospital suffering injuries received Saturday morning about 11 o'clock when he fell over 25 feet while working at the new Polish school.

Longo is employed as an apprentice by Contractor P. F. Sweeney and was on the third story of the building giving signals to the elevator, when he suddenly lost his balance and fell down the shaft, landing flat on the ground. About halfway down the shaft his clothing caught in a cross piece, this partially breaking the speed with which he was falling, probably saving him from serious injury.

Workmen on the building rushed to his assistance and Doctors C. C. Gildersleeve and John [illegible]. Callahan were summoned and attended the injured man. At the Backus hospital an X-ray showed that no bones were broken and with the exception of bruises, that Longo had no other injuries. He will probably be discharged from the hospital today (Monday).

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Dr. and Mrs. Frank N. Bidwell were recent guests of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. Bidwell, at Nashua, N. H., while on a brief motor trip through the mountains.

Mrs. Foster Wilson and Miss Annie E. Vaughn returned Sunday afternoon from New York, where, on Saturday, they were at the White Star pier to bid bon voyage to some friends who were sailing for Europe on S. S. Majestic.

HANDEGEE'S HOME NOW FOUR-STORY OFFICE BUILDING

Decision of the National Press club to undertake construction of a new building on the site of the defunct New Ebbitt hotel in which Leo Brandegee estate is quite heavily interested is a big start toward liquidating the assets and clearing up the affairs of the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee of Connecticut, who committed suicide in his Washington home last October, says a Washington despatch to the New York Times. It is understood that the estate is interested in the property to the extent of about $1,000,000, all of which is likely to be realized in the sale of the property, which is now under option.

Only recently the executors of the estate consummated the sale of some of the senator's realty holdings in Maryland at a commendable figure to the estate of the late Allen E. Walker of Washington. Mr. Walker, a realtor, undertook the purchase before his death, but died a few weeks ago before it was completed. The executors of his estate, however, have completed the sale.

On the other side of the ledger is another story. Claims keep coming in. The newest claim is from the estate of the late Rollin S. Woodruff, of New Haven, a former governor of Connecticut, for $3,800. The obligation was in the nature of a personal note signed by the senator in favor of Governor Woodruff and dated Aug. 13, 1924. In addition to this one, there are also new claims of $975 from J. Murray Dove Co., for merchandise, and $30 from Carrie Walker, formerly a maid in the senator's employ, for services rendered.

Roughly, the total to date of the claims filed is $122,000 and it is anticipated that from $40,000 to $50,000 more are yet to come. No mention has yet been made on the books in the probate court of claims said to be forthcoming from two or three prominent men who were close friends of the senator. Such claims as noted totaling $15,000 signed by the senator in favor of Senator Phipps of Colorado, $7,500 from Charles Beecher Warren, $5,000 from Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey and $4,500 from former Senator Willard Saulsbury of Delaware have already been recorded in the grand total.

It is important to observe that the majority of these notes on which claims have been made are of dates during the four months preceding the senator's death. It has been pointed out that some of these may be renewals on those dates, but on the face of it appears that as much as $100,000 or more was borrowed on the senator's personal notes just prior to his death.

Meanwhile, nearly all traces of the fact that the lonely collector of art objects once lived in a 50-year-old mansion in I street have been obliterated. Senator Brandegee's home has been converted into a four-story office building. Aside from the legal matters now being negotiated, a memory is all that is left.

"Cooperating with the Agencies," by Central Pomona Grange, led by Mrs. Edna Kratzemer of Wethersfield.

BIGGEST DOLLAR DAY IN HISTORY OF STORES

One of the largest Dollar Day crowds ever to visit Norwich, was on the streets Saturday and clerks in local stores were kept rushing at top speed most of the day satisfying the demand for bargains, of which there were many.

After a checkup had been made of the day's receipts, it was estimated by many local merchants that Saturday was the biggest Dollar day that has ever been held in this city. People were out bright and early after the bargains and as everything was plainly marked there was little confusion in making purchases.

The influx of out of town buyers was shown in the hundreds of cars which crowded local streets during the day and night. Traffic Officer Michael Carroll, stationed at the corner of Broadway and Main streets, and the other officers stationed about the city, were kept busy all day long handling the traffic. Despite the crowd the traffic moved smoothly during the day and traffic rules were closely observed by the visitors and local people.

The 14th annual grange lecturers' conference, one of the big events in New England grange circles, will be held this year at the Connecticut Agricultural college, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Charles A. Wheeler of Storrs, Conn., state lecturer, is in charge of arrangements and plans have been made for an attendance of 1,000 grangers from all of the New England states. At the close of the regular sessions, the delegations from Maine, Massachusetts and Rhode Island will take one and two-day automobile tours of Connecticut, visiting industrial, educational and historical points of interest.

Among the speakers who will address the grangers are Senator Hiram Bingham, L. J. Taber of Columbus, Ohio, national master of the grange, and C. M. Gardner of Springfield, Mass., managing editor of the national grange monthly and high priest of demeter.

The grange delegation for Maine, making the trip by auto, assembled at the state fair grounds at Lewiston, Me., Friday night, where John W. Hanson, adjutant general of Maine and a patron, provided cots and blankets. Saturday night the delegates stopped at the University of New Hampshire and Sunday night at the Massachusetts Agricultural college. After a stop in Springfield, Mass., during Monday morning, they will make the return to Storrs.

The Maine and New Hampshire delegations will lead the meetings on Tuesday morning, with the Massachusetts lecturer in charge in the afternoon. The Rhode Island and Vermont delegations will lead discussions Wednesday morning and Mr. Gardner will speak in the afternoon.

NEW HAVEN TO HAVE BUSY WEEK POLITICALLY

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Democratic and republican politics are to take on a busy aspect here this week. The first move came today with the opening by Assistant Corporation Counsel Frank S. Bergin, candidate for mayor, of political quarters. The old twelfth ward club, composed of democrats of the 26th, 27 and 28th wards will get together for a banquet Tuesday.

The largest event of the week will come Wednesday when New Haven republicans will gather at Mansfield's grove for a shop bake. Another political outing, the date of which has not been set, is that to be held by the republican state organization of this city. September 13 is the tentative date. It is expected that J. Henry Roraback, chairman of the state central committee will be the speaker.

CONSPIRACY TO RUIN OR KILL MAX PHILIPS

EATON TOWN, N. J., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Behind the close shutters of his home near here Max Philips, wealthy collar manufacturer and sportsman, sat tonight with a pistol at hand and a body guard of private detectives within call, awaiting for whom he said are in a widespread conspiracy to ruin or kill him.

While definite details of the alleged plot against him were difficult to learn, Philips and Detectives J. B. Rue and Merrick Kent, of Monmouth county police today threw out vague hints of blackmail schemes, armed desperadoes and operatives who are shadowing Philips.

About the only concrete fact in the case is that three women and a man are at liberty on total bail of $35,000 charged with conspiring to lure Philips on a yacht and ruin his reputation by making it appear that he had violated the Mann act.

CHINA'S REPRESENTATIVES HAVE BEEN SELECTED

PEKING, Aug. 23.—(AP)—China's representatives at the forth coming conference on revision of Chinese customs duties, which it is proposed to hold in conjunction with other powers including Japan, United States and Great Britain, are reported to have been agreed upon by the cabinet.

There will be no chairman of the commission, all the delegates being held equally responsible for the engagements entered into.

KNIGHT WINS TITLE IN INVITATION TOURNAMENT AT SHENNECOSSETT

EASTERN POINT, Conn., Aug. 23—Fred W. Knight of White Marsh, defeated Arthur Yates, of Rochester one up in the finals of the annual men's invitation golf tournament on the Shennecossett links today. Knight was last year's winner and must win a third time to gain permanent possession of the trophy.

The final match was of 36 holes, 18 being played this morning and 18 this afternoon. Yates was two up at the end of the morning round, but Knight played better than par golf on the first nine of the afternoon match and not only evened the score but took the lead and the match.

Yates gained his first advantage on the second hole this morning when he shot a birdie three but he was forced to take an extra putt on the sixth and Knight evened the match. Yates again was one up on the eighth when Knight missed a putt and made it two up with a birdie three on the tenth. Yates missed his putt on the 11th and was one up. On the 13th, a long hole, Knight landed in a trap and again Yates was two up. The balance of the morning holes were halved.

Knight gained a point on the first hole in the afternoon when Yates missed on the green and the score was all even on the fourth when Yates took an extra stroke. Knight's putting was poor on the fifth and Yates won the hole but Knight again evened the match on the seventh when Yates shot into the rough. Knight shot a birdie three on the eighth, making it one up and won the ninth and eleventh holes, making him three up. Yates scored a birdie four on the twelfth and Knight took extra strokes on the thirteenth and fourteenth and the match was all even again. Knight shot par golf on the fifteenth, Yates missing his putt, and last year's winner gained the hole that made him a winner again this year, the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth being halved.

The cards:

PETE AUGUST MEETS MANDELL AT WESTERLY

If the fight fans of Norwich want to see a real fight show just let them attend the boxing show arranged by Joe Grills the Tex Rickard of Westerly, R. I., for next Tuesday night at his open air arena at Westerly.

Pete August, the New England lightweight champion, one of the best boys in the lightweight division at the present time, meets Joe Mandell in the main bout. August has defeated such boys as Herb Brodie, Mel Coogan, Eddie Fitzsimmons, Jack Civic, Johnny Clinton, Johnny Darcey, Red Allen, and has knocked out such boys as Six Ball Dixon, Frankie Quill, Young Legess, Jack Reed and last week knocked out Young Willard the lightweight champion of Pennsylvania.

Joe Mandell of Philadelphia, Pete August's opponent is the boy, who on last Monday at Atlantic city, N. J., gave Sid Terris one of the toughest fights Terris was ever given since he was in the boxing game.

Mandell, has beaten such good boys as Eddie Wagner, George Chaney, Mike Dundee, Willie Houck, Tommy Tootle and a host of other good boys.

Johnny Saxon who has proven to the fans of Westerly that he is a good boy by the clean cut victory over Dundee Burns of New London, fights Leo Gates, Lou Gates of New York, the boy who boxes Saxon is a brother to Leo Gates, the Mohawk Indian, the only boy to knock out Jim Maloney of Boston.

Steve Culker the boy who boxes Young Pakington needs no introduction to the fight fans as he has proven that he has one of the best featherweights that has ever shown in this city.

Joe Grills, the promoter has also arranged two four-round bouts between veteran Jack Link of Fort Terry and Young Hoia of Westerly.

Opening bout four rounds between Middy Hawkins and Battling Ike of Westerly. The fans are advised to try and come to the show early as there will be quite a large advance sale.

ANOTHER FILIPINO COMES HERE AFTER BOXING CROWN

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Seeking the world's bantamweight championship and the flyweight title left vacant by the death of Pancho Villa, Sencio Moldez, of Manila, has arrived here.

Moldez is bantamweight and flyweight champion of the Far East. He will represent the Olympic Stadium club of Manila, the same organization that sent Villa to this country. His best fighting weight is 114 pounds.

AGGIE FOOTBALL PLAYERS TO REPORT ON SEPT. 14TH

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Aug. 23—Notices were sent to members of the Connecticut Aggie football squad to report to Storrs for practice on Monday, Sept. 14, according to the announcement made by Varsity Coach Sumner A. Dole here today.

Coach Dole urged his men to report promptly, because of the fact that the Aggies play Wesleyan on Sept. 26, the day after college opens at Storrs, and this gives the Connecticut team but eleven days of practice before their first conflict. Dole further emphasizes the point that each of the Aggies opponents will have a longer preliminary season, than the Storrs eleven, which makes it all the more important that each of the Aggie athletes report promptly.

Further announcement was made to the effect that Coach Dole would this season have some assistance in handling his team, at least during the first part of the season. Freshman Coach L. A. Alexander, '23, Elmore Ashman '23 and Arthur Mitchell, '22 are the three men who will be on hand to assist Coach Dole in starting the '25 grid season at Storrs.

Alexander's freshman squad does not report for practice until school opens Sept. 25, and he will probably work with the ends and backfield candidates. Ashman, who for three years held down a guard berth regularly at the State College, will work with the guards. It is expected that Ashman will be able to assist Dole throughout the season, as he is now in the employ of the horticultural department of the college, and arrangements have been made for him to assist in the coaching during the football season. Mitchell, who captained the Aggie teams of 1921 and 1922 from a tackle position, will be available for one week. He will coach the line candidates.

PITTSBURGH'S CHANCES FOR PENNANT ARE BRIGHTER

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—(A. P.)—Major league baseball tonight was almost ready to concede the claims of at least one new championship contender.

Five full games ahead of the Giants after an even break with the fourline champions today, the Pirates will leave New York tomorrow with Giant opposition temporarily crushed. Had the home club succeeded in matching its feat of 1921 by standing off the Pirate rush, the outlook for the McKechnie entry would have been less promising. For Pittsburgh leaves after a fifth game with the Giants to face a new menace, Boston, where Dave Bancroft last week led his Braves in a rally from the depths of last place to six victories in eighth starts.

Brilliant pitching performances chased one another in such rapid succession that only 27 runs were made against the revolting leaves by New York, St. Louis and Cincinnati. But Pittsburgh will be alive to face the new ordeal with the confidence of an immaterial lead and the satisfaction of delivering a blow to the Giants from which they are not likely to readily recover.

The eschedule, which has but six more weeks to run, will lend its aid to the Pirates in their march. After series at Boston and Philadelphia, they will return to the home grounds for the remainder of the season, except for two series with St. Louis and Cincinnati.

Smashing of the Philadelphia attack in the American at St. Louis and Chicago coupled with a determined push on the part of the Washington Senators threw the American league race into doubt again. Four straight defeats pushed the Athletics off the peak as St. Louis and Chicago collaborated in wrecking Philadelphia's pitching that was supported by uncertain fielding at the crucial periods of the contests. A recovery yesterday against the White Sox saved the Athletics from a total week's failure and confined Washington's margin to a single game.

Third place teams in both circuits put on spurts without endangering second place tenants. Cincinnati backed up dependable pitching by pouring heavy batting volleys into the ranks of Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Boston clubs, while Chicago, without an abundance of singles, brought enough safe blows out of the bat bag to support mound exhibitions hardly less brilliant than those of Redland hurlers. Both clubs won five of their seven games.

Except for the unseating of the Athletics in the American, there were no changes in the standings of either circuit. The unexpected barrage laid down against Philadelphia by the Browns kept Sisler's club a nose ahead of Detroit in the struggle for fourth place in the American, while ineffective pitching tied the Brooklyn Robins to fifth place as the fourth place Cardinals wilted before brilliant Boston pitching.

JOHNSTON WINS NEWPORT BOWL FOR THIRD TIME

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 23.—(A. P.)—William M. Johnston of San Francisco, Calif., won the Newport challenge bowl for the third time today, when he defeated Brian I. C. Norton of St. Louis, Mo., in the final round of the invitation tournament on the Casino courts 6-3, 6-3, 6-3, in a match requiring 53 minutes to complete.

Johnston, winner of the bowl first in 1923, triumphed again in 1924. His victory today gives his permanent possession of the trophy, a silver bowl valued at $1,400.

Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin of San Francisco won the doubles titles by defeating Ray Casey of San Francisco and Brian I. C. Norton, 6-2, 6-1, 5-7, 2-6, 6-1.

BRASSCOS ADD TWO MORE VICTORIES OVER HAMPDENS

WATERBURY, Aug. 23—Waterbury won its eighth straight game and third successive double victory in a week by taking both ends of a twin bill with the Springfield club here this afternoon. Andy Bush shut out the visitors 4 to 0 in the opening engagement while Frank Ulrich allowed one hit in the twilight tilt to win by the score of 6 to 0. The fielding of Uteritz and Leary was sensational. The loose fielding of Third Baseman Standacrt of the visitors caused the downfall of both Springfield pitchers.

First game:

Waterbury	0	2	0	2	0	0	0	0	x	—4

Two base hits, Cosgrove, Helgeth. Three base hit, Yordy.

Second game:

Waterbury	0	0	2	1	0	1	2	0	x	—6

Two base hits, Cosgrove, Helgeth. Three base hit, Yordy.

Quimet Wins Gold Mashie.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 23.—(A. P.)—Francis Ouimet, former national champion, won the annual gold mashie championship on Ocean Links here today with a total score of 288. Bob Corkran was runner up with 295.

JINX PLAYS CONSPICUOUS PART IN ATHLETIC WORLD LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—Destiny has brought forth a retinue of jinxes, of lucky breaks and of freakish quips of nature to shape the course of a tempestuous outdoor athletic season.

Fate, which had decreed that the prowess of the aquatic world should not triumph over the English channel in a first attempt, refused to bow to the courageous efforts of confident Gertrude Ederle. The good fortune which had sent to the aid of Elizabeth Ryan at Sea Bright, N. J., a generous rain to dampen the court upon which the California girl's chop strokes refused to bound sufficiently high for Helen Wills, fled from her in the national championship. Her defeat by Kathleen McKane of England, taking from the tournament the most formidable opposition to Miss Wills offered on the basis of past performances, was blamed on weakened physical condition incurred by illness.

Crippled by a succession of injuries and long absence of Manager McGraw from illness, the New York Giants were balked by a mere pebble at Ebbets field in a drive to reduce Pittsburgh's lead prior to the opening of their first series here with the Pirates. A mere single by Cuyler found its way to the Brooklyn pebble and bounded high over an outfielder's head for a home run to win for Pittsburgh, 2-1.

The short span of a few seconds was sufficient to turn a knockout punch, which would have elevated King Solomon to a commanding position among the heavyweights, into a disqualifying blow. The chin of Boston's highly rated Jim Maloney was in the path of the clout. Started by the South American as a hectic third round was ending. But fate intervened. The gong rang all too soon. Maloney toppled over—victor rather than victim. The punch, which found its mark just after the peal of the bell, beat the man who dispatched it.

Miss Ederle will make another fight against the defiant channel next month. Not only against the perverse forces of nature but against the psychological effect of an experience which induces melancholia.

The history of channel swims had forecast defeat for Miss Ederle, in spite of her marvellous speed and infectious confidence. Not only had many before her failed, but of the five men who were successful, none triumphed in the first attempt. Webb completed the swim in his second try, Burgess after 15 failures, Tarabochi and Toth both in their third trials, and Sullivan after giving up on six previous occasions.

The march of Helen Wills toward another national net crown was not only a conquest of determined opposition from English and American players, but a victory over the disappointment of her unexpected defeat by Miss Ryan at Sea Bright her victories over Joan Fry and Helen, Goss, after she had lost the first set of each match offered convincing proof of championship pluck that was deserving of reward.

Favorites scored in the measure of their ranking, for the most part at Forest Hills, but not so at Newport, R. I. except in the care of the finalists, Johnston and Norton, an untimely fate suffered by George Lott, Dr. George Kin, R. N. Williams and Willard Crocker led to an expression of opinion that the "planting" of net stars in next year's tournaments will probably not be based entirely on their standing of the preceding year. Consideration of their performances during the season in progress was recommended as one solution of wholesale upset.

Baseball turned temporarily from the gripping National League series of the Pirates and Giants and the crumpling of the Athletics to mark the passing of a hero and a menace. The unconditional release by the Giants of Hank Gowdy, baseball's illustrious war veteran, followed by his employment as a scout, stirred fandom as only the retirement of a battling star with an average of .325 could. Gowdy was second among the catchers of the circuit in hitting, and in spite of the fact that his release was considered by the New York club as a promotion in view of his arrangement to take over the management of the Columbus club, attention was called to the fact that he does not assume his new duties until Jan. 1, 1926. In the grip of a batting slump, the Giants' gave up Gowdy at a cost of their offensive power in a crisis when they could apparently ill afford a sacrifice.

The lively ball took its departure with Gowdy—at least John McGraw claimed it did and batting records seemed to substantiate his argument. President Heydler of the National League declared no alterations in the ball had been authorized; players explained the change as due to cold storage treatment—shrinking of the sphere by freezing.

INDIANS NOSE OUT YANKS BY ONE RUN AGAIN

CLEVELAND, Aug. 23—For the third successive day, Cleveland defeated New York by one run, today's scoring being 7 to 6. Both Shocker and Karr, who started the game, were knocked out of the box. Speece, who replaced Karr, did not allow a man to reach first. Pennock was also effective until the ninth when J. Sewell reached third when Combs let his single go through him. Burns was passed purposely and with Spurgeon at bat a wild pitch scored Sewell.

Ruth made his fourteenth home run of the year, Karr being the pitcher. The score:

SCHOOL BOY BEATS GENARO WITH LEFT HAND

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 23—Fidel Labarba, Los Angeles high school boy, knocked from the head of Frankie Genaro here last night the crown which the New Jersey lad claimed as world's flyweight champion. Labarba won by waiting for Genaro to come in and by left handing him for nine rounds, then carrying the scrap to the easterner in the tenth. In the opening round the Los Angeles fighter spent much of his time backing away as Genaro jabbed for an advantage. The California kept his left busy and earned the edge.

RECORD CROW SEES PIRATES AND GIANTS SPLIT

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—(A. P.)—The Pittsburgh Pirates drew an even break in a twi program with the New York Giants today winning the second game 3 to 2, after losing the opener, 7 to 4. Pittsburgh continues to lead in the National league flag race by a five-game margin. Rawlings, a New York cast off, drove in the winning run for the Corsairs.

Another capacity crowd of 55,000 saw the games, thousands of others being turned away. The grandstand was sold out an hour before the first game started and the crowd was do dense that police stopped traffic blocks from the grounds, elevated trains being obliged to discharge their passengers a station below the polo grounds.

New York won the first game through timely hitting against the veteran, Babe Adams, in early innings. Meusel, who was hit by a pitched ball, scored the first run in the second inning on singles by Terry and Jackson. Bunched hits in the following stanza by Frisch, Young, Meusel and Terry brought about the retirement of Adams in favor of Sheehan after three runs were registered. A single by Kelly gave the Giants another tally before the side was retired. Sheehan yielded two more runs in the fifth on singles by Young, Meusel and Terry and Lue pitcher's wild throw.

Kent Greenfield held the Corsairs helpless until the eighth when he blew up without warning. With one out Wright, Grantham, Smith, Moore, Bigbee and Rawlings hit safely, four runs resulting. Scott was rushed into the box. It was said afterwards that Greenfield strained a muscle in his right arm during the inning.

Inability to hit with men on bases proved costly to the Giants in the second game as they got only two runs out of 12 hits off Morrison and Oldham and 13 of their number were left on base.

The Giants got off to a one run lead in the first inning on Southworth's single, Frisch's infield out and Young's single. Pittsburgh tied in the fourth when Traynor singled, took second on Meusel's fumble and scored on Wright's double. New York regained the lead in its half on a base on balls to Jackson and singles by Hartley, Fitzsimmons and Southworth.

In the seventh Grantham singled, took second on Gooch's out and scored the tying run on a single by pinch hitter McInnis. Bigbee ran for McInnis, took second on Moore's sacrifice and came home with the winning run on a double by Rawlings.

SUB BASE LOSES THROUGH ERRORS TO RIVERVIEW

Errors proved costly to the Sub Base Saturday afternoon in the final game of the season with the Riverview club, the latter getting an 11 to 2 verdict over the gobs. For the first four innings the game was a pitching battle between Tony West and Gibbons of the Base, the latter having a slight edge.

The Base scored their runs in the fourth and seventh innings, the first coming on a wild peg by Normandin and a single by Justus. The second run came as a result of Gibbons' double and Liberte's error. The Base threatened on numerous occasions but three double plays, one made by Joe Hamel unassisted, cut down the scoring.

The Riverview team scored their first tallies in the fifth inning on two errors and Noel's hit. Two more were added in the sixth on Moore's single, a base on balls, West's hit and errors by Anctil and Blofus. In the seventh inning four runs were scored when Riverview hit behind errors. Belair singled, Harrell mussed up Liberte's roller, Moore hit to Harrell who threw too late to get Belair at third, filling the bases. Mills dropped a Texas leaguer close to the line back of first and Kneppley who replaced Harrell threw badly to the plate and Anctil let the ball go through him, three runs scoring of the play. Mills went to third and scored on Normandin's hit. In the eighth inning practically the same combination scored three more runs. Allard was passed, Belair singled, Liberte fouled out, Moore walked and then Mills hit a double to left field that Justus handled poorly and three runs crossed the plate, ending the scoring for the day. Tennis Exhibition Postponed.

HARTFORD, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The tennis exhibition scheduled for the Hartford Golf club this afternoon and featuring Miss Mary K. Browne, Mrs. Olla Mallory, William T. Tilden and William M. Johnston, was postponed until next Sunday. The postponment was necessary because of Friday's rain, which prolonged the women's national championship at Forest Hills, in which both women were active, and the Newport tournament, which ended today with Johnston's victory over B. I. C. Norton in the finals.

DODGERS DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADER WITH CHICAGO

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 23—Brooklyn divided a double header with Chicago today, winning the first game, 6 to 0 and dropping the final contest, 9 to 7. Dazzy Vance was close to a no hit game in the opener, the Cubs getting only two hits of the scratchiest sort. Vance fanned nine batters.

Alexander had a rocky road to victory as the Robins outbatted the Cubs in the second encounter. The fans objected so strenuously to A. Brown, a southpaw recruit, being taken out of the box in the first inning that Capt. Fournier let him stay in. The young pitcher was erratic and gave way to a pinch hitter later. Score:

SAILOR KILLED, ANOTHER INJURED, IN AUTO ACCIDENT, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23.—One sailor was killed and another injured early this morning when a Ford touring car, owned and driven by William D. Diets, 24, a sailor attached to U. S. S. 188, of the fleet of patrol boats stationed at the local sectional base of the United States Coast Guard, crashed against a tree on Montauk avenue.

The sailor killed is John Hinify, 22, of Philadelphia, attached to the coast guard service; the sailor injured is Ralph Wheeler, 22, also of the coast guard. Wheeler is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital suffering from a fractured right elbow, contusions and bruises.

A third sailor, Francis W. Moss, 21, attached to U. S. S. Roe, also connected with the coast guard service, is being held as a witness and Diets is under arrest on a technical charge of manslaughter, pending the outcome of an inquiry by Coroner J. J. Desmond.

About 3 o'clock this morning Hinify, Wheeler and Morse met Diets at the Coffee Pot, a Main street restaurant, and agreed to purchase five gallons of gasoline for the machine, provided Diets would drive them to Ocean Beach. The gasoline was obtained at a nearby filling station and the trip was started for the shore resort. Hinify occupied the front seat with Diets and Wheeler and Moss sat in the rear seat. While the machine was traveling at an estimated speed of 40 miles an hour and when between Glenwood and Pequot avenues where a curve in the highway exists, the car struck the edge of the highway on the right side. Diets undoubtedly not observing the turn and keeping straight ahead. As the machine struck the sidewalk, Diets probably lost control of the car, which careened off the edge of the walk and plunged across Montauk avenue and came to a stop only when it struck the tree. Hinify was thrown out of the car and landed head-first against the tree, sustaining a fractured skull and a lacerated brain from which injuries he died almost immediately. Wheeler, who was also thrown out, suffered the fractured arm. Diets and Moss escaped injury.

Patrolman Henry Sylvia, who reached the spot shortly after the accident, communicated with the police station and the police automobile with Sergeant Murphy and Officer Howard in it was sent out. The body of Hinify was removed to undertaking rooms and Wheeler was taken to the hospital. Diets was placed under arrest and at the hospital, while Moss was being interrogated by Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman, Moss, standing at the hospital entrance, struck Medical Examiner Kaufman a blow on the chest while the physician was questioning Moss to determine the facts leading up to the accident. Moss then ran to the hospital driveway and disappeared in the darkness.

Later in the afternoon Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith apprehended Moss at the state pier and he was held a prisoner to await the finding of Coroner Desmond. An additional charge of assaulting Dr. Kaufman may be entered against the sailor.

Automobilists get into court for a variety of offenses, but it isn't often a man of mature years is prosecuted for operating a car without possessing a license to do so. Navarre Duane admitted, when presented in police court Saturday, that he was guilty of that indiscretion. He also admitted that he never possessed a license. Duane is a painter, and while he had no intention of daubing the town red he was out for a joy ride. His fine was $10 which he settled and declared that he would not be nabbed for that offense again.

Arthur Kreft, of Bristol, Conn., drove up to the curbing on Bank street in a section of the highway where parking is restricted and left his car. His car was tagged and he was ordered to appear in court to answer for violation of a city ordinance. Kreft explained that in Bristol autoists were allowed to park just beyond the standing signs and he supposed that to be the condition all over the state. The defense was an unusual one, but it was a reason that seemed to the court to be plausible, and Mr. Kreft escaped without being penalized.

Joe Verdi and his wife disagreed some weeks ago and the former was complained of for a breach of the peace of the neighborhood in which he resides. The case has been continued a few weeks. Saturday, when the time came for hearing the parties who made the complaint, and Joseph was to have a chance to explain, it developed that the husband and wife were abiding in peace now, so the complaint was nolled.

Complaint was made to the police early this forenoon by residents of Connecticut avenue that a man was abusing his wife, one of the residents being at the police station lodging a complaint when another neighbor summoned the police by telephone. Two patrolmen went to the Connecticut avenue house and there ascertained that a quarrel between the husband and wife had occurred and that the wife had been ejected from the house. The wife at first expressed a desire that her husband be arrested, but finally decided that she did not want him prosecuted, so the couple, especially the husband, were given some advice as to their future conduct.

Timothy Moriarty, of Pequonoc Bridge, an old offender, having been apprehended several times in the past two years for intoxication, was taken into custody on the same charge Saturday night by Patrolman Howard Sloan, when the officer found Moriarty helplessly drunk on State street. He will be in the police court tomorrow morning.

Max E. Schramm, 25 Tilley street, engaged in a fight with a sailor in the Star restaurant, State street, early his morning, and received much the worst of the encounter; for when he visited a physician this forenoon a lacerated jaw resulted in a stitch being taken to close the wound and he was also suffering from a fractured rib. Schramm later visited the police station, but he was undecided as to whether he wanted his assailant arrested, stating that he lodged the complaint against the sailor more on the advice of the physician than of his own volition. Schramm was advised to confer with Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky, in the event that he became convinced that he desired the sailor punished.

Ernest Guerrie, of 20 East street; Palmer Edwards, Jordan Village, and Audrey Wilson, Station 7, Waterford, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Virginia M. Paulhus, 42, wife of Jacob J. Paulhus, died Saturday at her residence, 25 Steward street, after a brief illness. Besides her husband, Mrs. Paulhus is survived by two sons, Albert A. Paulhus, of Providence, and Joseph W. Paulhus, this city, and by two daughters, Mrs. Martin O. Danz, of Providence, and Mrs. William Nott, New London.

Blanche C., infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sheehan, 72 Crystal avenue, died at the home of her parents Saturday.

Mrs. Edith A. Shipman, 54, wife of George H. Shipman and mother of Deputy Fire Chief Thomas Shipman, died Friday night at her home on Fishers Island. Besides her husband and son, Thomas, she is survived by several sons and daughters.

The funeral of Charles W. Cruickshank, former conductor in the passenger service of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Union lodge rooms, Union street, and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. Officers of the lodge conducted the services and members of the order acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The condition of Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney, who underwent a serious operation at Lawrence hospital several days ago, continues to improve slowly. Captain Pinney passed a comfortable night and day.

Philip Houtz, a former resident of New London, returned to his home in Bayonne, N. J., this afternoon, having spent a week in this city.

The excursion on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad from Norwich and this city today resulted in 554 men and women being passengers on the special train. Many from this city availed themselves of the opportunity of making the trip for the especial purpose of witnessing the double-header this afternoon between the Giants and Dodgers.

Percy Graves, a sailor assigned to U. S. S. Tripp, was arrested by the Somerville, Mass., police, early this morning and information was sought of the New London authorities as to whether Graves was wanted here. Advices from the submarine base were to the effect that Graves be delivered to the Eastern District Customs house where he would be taken care of by a naval guard. The Somerville police were notified to that effect.

A stranger in New London was taken into custody, late this afternoon when he was detected by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy soliciting alms from pedestrians on State street. The vagrant will be in the police court Monday morning.

SUNDAY MORNING BREAK AT THE TROY LAUNDRY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23—The Troy Laundry, 145 Bank street, was entered by a thief, early this morning, but the plunder obtained did not warrant the trouble that the crook went to in order to gain entrance to the building, for only a small amount of money was obtained. The break was discovered this morning when William J. Tracey, an employe, went to the place.

The crook went from Pearl street to the rear of the laundry, where one of the windows was smashed close to the lock, the broken window permitting the crook to insert his hand and unlock the window. A hasty search of the place for loot was made, but so far as could be determined today the only plunder obtained was about $1 in specie, which was left in the cash register last night when the place was closed about 11.30 o'clock.

BLUEJACKETS' JOY RIDE IN NURSES' BORROWED CAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23—Five sailors, Joseph S. Jones, 18; James B. Cox 18; William G. Ready 22; John A. Lowrey 26 and Robert Adams 20, all sailors aboard U. S. S. Pequot, stationed at this port, were arrested in Hartford late Saturday afternoon, at the request of the New London police charged with the theft of an automobile owned by the Visiting Nurses' Association. They are being held for hearing in the police court Monday morning. The automobile, a Ford sedan, was parked on Church street, near Huntington street, Saturday afternoon, by Miss Gladys Roanan, one of the nurses. While Miss Roanan absented herself from the machine about a half hour it was stolen. A short time after Miss Roanan reported the theft of the car to the police, two officers reported at the police station that the car had been observed with sailors in it headed towards Norwich. The state police barracks at Groton and Centerbrook and the authorities of New Haven, Hartford and Norwich were requested to be on the lookout for the stolen machine. The automobile eventually appeared in Hartford. A short time later, Patrolman Parrott, of the Hartford department, observed the car with the sailors in it and holding up the machine he learned that none of the occupants held either operator's license or registration. As the car carried the markers of the stolen car the sailors were arrested and this morning Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Howard Sloan and George Laboue went to Hartford in the police car and brought the accused bluejackets back to New London for trial. Today Miss Roanan was given the car, which was operated back to New London by one of the New London officers. None of the five sailors will admit taking the car from Church street, but all admit having operated it at different times between New London and Hartford.

GIRL OF 3 PLAYS WITH MATCHES—FATALLY BURNED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23.—Julia Poblinski, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Poblinski, 61 Harrison street, was fatally burned last night, dying at Lawrence hospital a short time after she had been admitted to the institution for treatment of first and second degree burns.

The child was left alone in one of the living rooms early in the evening and managed to obtain several matches, which she lighted. In handling the burning matches her clothing became ignited and in a few seconds the child's entire body was enveloped in the flames, as bits flimsy covering rapidly burned. The child's screams were heard by the father, but by the time the parent reached the girl, all clothing had been burned from the child, whose head, face, shoulders and body as far as the waist, were burned. She was in a semi-conscious condition on the floor. A physician was summoned and after administering first aid treatment had the child removed to the hospital, where she lingered but a few hours.

TWO FIRES DURING SUNDAY—ONE BLAMED ON RATS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23.—The two-family house, 69 Truman street, occupied by Philip E. Douglass and family and by Joseph L. Skinner, was discovered to be afire, about 3:15 o'clock this morning, when smoke was seen issuing from the attic. An alarm was sent in from Box 34, corner of Belden and Blackhall streets. The firemen located the blaze between the ceiling of the second floor and the attic. In the opinion of Chief Charles Rose, it was started by rats gnawing on matches, for no fires had been in the stoves, neither is the house equipped with electric lights. The fire caused considerable damage to the upper part of the structure and was extinguished by the application of chemicals.

The building occupied by the Mohegan Dairy on Jefferson avenue was threatened with serious damage late this afternoon when a section of the flooring became afire. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters and responded in the Northwest Fire company and the Allen Hook and Ladder company responding. The fire was located beneath the concrete foundation of the furnace, which had been in operation today in connection with the sterilizing plant and resulted in the concrete becoming heated to the extent that the timbers beneath it were ignited. The fire was subdued with chemicals and without damage of consequence.

STATE TOUR VACATION WITH FINANCAL RETURN

The Connecticut Poultry association's annual automobile tour will begin August 31st, announces the state extension service poultry specialist, Roy E. Jones. The trip will continue from August 31st until September 4th. The itinerary of the tour includes stops at many of the most excellent poultry farms in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, with one day of sight seeing in the White Mountains.

This trip has been characterized by the state poultry specialist as "an opportunity that no poultryman looking for new ideas in care and management can afford to miss," and it is to be a "vacation with a financial return" to Connecticut and outside poultrymen. The interview with the specialist brought out this timely suggestion: "Do not forget that the 'better half' deserves a vacation and that she is often the brains of the poultry work, after all."

The itinerary includes plants where a specialty of producing Rhode Island Reds and White Leghorns have yielded unprecedented return for the poultry keeper, among which is "the largest egg plant in the East" located at Methuen, Mass.

The eleven poultry and market egg farms of principal interest keep 35,000 mature birds, making an average of 3,200 hens each, some ranging from 2,000 to the largest——11,000 birds.

The three broiler farms to be visited rear 82,000 chicks—an average of 27,000 each; the largest of these rears 40,000 chicks annually.

At the present time reservations are being made for 70 Connecticut poultrymen, although there will be numerous additions along the route, including poultrymen from Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire—also a few visitors from Penn. state and Long Island. The Connecticut Poultry association will furnish banners and pennants for each car on the tour.

The procession will leave Storrs on Monday, August 31st, at 7:30 a. m. standard time, with the poultry Specialist, Roy E. Jones, guilding the poultry vacationists on their 600-mile trip. Visits will be made the first day at Sterling Junction, Westford, Methuen, and Lawrence, Massachusetts.

The second day leaving Lawrence stops will be made at Stratham, N. H., the University of New Hampshire Northwood, Epsom, Short Falls, and Laconia—all in New Hampshire.

The third day the tourists will deviate from their usual plan of poultry farm visits and, leaving Laconia, will take a sightseeing excursion through the White Mountains, stopping at Lake Winnepesaukee, Meredith, Franconia Notch, Indian Head, The Flume, The Basin, Profile Lake, Echo Lake, Cannon Mountain, Bretton Woods, Crawford Notch, Mount Willey, Mt. Webster, North Conway, Chocorua Lake, and returning to Laconia Tavern.

The fourth day the vacationists will resume their poultry farm visits at Hooksett, Goffstown, North Weare, Hudsog, and Nashua, New Hampshire.

During the fifth and last day, the party will leave Nashua, N. H., for Groton, Mass., continuing to Lunenburg, Fitchburg, and Worcester, and there disbanding. The northwestern Connecticut cars will continue to Springfield, while the Eastern Connecticut cars will travel on to Storrs.

The distance covered on the entire trip will be 600 miles, but expenses have been reduced to a minimum and very reasonable hotel rates secured. Many poultrymen are looking forward to this annual event with pleasurable anticipation, expecting it to prove, as always in the part a most attractive and profitable vacation.

AUSTRALIAN MAORIS TRACE RACE ANCESTRY TO HAWAII

HONOLULU, Aug. 24—(AP)—Many of the Maoris of Australia consider that their race had its origin in Hawaii centuries ago, it has been revealed by Ratina Jakoba, a prominent Maori. He is here with a group of Mormon church workers from Australia to visit the famous Mormon temple at Laie, Oahu.

Jakoba said that he had traced his ancestry back to a chieftain named Hema, who ruled the island of Hawaii. After a devastating war in which Hema was defeated badly and forced to flee from the island for his life, he and a few companions set sail for the south in huge war canoes. Maori legends have it that they landed in New Zealand and lived there for several years. Later Hema returned to Hawaii, where the residents worshipped lo as their supreme being. They had a large temple in the Puna district of Hawaii, but later turned to the worship of other gods. Hema returned to New Zealand and many people accompanied him. He also took the image of Io.

Pele, the Hawaiian goddess of fire, became displeased with the Hawaiians, who were worshipping many idols, and vented her anger by covering their lands and temple with lava, the legends say. This would account for the ancient lava flows from Mauna Kea and Mauna Loa.

Jakoba said the Maoris had established the names of the canoes in which their ancestors went from Hawaii to New Zealand.

Berliners Lose River Baths

BERLIN, Aug. 24—(AP)—Contamination of the water of the River Spree by the ever-growing traffic is given as the reason for closing nine open-air bathing establishments along the stream. The places were regularly patronized last summer by 120,000 Berliners, to whom the closing proves a disappointment.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

For a Little Boy

To ride, shoot straight and speak the truth—
This was the ancient Law of Youth.
Old times are past, old days are done;
But the Law runs true, O little son!
To ride—whatever the mount may be—
Power or sorrow, fame, tragedy—
Master the thing lest it master you.
Ride when the going is fair and plain
With a velvet touch on the snaffle rein.
Yet viligent always; watch and guard,
When need be, ride on the curb—ride hard!
Whatever mischance or grief betide,
Fearlessly, firm-handed, sure-seated—ride!

Shoot straight—know that you shall not find
How at a glance should the sights be lined.
Study the terrain and feel out of the range,
Brace to the shock with a steady stance—
Carefully, carefully: 'ware mischance!
At the flight of the venomous indirect word
Swing on the quarter and lead your bird.
At the charge of the flamingly base desire
Hold low and fire! Hold low and fire!

And speak the truth—and here is writ
The heart of the Law. Cleave close to it.
Guard it and cherish and hold it high
Worth on a lie no more may stand
Than the house that was builded up on the sand.
Aye—though the truth may scar you and burn,
Out of your agony men may learn
The strength of your soul and merit of you
And your voice in the council. Speak true!
Speak true!

O little son, in your hands today
A marvelous, beautiful thing I lay;
This is the ancient Law for Youth—
To ride, shoot straight, and speak the truth.

The Miller and the Dee

There dwelt a miller, hale and bold,
Beside the River Dee;
He wrought and sang from morn till night,
No lark more blithe than he;
And this the burden of his song
Forever used to be,
"I envy no man, not I
And no one envies me!"

"Thou'rt wrong, my friend!" said old King Hal,
"As wrong as wrong can be;
For could my heart be light as thine,
I'd gladly change with thee.
And tell me now what makes thee sing
With voice so loud and free,
While I am sad, though I am King,
Beside the River Dee?"

The miller smiled and doffed his cap:
"I earn my bread," quoth he:
"I love my wife, I love my friend,
I love my children three.
I owe no one I can not pay,
I thank the River Dee,
That turns the mill that grinds the corn
To feed my babes and me!"

"Good friend," said Hal, and smiled the while,
"Farewell! and happy be:
But say no more, if thou'dst be true,
That no one envies thee.
Thy mealy cap is worth my crown:
Thy mill my kingdom's fee!
Such men as thou are England's boast,
Oh, miller of the Dee!"

Charles Mackay.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Perhaps you have wondered why so many of our talks have been about birds during the past few months. The reason is this—we should none of us believe that men's ideas as to what should live and what should die are higher than the laws of nature.

If man did not kill off the birds of prey there would be no plagues of sparrows, thrushes or of any birds. Men have upset the balance wheel of nature by killing off these birds and the same thing has happened as would take place if we disposed of all policemen and then killed all watchdogs—we have simply invited trouble upon ourselves.

As summer visitors we have birds who kill flies, caterpillars, insects and bugs of all kinds. These birds mean these savings of thousands of plants and trees if they were allowed to live and eat their fill of men's worst enemy.

We have too few birds in America to kill off any of them. Insects abound and flowers, fruits and vegetables are ruined every day by them, thus proving that there is much work in this country for the birds to do. Natures laws are everlasting and man is here but for a few years.

Wide Awakes should ever protect the birds which are our friends and teach other children to leave them alone and protect them too. Become friends of the birds, feed them and build little houses for them and see what pleasure you may have when robins and other song birds become friendly with you, perhaps becoming so tame that they will eat from your hands.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES At Storrs College

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written for quite a while so I will write about my trip to Storrs college during the Farmers Week. The first place we went to was the Armory. We saw the fine swimming pool. In the deepest place the water is eight feet deep. In the shallowest place the water is four feet deep. The main floor of the armory is a gymnasium which is also the theater.

Then we went to the Museum. There we saw all kinds of birds and a lynx, also some deer heads and an elk head. There were some skeletons, one of a man.

Then we went up on a tower. After that we went to see the chickens. We saw the egg laying birds. Some of them came all the way from England. Others were from Arizona, and Tennessee. There were twenty hens in a house. On the way over to the chicken houses we saw two goats. After we had looked at the chickens we went back to the automobile and ate our lunch. Then we went to the barns and looked at the cows. Some of them were being milked by hand and others by machine.

Helping Mother

Dear Uncle Jed and the Wideawakes: I wonder how many of the Wideawake children, boys and girls, are learning to cook, so as to help mother in that way. I am a little boy ten years old and I make cake, sometimes for mother.

I made a cake for mother and she took it to a birthday party. At the party they chose a cake to put the birthday candles on and it happened to be the cake I made. It was a devil cake. I am going to tell you how I made it. I hope I shall see in the paper where some little boy or girl has tried and made it for their mother. I don't think it hurts boys one bit to learn to cook.

Boil together for five minutes 1 cup of sugar, 1 large tablespoon of butter, 1-2 of a cup of milk, 1-4 of a teaspoon of salt, 2 squares of grated chocolate.

When cooked remove from fire and add one beaten egg yolk. When this mixture is cool, add 1-2 cup of milk, 1 3-4 cup of flour, 1 flat teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon of vanilla.

Stir until smooth and bake in layers. Make the icing by using the white of the egg.

One teaspoon of cold water, tiny pinch salt, 1-4 of a teaspoon of baking powder, 1-2 of a teaspoon of vanilla and enough confectioners sugar to make it thick so it won't run when it is put on the cake. The secret in making this icing good, is in stirring and beating it a long time so as to make it nice and fluffy.

Niagara Falls

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you for some time and I hope you will like my little letter. It is about my trip to Niagara Falls last year. We had only gone as far as Springfield when it started to rain. About 4 o'clock it stopped. We started out again and reached Albany, the capital of New York state, by night. In the next few days we arrived at Niagara Falls. As we approached we heard a noise like thunder but with all the traffic and wanting to hurry and get there it seemed quite a distance. When we got there I was talking to my father but he didn't hear because of the noise from the falls. The people on the shore below looked very small. Later we went down. There is an elevator and 21 flights of stairs to the shore below. While we were there the falls sent a spray over the shore. At first we thought it was raining so we got in a little stone but which is a shelter for two of the large lights. At night the falls are a beautiful sight when the lights are shining upon them. Sunday morning we expect to go to Washington, D. C., and Richmond, Va. I will write again.

A Wild Cow

Dear Uncle Jed: My grandfather owned a registered jersey cow. Her name was Pet. When my aunt called her she came to her when other people came in the pasture she ran away. One night my grandfather called her and she jumped the fence and got her tail cut off. She was on the rail road track and when a train came by the cow jumped back over the fence and came home.

A Lesson Learned

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first story to the Wide Awakes and I hope they like it. Two little boys named Bert and Eddie were very naughty. Their father had brought home a wee little kitten and they both wanted to play with it at once.

They started to fight and soon mother came into the room. She was surprised for her little boys had never fought before. She picked up the kitten and put it outdoors in the rain. The little boys stood peering out the window a long time. All at once little Bert said, "Mother, if you will let kitty come in I will stand out instead." His mother was pleased to hear this and she said, "Are you sorry?" They both answered that they were. "Very well then I will let kitty in," she said. The boys hugged Kitty and never have they fought for her, for they well remember how near they came to losing her. I think it taught them a lesson don't you?

FATHER'S LETTER WRITTEN 37 YEARS AGO REACHES SON

TACOMA, Aug. 24—(AP)—Haakon Bader, who left his native town in Norway in 1888, recently received a letter mailed from the same place shortly afterward. During its 37 years' wanderings, the missive had been handled by the postal services in five different nations, for in that time Norway gained her independence from Denmark, under whose flag Bader was born.

The letter written by Bader's father, long since dead, expressed his love and good wishes for his sailor son and contained photographs of Bader's parents.

When Bader a lad of 18, went to sea from his native village of Kragero, Norway, the letter followed him to Cardiff, Wales, but arrived shortly after he had set sail for Buenos Aires. He had also left Buenos Aires when it reached that city, and it was turned over to the Danish consul there.

There it lay in theu consular files, while Bader pursued his seafaring life over most of the world, including a visit to his home village. Later he joined the gold rush to Alaska and opened a cigar store.

Some two months ago someone discovered the ancient letter in the consular files at Buenos Aires, and it was returned to its place of origin. There friends gave postal authorities Bader's last known address in Tacoma and it was sent here and forwarded again to his present place of residence.

The letter, written in his father's hand and still plainly legible, was like a message from another world.

JAP SCHOOLS TO CONTEST HAWAIIAN LANGUAGE LAW

HONOLULU, Aug. 24—(AP)—Revision of regulations adopted by the territorial school commission appears to have made no material change in the attitude of the 85 litigating Japanese language schools. The modification which permits an eight year course by eliminating the former requirement that attendants at a foreign language school must first have completed the first two grades of a public school, has been characterized by attorneys for the litigants as a step in the right direction toward bringing about an amicable adjustment of the controversy.

The 85 schools are inactive, having closed their doors to avoid being fined for non-payment of the annual fee at the rate of $1 a pupil. There is in preparation a suit to enjoin the territorial officials from enforcing the provisions of the alien language law, as amended by the legislature of 1925.

Thirty schools having complied with the territorial requirements are operated.

WIRELESS STATON NEEDS HIGH MASTS FOR SERVICE

RUGBY, Eng., Aug. 24—(AP)—Six times as high as the Nelson monument in Trafalgar Square, London, are the 12 masts of the new British government wireless station here, through which it is anticipated telephonic communication with the United States as well as wireless communcation with all parts of the British Empire will be effected.

There is an electric lift inside each mast to carry four men to the top in 15 minutes. There is also a ladder up which the top of the mast can be reached in half an hour. The masts are supported on porcelain insulators and can rock slightly on a joint at the base. In a high wind the top of the mast sways to the extent of eight feet.

Bulgarian School Celebrates

GARBROVO, Aug. 24—(AP)—An address by King Boris was a feature of the 50th anniversary celebration recently of the Aprilov Gymnasia, the first institution of higher learning established in Bulgaria. The king, who spoke for half an hour, devoted his remarks to the significance of the event as evidence of the beginning of Bulgarian culture.

Jap Printers' Task Lightened

TOKYO, Aug. 24—(AP)—The Osaka Asahi and the Osaka Mainichi have agreed to limit the Chinese characters in use to 2,480 instead of the 6,000 odd formerly drawn upon by the compositors. Exceptions are to be made in the cases of imperial edicts iawa and proper names.

U. S. Gets Old Japanese Books

Seattle, Aug. 24, (AP—Twenty-five volumes of Japanese poetry depicting vividly life in Japan in the 18th century recently were presented to the University of Washington library by Professor Anesaki, librarian of the University of Tokyo.

The volumes, which took nine years to compile, are part of an edition made from two copies of a collection saved from destruction in the Japanese earth quake in September, 1923. All but two unbound sets were destroyed by the earthquake.

While others dearly love to work.
—Old Mother Nature

Peter Rabbit found that Mr. Water Snake was in the habit of taking a sunbath and nap every pleasant day on the roof of Jerry Muskrat's house, and he found that Jerry didn't mind it at all and never disturbed Mr. Water Snake in the least. Then one day when he chanced to be over at the Smiling Pool, Peter discovered another visitor on the roof of Jerry's house. This visitor surprised him quite as much as had Mr. Water Snake. It was Mrs. Snapper the Snapping Turtle.

Peter was quite used to seeing Turtles taking sunbaths, and when

"Now, what is she about!" thought he he saw Mrs. Snapper climbing out on the roof of Jerry's house he thought she was climbing up there to take a sunbath. He hardly gave her a glance. But when he looked over a second time he saw that Mrs. Snapper was crawling about all over that roof as if she were looking for something. Then he became interested. Finally, at a certain spot on the roof, Mrs. Snapper went to work. From where he sat Peter could see that she was making a hole in that roof of rushes and mud.

Peter certainly was surprised then. "Now what is she about?" thought he. "What is she trying to dig down into Jerry's house for? If she wants to get into his house why doesn't she get in the same way he does, under water? She can stay under water as long as she pleases and I should think she could go right through his tunnel."

Then another thought came to Peter. Mrs. Snapper was big. She was very big. He realized as he looked at her that she couldn't possibly go through one of Jerry Muskrat's tunnels. She was too broad for that.

"So that's it," said he, talking to himself. "She can't get in through Jerry's tunnel, so she is digging her way in through the roof. But what is she doing it for? That is what I cannot understand."

Mrs. Snapper was too far away for Peter to ask questions, so all he could do was to sit and watch. He saw that she had chosen one of the oldest parts of the roof and she kept right on working as if she had something very important on her mind. Mr. Water Snake came for his usual daily sunbath, but seeing Mrs. Snapper at work there, decided that he didn't want a sunbath that day and swam away.

Mrs. Snapper continued to work and work, and Peter continued to watch and watch. By and by Mrs. Snapper had that hole deep enough so that she was half out of sight. Then she seemed to grow tired of working and for a long time appeared to be doing nothing. "She must be tired out," thought Peter, "and is resting." You know Peter himself is always ready to rest. The sun was warm, it was very quiet and so presently Peter dozed. Then he dozed some more. Finally he took a real nap.

Peter awoke with a start. Just for a wee part of a minute he couldn't think where he was. Then he remembered, and hastily looked over to the roof of Jerry Muskrat's house. Mrs. Snapper the Snapping Turtle was busy again. But now she seemed to be filling that hole in instead of digging it deeper. It was all very puzzling. Finally she waddled down to the edge of the water, looked all around then dived in and Peter saw no more of her.

Peter waited around hoping Mrs. Snapper would come near enough for him to ask questions of her. When she didn't come, he looked for Jerry Muskrat. He was anxious to tell Jerry what Mrs. Snapper had been doing on the roof of that house. But Jerry must have been taking a nap somewhere, for not so much as a hair of him did Peter see. It began to look as if his curiosity would have to go unsatisfied.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A rally in stock prices which carried the rail and industrial averages to the highest levels in years, revival of strength and activity in the bond market and a substantial advance in which the prices were the principal developments in this week's financial and commodity markets.

Cotton prices showed relatively little change. Money rates continued easy although there was a temporary stiffening of the rate on call funds Friday afternoon. Foreign exchanges held firm, Belgian francs rallying moderately on the announcement that an agreement had been reached for the funding of the Belgian debt, and the Scandinavian exchanges bounding upward on reports that the proceeds of recent dollar loans floated in the United States were being called to those countries.

The advance in stocks was not uniform. Steels, rails and coppers gave the most impressive demonstrations of group strength while reactionary tendencies were most pronounced in the motors and public utilities. A rally in the oils were short lived.

TRAIL OF JOHN TROY PICKED UP IN WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 23.—The trail of John Troy, bandit leader and a pal, was picked up here tonight and traced to within a few blocks of his home, only to be lost in the darkness of Blake street, known as a "hang out" of the gunman.

The trail led from White's corner, Marlboro. There, according to a number of reports which dovetailed and which the police here were able to check up, Troy and a companion boarded a Boston and Worcester car bound for this city. The pair left the trolley in Washington square, and took a taxicab to Barclay and Grafton streets, within a few blocks of Troy's home.

There the trail faded, but it was picked up again on Columbia street, a quarter of a mile away and led to Blake street where it was lost.

BALTIMORE MAN KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

YORK, Pa., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Daniel J. McCann, 33 years old, of Baltimore, was killed in an automobile accident at Logansville early today. Dr. John G. Alexander, 36, also of Baltimore, driver of the car, is being held in the county jail pending an investigation by the district attorney.

A jury empanelled by Coroner I. U. Zech returned a verdict that McCann came to his death when Dr. Alexander, "being under the influence of liquor, lost control of his car."

District Attorney Van Baman has intimated that a charge more serious than manslaughter may be brought against the Baltimore physician.

TO SUE DEMOCRATIC REGISTRAR OF VOTERS

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Terrence B. Kelly, former deputy internal revenue collector for this district, announced tonight that he will institute court action against Thomas E. Cahill, democratic general registrar of voters, seeking his removal from office on the grounds that Mr. Cahill is alleged to have added names to the democratic primary list after the legal time limit had expired. It is charged that 200 names were added to the list.

In a summer camp community in Ontario, where the cottagers were annoyed considerably by mice, one of the boys of the neighborhood earned a neat sum by renting out cats at a rate of ten cents a week.

on "the car that has established the greatest performance-record in America"!

THIS IS THE CAR "with an engine you'll never wear out." Since its introduction 10 years ago—in test after test, with owner after owner, 100,000 miles after 100,000 miles—it has never failed to prove itself the most efficient, the quietest and the simplest engine ever put into an automobile!

THIS IS THE CAR with the patented Knight sleeve-valve engine—the only known motor that actually improves with use. The longer you drive it the better it gets!

THIS IS THE CAR with exactly the same type of engine you will find in four leading European-built automobiles—Daimler-Knight, Panhard, Minerva, Peugeot—names to conjure with, the ultimate in motor-car manufacture!

THIS IS THE CAR with the world famous Lanchester Balancer—an English invention used in this country exclusively in the Willys-Knight. Absolutely prevents engine-vibration at any and all speeds. To the Lanchester Balancer, United States owners owe their first delightful knowledge of vibrationless motoring.

THIS IS THE CAR that knows no carbon troubles, that has no valves to grind. The patented Knight sleeve-valve idea gets rid of both!

THIS IS THE CAR women are particularly proud to drive and ride in. Easy to handle. Good to look upon. Very flexible. Smartly designed. Richly upholstered. Completely appointed. Thoroughly comfortable. So satisfying and gratifying to go about in!

THIS IS THE CAR that, quickly and surely, is achieving one of the most conspicuous sales successes in America. At these GREATLY REDUCED PRICES, this is your opportunity to own a car whose performance has never yet been known to reach its limit—as beautiful, as distinguished, as inviting a motor-car as you have ever cast your eyes upon!

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE TO ARCHITECTS

PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS FOR THE STATE OF CONNECTICUT

In conformity with the provision of Section 84 of the General Statutes, Revision of 1918, "An Act Regulating the Employment of Architects on Public Buildings," architects are hereby invited to submit competitive plans for the following named buildings for the State Tuberculosis Commission at the Norwich Sanatorium, Norwich, Conn.

INFIRMARY FOR WOMEN

The building to accommodate fifty patients in two wards—with reception room, locker rooms and baths. Wards to have sleeping porches. Provision is to be made for four rooms for nurses. Not more than $50,000 available for this building, including architects' fees.

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING

To include offices and X-Ray department, laboratory, sleeping rooms and bath. Floor space to be approximately 75 ft. x 45 ft. Not more than $20,000 available for this building, including architects' fees.

EMPLOYEES' BUILDING

A two-story building to house approximately sixteen people on a floor in single and double rooms, approximately 10 by 10 with bath rooms and recreation room on each floor. Floor space to be approximately 30 ft. x 110 ft. Not more than $35,000 available for this building, including architects' fees.

All buildings to be fireproof or semi-fireproof.

Further details may be had of the Superintendent of the Norwich Sanatorium.

All plans must be signed by the architect or associated with the Commission of the State at his office in the Capitol City of Hartford, not later than Monday, September 28, 1925, at 11 o'clock, D. S. T.

The committee in charge will receive, in accordance with law, a public bid on said plans, in Room 61, State Capitol, at the above date at 11:30 o'clock, D. S. T.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Dated at Hartford, Connecticut, this eighteenth day of August, 1925.

FREDERICK M. SAMSON, aug20d Comptroller.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States. District of Connecticut.

In the matter of George E. Hewitt, Bankrupt. In Bankruptcy No. 7582.

UPON PETITION FOR DISCHARGE.

Notice is hereby given that George E. Hewitt of Lebanon in the County of New London and State of Connecticut, has filed his application, dated August [illegible] A. D. 1925, for a discharge from all his debts in bankruptcy, and that all the creditors may attend before Thomas H. Shields, Special Master, at his office in Norwich, Conn., on the 22nd day of September, 1925, at 10 o'clock, A. M., then and there to examine the bankrupt, and to show cause, if any they have why such discharge should not be granted, and to determine whether or not to authorize the trustee to interpose objections to such discharge.

THOMAS H. SHIELDS,
Special Master.

Norwich, Conn., Aug. 22, 1925.

TREASURES FOUND IN HOUSE FORMERLY OCCUPIED BY CZAR

LENINGRAD, Russia, Aug. 24.—(AP)—In a house formerly occupied by the Czar's chief of police, who is [illegible] Lidval and who now carries on a banking business in Paris and immense quantity of gold and silver articles set with precious stones and diamonds was discovered yesterday.

One jewel box was discovered to contain 47 gold articles of elaborate workmanship and a number of finest blue diamonds weighing 350 carats. There also was a great number of gold enameled cigarette cases, snuff boxes, rings and tie pins.

Those who occupy the house at the present time had not the slightest idea of the treasure, which was deposited in a wall safe since the beginning of the revolution. It was only when the tenants' committee of the house decided to use the safe for storing rent and books connected with the building that the treasure was discovered.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

"The Light of Western Stars," which made its initial appearance at the Broadway Theatre last night, combines the story-telling genius of Zane Grey, the directorial exactness of William K. Howard and the acting ability of Jack Holt, Noah Beery and Billie Dove.

Mr. Grey, who knows the West as few other men know it and can write about it sympathetically and understanding, has turned his attention in this adventurous romance-drama to the vast Southwest, the great range and desert country of Arizona, which for long remained the stamping ground of the cattle-rustlers and bad men of the old West.

The essential flavor and spirit of the story has been captured by the scenarists, George C. Hull and Lucien Hubbard, so that the picture is a convincing portrayal of the picturesque life, habits and customs of those early empire-building days.

Jack Holt gives an excellent account of himself as the up-standing square-[illegible] cowboy who loves to fight [illegible] to love. Noah Beery makes [illegible] of himself as [illegible] and desperado as the [illegible] calls for. Miss Billie Dove [illegible] role with a charmingness and [illegible] that makes her performance [illegible] one.

[illegible] the production leaves nothing to be desired, inasmuch as the actual locations mentioned by the author were used as scenic backgrounds. The staging is all that it should be and reflects great credit upon William K. Howard, who lives up to the reputation he established with "The Thundering [illegible]."

This great photoplay remains until [illegible] including a new comedy [illegible] and a new Kinograms [illegible].

Breed Theatre

The attraction at the Breed theatre for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, is the Thomas H. Ince Corporation's production, "Playing With Souls," a First National release.

As the title suggests, the picture is one of soul analysis, beautifully and intelligently done.

Clive Brook plays the role of Mathew Dale, cynical, unfeeling husband and father. Belle Bennett plays the role of Amy Dale, the mother and wife, who cares for nothing but to keep her youth. She is, in a great measure, to blame for Dale's cynicism.

[illegible] story has to do with the utter [illegible] the boy feels from the time [illegible] mother (when she separates from [illegible] and sent puts him in a boys' school [illegible] Lidval until he is old enough to [illegible] home—and the effects of those empty years not only upon the youth coming into man's estate, but the father and mother as well.

Mat Dale, the boy, who has come to think he is nameless after sixteen years of neglect by his parents and who considers himself unworthy of the sweet girl (Mary Astor) whose heart he has won, becomes a waster. Collier does the most brilliant and understanding work of his career in his interpretation of this role. His transition from the part of a lovable, lonely, heart-sore boy to that of a reprobate is excellent.

A vivacious personality of the night life of Paris is enacted by Jacqueline Logan, who has the role of Bricotte, a flirtatious cabaret dancer. Her personification of the recklessness of youth in the Montmartre is vivid.

Alice Joyce, as beautiful as ever, added to her histrionic laurels in the role of the girl young Dale loves.

The picture was directed by Ralph Ince.

At the Palace

[illegible] Arrow-"Great Western," [illegible] hat, and the patrons of [illegible] Theatre unanimously voted [illegible] and surprised himself in [illegible] the title role in "Vic Dyson [illegible]."

CAPACITY ENROLLMENT AT ELIZABETH AND MT. PLEASANT STREET SCHOOLS

When the public schools in town open on September 8th, for the fall term, the new Elizabeth street school and the old Mt. Pleasant street school will have capacity enrollments, while practically every other school building in the city will be crowded, and, in the case of Norwich Town schools, the enrollment will be extremely heavy.

This announcement came from a member of the town school committee after summing up the repair work which has been done at the school buildings during the summer months, in order that they might be in proper condition to house the children for the next school year. It is expected that all necessary work will be completed by the time schools open, although there may be some minor repairs to be made after the 8th of September.

The new Bishop school on the East Side is being equipped with new desks in some of the rooms, while in others, desks that have been used previously have been refinished and are now being placed. New teachers desks are being installed, the new blackboards are being placed and the grading is well along, the cement walk to be finished during the current week.

At Broadway school where interior conditions were found to be bad during the summer, extensive repairs have been necessary for the plastering, all over the building, to make it safe for use. The retaining wall on the south side of the property has also been repaired during the summer, and the boilers at the school are being equipped with a Compus blower, this being on trial.

At the Elizabeth street school new desks have been put into the last of the rooms in the building and starting this fall every one of the 18 rooms in the building will be occupied, thus filling that school to capacity as well as the old Mt. Pleasant street school. Outside repairs and improvements are being made, the H. E. Holbrook company of Boston, installing Monarch Metal weather strip, in copper, on the windows in the north end and front side of the school, while a retaining wall has been built on the south end of the property.

At Boswell avenue new steam boilers are being installed and at Prospect street the steam boiler is being repaired and inside changes being made. Changes at Town street school include the shingling of the roof, the plastering has been repaired and considerable other work done. At West Town street school new fences have been built and the toilet rooms repaired. At the Falls school all the interior of the building is being painted and a new iron fence has been ordered for some time. It is hoped that this work may be completed before school opens in September. At High street school the boiler room floor and the coal bin floor have been cemented and new coal-bins have been built.

At Laurel Hill school plastering has been repaired, and the tin roofs of Broadway, Boswell avenue and Hobart avenue schools are being treated with a heavy preparation.

The work at the various local schools include many more minor repairs and changing over of the inside arrangements, while the desks in all schools have been re-varnished during the summer.

OVER TEN MILLIONS SPENT ON STAT ROADS

Gross expenditures on roads in connection during the past fiscal year amounted to $10,501,696.85, an increase of about $2,000,000 more than the amount spent during the previous year, a statement issued by the state highway department shows. The statement also shows an increase of approximately $4,000,000 over the disbursements made during the 1923 fiscal period. The expenditures last year aggregated $8,689,953.30, and the total [illegible] $12,556.15.

Refunds from towns for state aid roads, etc., amounted to $2,189,760.48, thereby making a net expenditure of $8,311,936.37 for the twelve months ending June 30.

Expenditures for the actual work of the highway department are made under three classifications. They are, construction and maintenance of bridges, maintenance, repair and reconstruction of existing highways. The maintenance work includes removal of snow and cleaning and opening of water courses.

The largest amount spent during the year was for repairs and reconstruction which totals [illegible] a total of [illegible],756 being expended on this work. New construction on state aid roads resulted in disbursement of $309,887, and new construction on trunk line highways called for expenditure of $867,263. Other expenditures included:

For unfinished sections $341,951; for Federal aid roads, $237,854; for trunk line bridges, $856,672.

Elimination of dangerous trunk line conditions cost $80,472.25, being chiefly for work at the Hamden and Newington underpass and preliminary work at the Hamden and Newington underpass and preliminary work in connection with the proposed grade crossing elimination at Saybrook.

The sense of maintaining bridges and ferries for the twelve months was $77,555.56. These are the former toll bridges at Saybrook, Had im-East Haddam and New London-Groton and Connecticut River ferries from Chester to Hadlyme and from Rocky Hill to Glastonbury. This expenditure is for tenders' wages, bonding and repairs. Overhead expenditures of the department which include the cost of office and engineering forces, totalled $957,213.93.

ENTERTAINED GUESTS AT CLAMBAKE SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gallup and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hartley, of 365 Hamilton avenue, entertained the following guests at a clambake on Sunday: Lyman Lamphere, of Naugatuck; George Lamphere, of Oak Lawn, R. I., Mr. and Mrs. Leroy F. Leonard and children, Betty and Richard, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weiman and Mrs. John Williams, of Mystic; Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] of Montville, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Leffingwell of Baltimore, Md., Miss Ruth Allen and Robert Allen of Gales Ferry, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Huber and children Marion and June, John Bryant's of Meriden, Alfred Hartley, Miss Ida Shaw of Jewett City, George W. EIGHT TIMES AS MANY MEN DRIVERS AS WOMEN Responsibility for 14,559 of the 20,781 motor vehicle accidents which were reported to the motor vehicle department last year was shared by 13,686 men operators and 873 women operators, according to statistics of the department. There were eight times as many men as women licensed to operate motor vehicles in Connecticut and the male operators were responsible for fifteen times as many accidents as those ascribed to women drivers. The driving hours of men, however, are believed to be considerably longer than those of women, as the men drivers include a large percentage who operate commercial motor vehicles as a regular occupation throughout the entire business day. The accident ratio for commercial vehicles is higher than that for passenger vehicles, while the rate for the latter class is lower than for any other class of motor vehicles except motorcycles equipped with side cars.

In addition to the drivers of both sexes held responsible for last year's accidents, 12,153 other male drivers and 932 other female drivers were involved, being in control of cars struck by those of the former class. Of the faulty drivers, 175 men and nine women, and, of the blameless, ten men and three women were operating in accidents causing fatalities.

All but one of the faulty drivers causing fatalities were driving their own cars and the same was true of that class of women drivers. Automobiles owned by others were being driven by 7.06% of the faulty male drivers and by 4.7 of the faulty female drivers. Forty-two of the women and 3,561 men were driving their employers' cars.

CHURCH WORTH MILLION, IN ST. PATRICK'S PARISH

Around the world Sunday, in every Catholic church, from imposing cathedral to humblest chapel, the lesson of mercy and compassion was taught, through gospel for the Sunday—the twelfth after pentecost—as read in every Mass celebrated. This gospel is Luke 10, 23-37, the parable of the Good Samaritan. The epistle read in all the masses was 2. Corinthians 3 4-9, beginning "Brethren, such confidence we have through Christ towards God. Not that we are sufficient to think anything of ourselves, as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is from God."

At the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church, Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who read the low mass, in incidental comments after he had read the announcements for the sunday, touched upon certain phases of parish life in connection with the coming lawn fete, an annual late summer event—speaking of the loyalty and liberality of this parish in always looking to the upkeep of the fine parish plant. Father Galvin stated that, as building costs and materials now go, undoubtedly St. Patrick's church could not be erected at the present time for less than one million dollars.

At this mass, the usual large number received Holy Communion, from Father Galvin and Rev. John J. Reilly, who assisted him.

Sunday was communion day for the members of the Holy Name Society, Michael J. Murphy, president, who received the Eucharist at the 7:30 mass, from Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, the rector. Msgr. May had the assistance of Rev. Father Galvin, so many went to the altar for communion, the number of confessions the day before having been unusually large.

MAN REPORTS POCKETBOOK CONTAINING $298 MISSING

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 23—When he started to buy a ring for his wife in a jewelry store here on Friday afternoon, Louis Morrison who lives at 350 Windham road, in Willimantic, Conn., found that his pocketbook containing $298 was missing. Consequently no ring was bought, although Morrison had enough money to enable him to continue his journey.

He reported his loss to the Springfield police, who are trying to find it for him. Mr. Morrison remembered that he had the pocketbook at the Hartford railroad station, but from the time he last saw it there and he reached in his pocket in the store here, he had not seen it. He does not know whether it was lost or stolen but he does know that it was quite a loss to sustain.

CANCER WAS LOCKED IN FULASK' HALL

Peter Evoria, 23, a Portuguese of this city, was held in the city court Monday morning on a charge of breach of the peace, obtaining a discharge after a short trial. Evoria's arrest came when he was locked in Patchin hall about 3 o'clock Saturday morning after other dances had left the hall. He got into the basement with Supernumerary D'Atri. The dance was conducted by colored people and was brought to a stop at 3 o'clock in the morning after several attempts had been made to make them stop the dance at midnight.

LOCAL WOMAN DESCRIBES VISIT IN ENGLAND

Mrs. A. N. Foster, wife of Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor of The Church of The Good Shepherd, Universalist, writes to The Bulletin, an interesting account of her visit to several towns in England. In her letter she speaks particularly of Warwick, Winchester and Stratford, as follows:

Old England is possessing a greater and greater drawing power for the New Englander, indeed, for almost every Anglo-Saxon American where ever he may live and why not? Is not this the land from which Americans draw their historical traditions—the land made familiar through its poetry, its literature, its novels? It is not strange therefore that thousands of tourists from our side of the Atlantic have come this summer to the British Isles and are running up and down the land, visiting castles, cathedrals and noted spots, crowding into central places like Winchester, Norwich, Stratford, buying up whatever possible old furniture and the attractive bric-a-brac that commands so much attention as exposed in the shop windows.

The White House is not the only house from which French Empire, Italian Renaissance, or other continental furniture is being cast out in favor of the simpler and more sincere colonial. Nearly every home of any pretentious taste and culture is going back to the earlier English forms, to pictures and decorations conformable to our past, which of course means to the styles and the usages of the Mother Country.

In such an ancient town as Winchester it is almost impossible to go along any street or visit cathedral, university, or castle without coming into contact with large groups of Americans. Some of these are drawn by the sad interest taken in the cemetery where lie the bodies of our boys who died during the World War, for Winchester was a training camp and fitting station for the Americans and thousands of our soldiers learned the real rudiments of war in the camp just outside the town limits, but the greater number of those hundreds especially the younger ones who go laughing and chatting up to the Westgate and on to the castle are not thinking of the brave feats of arms performed in 1917-18 but rather of knightly romance and the brave deeds performed under the eyes of fair ladies in the legendary times of King Arthur, where Winchester was known as Camelot and warriors assembled themselves around a great table and recounted each in turn what wrongs he had redressed, what hardships he had encountered in his battles with the infidel or what hopes were created in his quest for the Holy Grail.

The talkative guide in the banqueting hall of the castle, goes over his same story word for word, as he has, I imagine, for many summers. "There on that wall" he says with dramatic gesture—and everybody stares silently as he points—is the table, the veritable table," yes, that is his word, "around which sat Arthur and his knights, Galahad, Launcelot, Gawain and Percival and the others—the table ladies and gentlemen" and here the guide stalks across the stone floor with resounding steps, "the veritable table up to where here a diameter of 27 feet, as great a length you notice as from yonder spot where I stood to this point where I now am, pace it off for yourself and see if I am not correct."

No one follows the guide's example but all continue to stand still as he proceeds with his story of Guinivere, more or less, I suspect, taken from Malory's history of King Arthur. Anyway whether history or mere poetry the story does give something of a thrill as one looks at the huge round table top with its Tudor rose painted in the center and its long lines radiating down to the circumference with knightly names in Gothic letters, as what was supposed to be the place of each knight. An underground passageway leads down and on from this banqueting hall to the cathedral some quarter of a mile away, an ecclesiastical structure that is rightly admired for its fine simplicity, for its long vistas and for the sincerity of its construction.

I entered at the sunset hour when the great west window was flooded with light, sending its shafts of brightness far down the arches to chancel and choir stalls, even to the marvelous screen and I then had a realization of the glory of these ancient churches such as no words description had given.

Next to Winchester, perhaps even more important in the American mind is Warwick. There is no cathedral in Warwick comparable to the one in Winchester, but there is a castle more worth seeing perhaps, than any in England, worth seeing for its history as the home of the king makers and the independent party during the Cromwellian times, worth seeing because of its setting on the banks of the Avore, "the loveliest little river in the world" and because of the picturesque surroundings of meadow, wood, and town. Long before the hour for opening of the castle gates there is a line of public motors, private automobiles and the huge "charabancs" lined up outside along the curb, in front of these peddlers are marching slowly, showing frost-cards, little wooden figures, pictures of the towers and I know not what else besides, impatient tourists, mostly Americans are scrambling down from their seats or talking voluably or perhaps peering over the Avon bridge at the water side of the castle or at the pleasure boats rowed by white-flanneled youths while girls in gaily colored frocks recline on red or yellow cushions in the centre of the boat and add color and charm to the romantic scene.

"You Americans are pushing in everywhere, if you keep on you'll own England" was the rather testy remark of a stout matron who was telling of the present American occupants of Warwick Castle. New Yorkers who first became in 1914 and ever since have rented the noble pile while the present earl lives in a small renovated stone stable building just across the wall on Firth street. "But you've got to pay good and heavy" continued our matron. The rent of the castle is $1,250 per week. That does seem a "good and heavy" price but perhaps no more than aspiring ambitious aliens ought to pay for living in such surroundings and supplanting aristocracy itself in one of its most cherished centers. In spite of this seeming triumph of democracy, feudalism dies hard in Warwickshire. Even in the churches there is caste and class, and so I am told a lord or titled person is always preferred as the chairman of a committee or the presiding officer of a meeting to a good commoner, even though the commoner may be far and away the better person.

The little houses for retainers on the opposite side of the river from the castle still stand in appearance much as they used to be.

It is my good fortune to have as my abiding place, while in Warwick, one of these small brick houses, just back of the castle park. The narrow street winds and twists its romantic way until it enters the main street again only a hundred feet or so beyond its beginning, thus forming what is called the horse-shoe.

Like pictures of Kate Greenaway are the old houses with their twisted chimneys, uneven, wavy, moss-grown tile roof, the mullioned windows open to the summer air and the yards aflame with old fashioned flowers.

At the bend of the "shoe" stands the house I call home, while in Warwick, surrounded by its hedge of yew and laurel, its low walls covered with blossoming purple clematis and over the white door with its great brass knocker, opening directly onto the street (there is no side-walk) hangs the flowering honeysuckle, perfuming the air with its sweetness. Within are low, beamed ceilings, tile floors, old furniture, gleaming brass, and old brick fire-places.

The beautiful garden is at the back of the house. The long walls with its broken bits of stone and the men of flowers at the back reminds one of an Italian garden, but the low box-hedge separating the beds, the wealth of roses, sweet peas, pansies, gladiolus, marguerites, and passion flowers are truly English. There are long trellised arches of ramblers, pink and red, stalks of blue delphiniums, too. In one corner is an old stone seat covered with green-moss, in another a sun-dial. A stone bird-bath and a cocoanut shell hung on a low branched tree, brings the birds.

The stone wall endorsing this old English garden is covered with ivy, thick and glossy, reminding one of other ivy in New England which covers in thick profusion the walls and the roof of a little red-painted parsonage in Norwich, Connecticut. My host and hostess are typical of modern English life—he, tall and delightful in "knickers" for tennis or flannels for the river—she, charming and beautiful in her blonde "bob" and quaint expressions of friendliness. Last evening we "punted" on the river. It was just at the sunset hour, the sky was flushed in violet and pink and as we slowly moved under the old bridge, we looked back at the spires of St. Mary's and St. Nicholas and the two great towers of the castle, voices of the tennis players from the boat clubs mingled with those of the singers as they "punted" past. Lights flashed here and there in the castle windows and dusk settled down. London tomorrow.

CHIEF OCCUM VISITS BOYS AT CAMP MOHICAN

The boys at Camp Mohican, Gardner Lake, were recently honored by a visit from Chief Occum of the Mohegan Indians, who entertained them with stores of Indian life.

Chief Occum sang a few songs of his own composition and told stories of his life and of Indian customs, to a real treat for all. The inspection of the tents by the chief was a thing the boys will long remember.

For the past week the boys have been working very hard and the Grouch and even now the size of the Grouch far exceeds that of the previous years. Among the scores of visitors invited are the girls from Camp Laurel across the lake.

One day last week the boys held a nature pageant in which the choice used were those offered by the leaves and berries of the surrounding woods. Though some of the costumes were not the most comfortable sort of clothing for winter wear still there were those that at least equalled if not surpass any the exponents of modern life.

Friday night the members of tent No. 1 gave an imitation of an Indian pow wow. It was very realistic, the tomahawks flying and weird war whoops rending the air no doubt gave several people in the neighborhood got the impression that a good old fashioned Indian battle was on.

Friday night the entire camp hiked down to Massapeach and thoroughly enjoyed their annual minstrel. The snappy songs and splendid acting were worthy of praise.

A note must be made of the increase in the Camp Farm, now under the diligent care of "Mose" Pendleton. The live stock was increased to seven turkeys, eight chickens and four kittens.

Visitors the past week were:

Chief Occum of Norwich; Mr. and Mrs. Weiner of New York city; Mr. and Mrs. Abrahams of New York city; Mr. and Mrs. Swiger of New York city.

WILL BE GUEST AT LEGION CONVENTION

Mrs. Cornie Glynn Cocklin of Rutland, Vt., national vice president of the American Legion auxiliary, will be a guest of the state auxiliary at the American Legion convention in New London Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Cocklin will be received by Miss Mary C. Coyle of Waterbury, state president, and Mrs. Emma C. Carpenter of Wethersfield, past president and a committee consisting of Mrs. Fannie I. Crosby of Bridgeport, a past president and Mrs. Alice P. Bristol of Stratford, past national committee woman.

She was elected to the office of national vice president at the fourth annual convention held in St. Paul, Minn., last September, with active supervision, under the direction of the national president, over the following states: Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Delaware and District of Columbia.

In her address Mrs. Cocklin will outline the national program of the American Legion auxiliary on rehabilitation, child welfare, Americanism, legislation, membership and other phases of the work of the American Legion and its auxiliary.

FOX HILL ACCIDENT DUE TO HEAVY FOG

A Flint touring car owned and driven by Henry F. Gee of No. 20 Fairmount street collided with a machine owned by James Potter of No. 114 Shaw street, New London, and parked by the roadside on Fox Hill, late Saturday night. The heavy fog is blamed for the accident as Mr. Gee stated that although he was keeping an unusually careful watch he could not see the New London machine, a Chalmers coupe, until he was right upon it.

GEN. AIKEN HOPES TO VOTE AGAIN FOR COOLIDGE

An article from Swampscott, Mass., contains the following interesting notice about General William A. Aiken, who is spending the summer at Marblehead, Mass., and who is a former resident of Vermont. General Aiken recently wrote a letter to President Coolidge, in which he expressed a desire that he might be able to vote for him for president once more, and in return he received a most cordial letter from the president. The letter follows:

Dear Mr. President.—The writer, a "Green Mountain boy" of A. D. 1853, takes this method of "paying his respects" to his chosen president, whom he hopes to vote for once more.

His first vote was for Abraham Lincoln, whose nomination in the Chicago "wigwam" he witnessed. During Lincoln's presidency he held eight interesting interviews with him, as military representative of the then "War Governor" of Connecticut, Hon. William A. Buckingham. Writer was present in same capacity in the East room of the White House at Lincoln's funeral.

Writer cannot close this tribute of respect without including Mrs. Coolidge, one of the most acceptable successes of the White House, at which he was often a guest during the [illegible] presidency of his very dear friend, Mrs. Franklin Pierce.

This is written from the summer residence of my nephew, Alfred L. Ludley, president Merchants National bank, Boston, 127 Point street, Marblehead, in near view of the beautiful and historic "Mayflower" [illegible] waters, with high respect.

WILLIAM A. AIKEN

To this letter the president replied.

My Dear Mr. Aiken:—I have been very pleased to receive your letter and am glad of the opportunity to reciprocate the generous expression of good wishes which you send to Mrs. Coolidge and myself. Your intimate experience with and knowledge of the public life of the country through the latter part of a century must have been a great gratification to you, and in congratulating you I have to express the earnest hope that you may continue your privileges of observation and study for many more years.

Most sincerely yours,

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

HELD DELIGHTFUL OLD-FASHIONED FAMILY REUNION

Sunday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pedace, of 201 East Main street, a real old-fashioned family reunion was held with Mr. and Mrs. Vincenzo Abrami and family, Mr. and Mrs. Dominico Mordo and family, Mr. and Mrs. D. Giorgi and Mr. Toscano, all of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Pedace, of Norwich, present. In some cases it was the renewal of acquaintances of twenty years ago and from the time the out-of-town people arrived early Sunday morning until they departed early in the evening, a delightful time was enjoyed.

At noon Mrs. Bruno Pedace, assisted by Mrs. Dominick Pedace, served a most delightful dinner, after which dancing, music and various games were enjoyed. During the afternoon, the older people spent the hours talking over olden times and at 6 p. m., when the party broke up, every one was delighted at the renewal of acquaintances but slightly regretful that it couldn't be for longer. The trip from Brooklyn was made in the cars of Mr. Abrami and Mr. Mordo. Hector Abrami will remain the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Pedace for the next two weeks.

FORMER NORWICH PEOPLE LOST VALUABLES IN FIRE

Captain and Mrs. Franklin T. Lord, formerly of Norwich, now of Fort Wayne, recently had a narrow escape from death when the hotel at Gull Lake, Mich., was burned to the ground. In escaping from the burning hotel with their children, they were forced to leave all valuables behind them. All their silverware, etc., was lost in the fire, as well as some clothing.

CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF THE LIQUOR LAW

Octave J. Caron, of 582 North Main street, will appear in the city court this (Monday) morning to answer a charge of violation of the liquor laws. He was arrested Saturday morning by State Policemen Watson and Albright and was released on a bond of $1,000, furnished by his brother, John Caron.

LOMBARD ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL REUNION

The fourth annual gathering of the members of Lombard association was held at the summer cottage of F. O. Brown at Point of Woods, Lyme, Conn. Tuesday, Aug. 18. The day was perfect for an outing. Guests were present from New Haven, Hartford, Middletown, Branford, Guilford, New London, Colchester and Lebanon.

At one o'clock a delicious lunch was served to between forty and fifty guests seated on the lawn in gypsy style. The menu included, clam chowder, boiled ham, salads, cake, pies, rolls, lemonade, ice cream and fruit.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Arthur Lombard; first vice president, F. A. Brown; second vice president, Mrs. Myrtle Geer; third vice president, Mrs. Myrtle Riley; secretary, Mrs. Lizzie Brazos treasurer, Miss Ruth Browne; historian, Mrs Amelia McCall.

GIRL RECOVERS CODY OF DROWNED YOUTH

Diving several times, Miss Helen Nickerson, fourteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville H. Nickerson of Portland, Me., formerly of this city, recovered the body of an 18 year old Oakdale youth who was drowned in Oxoboxo pond Saturday afternoon. The boy, with two brothers, was in swimming when he went down despite the efforts of his brothers to save him. The drowning occurred at one o'clock in the afternoon.

Miss Nickerson who is vacationing with her parents at their bungalow at Gardner Lake and who is a swimmer of unusual ability, went to Oxoboxo pond after the late afternoon and after diving several times succeeded in locating and recovering the body. Mr. Nickerson is physical director of the Portland, Me., Y. M. C. A.

Sister Margaret Returns

Sister M. Margaret, now of St. Peter's convent, Hartford, is at St. Patrick's parish convent to remain until Thursday. Sister Margaret was for seventeen years in Norwich, teacher of the English Grade in the parish school and is being affectionately greeted by many former pupils and other friends.

Visitors From Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Crofton, of Lake Worth, Florida, are guests at the home of A. Chester Brown, agent of the Falls company, and Mrs. Brown on Lafayette street, Norwich. Mrs. Crofton was Zoe V. Bungzer, daughter of Frank N. Bunger, of Church street, Norwich.

Bertram L. Field, of Rutland, Vt., owns the egg of an auk, a bird long since extinct, which is valued at $1,200. There is said to be only one other auk's egg in the United States.

POETRY

SUNDAY.

When I was a very little lad
I used to go walking with my Dad.
Sunday! Yes, that was the day for me
The day of days, when Dad was free.

He always bought me a red balloon
That seemed to me as big as the moon
And he always took me to some fine shop
And gave me a class of ginger-pop.

He took me out in the country, too,
Where buttercups and daisies grew;
And on one big bridge we used to stand
And watch the boats—it was Fairyland.

Dad died when I was still quite small.
I think I missed him most of all.
And though I've seen most every sight
Since I was such a tiny mite,

I often long for those tiny walks,
My red balloon, and ginger-pop talks.
And I've sought, but I never can seem to find,
Those curious streets that used to wind

To that wonderful bridge on which we stood,
And that flower-filled meadow by the wood.
Yet I know if I found them, the tears would start
And I think it would almost break my heart.

SENATOR BINGHAM FAVORS AIR NAVIGATION BUREAU

Made Proposal Yesterday to President Coolidge—The Senator Urged That It is Time For The Government to Aid in the Development of Commercial Aviation—Has Just Completed an Inspection of the Air Stations on the Pacific Coast and in Alaska.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 24.—Establishment of a bureau of air navigation in the department of commerce to foster commercial aviation was proposed to President Coolidge today by Senator Bingham, republican, of Connecticut.

Senator Bingham has just completed an inspection trip of air stations on the Pacific coast and in Alaska, and he declares that it is time for the government to aid in the development of aviation. He frowned, however, upon a request for use of the airship Los Angeles in trans-continental commercial aviation. Because of its limited speed he said the Los Angeles could not compete successfully with express trains, whereas it would be successful in transportation over water. He suggested that this airship be used between Honolulu and the Pacific coast as an experiment in commercial work.

In the plan he will propose to the next congress Senator Bingham would have the department of commerce establish houses on land for the guidance of airplanes and he would set up a government inspection service for all commercial airplanes.

Senator Bingham reported that the President looked with favor upon the suggestion and was anxious that the government aid in the development of commercial aviation by every means possible except through direct subsidy.

STORIES OF HAPPENINGS IN THE ARCTIC REGIONS

[illegible] Aug. 24—Members of the [illegible] Amundsen's exploration schooner Maud which arrived here on Saturday night, related today stories of happenings in the arctic regions since 1922 when the drift began which it was hoped would take the vessel across the north pole. To support their stories the crew had on hand many photographs both stills and motion.

[illegible] K. Sverdrup, scientist, who was also the ship's doctor, intends to make a number of scientific treasures to the Carnegie Institute upon the dismissal of the Maud at San Francisco. [illegible] to be sold, if Amundsen's plans are carried out.

[illegible] Syverson, the Norwegian assistant engineer of the Maud, when the vessel started on her memorable drift, [illegible] the first year out and his mainmast was cut in a huge iceberg afterwards had been read by Capt. Amundsen. His body was wrapped in the Norwegian flag and lowered to the [illegible] grave.

A Norwegian biplane, which was taken [illegible] for experimental flying, came to grief in the rugged ice, shortly after a take-off had been attempted from [illegible] made in the pack.

[illegible] times the Maud was caught in the ice and elevated 15 to 20 feet above the water by the squeeze. The ship was constructed to withstand such pressure and had a remarkable [illegible]. At times Captain Wisting [illegible] used to use blasting powder to [illegible] the Maud back in the water after [illegible] Amundsen Jacobsen related that [illegible] the crown of the vessel showed [illegible] inch in the air above the ice [illegible] other times listed as much as [illegible] feet.

[illegible] trouble with the expelling [illegible] deserted the Maud in mid-Arctic, [illegible] with him a gun and a scoop [illegible] evidently intending to con[illegible] snowhouse. Parties were organized to search for him and lights and signals sent up to attract him [illegible]. After several days mushing in [illegible] he returned to the ship and [illegible] to never leave again.

GOVERNMENT SAFEGUARDING POSSESSIONS IN FLORIDA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—[illegible] tion of the land Soon in Florida was taken by the government today in withdrawing additional lands from public entry to prevent their [illegible] into the hands of speculators. By withdrawing from the public domain 34 lots in St. Marks townsite in Wakulla county, near Tallahassee, now appraised at a low figure, the interior department, which announced the withdrawal, hopes to prevent any land grabbing by individual homesteaders and to make them until they appreciate in value before seeking them at auction.

Last year the department withdrew forty acres of public land on the Harding townsite near Miami Beach. Although appraised at only $55,000, it [illegible] when sold on the auction [illegible] many bidders from all parts of the country and brought $385,000 to the government. Increases in value of other public lands there has progressed in about the same ratio, department officials believe, despite their present low appraisals.

MONTREAL FIRE THREATENS TO BECOME CONFLAGRATION

MONTREAL, Aug. 24—Fire starting in a garage on Ontario street at 11 o'clock tonight, at midnight threatened to result in a great conflagration. A heavy wind was blowing and the flames were spreading to neighboring buildings.

Fire apparatus from every district in the city was rushed to the scene, but the work of the firemen was badly hampered by the wind.

Residents over a wide area were hastily vacating their homes. The flames could be seen all over the city. The wind was carrying sparks over a [illegible] distance.

The garage where the fire started was just west of St. Denis street on Ontario.

Up to midnight there had been no reports of loss of life. Eastward from the corner of Emery and Sanguinet streets, for nearly two blocks the fire was raging and walls of buildings were falling. Scores of houses were on fire. The water pressure seemed inadequate to produce streams of sufficient strength to cope with the conflagration.

The utmost confusion reigned in the stricken district, where people were madly endeavoring to rescue their belongings from houses on fire or threatened with destruction. Numerous invalids were taken from their homes on stretchers.

Fear was expressed that the fire might spread to the thickly populated East end of the city.

TO UNFOLD THE STORY OF MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 24—The story of a man without a country, who has been held in jail for thirteen months while governmental red tape is unspinning, will be unfolded at a hearing to be held in the United States district court here next Monday.

A writ of habeas corpus has issued by Judge Edwin S. Thomas, directing Sheriff Edward W. Dewey, of Hartford county to produce Peter Kopczenski of Hartford, concerning whom the United States and Poland are at issue, at a hearing Monday to show cause why the man should not receive the benefit of justice.

Kopczenski has been detained in the Hartford jail since July, 1924, while the immigration authorities of this country are trying to settle his case. He came to this country from Poland more than four years ago and while here but a short time found himself facing a charge of burglary in Hartford. He denied his guilt at that time but it was said that someone advised him to enter a plea of nolo contendre. He was sentenced to thirty months in Wethersfield.

When released from Wethersfield in July 1924, he was arrested again in Hartford on a federal deportation warrant. He was still an alien and in view of his record, the immigration authorities considered him an undesirable character.

He was placed in the Hartford jail while the Polish government was asked to approve his deportation from this country. Poland, however, refused to accept him. He heard nothing more from government officials and friends have now asked for a writ of habeas corpus. The writ was signed by Judge Thomas and was filed in the clerk's office here today.

METHODS OF MEETING AGRICULTURAL PROBLEMS

WATERBURY, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Asserting that farmers must find the solution for many of their problems in business methods rather than in law, L. J. Tabor, of Columbus, Ohio, national master of the grange, indicated methods of meeting common agricultural problems at an outing of the Excelsior Pomona Grange at Lake Quassapaug today. Mr. Tabor was a member of the Hoover food commission in the Wilson administration; of the Harding agricultural conference and is now on President Coolidge's agricultural advisory committee.

Organization of the marketing system was the first point emphasized by the national master of the grange. He insisted that the market system must be organized, standardized, merchandised and advertised in order that the farmer may receive a larger share of the consumer's dollar. He called attention to the fact that the apple crop of Italy and the continent was only 50 per cent of its normal size and pointed out the relation of such news as this to every New England farmer. Sooner or later, he said, farmers must apply the same hard principles that are applied in other businesses.

BOUND OVER FOR THEFTS FROM WINCHESTER PLANT

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Probable cause was found by Judge Sheridan T. Whitaker in city court today in the cases of Joseph T. Redmond, and Stanley O'Neil, of this city, and Alex Rallis, of Springfield, Mass., and the three were bound over to the superior court, under bonds of $3,000 each, charged with the theft of goods from Winchester Repeating Arms company, and conspiracy.

Redmond, who a few days ago pleaded guilty to charges of numerous thefts of knives, rifles and other merchandise, took the stand today and, turning state's evidence, told of the wholesale thefts of knives, flashlights, kitchen hardware and other commodities from the Winchester company. His foreman, he said, was Joseph Keenahan who was arrested in July charged with the theft of goods from the plant, and who later forfeited a bond of $1,000 and disappeared.

In all, according to the witness, Redmond took several hundred dozen knives, all of which he said he had sold to O'Neil, Rallis and others for about a ninth of their actual value.

SPECTATOR AT BALL GAME KILLED BY FOUL BALL

STROUDSBERG, Pa., Aug. 24—Harlan Fogel, 21, of Kresgeville was instantly killed today during a game of baseball between Alton and Albrightville teams. Fogel, who was a spectator, was hit by a foul ball. He died instantly.

NEARLY 500 COMMUNISTS ARE TO BE TRIED IN GROUP

SOFIA, Aug. 24—Nearly 500 communists probably will be tried in a group shortly in the little town of Tirnovo in order to clear the courts of cases which have been pending since former Premier Stamboulisky was overthrown and killed in June, 1923. These communists were arrested by the Tzankoff government at that time. Ten thousand witnesses will be summoned.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

British Coal Strike Settled.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The strike of 20,000 anthracite miners which has been in effect for the last two months in Wales, has been settled, and work is being resumed tonight. The dispute arose over the alleged victimizations of one man at an Aymanford colliery. The settlement terms are unanimously accepted today by the miners' delegates in conference at Swansea.

PLANS FOR GUARDING APPROACH OF AIRPLANES

HONOLULU, Aug. 24—Plans for guarding the approach of three United State naval airplanes when they near the Hawaiian Islands on flight from San Francisco, were announced today.

Effective tomorrow a new permanent radiocasting station will be tuned in at Hilo. One mine sweeper will be stationed fifty miles southeast of Hilo and another will be on patrol fifty miles north of Kauai.

Four submarines at Hilo, four at Lahaina and four at Pearl Harbor will take stands thirty miles apart between the two mine sweepers on a line through point W on the flight chart, which is 300 miles west of Oahu.

A long range scouting airplane will be placed with a tender at Lahaina ready for emergency escort for searching duties.

The light planes will carry a barograph sealed by the officials of the International Aeronautical Association for the purpose of giving mechanical proof that the planes did not land enroute on the non-stop flight from San Francisco to Honolulu.

Commander Martin of Pearl Harbor has been placed in charge of the western end of the flight.

EFFORT TO IDENTIFY MAN AFFLICTED WITH AMNESIA

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 24.—(AP)—In an attempt to solve the mystery of the young man who was found by the police Saturday, a victim of complete amnesia, which has baffled hospital authorities, Dr. Daniel F. Levy, police surgeon, today had the man brought to the Bertillion room at headquarters where his picture and fingerprints were taken.

The man, who is about 24 years old, claims that he was in the army at one time. He also remembers that he was employed as a time keeper, but regarding his identity or any details of his family, his mind is a complete blank. Dr. Levy decided that as long as the youth had been in the army, the most logical place to clarn his identity would also be through the army, inasmuch as the army has a complete record of the youth together with his fingerprints.

It is believed that photographs of the young man will be broadcast to the police throughout the country in a further effort to establish his identity.

SUCCESSFUL TWO-WAY RADIO TELEPHONE COMMUNICATION

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—Successful two-way radio telephone communication between airplanes and ground was established for the first time in the anti-aircraft test maneuvers concluded today at Fort Tilden, in final tests the communication between airplane and land stations was as clear as that over an ordinary telephone line.

The device was perfected at the radio laboratories of the signal corps at Camp Vail, N. J., a helmet is worn by the aviator cutting off the noise of the motor and the difficulties caused by the engine's spark system, which had previously prevented success of the attempts at communication.

Aviation officers conducting the test said the aviators using the radio telephone could hear the land station from a distance of eighty miles, while the aviator could talk with the station from a distance of thirty miles.

FRENCH NOTE REACHES GERMAN FOREIGN MINISTER

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Gustave Stresemann the German foreign minister, late this afternoon received from the French ambassador, M. Margerie, the French reply to Germany's security pact proposals. The note coming from M. Briand, the French foreign minister, in behalf of the allies, reached Berlin after having made the circuitous route of the European capitals.

No concealment was made by the government of the dissatisfaction over the manner in which M. Briand's reply is alleged to have been handled about Europe before being transmitted to the government.

Advance press comment in Berlin assume that the note will in a probability cause further delay because it will fail to suggest a tangible starting point for the proposed negotiations.

ANOTHER HEROIC ACTION BY PATROLMAN FLANAGAN

STRATFORD, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Patrolman Patrick Flanagan, of the Stratford police dove off the dock at Beach's pond, Stratford, this afternoon, in his uniform when he saw Helen Sivotnak, a 12 year old girl, sink for the second time. He brought the girl to shore and took her in the police ambulance to Bridgeport hospital where she died shortly after arrival. She was stricken with cramps.

This was the second heroic deed by Patrolman Flanagan. Last February he and chief of Police William Nichols shot "Big Mike" Ricciteli, who was wanted for murder and a score of robberies.

2006 INTOXICATION CASES IN BOSTON IN TWO WEEKS

BOSTON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Police have arrested 2,006 persons since orders were sent out two weeks ago to bring in anyone showing signs of intoxication.

The number of arrests for the two weeks ending today is only five per cent. less than for the same period in August, 1918, before prohibition became effective.

In announcing the number of arrests, police stated the haul would have been greater had not their orders been given wide newspaper publicity which drove many drinkers indoors.

UNIFORM CHILD LABOR LAW HAS BEEN DRAFTED

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Regulations governing agricultural pursuits are included in a revised tentative draft of a new uniform child labor law which is to be submitted to the thirty fifth annual conference of the national conference of commissioners on uniform state laws during its seven day meeting starting here tomorrow.

Two Deaths When Auto Struck Train

First Accident of the Kind in New England—Nine Other Men were Injured.

Medford, Mass., Aug. 24.—(AP)—William Bogel, 52, Bellingham, and Tony Pasquale, 40, of Milford, were instantly killed and nine other men were injured, when the motor truck in which they were riding struck a New York, New Haven and Hartford gasoline train here late today in the first accident of the kind in New England.

The most seriously injured, two of whom are in the Medfield state hospital, and five in Milford hospital, are Alfred Grillo, Anthony Lopes, Joseph Cruz, Armando Rodrignes, Michael Carrili and Anthony Grillo, all of Milford, and William Woodman of Bellingham. Two others were not seriously injured.

The accident occurred at the Dale street railroad crossing. The driver of the truck which was bringing 11 men home from work, apparently did not hear the gasoline coach approaching and the truck crashed into the coach just behind the front step.

MORRIS HILLQUIT ATTACKS THE MONROE DOCTRINE

MARSEILLES, France, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Morris Hillquit, New York socialist leader, addressing the international socialist congress, or second international, today said that the Monroe Doctrine of "America for Americans" has come to mean "America for the United States" in the hands of imperialist governments. He said, however, that the American people are not imperialistic.

Hillquit was the final speaker on the peace program of the congress. He said that he foresaw war for the United States, particularly with Mexico, because, he asserted, American magnates want Mexican oil. Americans dominate the western hemisphere economically "and they are showing impatience to become masters of the world," Hillquit declared.

GASOLINE TO BE RETAILED IN HARTFORD AT 22 CENTS

HARTFORD, Aug. 24.—(AP)—More than forty filling stations of the Colonial Filling Stations, will sell gasoline at 22 cents tomorrow morning. The cut of two cents announced tonight by the company has not affected the tank wagon price which remains at 20 cents, including the two cent state tax, but officials of the company are of the opinion that a cut in the wagon price will follow. It is expected at the Yankee Filling Stations that a two cent cut will be in effect tomorrow morning following the drop of two cents in the tank wagon price of the Tidewater Oil company for which they are distributors. Local officers of other fuel companies operating in Hartford said they expected a reduction but had received no notification.

SUCCESSFUL WORK BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Just thirty seconds after opening their seventh volley of three-inch schrapnel fire on a two target trailing behind a Martin bombing plane, two batteries of four anti-aircraft guns each, brought the target down from an altitude of 5,000 feet during the fourth of the series of air defense exercises over Fort Tilden today.

A total of 261 shots were fired to bring the 5 by 15 feet cone-shaped sleeve drooping into the sea, where it was lost. It was brought down by the 252nd shot.

The wire which towed the target 2,100 feet behind tthe plane was severed.

FLIGHT OF AIRPLANES TO HAWAII POSTPONED

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The proposed flight of three American airplanes from San Francisco to Hawaii was postponed this afternoon from Friday, Aug. 28, to Monday Aug. 31. Difficulty in installing the PB-1, the big bombing plane which flew here from Seattle last week, a new engine to replace that which developed a broken oil feed, was the cause of the postponement.

Miners And Operators Thawing Out a Little

They Condescend to Meet Separately With a Citizens' Group in the Coal Region.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Anthracite miners and operators today agreed to meet separately with a citizens' group in the coal region to hear the latter's views as to why 158,000 miners should continue at work in the event a new wage contract has not been negotiated by September 1.

John H. Uhl, tobacco manufacturer of Wilkesburre and chairman of the citizens' "no strike" committee presented the request to John L. Lewis, international president for the Miners' Union, at the latter's temporary headquarters at the Bellevue-Stratford today. Mr. Lewis accepted on condition that the meeting be open to press and public and suggested the conference be held at the Altamont Hotel in Hazelton, Pa., tomorrow at 11 a. m., standard time. The arrangement was agreeable to Mr. Uhl. Mr. Lewis then assured him that the meeting would be attended by the union full scale committee, some forty strong.

Meanwhile W. W. Inglis, chairman of the operators' scale committee, made a similarly favorable response when the citizens' committee tendered a like offer in Scranton through Ralph A. Amerman, a banker there. Mr. Inglis arranged on behalf of his fellow committeemen to meet the Uhl committee at Wilkesbarre on Wednesday.

Mr. Uhl explained to Mr. Lewis that the committee was "entirely neutral in its attitude."

Neither Mr. Inglis nor Mr. Lewis in accepting the committee's proposition discussed the suggestion to resume the negotiations broken off in Atlantic City on August 4. They merely assented to hearing the committee's views.

Mr. Lewis for his part sounded Mr. Uhl as to the committee's attitude toward wage increases such as the miners are asking as a condition to renewal of the contract expiring August 31. Mr. Uhle replied that he could not answer for the other members of the committee. He was unwilling to be quoted but indicated no personal opposition.

SCHEME FOR IMPROVING ARTILLERY FIRE REVISED

HONOLULU, Aug. 24.—(AP)—A scheme for taking ballistic wind, to be used in correcting the ranges of guns in night firing, has been devised by Major John H. Hood of the 15th Coast Artillery at Fort Kamehameha here, and is announced to have passed successful tests in improving the accuracy and precision of fire.

Portable searchlights, capable of revolving both vertically and horizontally, were trained on a pilot ascension balloon 26 inches in diameter as it rose. The speed and direction were computed, as is done at the meteorological station during the day. This is said to have been the first time the idea of tracking a small balloon at night had been tried.

The experiment was carried out successfully by the operator of the light the first time and without field glasses. Atmospheric conditions were adverse, with low clouds and a heavy wind velocity; nevertheless the balloon was tracked for 1,500 yards. Military experts said that with better equipment it could be tracked as high as 5,000 yards.

$25,000 FIRE DAMAGE IN NORTH MOODUS BLAZE

MOODUS, Conn., Aug. 24—A farm dwelling used as a boarding house, owned by Harry Gregg, in North Moodus, together with an adjoining dining room, kitchen, barn, silos and sheds, were destroyed here tonight, the loss being estimated at $25,000. The fire was believed to have been caused by children playing with matches near a gasoline tank in the barn. An explosion set fire to the barn and the flames spread rapidly to the other buildings. A greater portion of the contents was saved. It was the biggest fire in Moodus since 1906.

COMBINE PROPRIETORSHIP OF MAMMOTH GRANITE QUARRIES

BOSTON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Arrangements have been completed, it was announced here today, for the transfer of the granite quarries on Crotch Island, Stonington, Me., owned by the Ryan-Parker Construction company of New York and the Crotch Island Granite company to the John L. Goss corporation of Stonington and Boston, which now operates an adjoining quarry. All equipment is included in the amalgamation. It was said that the combined properties will have the largest production capacity of any granite quarry in the United States and probably in the world.

MAMMOTH PAPER MILLS ARE STARTED IN NEWFOUNDLAND

CORNERBROOK, N. F., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Before a thousand guests, Gov. General Allardyce, of New Foundland, today initiated the two-day celebration which marks the opening of the newly constructed paper mills of the New Foundland Power and Paper company here by pulling a lever which started the machinery for the first time.

The guests included members of the New Foundland legislature, a dozen members of the British parliament, the lieutenant governor of the province of Quebec, as well as prominent personages from all parts of Canada, the United States and this dominion.

Jobs for Women Urged in Cuba

REGLA, Cuba, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Cuban women need ampler protection and should be provided with an adequate means of making an honest living, Mayor Antonio Bosch said in making public a plea to merchants and employers of the city to employ women wherever possible.

Mayor Bosch has asked the city council to adopt an ordinance making it compulsory for department stores and other establishments where women's articles are sold, to employ saleswomen, 75 per cent of whom must be of Cuban nationality.

Regla lies on the eastern shore of Havana harbor.

The prospects of the potato crop on the poor wet soils of the western counties are said to be more doubtful.

8 ILLS. GAURDSMEN KILLED WHEN TRENCH MOTAR BURST

Victims Were Negro Soldiers of the Eighth Infantry—Accident Occurred During Firing Practice on the Range at Camp Grant, Where the Troops Are in Annual Encampment—Officers Believe the Mortar Was Overloaded.

ROCKFORD, Ills., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Eight negro soldiers, including one officer, were killed at Camp Grant today by the explosion of a trench mortar on the field range.

Six others suffered serious injuries and perhaps a score received first aid treatment for minor hurts.

An inquiry has been started by Major General Milton J. Foreman, commander of the Thirty Third Division, of which the Eighth Illinois Infantry, the negro regiment is a unit.

Captain O. A. Browning, commanding the howitzer company was the officer killed. He served overseas with the eighth infantry and was decorated with the French Croix de Guerre for gallantry.

Two of the injured lost their right arms and a third victim was saved by an amputation of a foot.

The explosion occurred as Captain Browning and his men were gathered closely around the field piece for firing instructions. Army officers believe the mortar was overloaded.

The investigation will be difficult because of the fact that all those close to the instructor were killed. Several of the enlisted men were mutilated beyond recognition.

FIVE INVADERS TURNED BACK IN NATIONAL TENNIS

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 24.—(AP) Five foreign threats were lifted out of the competition and one American seeded combination was eliminated in the opening day's tennis matches in the national doubles championships on the grass courts of the Longwood Cricket Club today.

Harvey E. Snodgrass and Walter Wesbrook of California, national clay champions, could not adopt their game to grass and against a strong unseeded team, dropped into the discard by straight sets, George M. Lott, Jr., and Lucien E Williams of Chicago, defeated the seeded combination in a decisive manner in one of the feature matches on the grand stand court, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Nine foreign teams from England, Australia, Japan, Spain, Canada and France, started the play, but only four survived. The entire Oxford-Cambridge contingent was swept off the courts while Canada was entirely obliterated and Japan's lone entry was snuffed out. Two French teams, one from Australia and one from Spain, remain in the competition tonight.

France's mighty threat, Rene Lacoste and Jean Borotra, favorite to reach the challenge round, came through easily against a Japanese-American team of Takeichi Harada and R. B. Bidwell in straight sets while what looks like the strongest American combination Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., and R. Norris Williams, 2nd of Philadelphia advanced at the expense of a far west team composed of Wallace Scott and Leon A. De Turenne of Washington. William T. Tilden, 2d, of Philadelphia, national champion and his youthful protege, Sandy Wiener were forced to four sets to eliminate the Harvard-Yale team of Arnold W. Jones and W. W. Ingraham of Providence, R. I.

The defeating doubles champions, Howard O. and Robert G. Kinsey of San Francisco, Calif., were given stubborn resistance by S. M. Hadi of Indianapolis and Allen Holmsmith of Boston, the latter carrying the title leaders to two extra game sets before the champions gained the verdict.

The bitterest battle of the tournament was waged between the team of Gerald Stratford and Cranston Holman of California against the Oxford-Cambridge combination of H. K. Lester and J. P. Carleton. This battle lasted for 57 games, the Californians finally downing their rivals 6-2, 6-3, 11-13, 9-7.

Tomorrow's matches bring together the first of the seeded teams. Three matches of international interest claim the limelight. The most important contest appears to be the meeting of Tilden and Wiener against Decugis and Brugnon, French seeded players, in another international battle, Wray Brown and Brian I. C. Norton of St. Louis meet the Spanish Davis Cup team of Manuel Alonso and Eduardo Flaquer. The third brings together the Texas combinations of White and Thalheimer and the French favorites, Lacoste and Borotra.

REPORTER MAKES GOOD ON BEAT THOUGH BLIND

GARY, Ind., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Total blindness has not interfered with the success of Allen Naive, 31, as a newspaperman.

Naive, city hall reporter for The Gary Post-Tribune, accepts all assignments and, according to fellow workmen, gets more than his share of the news. He turns out "clean copy" on a regulation typewriter.

Naive was given a place on the Post-Tribune more than five years ago, upon completion of a course in a school for the blind. He showed natural aptitude for using a typewriter and for writing, and made good from the start.

He never has asked special consideration because of his physical handicap, and has accepted every assignment given to him, including his share of night meetings. His cane is his only companion on his beat.

One of his recent accomplishments was the writing of a feature story on a circus which came to Gary. His story was as bright and colorful as though he had been able to see the gayety of which he wrote.

SWISS VILLAGE SUBMERGED 300 YEARS AGO REAPPEARS

SAAS-IM-GRUND, Switzerland, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Reappearance of a village inundated more than 300 years ago was noticed recently at Lake Antrona. A landslide caused the water level to recede and gradually the ruins of the old village comprising 42 buildings, were disclosed. The village of Antrona Piana was flooded by a monster spring freshet and has lain submerged for three centuries.

Oxford Honors Harvard Man

OXFORD, England, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Expressions of regret at his leaving Oxford were made at a dinner recently to Prof. S. E. Morison of Harvard University, shortly before his return to the United States. He was at Oxford as first Harold Vyvyan Harmsworth professor of American history

FOURTEEN POINTS GUIDE TO SUCCESSFUL MOVIES

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Through a recently established system of selecting plots that conform to the covenant of 14-dramatic points, motion picture producers here now practically assure the success of a photoplay before it is made. Of thousands of films produced in the past were failures from the standpoint of audiences.

Irvin A Cummings, director, under whose direction several productions have been filmed through this new method, declares that in the future failures will be almost completely eliminated. In this manner more pictures that appeal to the audiences will be turned out, he said.

The photoplay when adjudged by this method should contain a majority of the fourteen following dramatic ingredients: ambition, conflict, conspiracy, devotion, eternal triangle, greed, intrigue, love, mother love, the quadrangle, retribution, reconciliation, sacrifice, feminine appeal.

OYSTER BEDS FOUND IN EXCELLENT CONDITION

HARTFORD, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Inspection of the oyster beds and shucking plants in the vicinity of Norwalk reveals that excellent conditions prevail there, Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, state commissioner of health, said today. Official certification of the sanitary conditions, as required by an act adopted by the 1925 general assembly, is progressing rapidly, he said, and there will be no delay for any growers in the harvesting of the oysters, which is scheduled to begin next week.

The growers there deserve special praise for the manner in which they have complied with the sanitary code, Dr. Osborn stated. "Connecticut oyster beds and shucking houses are now as sanitary as human ingenuity can make them, and there is little cause to look for any outbreak of disease through oysters grown here," he said.

Noted British Auctioneer Dead

ADDLESTONE, Eng., Aug. 24—(AP) Henry Stevens, one of Britain's oldest practising auctioneers and a curio king, died recently at the age of 82.

Among the many curios which came under his hammer were President Kruger's hat and the waistcoat of King Charles the II.

Stevens during his life time had sold every conceivable thing. Including the late Lord Derby's great menagerie of more than 1,600 animals and birds; the death mask of Napoleon; a piece of Queen Victoria's wedding cake; the spear that killed General Gordon, and one of Dick Turpin's pistols, and 34 out of the known 75 auk's eggs in the world.

French Life Savers Rewarded

FECAMP, France, Aug. 24.—(AP)—A Carnegie prize has been awarded to the Fecamp life-saving station, and silver and bronze plaques have been given to the captain and the crew of the Fecamp lifeboat.

Last February during a storm the Danish ship Nordstiernen, dismasted and unable to make port, was in a critical situation. The Fecamp lifeboat at great risk put to sea and saved every man on board the Danish ship.

ITALIAN NAVY TO HAVE A WEEK'S SHAM BATTLE

ROME, Aug. 24.—(AP)—With King Emmanuel and Crown Prince Umberto looking on, the Italian navy will begin at midnight a week's sham naval battle for the purpose of testing the defenses of Italy's southwestern coasts. Virtually the entire sea power of the nation will be divided between the red, or "enemy," forces and the blue, or defending fleet.

WILLIMANTIC

The third burglary within five days was revealed Monday morning when Ex-Mayor William D. Grant, proprietor of the Grant Grain Store, corner of Valley and Broad streets discovered that his office had been ried sometime during the night. The only loot consisted of about twenty pennies which had been left in a till under the office counter. According to the police there is every evidence that the break into the store was made by the same party responsible for burglarising the Herbert A. Gillett wholesale confectionery and cigar store on Broad street, less than five hundred feet away from the grain establishment. On the same night of the Gillette robbery the Polish-American Bakery on Jackson street was broken into. Over two hundred dollars in currency was taken from the safe at the Gillette place. Entrance to the grain store was effected through a window about eight feet above the ground. The burglar "borrowed" a chair from a neighboring yard and stood upon this while a heavy screen and the glass were removed. Displaying a keen knowledge of the handling of a safe dial, the burglar opened the steel box and opened all of the interior drawers, but was doomed to disappointment. He left the building by opening a large door on another side of the building, enriched by twenty-three pennies.

A continuance was granted in the case of Irving L. Gardiner, of south street, charged with cruelty to animals on August 14th, last, which case was taken up in police court Monday morning. The case is scheduled for Saturday, August 29. Arthur Gaucher is the complainant in the case. Gaucher has been under contract to run the Gardiner farm but some days ago he left the premises and hired out on the Herbert L. Switzer farm, on Village Hill. According to the warrant, Gardiner is charged with having cruelly beaten and killed a collie dog, August 14. Switzer is a veterinary surgeon and he claimed that when Gaucher called his attention to the dog he found that it bore many bruises. The next day the dog died and a post mortem disclosed that death was due to the result of a beating. Gardiner asserts that he has absolutely no knowledge of the affair. Gaucher had two dogs while he worked on the Gardiner farm and both he and the dogs had disappeared when he (Gardiner) returned from a trip. He was startled when he was notified to appear in court, Monday morning, to answer to the charge named.

Alton H. Robbins, 80, died at St. Joseph's Hospital Monday morning, following a brief illness. He had been residing at 1399 Main street for some time and was taken to the institution Sunday night for treatment. The body was turned over to a local undertaking concern. He has no survivors as far as could be determined.

Mrs. George A. Denault entertained the Pastime Sewing Club at her home Sunday evening, the affair being a surprise to one of the members, Mrs. Alden Lepoint, who is leaving to make her home in Springfield, Mass. Mrs. Lepoint was presented a souvenir. Lunch was served and Mrs. Eva Rougeau of Marlboro, Mass., a guest entertained with piano selections. Present were, Mrs. Elzida Grenier of Leominster, Mrs. Emma Duhamel of Marlboro and Mrs. Rougeau and the members of the club.

Much interest is being aroused in the coming swimming match at Lakeside Park, South Coventry next Sunday. The fresh water classic will be divided into various events and the competition which will be open to all comers is expected to be keen.

A pair of horses hauling one of the city garbage wagons got sick of the job, shortly before noon Monday and bolted along Pleasant street, running about half a mile from John street, down Pleasant street and a one-way section to the foot of Jillson Hill, where they failed to make the turn and the wagon smashed into the stone wall. A broken pole was the only damage. The horses escaped injury. The outfit is the property of the Campbell Brothers who hold the contract for the city garbage.

Sheriff Fred O. Vinton of Eagleville, Postmaster Edward Chaffee of Eagleville, First Selectman, Dr. W. L. Higgins and Town Clerk Louis W. Daniels of Coventry attended the week-end games at the Polo Grounds in New York city between the Giants and Pittsburgh temas. Sheriff Vinton and Postmaster Chaffee remained to witness Monday's game.

BALTIC MAN ON SPREE ROBBED OF HIS SAVINGS

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 24—Michael Keough, of Baltic, an employe of the Baltic Mill had a rather sad drinking party in this city Monday forenoon when he lost track of his bank savings of $205.56 and in addition to this was notified to appear in police court Tuesday morning to answer to a charge of intoxication. Keough came here for a jollification. He called at the Windham National Bank at ten o'clock, and told the clerk that he wanted to withdraw all his savings. The money being given him in ten dollar bills. Keough then made his way to lower village and there he met two local men. He said that he gave one of them money and liquor was purchased. The party then drank and shortly before 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon a child came to the police station with Keough's bank book and told Chief Allan McArthur that a man had been robbed. Keough was found in an intoxicated condition near Horseshoe bridge and he blamed his local friends for having knocked him down and taken the money from his stocking. The story was a rather uncertain one and the men were released but will be recalled if more conclusive evidence is produced. This, however, is not thought likely. Keough was searched by the police and he had on his person a ten dollar bill, a $50 Liberty bond and a pocketbook containing one cent, a penny. He was taken to police headquarters and later in the day was released under bonds. Keough's wife died a short time ago.

COMMITMENT TO NORWICH NO LONGER DESIRED

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 24—At a probate hearing held before Judge Lewellyn J. Storrs of the Probate Court for the District of Mansfield, the application for the commitment of John M. McKernan of Mansfield to the Norwich Hospital for Insane was withdrawn by seven petitioners, who had signed an emergency commitment incarcerating Mr. McKernan on Saturday, August 15th. The emergency commitment was secured on complaint of the seven petitioners who are neighbors of McKernan, after respondent had been examined by Drs. Girouard and White of this city and a special permit has been been issued by Judge Storrs. Attorney Harry S. Gaucher of this city appeared for the respondent at the hearing. The withdrawal of the commitment was secured on an agreement that McKernan would take his home permanently in the future with his son, William T. McKernan, of Woodridge, Sullivan County, York York. Drs. W. P. S. Kenting and Charles A. Jenkins had been summoned on behalf of the respondent. It was alleged by the petitioners that McKernan had been a menace to the neighborhood and had threatened several of the residents of that vicinity.

SOME CAMPERS LEAVE GROVE— OTHERS PLAN TO REMAIN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC CAMP GROUND Aug. 24.—There was the usual exodus of campers this morning. Many had taken their departure Sunday night after the sermon by Bishop Anderson. It was a very impressive service which the bishop conducted. At the close of the service, many Christian people came forward to express their determination to recognize the presence of God in their daily lives more than ever.

Quite a number of people are to remain in the cottages, from a few days to several weeks.

At 6 o'clock, Sunday evening, a devotional service was held in the tabernacle by the Epworth League. Rev. N. B. Burton, of Putnam, president of the Norwich District league and dean of the Institute, led the meeting. Miss Marjorie Stephens, of Vernon, was at the piano. At the close about forty certificates were issued to all attending faithfully three of the week's studies. The two banners for attendance were given to the leagues at North Grosvenordale and Westerly, as there was a tie between them, since both had the same number of points.

At the evening service, District Superintendent Center reported that the morning and afternoon offerings had amounted to $481, and asked for $524 to square up all accounts. Nearly that amount was received.

For the Sunday evening sermon, several hundred gathered in the tabernacle, to hear Bishop W. F. Anderson, of Boston. After the praise service, Rev. Roger C. Stimson, of Danielson, read the Scriptures, and prayer was offered by the dean of Albion college, Michigan, Rev. C. B. Williams. Dr. Williams began his ministry in Norwich district at Staffordville.

"Calvary" was sung by the chorus, led by the chorister, Rev. J. G. Sallis of Mystic. Miss Roberta Bitgood played a beautiful selection on the violin. Before preaching, the bishop christened the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Roger C. Stimson, of Danielson, Nancy Clark Stimson.

Grove Notes.

The Village Stocks

The curious old habit of punishing offenders by placing them in the public stocks seems very far in the shadowy past yet a number of these old wooden machines may still be seen in England. Usually they stand, or they stood, on the village green, near the church; and it is not such a long while since stocks ceased to be used in the land.

A hydrant of the Westerly Water Works located on Broad street in front of the Westerly High school building, near the junction of Granite street, sent a water spout some ten or twelve feet into the air, Monday morning, when it was struck and broken off shortly before 11 o'clock by the Paige sedan automobile of Lewis Solomon, driven by his wife. The automobile, it is said to avoid a horse and wagon at the turn made too wide a sweep with the result that it bowled off the fire plug and continued upon the sidewalk. The flow of water which continued for fifteen or twenty minutes before the workmen were able to shut it off, filled the streets and gave a Venice-like aspect to the surroundings.

For the observance of their Golden wedding Sunday, thirty relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar N. Chase, of Westerly, gathered at their home, 158 High street, for a family reunion and dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Chase are both 72. They were married here, Aug. 23, 1875.

A most successful clambake was held at the Quinebaug Camps Association Grounds, Sunday afternoon. A delicious clam chowder was served at one o'clock. At half past two, the bake was opened, and the clams, mackerel, sausages, golden Bantam green corn, sweet potatoes, and white potatoes were done to perfection. Brown and white bread were served with the dinner. William McCluggage and Gordon Willis were pronounced to be the last word for clambakers. Tennis, ball-games and swimming entertained the over one hundred who enjoyed the beautiful location, during the afternoon. The committee who made the arrangements comprised Eudor LeClair, Gordon Willis, Charles Maynard, Arthur LeClair, Erme Raney, Louis Guillotte, Fred Belisle and Foster Harrington.

BOAT RACE DAY MEANS EXTRA TELEPHONE SERVICE

Once a year crowds flock to New London to witness the gala maritime event among colleges, the Yale-Harvard four mile boat race, says the current issue of The Telephone. Once a year the New London traffic girls are asked to give more than their ordinary work at the boards. This year the race was held on June 19 and because a closer race than usual was predicted rowing enthusiasts swarmed the banks of the picturesque Thames to witness the colorful spectacle. As a result of all this the traffic through the New London exchange reached the highest peak known in that city.

Starting on Wednesday evening when the advance guests of the city started to arrive, most of them going to the Mohican and Griswold hotels, and continuing until Saturday afternoon, New London toll and local operators were on the jump steadily. Yale commencement week at New Haven gives the Elm City operators their opportunity to do heavy duty the first few days of the week and then toward the middle, the graduates and undergraduates from both Yale and Harvard head for the Whaling City. Naturally New Haven has more facilities to handle the big increase in business but the New London office can only enlarge its force, drawing on the substitute list, and fill all boards to meet the increase of more than double the usual calls.

Twelve more girls were brought into service and at times on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights the supervisors took positions on the toll board. Miss Coyle, chief operator, also sat in when the going was heaviest. In ordinary times there are three recorders of New London toll tickets but on Friday evening all the operators had to stop connecting parties at times to write tickets because the business came in so fast.

It was said that one particular party had to wait nearly half an hour to use a pay station booth, the customers were lined up so thick ahead of him.

There were 1,208 toll tickets written on Friday, the day of the race, 107 more than on the previous boat race day. On Thursday and Saturday mornings combined, the tickets reached almost 2,000 more. Some pencil pushing for such a short period of time!

On the day of the regatta everything was quiet from 5:15 to 7:30 and then the numbers came in by the thousands, no millions. All lines were hopping until just before midnight when things eased up a bit and the toll operators had a chance to rest and get a bite to eat. During the rush hours no one thought of being relieved. The entire force stuck right at their posts.

Miss Coyle told the individual operators the results of the three races so that they might give the information to those who asked.

The company treated the girls to ice cream on Friday for which they were very thankful. The weather was perfect, not too cool nor too hot; just enough breeze to keep it comfortable. The only casualities reported after the conflict were two girls who were overcome on Saturday morning. Chief Operator Miss Coyle was at the office until midnight Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Saturday afternoon she went home and took a much needed rest.

As for the races, all of them were successful from the Connecticut viewpoint as the Nutmeg representative, the flying Ells, took all three races. The varsity event brought yachts and boats from everywhere which lined the entire four miles of the course, presenting one of the prettiest river scenes New London has even witnessed on regatta day.

Words of praise and glory were written about the members of the two university eights in the papers of the country but not one of them worked harder or did his duty more faithfully than the New London Traffic Department representatives preceding and following the race on Friday.

CURIOUS HOW PEOPLE REGARD HUMAN BEINGS

It is curious how differently people regard human beings. William Lyon Phelps comments. Some, upon entering a trolley car, hate everyone else in the vehicle; some look upon the crowd at a street corner with disgust; it must be wonderful to have such childlike, unquestioning faith in one's own splendid intellect.

The most amusing thing is to enter a fashionable hotel, and as you advance to the office desk, followed by your traveling bags, to glance for a moment at those individuals who, having already been there some days, now gaze at you from their settled and comfortable chairs. They look at you as though you were garbage.

In the same way, many people, traveling in foreign lands, hate all their fellow-countrymen whom they meet. This scorn used to distress me, just as I used to be disturbed by the contempt of a waiter in a hotel or cutler in a fashionable mansion; now I am only amused, and instead of being sorry for myself, I am sorry for those who sit in the seat of the scornful.

One may have a certain satisfaction in a feeling of compl

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Beatrice Pelletier was struck and slightly injured while on Water street Monday morning when she dashed into the path of an automobile driven by Charles Varney, of Middlesex Turnpike, Essex, Conn. The child had been playing in a small sandbank on Water street, where the new sidewalks are being constructed when she suddenly ran into the road. The automobile was proceeding slowly towards Franklin street and knocked down the little girl. Dr. W. H. Judson was summoned and after examining the child said that she was not badly hurt. The only injury was a cut on the forehead. The accident was investigated by Chief of Police John McFarland and he allowed Mr. Varney to proceed on his way. The owner was considerably nerved up after the accident.

The block on Main street owned by P. J. Jodoin is being remodeled into a fine new structure. The building is now of two stories and Mr. Jodoin plans to add another. The depth of the building will be increased from thirty feet to sixty-five. When completed it will be the last word in modern building construction.

The wedding of Charles Bourdelais, of Southbridge, Mass., and Miss Emma Chartier, of South Main street was held Monday morning at eight-thirty in St. James' church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Chartier, a brother of the bride. The double ring service was used. The witnesses were the brothers of the bride and groom. The music during the ceremony was exceptionally beautiful and solos were rendered by Mrs. Albert Bernier and Miss Lena Boucher. There were two hundred guests present at the wedding and after it they assembled at the home of the bride where lunch was served. After a wedding trip through upper New York state to Lake George, Lake Champlain, and Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Bourdelais will make their home in Danielson, Mr. Bourdelais served with distinction in the World war and is one of the best known young men in Southbridge. He is engaged in the fuel business in that city. Mrs. Bourdelais is the manager of a millinery store on Main street, and is well known in this vicinity.

After the Bourdelais-Chartier wedding, Joseph Chartier of Worcester, Mass., formerly of Danielson and a brother of the bride, married Miss Olive Benoit, also of Worcester. This ceremony also was performed by Rev. Fr. Chartier, assisted by Rev. Fr. Aubier, of the Holy Name church. During the service "Ave Maria" was sung by Miss Augier, sister of the clergyman. After the service this couple was met by the one from Danielson and accompanied them on their wedding trip.

Mr. Chartier is a plumber by trade and Mrs. Chartier is the head bookkeeper of the Iver Johnson store in Worcester. After the wedding trip they will make their home at 690 Park Ave., Worcester.

BOURQUE FAMILY, OF BALTIC, HOLDS A BIG REUNION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 24—Between 150 and 175 people attended the reunion of the relatives and descendants of the Bourque family, of Baltic, at Moosup Pond. The outing was held in the grove near the pavilion and there King George Jacques of East Killingly served one of his famous chowders. Those attending came from all parts of New England, many from New York state and some from Canada. The guests from Canada were residents of Montreal and this was the first time that they had ever visited this section of the country. After the dinner, games and other forms of amusement were held. The affair was a big success and was in charge of A. L. Reeves of Danielson, and Fred Chartier, of Moosup.

DANCING TEACHERS HAVE APPROVED THE CHARLESTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—(A. P.)—The Charleston was adopted today by the American Society of Teachers of Dancing at their annual convention today as an approved number. As adopted, however, it is much modified from the dance which broke into popularity during the past year. For instance, the society ruled against carrying the feet more than 45 degrees out of line from the body.

FLY-TOX

Every Bottle GUARANTEED

FLY-TOX was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by the Rex Fellowship. In a simple, easy and thoroughly effective way, FLY-TOX kills flies, moths, mosquitoes, fleas, ants, roaches and other insects. It's so convenient to saturate the air with clouds of FLY-TOX. Flies, by merely winging through the mist, become affected with the strange action of FLY-TOX, and die. This mist lingers just long enough to do its work. It then evaporates and leaves only a pleasant, clean odor. Wall paper or drapes are not stained. FLY-TOX is harmless to humans. Those stray, elusive flies that invade the most carefully screened homes, are quickly and easily eliminated with FLY-TOX.

PUTNAM

Rev. Charles H. Bedard, pastor of St. Mary's arrived home Sunday morning from his pilgrimage to Rome. He said mass at 10:30 o'clock. His return was not expected for another week, which made the home-coming greetings doubly sincere and hearty. Fr. Bedard left here about three months ago, sailing on a steamer out of Boston. He was received in audience by the Pope and was given the pontifical blessing. He is looking well and said that his trip had been very enjoyable.

The hook and ladder truck of the fire department was called out at noon Monday to extinguish a blaze in a vacant lot next to A. B. Saunders' store on School street. A pile of paper had been set afire in some way and had developed into quite a blaze. Chief Thurston made short work of it with a chemical spray.

The six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred E. Maynard was struck by an automobile in front of her home on Church street Monday. She was knocked down and the car passed over her, but she was untouched by the wheels and aside from cuts and bruises on her face was not injured. The car was going slowly and observers of the accident said that the driver was in no way blamable, as the little girl, unseeingly or thoughtlessly, ran directly in front of the machine.

Adolfo Demesko had an unusual experience the other day, and rather a narrow escape from injury. He was riding in his automobile through Gilead when a croquet ball thrown by a boy across the road, hit the windshield of Mr. Demesko's car, smashing it to bits and cutting his lip. The boy's father settled for the damage to the windshield.

At the meeting of Columbia Grange, No. 141, Wednesday evening, it was decided to hold the annual Grange picnic Thursday, Aug. 27, and to hold it at Ocean Beach this year. It is expected that a large number of Grange families will go on this outing. It is planned to start about 9 o'clock from the Green. Each one will take cake and sandwiches, and the other details will be settled by the committee in charge, William Wolff, Howard Squires, Junabel Squires, Ruth Jacobs and Lillian Rice.

The Ladies' Aid society supper and fair Friday afternoon and evening proved a great success. The members have been working in preparation all summer, and anticipated a large crowd as the day was pleasant, and despite the early morning cool and stormy it was feared that many who had planned to attend would be unable to, but so far as could be judged, nearly everyone turned out in spite of the rain. Over 300 supper tickets were sold, and the members received many compliments on the bountiful and delicious supper served. The sale of articles opened at 3:30 with booths for fancy work, aprons, candy, food and a Jack Horner Pie, with 5 and 10 cent grabs for the children. Sales were brisk, and by supper time the booths were empty. Various tables were much depleted during the evening. A large number filled the supper hall, and a concert by the Columbia band was given. During the evening the remaining articles were auctioned off by William Wolff. The band music was much enjoyed. The band, under the direction of Albert Lyman, has done much in the past few months to add to the pleasure of Columbia people. The members have given several concerts and are always ready and willing to help at any social gathering with their music. The summer visitors helped by their attendance and liberality to make the fair a success. Although reports from various committees are not yet in, it is thought that between $350 and $400 will be netted.

HOPKINTON

Thieves stole the Buick car of Charles E. Whiteley sometime Saturday night, rolled it into the street but failed to start it for lack of gas. They exhausted the battery in the effort, then went to the garage of Julian Crandall and took the Reo speed wagon of the Ashaway Line and Twine Mfg. Co. ran it to a point near Noosneck Hill and, whereas the gas gave out. They left it beside the road and it was found by the police Sunday.

Rev. E. P. Mathewson attended the annual outing of the B. T. Republican Club at Crescent Park last Tuesday.

The women's society of the First Hopkinton Baptist church gave their second clambake on the parish house grounds last Tuesday evening and like the first, it was a success.

The new state cement road from Hopkinton City to Westerly, now in use for its entire length, was well patronized Sunday.

Dr. James N. Lewis, formerly of this town, now of Providence, has been spending sometime at the home of George A. Stoddard.

The Ashaway Grange Fair Association has been cleaning its grounds of rubbish and brush and is now having its buildings painted in preparation for the fair.

Dr. Parmalee occupied the pulpit of the Hopkinton City Baptist church Sunday morning.

Perry Partelo, of Providence, spent last week at the home of Alonzo P. Kenyon.

MAN WHO FEARS PLOT DROPS OUT OF SIGHT

EATONTOWN, N. J., Aug. 24—Max Pincus, collar manufacturer who believes a widespread plot to ruin him is afoot, quietly left his home near here today, went to New York and dropped out of sight.

His home, where he walked last night for the foes he said were conspiring against his reputation and life, was almost deserted today, the guard of private detectives there having apparently been withdrawn. It was stated by servants that Mr. Phillips would not return from New York tonight.

While Mr. Phillips, who has caused the arrest of three women and a man in the alleged plot against him, was on his way to New York, Joseph S. Marcus, 82 year old banker who says he believes he is the "arch enemy" referred to by Mr. Phillips, fell critically ill at his New York home.

Mr. Marcus who voluntarily contributed to the story of intrigue told by Mr. Phillips, said that the collar manufacturer's story of a plot is a hallucination. Mr. Phillips has a grudge against him, he said, because of a recent stock deal.

CAILLAUX NEGOTIATING WITH CHURCHILL ON WAR DEBT

LONDON, Aug. 24—The first day of cross-table bargaining between M. Caillaux, the French finance minister, and Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, for the settlement of the French debt of 623,000,000 pounds to England disclosed the fact that there is still a wide breach of views as to the amount the annual payments by the French shall assume, despite the much-heralded "gentleman's offer" of the French.

The French offer at the end of the day was still a long way from what the British have fixed upon as the minimum payment at the opening of the conversations this morning an agreement was entered into that no information would be given to the public until the cabinets of the respective countries had received reports from the treasury heads.

British treasury officials are hopeful that an agreement will be reached tomorrow or Wednesday ,which is based on the fact that France is prepared now to make an annual contribution to London, which is an advance even on her attitude under the Poincare regime. Mr. Churchill is understood to have declared that the British will uphold the Balfour note which set forth that the British will only ask repayment of the debts owed her by her allies in a ratio to the amount she will have to pay the United States.

England wants 21,000,000 a year from France, but thus far France asserts that she is able to pay only about 9,000,000 pounds a year. M. Caillaux, who has definite instructions from Paris is understood to be willing to go only a little farther than the French experts at last month's meeting, who offered to send 10,000,000 pounds across the channel each year. Whatever pledge the French finance minister may make for his country, it is believed it will be founded on two reservations, one for a periodical revision of France's capacity to pay, and the toher modification of the payments in accordance with the value of the franc.

The British treasury is likely to accede to the latter reservation, but the first, which the experts have been unable to agree to may be a stumbling block in the present conversations.

At the negotiations tomorrow, at which some of the experts will be present, M. Caillaux will probably invite the British representatives to investigate his country's budget, which he declares, does not permit him to entertain the British demands.

TIME ALLOWANCE FOR PAYMENT OF TAX ON FILMS

HARTFORD, Aug. 24—Further time allowance for the payment of the tax on films now in the possession of moving picture theatre owners was allowed today by Tax Commissioner Blodgett, although the tax must be paid and all films registered which are distributed beginning tomorrow. At a conference between Benedict M Holden, counsel for the producers and distributors, and Special Agent John J. Splain, an agreement was reached which will allow the exhibitors to show the films now in their hands, the tax to be paid on these under the arrangement in force since July 8.

The tax commissioner declined to accept the proposal made by Mr. Holden to deposit an amount towards provisional payment on films which have been shown since July 8 in the state. Commissioner Blodgett explained that this procedure could not be followed under state tax statutes and that the tax would be collected when the exact amount was determined through the records kept by the exhibitors or examination made by department agents.

Mr. Holden said following the conference that he told the tax officials that he would immediately notify the distributors to move out of New Haven and the state. All films will be shipped through the American Express company and by parcel post, to the exhibitors, he said, "and determination might follow as to the proper method for collection of the tax.

The effect of today's decision will be to allow continued exhibition in the state without any noticeable check on the supply of films, Commissioner Blodgett stated. The department realized he said, that considerable difficulty might be put in the way of theatre owners should they be compelled to forward all films in their possession to New Haven for registration before exhibition.

TESTIMONY IN PROBE OF THE MACKINAC DISASTER

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 24—George S. Kelly, general manager of the Blackstone Valley Transportation Company, charterer of the Steamer Mackinac on which 50 persons were fatally injured in a boiler explosion at Newport last Tuesday, will be called to testify tomorrow at the inquiry into the disaster now being conducted by officials of the United States Steamboat Inspection Service.

Supervising Inspector General Geo. Uhler of the steamboat inspection service, who conducted the inquiry last week, will return to this city to hear Mr. Kelley's testimony and also that of Captain George W. McVay, of the Mackinac. Chief Engineer John Grant and others of the crew who will be recalled on the stand.

Employes of the Wholey Boiler Works repeated at today's session of the hearings charges that Chief Engineer Grant permitted the Mackinac to start from Pawtucket on the fatal excursion without effecting necessary repairs to the boiler which later blew up.

Edward Cassidy, one of the welding crew called to repair the boiler, repeated to inspectors Richard F. Bailey and Captain Robert B. Clark his declaration previously made in the form of an affidavit to Assistant Attorney General Oscar L. Heltzen who is conducting an independent investigation for the state of Rhode Island, that he had found it impossible to work on the boiler because of the position of the place needing repairs.

He declared he had told Chief Engineer Grant that the boiler might blow up before the steamer reached Newport and that Grant replied: "I know it."

He also said that Grant told him to say, if anything happened, "That it was a new break and not an old one."

RUMORS ABOUT BANDIT JOHN TROY OF WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 25—(A. P.)—John Troy, leader of the bandit gang that has given Worcester county the worst scare in its history, is "done."

John Troy, bandit leader, has suspended the operations of his gang until after the funeral of his pal, Walter Derosier, who was shot to death by a Worcester policeman.

These are the two latest theories to which the authorities are giving consideration and which are being talked by young men of the city who were friends and associates of the two desperadoes before they began their desperate career of banditry.

Supporting the first theory is a contention that Derosier, rather than Troy, was the real leader in boldness and in the actual execution of the gang's depredations. It was Derosier who was doing the actual holding up of a lunch cart, gun in hand, the night he was shot. It is believed it was Derosier who poked pistols in the faces of bandit victims in many other holdups, although Troy may have been the "brains" and the planner of the gang's operations.

The second theory has followed the developments surrounding the burial of Derosier. There have been reports of threats against the parish priest who refused to have funeral services of the dead bandit from the church; reports that Troy had visited the Derosier home to see the body of his former pal and reports that floral tributes from Troy were on the casket. Many believe that Troy has not left Worcester at any time since the shooting of his companion and that he has only been waiting until after the funeral to resume his operations and seek reprisals for the loss of an accomplice.

Desrosier was buried this afternoon in unconsecrated ground in Notre Dame cemetery. There was no [illegible] at the home or at the grave.

LAFOLLETTE OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN FOR SENATOR

STOUGHTON, Wis., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., tonight assailed the Melon tax plan, and demanded that the inheritance tax be retained to pay off the war debt, in an address which opened his progressive campaign for the republican nomination for United States senator to succeed his father's unexpired term.

Making his first important speech in his own behalf as a political candidate he summarized the progressive achievements made under his father's leadership, discussed the problems of federal taxation, and outlined his platform in the present campaign.

As three steps in "a sound program of tax reduction," he proposed to abolish the remaining special war taxes known as "nuisance taxes," to increase income tax exemptions to $3,000 for heads of families and to $1,500 for single men and women, and to reduce super taxes by whatever amount remains after the abolition of the "nuisance taxes" and the exemption of the first $3,000 of personal income.

Mr. LaFollette criticized the Coolidge administration and the policies, particularly the Mellon plan, which he said was written in the interests of wealth and special privilege.

Mr. LaFollette promised that if elected he would oppose the entrance of the United States into the world court, favor the repeal of the Esch-Cummins law, continue the fight for the rights of American labor, favor adequate relief for American agriculture, support Senator Norris in his right to prevent the transfer of Muscle Shoals to a "power trust," and oppose the administration's program for the Mellon tax bill.

He also declared himself as favoring "a wise policy of comprehensive conservation" and a revision of the federal leasing acts, investigation of the federal trade commission, constitutional amendments for direct nomination and election by the people of president and vice president, and the exercise by congress of its constitutional right to an authoritative voice in foreign affairs.

1927 ARMY BUDGET MAY REDUCE SIZE OF ARMY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Indications are that the army's budget for 1927 will be limited to a figure which will require new reductions in its enlisted and commissioned personnel. Although no authoritative estimate has been made available, there is a general fear among war department officials that from 7,000 to 10,000 enlisted men will have to be dropped in addition possibly to one or two thousand officers.

Prospects of a budget reduction and its effect upon the national defense system have been made the subject of various studies by the general staff. Their net result appears to have brought a conviction that if appropriations for the army are reduced, only one course is open for the war department—to order a corresponding cut in officers and men.

Belief that the enlisted strength will be curtailed by seven to ten thousand is based, in addition to the current signs, upon the effort made by Budget Director Lord last year to reduce the existing pay allowance for enlisted men from a $18,750 man basis to about $15,000.

AGAIN IN TRAINING TO SWIM ENGLISH CHANNEL

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Miss Gertrude Ederle of New York, resumed active training today for the attempt to swim the English Channel which she expects to make August 31.

Ishak Helmy, the giant Egyptian swimmer, finished his training today. He had intended to try the channel crossing tonight but bad weather discouraged him. He said, however, that he certainly would leave for Dover not later than tomorrow unless a [illegible]

One subject tomorrow is "How to Obviate the Assaults on Protestantism in Motion Pictures."

"DUTCH" ANDERSON'S PAL REFUSES TO TESTIFY

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 24—Charles "One-Arm" Wolfe, held for alleged complicity in the murders of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hance, refused today on advice of his attorney to testify at the inquest into the deaths of the couple. Wolfe indicated last week that he desired to testify.

Hance before his death made a statement declaring he and his wife were shot by George "Dutch" Anderson and that Wolfe accompanied Anderson.

The Mark of Quality

25 Years of Firestone Service to Highway Transportation

25 years of anticipating the requirements of motorists—making manufacturing processes more certain—producing a higher standard of quality—25 years of unswerving adherence to the Firestone pledge, "Most Miles per Dollar"—summarizes Firestone's record of service to car owners.

Firestone factories have grown from a small building approximately 75 x 150 feet to mammoth plants having floor area of over 60 acres—from a capital of $50,000 to over $50,000,000—from an annual sales volume of $100,000 to over $100,000,000—all in the short period of 25 years.

This Firestone record could only have been made through furnishing the public with outstanding values and is, consequently, your assurance of quality and lowest prices.

If you would like to know more of this wonderful record, ask your Firestone dealer to send you an illustrated folder.

With today's high cost of crude rubber and other raw materials, Firestone's opportunity to serve the public was never better, due to its great volume and special advantages in buying, manufacturing and distribution.

This NEW way in solving woman's oldest hygienic problem warrants never a moment's charm lost

ONE-SIXTH of the average woman's life, say statisticians, is spent in self-consciousness, in fear of charm lost.

Today that is a folly. Live every day, unhandicapped. Wear your lightest frocks, dance, dine, motor in security and content.

Modern science has supplanted the old-time sanitary pad with a better way. A way that is changing women's hygienic habits universally.

The name is Kotex . . . a word coined scientifically right.

It absorbs 5 times the moisture of the ordinary cotton pad. That means great protection.

It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—that ends an old-time embarrassment.

It is deodorized. And that prevents danger of offense.

You get it at any department store or drug store, just by saying "Kotex." And that banishes the embarrassment of asking for a "sanitary pad."

8 in every 10 women in the better walks of life have adopted it. Which proves its benefits.

It will mean much to you in health, in daintiness and protection. It proves old ways a needless folly.

KOTEX

DEODORIZED

1 Protection 5 times as absorbent as cotton pads. Absorbs 5 times its own weight in moisture—and is scientifically deodorized.

2 No laundry. Discard as easily as a piece of tissue.

3 Easy to buy, anywhere. You ask for them by name. Many stores keep them ready-wrapped — help yourself, pay the clerk, that is all.

No laundry—discard as easily as a piece of tissue

CHEMICALS IN WAR AND PEACE

Strong has been the opposition to the employment of poison gas in the conduct of warfare. It has been supposed previous to the late war that the existing agreement against the use of such a weapon would prevent its use, and with all respecting it that would have been the result. But the openanz of that war found agreements thrown to the winds and among them was that concerning the use of poison gas. The effect of it was fearful. All that had been anticipated from its extensive use resulted. Those responsible for introducing it found they had no advantage for others were able to retaliate in full measure. It was not surprising, therefore, that they were enthusiastic in the advocacy of the new move before the league of nations for the abolishment of poison gas in warfare.

With such an agreement finally reached it remains for the respective governments to ratify it, and aside from some unsuspected feature of it there should be an eagerness to give approval. The horrors of gas warfare should be eliminated.

At the next session of congress this matter of ratification by this country should be raised. Already it is being pointed out that there are fears that such a move would interfere with legitimate business, since there are uses for the chemicals employed in making poison gas in connection with the peacetime activity. This is pointed out to be in connection with the making of dyestuffs and it is desired that there be no unfavorable interference on the part of the government with business.

Much will of course depend upon the form that the Geneva protocol takes. Less of course concerned with the stopping of this method of waging war. If nations which agree not to use it for such purposes and stick to their promises, there need be no interference with legitimate business. The uses of chemicals in the established branches of industry are many. Interference therewith is not required in placing restrictions upon the conduct of war if the nations which ratify propose to stand by their word. If they cannot trust each other it is a different matter.

FLYING ACROSS THE OCEAN

The next big undertaking by aviation to attract international attention will be the projected flight by two French aviators from France to this country. It is their purpose to cross the Atlantic in 30 hours, at being planned to make 125 miles an hour and to carry specially constructed gas tanks so that there will be an ample supply of fuel.

This differs from going to the north pole or from making a survey of unknown polar regions. It is different than the flight of the aviators who went around the world. It concerns a long trip over the water with the uncertainty of being forced to land upon the water, but a seaplane or in a machine that will depend upon certain buoyant features to keep them afloat until some vessel may sight upon them.

Others have undertaken with success the flight across the Atlantic. A non-stop flight is the purpose of the French aces, although they are not overlooking the wisdom of providing against something going wrong for it is to be noted that they feel that it will be possible to keep afloat for a matter of 15 days and they will carry provisions to keep them alive distilling sea water to appease their thirst.

Thus far the projected trip is confined to preparations. No date has as yet been fixed but even as confident as the aviators seem to be in the ultimate success they are not overlooking the possibilities of a wreck, the using of their gas tanks to keep afloat like life preservers and the question of a food and water supply.

Long non-stop flights have been made over the land of sufficient length to warrant the belief that it could be done over the water, but there are different conditions to be encountered and there is not the advantage of a landing place of an inviting kind are in case of a forced landing. This may be but another demonstration, in case it takes place, of the marked strides made in aviation since the last crossings were made. It isn't being laughed at as it would have been 20 years ago.

CREATING PANICS

Those who shout "fire" in a public hall and stir the crowd to a wild scramble fail to give consideration to the fact that there are great dangers confronting a crowd under circumstances from being crushed and trampled quite the same as from the effects of the fire.

Those are the very circumstances under which panic is created, and what is invariably the result developed at Bangor, Me., when discovering a fire in a mill a man rushed into a nearby moving picture house and cried "fire" for the purpose of getting help.

Happily no one was killed or seriously injured, but there was an immediate rush for the exits. Women fainted, fell and were trampled upon. The natural inference was that the theatre was afire and being suddenly warned there was a disorderly struggle to get out.

It is not to be supposed that the person who was responsible for the false alarm concerning the theatre had an idea that he was going to produce such a result. It was one of those acts of thoughtlessness which creates no end of trouble. It hardly falls in the class with those where some individual rises in his seat and raises such an alarm just to see such a scramble as is bound to follow, but a bit of second thought and no one would resort to such methods.

Trying to calm a crowd under such circumstances is like trying to brush back the waters of the ocean. Nothing sends such a gathering into a frenzy like the fear of fire and the fight to get away from what is believed to be a dangerous situation. The result is invariably the same wherever it happens and it is a fortunate occasion when all escape without serious injury. Panics are bad enough when it is impossible to avoid them, but they certainly ought not to be caused when a little thought will serve to prevent them.

THE MOSQUITOES

This is one of the years when great numbers of mosquitoes are directing greater attention to the importance of giving greater battle to the pest. Swatting isn't exactly an effective measure. Screening is only partially effective while the things that can be done at this time of year to end the annoyance are distressingly limited.

When it comes to dealing with the mosquitoes the problem is chiefly one of prevention. New York is invaded with them this summer and it is attributed to the large amount of rain, the many breeding places which have been created and the failure to eliminate them. New Jersey has always been blessed to shoulder the responsibility for mosquitoes but the blame isn't being placed there this year. New Jersey has made strenuous efforts to spray its marshes and to drain them, and in fact it is headed in the right direction.

There is much that can be done by every community in the prevention of the breeding places, but unfortunately there is too little attention given to it until the crop has been raised and public protests indicates that it is altogether too large. That also means that it is rather late to think of preventive measures, except that the additions to the swarms can be decreased by the elimination of all stagnant pools, no matter where they are, the barrels and cans partly filled with water that serve as first class breeding places and then next spring lend a hearty support to those efforts which are directed toward the effective means of fighting the pest, which activities seldom get all the encouragement that they deserve. The liking which mosquitoes have for humanity makes them a general and unqualified nuisance.

AFTER GOVERNMENT FUNDS

Reclamation projects come and go. Some are regarded as worthy of adoption but others are put into the discard, some native morals which experience heap difficulty in getting endorsement while others are far fetched and give little promise. It is a lucky desirable thing to get rid of waste territory and put it to good use, but there are times when such work can be done to better advantage than at others.

At the coming session of congress it is indicated that there will be no less than a half dozen reclamation projects advocated. When such a scheme is undertaken it of course means an expenditure of money and nothing less than $50,000,000 would be required to carry out the plans which are being urged.

There might be times when the government could put that much money into the reclamation of land and feel that it was actually accomplishing something worth while, but just at the present time the aim is to bring about a reduction of taxation. That is the desire of the people and the aim of the administration. Departments have been expected to prune their expenditures in order to keep down the outlay to the lowest point. Under such conditions the entrance into wholesale reclamation projects seems bound to be regarded as work which can well be delayed at this time, or at least until the taxation burden is relieved and the country has money which it doesn't know what to do with.

Many a section appeals for government funds for the benefit the expenditure will have in that particular section. It is not so different than the cities on rivers which do not and never will handle any traffic, while those which need government maintenance in order to provide for proper transportation are unable to get it.

IT WAS NEWS FOR JOHN

"What's the news?" asked the out-of-town customer as he grinned at the paper lying on Wilkinson's desk. "Anything happened?"

"I've been doing the cross-word puzzle," acknowledged Wilkinson. "I was too tired and lazy to read much of anything. I'm getting tired of holdups and murders and suicides, and there isn't much else. Not much news these days."

"Depends on who you are," laughed the out-of-town customer. "Maybe if you'd been holding up somebody you'd think it was quite interesting to read about what you had overlooked in the victim's hidden pocket. I had an experience that interested me today right along those lines."

"So you've turned highwayman?" chuckled Wilkinson. "How much did you take in? Business must be good, since I notice you've invested in a new hat."

"That remark will please my wife," laughed the out-of-town customer. "I was going to buy a new hat and she insisted that if I had the old one furbished up no one would believe it wasn't new." I demurred, but I guess I've got to tell her you thought I'd been extravagant. Makes me think of what happened to my wife's cousin Dora last week. She went in to see a girl friend to show her new suit, you know, one of these assemble costumes—is that what they call 'em? Anyhow, it was a coat and a dress and her friend was delighted with them and remarked she did not know Dora had so much dress-making ability."

"Well," said Wilkinson. "Didn't she like the compliment?"

"Not so much," said the out-of-town customer with a laugh. "You see, she paid a fashionable shop $170 for the duds and the compliment didn't fit. But I was going to tell you about the chap I met on the train."

"Go ahead," cried Wilkinson. "I'm sitting on the front edge of my chair waiting to hear about it!"

"We had an awfully slow-poky trip on from Denver," said the out-of-town customer. "Something went wrong and we limped along and got so far behind time that we had to wait three hours at a village early this morning. I got out and pranced around, but it took only about four minutes to see the town thoroughly, and there wasn't a thing to do, not a movie house, not even a store where I could buy a book or a magazine. It was hot and stuffy on the train and there wasn't a soul to talk to except a young fellow who wanted to be by himself and didn't respond to advances. I visited with the porters and the train crews until I fancied they dodged me when I came near, and the only other passengers were in family groups, into which I didn't care to venture.

"When I got back to the station," continued the out-of-town customer, "I found some newspapers had come in from a town named Haynes, farther along and I bought one. It was the kind of paper that realizes that people like to get into print and doesn't touch anything more than personalities, leaving all the rest to the city papers to which people can subscribe if they wish. Europe and the east just don't exist but anything that happens to Bill Jones' cow or the Methodist church is there in great shape.

"As I finished the journal for the third time and was coming up for air, I saw the young fellow I told you about looking at me. The expression he wore was the very first gleam of interest I'd seen on his face.

"I offered him the paper and said there was nothing in it, but he grabbed it with the remark that he came from Haynes himself.

"In a minute or so I heard an exclamation and saw him begin to gather up his belongings to get off at Haynes, through which he intended to pass. He saw me looking at him and he brought me the paper and showed me a clipping he had made from it.

"It said that Louise Somebody had broken her engagement to a Harold Something and the editor thought it would be a good idea for John to drop in about now."

"Interesting to him, no doubt."

"He looked as happy as a king ought to," laughed the out-of-town customer. "My hand still hurts from the squeeze he gave it. You see, he was John."—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Chatterton, the Widow's Son, "The Boy Poet."

The poor boy! He's been in London almost two months, and not a day yet has he had enough to eat!"

So spoke Mr. Cross, the druggist, as he thought of the thin form and haggard face of Thomas Chatterton, whom he had urged to join him at dinner. He had seen the boy's tears, and had known that Chatterton was too proud to ask for help.

Up in his attic room at that moment 17-year-old Thomas Chatterton was looking for the last time at his manuscripts and letters. He thought of his uncle, the sexton of St. Mary Redcliffe's at Bristol, and of the great oaken chests and the dusty manuscripts he had found lying forgotten in a dim part of the church. Before Thomas was 12, mere child though he was, he had written a poem in their queer old language. The boy's teacher, not knowing what his pupil had done, had pronounced the poem a 15th century production. Thus encouraged—and afraid to say that he had written the poem himself—Thomas had pretended to find more, written by a poet named Rowley, a mere dream-character. He had struggled hard to imitate the quaint English of the old manuscripts and he had poured his soul into the verses. Because he feared that people would laugh at a boy's work he had kept up the pretense that the poems were old.

He wrote operas, songs, long poems, satires, prose, articles, and having gone to London, struggled manfully. London, like all great cities, is heartless; Chatterton found himself starving in spite of all his genius.

The boy tore up his last rejected poem, wrote the saddest of all letters to his sister—spotting it with tears—and took arsenic.

Horace Walpole, the great man who had scorned him when he was alive, saying that the boy was "only a widow's son and a lawyer's clerk," later wrote of him: "I do not believe there ever existed so masterly a genius before." The literary world that had rejected most of what he had written now proclaimed his poems beautiful. Today Chatterton ranks with the great poets of England.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Duncan U. Fletcher, who assails the policy of the U. S. Shipping Board in regard to scraping of ships, is another United States senator from Florida and the ranking Democratic member of the Commerce Committee. As chairman of this committee, he was in charge of the program for the rehabilitation of the American merchant marine through the construction of adequate ships to transport American troops and supplies to France during the war. Senator Fletcher is a native of Georgia, but got his education at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, and it was in that city that he studied law and began to seek clients. In 1881 he returned to Jacksonville was sent to the legislature, became mayor of the city, and in 1908 won his first election to the United States senate. He has been an influential member of that body since that time and a recognized force in the counsels of the Democratic party.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

CAPE HUBBARD

Cape Hubbard, the northern extremity of Axel Heiberg island and the proposed "hopping-off" place of the planes of the MacMillan Arctic Expedition at the edge of the uncharted polar sea, has been visited only twice before by white men. Robert E. Peary, coming from the north along the fringe of Grant Land, turned back at this point in June, 1906. The other visitor was MacMillan himself, during April and May, 1914, on his Crocker-land Expedition.

"At times Cape Hubbard is a veritable Cape Horn of the North," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "Heavy winds from the Arctic Ocean sweep through Nansen sound, which separates it from the mountainous Grant Land to the north, bringing low-hanging clouds, fog and, during the summer months, chilling rain squalls.

"A good deal of the time, however, the air is marvelously clear and bracing. Arctic birds break the silence with their twittering, while mosses, patches of grass and flowers add soft touches of color to the stern and rocky mountainsides. Snow patches and ice fields are contrasted sharply against the dark cliffs and the gravel patches along the shore. Sometimes the constant summer sunshine brings the mercury well above freezing and the melting snows send rushing mountain torrents down to the shore, covering the sea-ice with a lake of water.

"Far up Nansen Sound, which is the lane through which the navy planes will fly on their daily journeys between the intermediate base west of Etah, and the outpost at Cape Hubbard, the snow-crowned summits of Ellesmere Island can be seen, with winding glaciers leading down almost to the ice-foot that marks the shore line. To the north is the towering Lands End, or Cape Colgate, the northwestern angle of Grant Land, 2,000 feet high and, according to Peary, more truly Alpine than any other peak in Greenland or Grant Land.

"Cape Hubbard, which was discovered by Peary and named by him in honor of Thomas H. Hubbard, president in 1906 of the Peary Arctic club of New York, has a succession of three peaks, rising from the water's edge in great sweeping tiers, like a huge amphitheater. On the third and highest Peary built his cairn and buried a message and a piece of an American flag in a cocoa tin during his visit 19 years ago. MacMillan, returning from the Crockerland Expedition, brought this record with him, replacing it with a duplicate and another of his own.

"Although both explorers reported high winds in the vicinity, there are many high sheltering cliffs and indentations near the Cape. Wide gravel beaches below the cliffs offer suitable landing places for the planes in case it is not practicable to drop on the water or ice.

"Peary, in his book 'Nearest the Pole' comments on the district, which he referred to as Jesup Land: 'Camping in this region in June, July, and August, if on land, and it is calm and clear, and one is not under the necessity of traveling every day, can be very pleasant.

But if it blows or snows, or both, or if one is on the sea or bay ice and obliged to get somewhere at a certain time, it is sure to be unpleasant. I must confess to a feeling of sadness and regret at leaving this last camp. It was a striking picture, the deer and hare, feeding in the brilliant sunshine under the high bluffs, the call of the birds, and the sound of running water.'

"It was from the summit of the third hill, where Peary built his cairn, that he looked far to the west and saw what he thought was land. MacMillan too, plainly made out the outlines here of a huge range of mountains far out over the sea ice. Yet MacMillan, after a tortuous 150 mile journey out on the ice in the direction of this 'Crockerland,' as it was called, came no closer to it than Peary. For the farther MacMillan went in its direction the fainter it appeared. But on his return to Cape Hubbard MacMillan again saw its mocking, alluring visage, a mystery that the airplanes may be able to solve.

"Strange though it may seem, a little more than 400 miles from the North Pole, big blue flies are one of the chief annoyances of explorers in this region during the summer time. On sultry windless days they swarm over everything, especially if there is any meat exposed.

"The Navy planes are not alone in the air. Great flocks of glaucous gulls, or 'big burgomasters' as they are called, the kingbirds of the arctic, monotonous sweep along the faces of the vertical black cliffs—bold, strong and vigorous birds, battlers with the wind and snow. The redlegged sea pigeons, Stormy Petrels of the north, circle over the open water, unmindful of violent winds, stormy seas, driving snows and freezing slush. And of course there is the Little Auk, or dovekie, the true representative of bird life in the Arctic and the darling of the Eskimos. The eggs of these birds form an important item in the food supply, while their flesh is considered a great delicacy.

"Along the ice-foot, the shelf left by the receding tide, seals sun themselves, while far up in the hills, musk oxen, deer, wolves, and Arctic foxes and hare are numerous. Life for those at Cape Hubbard is by no means

—"many, many dentists today recommend Life Savers"

They're safe for tiny teeth

"This is the only kind of candy I like my own children to have," the dentist told the mother.

"These little Life Saver mints are much better for little folks. Try the new Violet flavor. Children love them."

• • •

Every growing child craves sweets. Active little bodies demand sugar. But children's candy must be pure—and they should not overeat.

Life Savers, the little candy mints with the hole (life saver shape), answer this problem in just the right way. They are china-hard and deliciously flavored.

This means that Life Savers are eaten slowly. Children suck them to make those wonderful flavors last longer. Little tummies are not upset. And Life Savers are kind to tiny teeth.

They're safe and wholesome. You may conscientiously be generous with Life Savers for they are the ideal candy for little folks.

Six flavors are displayed at all good stores so you may help yourself: Pep-o-mint, Wint-o-green, Cinn-o-mon, Lic-o-rice, Cl-o-ve and Vi-o-let. Five cents a package.—Life Savers, Inc., Port Chester, N. Y.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Bobby Coon Is Greatly Interested

An idle word may give a clew
To mischief some one else may do.
—Old Mother Nature.

The night after Peter saw Mrs. Snapper the Snapping Turtle digging a hole in the roof of Jerry Muskrat's house in the rushes at the edge of the Smiling Pool, was moonlight. Peter had gone on up to the Laughing Brook into the Green Forest. There he met Bobby Coon, Bobby was fishing. Of course Peter stopped to pass the time of day (or should I say the time of night?) with Bobby.

"What's the news, Bobby Coon?" asked Peter

"What's the news Bobby Coon?" asked Peter.

"There is no news," replied Bobby Coon. "I haven't been awake long enough to have heard or seen anything like news. What is the news with you old Longears?"

"I don't know of any real news myself," replied Peter. Then he happened to think of Mrs. Snapper the Snapping Turtle. He knew that Bobby Coon is wise in the ways of his neighbors, and it popped into Peter's head that Bobby might know what Mrs. Snapper had been about on the roof of Jerry Muskrat's house?"

Up pricked the sharp little ears of Bobby Coon. "Say that again, Peter," said he.

So Peter said it again. "What made you think that she was interested in the roof of Jerry Muskrat's house?" inquired Bobby.

"Well," said Peter, "she dug into it as if she were trying to dig a hole through and get inside. But I guess it was too much of a job, for after a while she gave it up and filled that hole up again. She was there the whole afternoon."

Bobby Coon looked more and more interested. "Did you say she dug a hole?" he inquired.

"That's what I said," replied Peter. "She dug a hole big enough for her to get half way into. I can't imagine what she wanted to get inside of Jerry Muskrat's house for, can you?"

Bobby Coon shook his head. "No," said he, "I can't Peter. I never have known her to do such a thing. What part of the roof of that house did you say she was at work on?"

"I didn't say," replied Peter. "I can't tell you very well, but if we were down there I could show you."

"Let's go down there right now," replied Bobby Coon, scrambling ashore from the old log on which he had been sitting watching for a fish to come within reach.

Peter stared at him. He couldn't understand this sudden interest on the part of Bobby Coon. "Tell me, Bobby Coon, what is the idea?" he asked. "I don't see any sense in going down there now. Mrs. Snapper isn't there. Besides, if she were there what difference would it make? I watched her all afternoon and I don't know now why she dug that hole and then filled it up again. I've just come up to the Green Forest and I don't want to go back down there again. What do you want to go for, anyway?"

"Oh," replied Bobby, trying to speak carelessly, "I just thought I'd like to see the place where she had been digging, but it doesn't matter. Did you say it was on the side of the roof nearest this bank or on the other side?" Already Bobby was shuffling along down the bank as he spoke.

OBITUARY

Miss Bertha Ella Slater

(Contributed)

Following a severe operation for appendicitis at a Providence hospital, Miss Bertha Ella Slater, daughter of Clinton Avery Slater, of Coventry, succumbed to pneumonia and other complications and died on Sunday, August 23, at about 11 o'clock. The body was moved to the home of her uncle, Mr. William B. Knell, in Preston City.

On Wednesday morning a prayer service was held at her late home and at 10 o'clock the funeral service was held at the Preston City Baptist church, the Rev. Joseph C. Harrison, the pastor, conducting the service, assisted by the Rev. F. W. Tholen, of Hartford. Rev. Harrison's text was John 11: 25, 26 "I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live. And whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die." Mr. Tholen paid a loving tribute to the memory of Miss Slater. Mr. Tholen led prayer and he and Mrs. Tholen sang "The End of the Road," "Beautiful Valley of Eden," and "Sometime We'll Understand."

The floral tributes were many and beautiful. The World Wide Guild of the Congregational and Baptist churches of Preston City, of which Miss Slater was a member, attended in body and formed a guard of honor at the final message. The bearers were Ernest W. Slater, Earl S. Slater, Leland C. Slater, Frank J. Burr, Lorenzo and Jesse R. Wilcox and Clifford Main. Undertakers Church and Allen had charge of the funeral arrangements and the burial took place in Maplewood. Rev. Harrison conducting the committal service.

OVER $2,000 RAISED IN STATE FOR MEMORIAL

A contribution of $50 from Governor Trumbull was announced Monday among other recent donations totaling $628, to the Navy and Marine Memorial. These contributions bring the total raised in this state to date to $2,-742.10. It was announced at Connecticut headquarters in New Haven. The quota being sought in the state campaign, of which Seth Low Pierrepont is the chairman, is $17,000.

Besides Governor Trumbull's donation, other recent contributions are: $170, M. P. Brainard, of Hartford; $100, William E. Clark, of Hartford; $100, Frederick J. Kingsbury, of New Haven; $100 Frederick Oliver Hackliffe, of New Britain, $100, Dr. George C. F. Williams, of Hartford, $10, Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, of Farmington, $25, Thomas W. LOCAL THEATRES AWAIT RESULT OF MOVIE TAX CONFERENCE

The four theatres in Norwich, like those in the rest of the state, are waiting the final action of the movie distributors, which takes place at a meeting to be held Tuesday morning, before they decide what policy they will follow in the future as regards the new state tax on motion picture films. Films already coming into the state are being taxed, one local theatre getting a proportionate tax, his share being $14 on a single film. Others have films which are taxed at smaller figures.

Joseph Nejime, secretary of the Theatre Owners association of Eastern Connecticut, who attended the meeting of the theatre men, at New Haven is waiting final word Tuesday morning, and after its receipt will inform all other members of the association as to what action it is proposed that they follow.

According to the theatre managers and owners in Norwich, there is every indication that the law will be fought to the last ditch and if against the distributors, Connecticut will be left flat, as the one per cent. of the business which is done in this state is not worth the bother of the new law, which they term a "spite law", caused to be enacted by a man who once held a fine position with a large motion picture concern and who was dropped from his position. They base their claim on its being a "spite law", on the fact that the state treasury shows a substantial surplus and that the money from taxing the motion pictures is not needed.

They also assert that the small town motion picture houses will be put out of business if the law is continued in effect, as the small theatre owner, who shows pictures once or twice a week, cannot afford the big tax. Another unfair thing about the law, they allege, is because a man owning a number of theatres gets away on a tax for showing the films in each of his theatres, which would mean disaster for the small house with a seating capacity of about 500 people.

If the distributors withdraw from the state the question of getting films for the local theatres will be a difficult problem. They must then be bought from New York or Boston, a tax paid on them the moment they enter the state and this will complicate matters.

An instance cited is like the following: A Norwich theatre owner wishes to play a 10 reel picture and he is the only one in the state who has it. He orders it from Boston and must pay his tax when the film enters the state. Immediately there is a tax of $100 to pay if the film is an over 10,000, but if any of the reels go over 1000 feet in length there is an additional tax of 50 cents each 100 feet of film. This, they say, automatically closes down the small houses which before the tax law went into effect, could buy a complete show for $25 or less. This show would be either 8 or 10 reels, a feature, comedy and news reel.

If the boycott is declared and the small showman goes to Boston after his films, he faces a tax of about $100, in other words faces a tax 400 per cent. more than his pictures would cost him, unless the film had been shown in the state and the tax had been paid by some other theatre. Again, the picture men say, if a small theatre man loses two reels by fire, he must pay $20 in tax to replace them before he could continue the picture the following night.

In the case of the larger Norwich theatres the tax would, in case they bought independently, figure about $125 for each change of program, a prohibitive figure for them the way patronage has been during the past six months, and a figure which would close the small motion picture house of the city, unless the admission price was raised an average of 10 cents on each ticket.

The theatre owners, it is alleged, do not wish to raise the admission price as business has been fully 50 per cent less this summer than in the summer of 1924, and it is not known how long the slump in patronage will continue. Everything possible will be done, they say, to prevent the law remaining in force or preventing the distributors from withdrawing all films from the state, but, if everything else fails, it will be the same old story, the public will pay, as the theatre men claim it is impossible for them to prevent the raise in admission prices.

Connecticut theatre owners have no cause for quarrel with the national motion picture distributors over the effect of the state film tax law, Joseph Walsh, president of the Connecticut Theatre Owners association, said Monday. He declared that the meeting of theatre owners held in New Haven Sunday was not to protest against the policies of the national distributors, but was called after the distributors had asked the theatre owners to send representatives to the conference in New York today (Tuesday).

The purpose of the conference in New York as explained by Mr. Walsh, who will be chairman of the theatre men's delegation, and Mr. Holden is to discuss the possible revisions in the contracts now in force, and the changes in the form of future contracts, so that the amount of the film tax may be paid in the beginning by the distributors with legal assurance that reimbursement will come from the exhibitors.

Mr. Walsh said that while the theatre owners were prepared to oppose any proposition for boycotting Connecticut, they discounted the possibility of such action as "far fetched." He said that reports of closing theatres and refusing films for exhibition in Connecticut were largely a part of a publicity scheme.

COMMON PLEAS JUDGES WILL WEAR GOWNS

Judges of the several courts of common pleas in the state will wear gowns while on the bench, beginning with the September term. The gowns will be of the same pattern as those worn by supreme and superior court judges. It has been felt that the added dignity from the wearing of the gowns would be desirable in the common pleas court rooms.

The gowns have been made and are of fine quality silk, partially pleated and with the flowing sleeves common to judge's robes. In fact the gowns are of the same pattern as those which have been worn the last few years by the judges of the superior court, and by the justices of the supreme court for many years.

The common pleas and district court judges are going to wear gowns when on the bench for the same reasons that impelled the superior court jurges to adopt them only a few years ago. Connecticut in its tendency toward democracy had made no differentiantion in the apparel of its jurists on the bench from the business man on the street, but a vast number of people in modern times at one time or another come into court and it became apparent that they would be more greatly impressed with the court did the judges wear robes of office. The gown is really an insignia of the office and there is no denying it adds dignity to a presiding magistrate.

There are ten judges in the state to wear the new gowns: Judge Walter D. Shakespeare and Deputy Judge Harry J. Beardsley of the district court of Waterbury, and the following judges of the court of common pleas: Judge Molloy and Assistant Judge Arthur E. Howard, Jr., of Hartford county; Judges John R. Booth and Walter M. Pickett of New Haven county; Judge Charles R. Waller of New London county; Judges John J. Walsh and Frederick W. Huxford of Fairfield county; Judge Albert B. Hamlin of Litchfield county.

STROTHER GETS THREE MONTHS IN JAIL

Albert Strother, 27, colored, was given a jail sentence of three months when, brought before Judge Arthur F. Libby, in city court Monday morning. Strother was charged with unlawfully entering the dwelling of Winfield Robbins, No. 30 North Cove street with the intent to commit theft. He was arrested early Sunday morning as he was running away from the house.

The case of Octave J. Caron of 552 North Main street, charged with violation of the liquor law, was continued until Thursday morning, bonds remaining at $100.

Raymond Jedziniak charged with violation of a city ordinance paid $5 flat his fine having been left with the police to save him a return trip to this city.

The usual half dozen of intoxicant cases completed the work of the court for the day, all being fined.

UNEXPECTED BOMB EXPLOSIONS STARTLED NORWICH RESIDENTS

Residents of Norwich were startled shortly after 9 o'clock Monday night by several explosions. Various rumors as to the cause of the unexpected blasts were circulated but investigation revealed the fact that there was an Italian wedding celebration going on at a house on Pond street and a guest by the name of Danny Percelli had set off several bombs left over from the recent Italian celebration.

Percelli, it is understood, set off the bombs under the mistaken impression that permission had been granted for a noisy celebration of the wedding.

LOCAL POLICE ASKED TO WATCH FOR STOLEN COUPE

The local police were requested on Monday night by the Middletown police to keep a watch for a Chevrolet coupe, 1925 model, stolen in Middletown Monday. The registration number of the machine is given as 34,548. All of the officers on duty were given a description of the stolen machine.

NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL COST STATE $865,991.21

Deputy State Comptroller E. H. Wilkins has prepared the itemized statement of the expenses of the state for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925. The total amount of the expenses was $27,140,362.36. This was an increase of $5,058,359 over the expenses for the year ending June 30, 1924.

The largest item of expense was that of the highway department which amounted to $10,887,451.85. In the year 1924 the highway department spent $8,234,025.62. The next largest item was that for education and which amounted to $2,912,050.17 as compared with $2,897,228 for the previous year. The judiciary expenses of the state in 1925 amounted to $1,053,795.11 or about $24,000 less than the total for 1924. The maintenance of the Connecticut Agricultural college cost the state $1,099,-585.08. For general hospitals the state spent $331,250. The Mansfield Training school was maintained at an expense of $735,494.31. The Connecticut State hospital cost the state $1,108,013 and the Norwich State hospital $865,-991.21. The state spent $243,575 in the upkeep of the state capitol and grounds or $26,409 more than was spent in 1924. The interest on state bonds was $656,-865., which was precisely the same amount paid in the previous year.

TROLLEY CAR HIT AUSTIN NICHOLS TRUCK

One of the Austin Nichols Co. trucks was considerably damaged Monday morning at South Windham when it was struck on the right forward end by the south bound Willimantic-Norwich trolley, due in South Windham at 10:45 o'clock.

The truck was parked in front of Murdock's store in South Windham while the men were unloading merchandise and the trolley failed to clear the right forward end of the truck, breaking off a wheel and considerably damaging the mudguard and frame. The trolley was also damaged in the collision. Motorman Talbott and Conductor Raymond were in charge of the trolley car.

Later in the day the truck was hauled away to a garage where repairs are to be made and a new wheel put onto the truck.

LOCAL MAN KNOCKED DOWN ON LAFAYETTE ST.

Orrin Talbot, No. 44 Perkins avenue, was knocked down early Monday evening near the Norwich Used Car Exchange, Lafayette street, by a machine driven by Lewis Arthur Anderlot of No. 26 Latham street, Groton. The man was taken to the Backus hospital where it was found that he was only slightly injured. He left the hospital shortly afterwards for his home. Mr. Anderlot was driving a Maxwell touring car.

It has been estimated that it would take 650,000 full moons to give the same strength of light as we receive from the sun.

CATHOLIC WOMEN TO HAVE LUNCH BOOTH

At a well attended meeting held in their rooms Monday evening the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women completed plans for their activities at the New London County Fair. The council plans to have a lunch booth on the Merchants promenade and hope to supply their patrons with home cooked lunches. The C. C. of C. W. deserve public patronage as their work of mercy and charity.

They have devoted much time to the various hospitals, the visitation committee visiting the Backus hospital, state hospital and Uncas-on-Thames regularly, providing refreshments and reading matter for the patients. Particularly is their work known and appreciated by the old and dependent, the young and helpless and the orphans and foreign-born. They hope to raise a large sum of money to carry on this necessary work for the coming year.

STREET IMPROVEMENT AT WASHINGTON SQ. PROGRESSING

The northerly side of the new section of the pavement just laid at Washington square was thrown open to traffic Monday. Machines heading towards the West Side pass over the new pavement while those headed towards the city and intending to make the turn into Washington and Church streets use the old cobblestone road.

The work at Washington square is progressing rapidly under the direction of Street Commissioner John C. Donovan. The new pavement has been laid between the trolley rails and for several feet each side of the rails. Traffic Officr Luke Riley, stationed days at Washington square, has his hands full taking care of the traffic at that busy corner. In spite of the fact that the street is largely torn up Officer Riley is handling the traffic without delay.

VEGETABLE GROWERS TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

The executive committee of the Connecticut Vegetables Growers' association has voted to hold its annual meeting in Hartford, Wednesday and Thursday, September 9 and 10. The committee has voted to co-operate with Commissioner of Agriculture Philo T. Platt in the matter of protecting the public from imposition at roadside markets.

William Valentine, of Pomfret, secretary of the association, has been Connecticut vice-president of the National Vegetable Growers' association which holds its annual meeting in Providence, September 14-19. He will arrange for Connecticut association members to attend the Providence meeting. The annual banquet will be held September 16 and the next day there will be visits to the Budlong and Potter farms in Auburn, R. I.

GOVERNOR'S FOOT GUARD GOING TO EUROPE

Tentative plans for the European trip of the Governor's Foot Guard and the Richmond Light Infantry Blues battalion and Veterans' corps next May have been announced by Major Mills F. Neal, commanding the Blues, and when the First and Second companies of the Foot Guard take up their active drill schedule in September permanent committees will be appointed to make arrangements in co-operation with the Richmond committee, Captain Robert C. Buell announced Monday.

Westerly Carnival Netted $2,527.

It was announced at the masses at St. Michael's church, Pawcatuck, Friday, that the recent carnival held for the benefit of the school fund was one of the most successful affairs ever conducted by the parish. The net proceeds were $2,527, and Father J. X. Quinn, pastor, formerly of Montville, and his assistant, Father Keane, congratulated the congregation on the splendid result attained. In the short space of six weeks over $3,200 was added to the school fund through the Fourth of July picnic and the carnival.

WEDDINGS

Izbicki-Borkowski

Miss Stella Borkowski and Zigmund Izbicki, both of Norwich, were united in marriage Monday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church by Rev. S. A. Iclek, pastor of the church. The couple were attended by Miss Anna Mileski as bridesmaid and Joseph Izbicki, cousin of the groom, as best man.

The bride was pretily gowned in white crepe over satin and wore a tulle veil. Her shower bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore white crepe over satin, trimmed with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white roses.

TWO AUTO ACCIDENTS ON THE BOSTON POST ROAD

MILFORD, Aug. 24.—(AP)—John Farnacki, of Devon, and Mrs. J. S. Hennessey, of Milford, are near death in the Milford hospital as the result of two automobile accidents on the Boston Post road tonight. Farnacki sustained a fractured skull and numerous cuts and bruises when a touring car in which he was a passenger engaged in a series of collisions and overturned. Mrs. Hennessey is suffering from possible internal injuries and deep lacerations about the face and neck.

An eight-foot portable steel shield has been designed to protect policemen from bullets fired by outlaws. The shield is mounted on rollers and can be transported easily to places where bandits have taken refuge.

CENTRALS FALL BEFORE HALLVILLE FOR SECOND TIME THIS SEASON

After a week's lay-off due to the Carnival, the Twilight league got under way again Monday evening when the Hallville nine defeated the league-leading Centrals in a close and exciting contest, three to two. The game marked the Centrals' second loss of the season, their only previous defeat being hung on them by the same team and by the same score. In spite of their defeat, the Centrals are still in first place with eight victories and two defeats, two games in front of the E. C. P. in second place.

Manager Taylor in an endeavor to get a second win over the Centrals procured the services of several prominent players in the Hartford Twilight league and presented a lineup which looked about the strongest yet seen at the Dutch field this season. In Ehlers, Hallville had a pitcher well capable of holding the Centrals in check. Standing about six feet and a half in height, the Hallville pitcher dominated the whole game. He had a world of speed which proved especially hard to hit in the pinches. The Centrals batted Ehlers' offerings off his delivery and seven hits were chalked up to his fast ball.

Lefty Dugas making his debut as a Twilight league pitcher, was on the mound for Centrals, and also pitched in great form. He allowed the hard-hitting lineup of eight hits in five innings, fanning seven batters. Dugas had a baffling drop ball, and had it not been for his lack of control in the first frame would have held his own with his great opponent.

Hallville started off in the first inning with two runs. Calkins opened with a walk and went to second on McManus' sacrifice. Sullivan singled inside first base and Calkins scored. White singled to right, and Sullivan took second but a moment later he was caught on the bag, Lefty Dugas to Gaudreau. Red Charon, then sent White scampering around on a long double to center. Thereupon this time, lost control temporarily and walked Foley, filling the bases. Ehlers passed Mullin giving way the second run of the frame. Engstrom ended the inning by fanning.

In the third Manager Taylor's team added another run. With two out Mullin reached first and stole second. Peppino then sent to Yerrington, and when the latter fumbled, the runner was safe and Mullin took third. Peppino then started to steal second. Eccleston threw to Tombari who threw back when Mullin started to come home from third. In the run-up, the Cent. catcher threw wild over Yerrington's head and Mullin tallied. Ehlers then fanned for the third out.

In the fourth, the Centrals started off with a rush but did not have the necessary punch to push any runs across. Eccleston singled and Lefty Dugas doubled in rapid succession with none out in this stanza, but Ehlers tightened up and fanned Gauthier, Gaudreau and Tombari in short order.

Starting the fifth frame, and trailing by three runs, the Centrals started rallying tactics in an endeavor to have the game called before four and a half innings had been played. After White had flied out to right, Charon rolled an easy grounder to Yerrington, who threw to first. A. Dugas after catching the ball refused to touch first and Charon was safe. Lefty Dugas then threw wild over first and Charon took third. Charon started for home and Eccleston ran up the third base line with the ball. Charon kept on coming and seeing there was no other way out of it, the Central catcher finally touched him with the ball. Foley then fanned, striking at a third strike well over his head.

In their half of the inning the Centrals threatened to tie up the game but fell one run shy. Smith opened with a walk, and stole second. Murphy also walked, and when Yerrington doubled to right, Smith tallied and Murphy took third. With none out, and the tying run on second base, it looked as if the Centrals would pull one of their late inning rallies, but the locals' bids did not have the necessary punch. A. Dugas flied out to left for the first out. Eccleston dumped a scratch hunt in front of the plate scoring Smith, and Lefty Dugas ended the game with a high fly to left. The score:

Tonight's Game.

The locals who lost last night's game have no one to blame but themselves for they had a lead to be on hand as it was going to be good. It was a well known fact the word go and Hallville has accomplished what no other team has been able to do and that is to defeat the Centrals. While Hallville deserves credit for defeating the Centrals it must be remembered that the Centrals are still playing the same team that they started with while most of the other teams have shuffling only when they meet the Centrals. While there are a lot of people that are pulling against the Centrals it must be also remembered that these boys are practically all under twenty-one and have held the league leadership since the very beginning of the season.

Tonight's game between the East Ends and Yantic is another real important game as the East Ends have a pretty good show of winning the pennant now that the Centrals have lost again and can't afford to lose another game, not even to Yantic. The East Ends have been going like a house afire during the last month or so, winning all their games, and have come up from seventh place to third place only one game behind the leaders. Yantic also has been playing great ball since they have reorganized. The last time that the two teams met the East Ends won out by a 1 to 0 score in the best game of the season, featured by six double plays and many sensational catches on both sides.

For the East Ends Harry Mills, the only pitcher in the league who holds the distinction of pitching a no-run, no-hit game will do the twirling. Harry has been pitching wonderful ball of late and should give another great demonstration against Yantic. "Cannonball" Bill Jones will do the pitching for Yantic and should he be up to his usual form tonight's game should be a real battle from start to finish.

MOOSUP TEAM BREAKS EVEN IN WEEK-END GAMES

On Saturday last the American Woolen team of Moosup took Mgr. Lagace's Danielson team into camp by a score of 11 to 5. The game was a loosely played one by the Danielson boys as the box score below shows. Kendricks and Bresseth carried off the batting honors of the day with three hits apiece, while Vadas and Bissonnette put over a fast double play for Danielson.

On Sunday the Woolen boys took on their old friends (?) from Sterling, and after an exhibition which had the James Brothers and Troy gang faded by a mile were compelled finally to admit that while it is possible to beat nine men good and true, it is asking too much of human nature to beat the tenth, so went down to a glorious defeat. The Moosup boys would have been justified if they had left the field in the sixth inning when Mr. Ump gave one of the most weird and extraordinary demonstrations of visionary defections that this vicinity has witnessed in a decade. Even Old Sol attempted to hide his blushes while this travesty on how not to call them was taking place. The scores:

FANCY CORNER TO PLAY TAFTVILLE THIS EVENING

At the Providence street grounds this evening the Taftville A. A. will clash with the Fancy Corner baseball team in a twilight game that bids fair to be for blood. The game will start promptly at 6:15 in an effort to get in seven full innings. The Fancy Corners have a strong team that are confident of taking a fall out of Troland's youngsters.

PLAYGROUND ACTIVITIES
Greeneville Divides With Falls

Yesterday afternoon Greeneville divided the Playground world series double header with the Falls. The Falls, champions of the playground American league dropped the first game 9-5 with "Ed" Sullivan's stars.

Profiting by their earlier experience the American League champs solved Ferguson's delivery for 18 hits in the second game and incidentally bringing in 9 runs, while Greeneville could but eke out but four hits from Zidel's delivery and squeeze but one run across the pan giving the 9-1 game to the Falls.

Lineup for both games:

Falls: Burnes cf, Desh lf, c, Laryfia rf, Lewis 3rd, Crowell c, lf, Zydel p, Ladyga ss, Cshuk 2nd, Finnegan 1st, Bush lf, Irish rf.

Greeneville, Machovitz 2nd, Navick 1st, Quinn 2b., Ferguson p, Fuller ss, Breen 3rd, Abugal cf, Onick lf.

Warriors Beat Crescents

Last night at the N. F. A. Campus, the Warriors, pace makers of the Junior Five League chalked up another victory by triumphing over Courbois Crescents.

Monday night's contest was a real thriller. In the first two innings the Warriors opened up a two run lead only to be held to a 7-7 tie score at the beginning of the sixth inning. In visitors half of the last stanza, the Crescents went out in one two three order. As Warriors came to bat in last half of sixth, the diamond was growing dim with the purple shadows of dusk.

Kanipff opened inning with a hit Corcoran poled out a clean one advancing Kanipff to second. "Pop" Burnes fanned with one down, "Sonny" Burnes poled a long one over Hamill's head bringing in Kanipff and the Warriors sixth straight victory.

WAUREGAN GRAYS DEFEATED DANIELSON TOWN TEAM

WAUREGAN, Aug. 24.—The Wauregan Grays defeated the Danielson Town team by the score, 4 to 2, Sunday. Legace, Danielson pitching ace, pitched good ball, holding the Grays to four scattered hits, but received ragged support. Alexander for the Grays pitched good ball also, holding Danielson to five hits. Bouchier, the Grays' star center fielder, got three free tickets and with his fast base running scored three of the Grays' runs. Goven was the hitting star for the Grays, getting a Texas leaguer for two bases and a single. The score:

MISS WILLS WINS NATIONAL WOMAN'S TENNIS TITLE FOR THIRD TIME

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. Aug. 24—(A. P.)—Helen Wills flashed a racquet of magic power across the center court of the West Side Stadium today. With it she turned back the challenge of Kathleen McKane, ace of British women players, and won the National Tennis Championship for the third straight year in as spectacular a title match as has ever been witnessed.

The 19 year old American girl did not retain her laurels without a struggle. She lost the first set to the slim British star but came back after that to sweep her rival aside with as devastating and crushing an exhibition of powerful stroking as any woman player has ever shown. The final score was 3-6, 6-0, 6-2, decisive enough in the end, but it fails to tell the vivid story of amazing speed of stroke and courageous aggressiveness that carried the young title-holder to the greatest victory of her career, a triumph that left her supreme as queen of American courts and gave her possession of the big silver championship trophy outright.

An hour later she returned to the court to play a dominant part in carrying off her second title, in the doubles final, which she won with Miss Mary K. Browne by defeating the veteran team of Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Mrs May Sutton Bundy in an All-California battle. The scores of this were 6-4, 6-3.

Miss Wills thus shares both crowns of American women's tennis for the second straight year. She held the doubles laurels last year with Mrs. George W. Wightman of Boston.

Miss Wills not only rose to her greatest heights today in overcoming Miss McKane, but in the glow of her victory cast aside the mask of reserve that has been one of her principal characteristics for a burst of girlish enthusiasm. Tossing her racquet aside she "jumped for joy" as a shot from the gallery apprised her that the final and deciding point, which she had believed an error, was a placement for her instead. Then she raced to the side of her drooping opponent, patted her back, then posed in exuberant spirits for a mass of cameramen as she laughingly acknowledged congratulations. A moment later, as she ran out of the stadium enclosure, the champion waved the big silver trophy in acknowledgment to the thunderous cheers that came from a crowd of 7,000 fans.

Never before has Miss Wills shown such a rare combination of power, generalship and pluck as she did today in first checking her rival's early advance, then putting her to rout with astonishing decisiveness in the final two sets. It was a momentous test for the young champion against an experienced, skillful opponent, whose play has been the sensation of the tournament, but Miss Wills met it superbly.

Not once, even when she saw her early first set advantage wiped away, did Miss Wills falter or lose her poise. Desperately as she tried to do so, Miss McKane could not check the hurricane power behind the champion's strokes or solve her baffling change of pace. In little more time that it had taken for the entire first set alone, Miss Wills had swept through the remaining two to victory, allowing her opponent only two games and twenty-four points.

CARDS WIN TWIN BILL FROM PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24—(A. P.)—The St. Louis Cardinals won a twin bill with Philadelphia here today, taking the first game, 14 to 5, and the second, 6 to 4. The Cardinals found the local hurlers easy in the first game and Ring's one bad inning in the second gave them six runs and enough to win. Score:

NORWICH TOWN

During Camp Meeting week at Willimantic camp grounds, several from the First Methodist Episcopal church attended, some remaining the entire week, while several spent only Sunday or the week end there. Those who spent Sunday carried lunches while over night visitors, etc., were guests at the Norwich Town house where Mrs. Albert G. Miner was matron, as in past years. As usual Frederick R. Bushnell was constable in charge of the grounds, during the meetings. Those present the entire week, besides Mrs. Minor and Mr. Bushnell, included: Le Roy Miner, Miss Virginia Ward, Misses Hazel and Gladys Cruthers, Miss Ines Edmiston and William Moore.

Mrs. Richard Carter and children John and Mildred Carter, spent several days there during the week while those who spent the week and were Willard Manning and Ralph Gibbs of Manton. Sunday visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Stanton W. Brown and family, Rev. and Mrs. James B. Aldrich and family, Misses Josephine and Mabel Rogers, Mrs. Daniel Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Irish and Mrs. Irving Cruthers.

While en route to their home in Mystic, from a day spent among Hartford friends, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jull Gremley and the latter's mother, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainerd were callers Sunday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb of Town street.

The Mystic party motored to Hartford by way of the New London-Colchester turnpike, calling on Mrs. Ellen Kennicott, a former neighbor, who will be 90 in November. This is an annual custom of these life-long friends. Although advanced in years, Mrs. Kennicott has all her faculties except that she is slightly deaf. She is noted for her especially beautiful fancy work.

To her friends, Mrs. Kennicott displayed Sunday a large crocheted centerpiece, made of No. 80 thread, its diameter being about three feet. The design was birds and roses, with fancy edge and was greatly admired for its careful accurate work. Before leaving Hartford, a call was also made at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Cook, former Mystic residents, and acquaintances of Dr. and Mrs. Lamb.

For a number of weeks several members on Town street, have watched with interest a humming bird's nest attached to the side of a limb of a button-ball tree, in the back yard of one of the residents. The nest was at first observed about six weeks ago when a person standing on the back veranda heard the buzzing of the wings of the mother bird, which sounded very much like the noise of an airplane in the distance, when suddenly she lighted on the nest, thus revealing its location. It is not known just how long the nest had been there. Almost within reaching distance, as not a single sign of building the nest had been noticed. However, from this time on, which was one Sunday morning, the antics of this tiny bird which was a handsome specimen, have been quite amusing and have attracted attention several times each day, especially during the last few weeks. During all kinds of weather, some most severe in the form of excessive heat, wind and rain storms, this little humming bird stuck to her post, never for a moment shirking her duty, except at intervals of only a few seconds. Just over the nest was a very large leaf, which not only protected it from the rain, but served to shade it from the hot sun. The first knowledge that the birds had hatched, there usually being two eggs laid, was when two bills were seen protruding upward from the edge of the nest a little less than two weeks ago, then after a few days the heads and wings of the smaller birds were seen.

How long it takes for these birds to get their feathers after hatching is not positively known, but the birds almost increased double in size in about ten days. Although the mother bird seemed unusually tame when finding she was not to be molested, yet there were times when if strange voices came on to the veranda, she would show defiance by flying quite near the stranger.

Especially interesting was the feeding of the young birds, also during the period of teaching them to fly. While the mother bird circled around the nest in short spaces lighting on this and that branch near the nest, the young birds watched her every move as though she had told them she was doing it for their benefit. Soon their tiny wings began to flutter and many times it seemed as though they would fly; but they lacked confidence. The mother bird persisted in coaxing them, all the while continuing her instructions in the art of bird schooling, until she was victorious in having the little male bird leave from the nest. This was last Thursday morning. Because Friday was such a stormy day, the little female bird was obliged to remain in the nest two days and two nights, alone. The motherhood not forgetting she was near, came as often as necessary to feed it, until Saturday morning when the nest was entirely deserted, for another bird had flown, guided by the mother. At first they would fly only a short distance upward from branch to branch, stopping to rest each move, until at last they were lost to view and none of this family has been seen since Saturday noon. The very small nest is of downy substance and hardly seemed large enough to hold two birds the size of the ones which have left it, they seeming to be almost the size of the mother-bird.

One day recently, a handsome carrier pigeon with bronze wings, bottle green top knot and white breast, on the corner of the roof of the house at 12 Town street, just at noon time and never moved from this location for three hours and ten minutes, actual count by a person just across the way who watched it. Then was frightened. It was the opinion many who saw the pigeon, that either it had lost its mate, lost its bearings, or was overtired and was resting. During the time it remained on the roof, it eagerly watched in all directions, as if looking for something, or studying the wind.

Mr. and Mrs. T. I. Bonney and daughter, Miss Gladys, of Whitneyville were week-end visitors with Mrs. T. I. Bonney, of Harland road.

There is to be a meeting of the Dropin class of the First Congregational Sunday school, Wednesday afternoon at three thirty (D. S. T.) at the parsonage.

Cassie P. Lomans, of Stamford, has brought suit in superior court against the New Haven railroad claiming $5,000 damages for injuries received April 13, at the Riverside station. She claims that the door of the railroad car was closed when she was alighting and that when she opened the door and stepped off the step, the train started and she was thrown to the platform.

HALF YEAR IN JAIL FOR SAILORS WHO STOLE NEW LONDON NURSES' CAR

NEW LONDON, Aug. 24—It is beginning to be agreed that the sailors of the coast guard service at the New London station are about the toughest gang that ever swept over this city. There are exceptions to the rule, but the number of lawless men in the service is so great that it taints the better element. Five of the crew of the steamer Pequot left that ship Saturday with the avowed intention of stealing an automobile and getting to Boston in it. The five men had $32 among them, and this they were to spend. In searching for an automobile they could get away with they found the Ford sedan used by the Visiting Nurses' association in its work of visiting the sick in this city. The machine could not be disguised for the name of the association is painted on the doors of the car in large blue letters. This fact did not deter the sailors when they found the key of the machine in the door. They just took the car and hustled away toward Hartford, whether with the intention of abandoning the car there and stealing another, nobody knows except the sailors, and they did not tell what their purpose in that respect was. They got as far as Colchester where they made a brief stay, before making Hartford. There they hatched up a story they would tell in the event that they were apprehended. As soon as the car was missed by Miss Roonan, the nurse who left it parked on Church street while she was engaged in her duties, she notified the police here and they sent out warnings to the state police. Finally George Parrott, of the state police at Hartford, saw the car and held up the occupants of it. They to him related a story that they were at Colchester and had been told that the nurses' car had been abandoned in the highway there, and they were requested to drive it to Hartford, where it might be turned over eventually to the owner. The men were brought to this city and were put through the third degree. They admitted in signed statements they made that they lied in every word of the Colchester statement and admitted that they started out for Boston where one of the bunch had relatives. They had damaged the car so that a bill of more than $50 will be contracted in the repair of it. In the police court today all pleaded guilty of stealing the car. That sent them to jail, where they will stay for more than six months. In passing judgment Assistant Judge Crandall did not show them any leniency, but on the contrary told them he proposed to make their penalty such as would be a lesson to others. He reminded them that they were rowdies, others of the same sort were in the service and that so many cars had been stolen by sailors that he meant to do what he could to put a stop to the practice. He ordered that all the costs in the case, nearly $75, be taxed up against the gang and that each should stay in the county jail half a year. The men are William G. Reidy, Robert Adams, James D. Cox, John A. Lowney and Joseph S. Jones. Three of the gang are minors.

The funeral of Mrs. Virginia M. Paulhus, wife of Jacob Paulhus, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by many mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons. The bearers were John Gula, St. Jean Ennis, John Bretman, Mortimer Nott, Edward Lavoie and William Buckley. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, 64, widow of Hezekiah B. Smith, died Sunday afternoon at her home, 55 Huntington street. Mrs. Smith had been in ill health a long time. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Nellie S. May, of this city. She was a native of New London and was a member of the Woman's Relief corps and of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Max Snitkin has sold a house and lot on the southerly side of Shaw street to Nicolette Perrone.

Silas Maxson, Jr., has sold a house and lot on Henry street to Sarah A. W. Grimpe.

John Mondelci has sold a parcel of land on Fourth street to Mary Carnaroli.

Harold Banta reported to the police last night that earlier in the evening and while his automobile was parked on Bank street, near Golden street, some thief stole a blanket.

An automobile owned and driven by William P. Boyle, 174 Sheffield avenue, New Haven, struck a boy cyclist, James Carter, 54 Blinman street, last night at State street, near the corner of Green street. The wheel was damaged, but the youth escaped injury.

All of the nominees for the office of member of city council have filed their notices of acceptance with City Clerk Julian D. Moran. The last of the notifications of acceptance were filed during today, when Lucius E. Whiton and Waldo E. Clarke performed that act. The other nominees who filed acceptances several days ago are James A. May, Mrs. Emily Spiers and William C. Fox.

Miss Claire Donovan, of Ocean Beach place; John W. Hills, Salem; Mrs. Raymond King and infant daughter, Blackhall; Mrs. William Carpenter and infant daughter, 18 Ledyard street; Mrs. Allen McCann and infant daughter, 494 Ocean avenue; Master Rutherford Burdick, 65 1-2 Montauk avenue; Mrs. Bernard Howard and infant son, 12 Mountain avenue; Mrs. Charles Bourcier and infant daughter, Mystic; Mrs. Mary Edmonds, 42 Maple avenue; Miss Marion Shaller and brother, William Shaller, 33 Lenox road, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Frederick Dana, West Mystic; Hugh McPartland, 258 Ocean avenue; Harry Walters, New York; Bruce Hayden, 31 Gorton street, and Mrs. William Savard, 273 Ocean avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Miss Ella Howard, stenographer in the office of City Manager William A. Holt, and Miss Isabel Austin, clerk in the office of City Treasurer Herbert G. Huntley, started this forenoon on their vacations of two weeks. Miss Howard and Miss Austin will spend the time at Niagara Falls and in points of interest in Canada.

Mrs. Lena Shapiro, of 2 Tinker court, went to Ocean Beach last evening and after donning her bathing suit in one of the bath houses of the Neptune baths, had a couple of hours' bathing. But while she disported in the water, a thief gained entrance to her bath house and stole a diamond ring valued at $125, a diamond ring with two sapphire settings and a small amount of specie. Mrs. Shapiro reported the loss to the police, but no trace of the thief was found.

Eric Swanson was found carting booze last night by Policeman Clarence Martin and was arrested for the offense against the Volstead act. In court today, he asked for a continuance till tomorrow that he might get a lawyer and that was granted. Swanson giving a bond of $1,000 for appearance then.

James A. Day, bummer, who was about the street Sunday, was arrested by Officer Clyde Murphy. He was fined $5 and committed to the work house for ten days. Four men were fined for intoxication and all went to jail.

Thomas Collins, of Waterford, is scheduled to appear in the police court tomorrow morning charged with violation of the traffic ordinances in parking his machine more than a foot from the curb on State street. Collins was ordered into court by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy.

The New Haven police this evening requested the local police to be on the lookout for a Cleveland touring car stolen from New Haven late this afternoon. The machine bears registration E-707; engine number 62668 and is equipped with Fisk tires, with a spare tire on the rear.

Robert C. Martledge, of New London, employed as driver of a gasoline supply truck, was in the Groton town court this morning, charged with operating the machine while under the influence of liquor. He was fined $100 and costs by Judge Cornelius C. Costello, but $75 of the fine was ordered remitted as Martledge had concluded his services with the gasoline company and was going to leave the state for good and all.

Martledge was arrested Saturday afternoon by Captain Andrew McCarthy, of the Groton police department, when the truck was observed to be operated in an irregular course.

Ernest F. Lewis, of New London, was fined $5 and costs for violation of the motor vehicle law in cutting in, while Lewis drove his machine through Thames street.

Joseph Dodo, of Mystic, was fined $5 on a charge of theft. The fine and all of the costs, excepting the officer's fee of $10.57, was ordered remitted. Dodo was arrested ten days ago for stealing an automobile tire.

Otto Weirsch, of Mystic, was fined $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $9.82, for operating his automobile a week ago with the cut-out open.

The four slot machines, seized by state police a week ago as gambling devices, were ordered destroyed by Judge Costello today. The machines were taken from the stores of John Scuris, Michael Sabello, Charles James and John Smollen.

Floyd Mitchell, colored, proprietor of an Atlantic street club, whose membership are colored men, was seriously injured this morning at Lyme when the Packard runabout he was driving from New York to this city and in which were two women companions, collided with an unidentified car. Mitchell was badly cut about the face and head by glass from the windshield of the car he was operating and is now under treatment at Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

Frank Gallahan, was given a hearing on continuance in the Waterford town court late this afternoon on a charge of vagrancy, but the case was continued another week in the hopes that arrangements can be made with relatives to take charge of Gallahan. Gallahan was taken into custody 10 days ago following his having been living in a pig pen and placing a railroad tie on tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, following his discharge from a section gang.

Jacob Charlop of New London was fined $5 and costs upon pleading guilty to peddling without a license. Charlop was arrested several days ago by Constable Peabody. The fine will be remitted whenever Charlop takes out a license.

Percy J. Hall of Lyme, was arraigned on charges of speeding, operating a machine without a license and not having registration. She pleaded guilty and on the first count a fine of $10 and costs was imposed, but a nolle was ordered in the latter two.

William J. Blunt of Melrose, Mass., was presented on charges of speeding and operating a car without a license. A fine of $10 and costs was imposed on the first count, but a nolle was entered in the second count. Blunt, it was alleged by the arresting officers, Constables Peabody and Brigham, drove his car through Waterford Saturday at a speed of 60 miles an hour.

Forrest Lewis of New London, driver of a laundry auto, was presented on charges of speeding, defective lights and illegible markers. Lewis pleaded guilty to the second count, but pleaded not guilty on the first and third counts. Judge Fred Dimmock imposed a fine of $5 and costs on the second count, and ordered a nolle entered on the other two complaints. Lewis was ordered into court Saturday by Constables Brigham and Peabody.

ALLEGED BLOCKING NEAR GROTON FERRY DENIED

NEW LONDON, Aug. 24—The city council held a meeting of an hour's duration this evening and in that time transacted considerable business. It accepted an invitation to review the procession of the American Legion, on the afternoon of Saturday next at 2.30. State and Bank streets are now being decorated with flags on the lamp posts, etc., but the sidewalk bracket scheme of decoration has been abandoned. There was not sufficient patronage to warrant the introduction of the method of decorating.

The council is now disposed to stop the erection of stores in the residential sections of streets. This evening an application for the right to erect a store on Jay street on the west side, midway between Franklin and Hempstead streets was held up, till property owners there have a chance to be heard in the matter. Councilor Woodruff called attention to the erection of A. and P. Stores on Town Hills and said they were built out to the line of the sidewalk. He was opposed to that sort of procedure. He mentioned particularly a store at Carroll court which was an infringement upon the rights of citizens and a detriment to the appearance of the street. Councilor Fox pointed out that the director of law had ruled that the city could not restrict the erection of stores as stated and he saw no use in the council trying to represent that it could do what it could not accomplish. He wanted the city to have a stated plan of procedure and then act accordingly. He said the city was misrepresenting its authority in the matter. Mayor Clark declared that he wanted the people to have the right to be heard. A motion was passed, holding up the request for the permission desired, which came from one Shapiro. Mayor Clark said the city's director of law was at work on the zoning law, and Councilor Fox approved of that and said the council should hurry action along, so that the body might know what it was to urge in the matter and what it was to oppose.

There is a question as to what the rights of the city and Lucius E. Whiton are, in the passage of an outfall sewer across the land of the Pequot Beach company. The city claims the right to establish and maintain an outfall sewer there, claiming that in 1902 James D. Lynch deeded over property to the city and took other land in payment therefore. The width of Pequot avenue there is claimed to be 66 feet, while in 1860 the city established the width at varying dimensions in feet. The matter was referred to the director of law. The matter came up tonight on the representations made by Geary, Keefe and Davis and Judge Arthur Calkins, representing interests in the matter.

The resolution for the laying of a sewer on Pierce street as passed by the council a week ago was rescinded and a new one was passed tonight by which a sewer is to be laid on that street, 260 feet from Main street, at a cost of approximately $872. Three parties are to be assessed the entire amount. The resolution passed this evening had its first reading.

The city manager made a report on the matter of alleged blocking of the street crossing in front of the Groton Ferry, he having taken up the matter with the New Haven railroad company representatives here. Supt. Smith sent a long communication to the city manager in which he denied the allegations of the lessees of the Groton Ferry. Messrs. Crandall and Sheehan and showed by his check-up that the crossing was not and could not have been blocked as claimed. He pointed out that upon any complaint being made to him, the trouble would be immediately eliminated and said that he would do everything possible to see that the crossing was not blocked. Supt. Smith also directed that complaint should be made to Trainmaster Orr, in the event that the superintendent could not be reached even by telephone.

Storekeepers on the West side of North Bank street, asked that the right to park cars on that side of the street be revoked and that all cars should be parked on the east side of the street where there were but few business places. The city manager has taken the matter up with the police department and he awaits a report from that source. The matter was deferred until the city manager can investigate and report.

E. H. Robbins represented that he desired to build on Grenada street but he could not do so till the street was accepted and worked. He pointed out that D. L. Armstrong had made offers to the city which had not been accepted and he desired that he should know what was to be done. The matter was still further deferred.

James Foley petitioned for the privilege of removing two buildings on the Chester Bliss property to Fortune avenue, the removal rendering necessary the closing of Ocean avenue for an hour in the removal of each building. The petition was referred to the city manager with power. The petition for the establishment of a gasoline pump at the central station on Main street with a glass cylinder that showed the volume of gas being taken, was referred to the committee on public safety.

Such a pump is in conflict with the provisions of an ordinance but it was suggested that the privilege might be granted by special permission, rather than by a change in ordinance.

SANTINELLA-LIBRIZZI IN GROTON TOWN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 24.—Sam Santinella, 44 Shaw street, and George Librizzi, public service operator, 135 Jefferson avenue, who were given a hearing two weeks ago on a charge of violation of the prohibition law, having liquor in their possession for sale and transportation, and whose cases are scheduled for hearing before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran Friday, were before Judge Cornelius C. Costello in the Groton town court today, on the same charge. Also brought before Judge Costello were Joseph and Antonio Scravola, alleged owner of the barn where it is claimed the liquor that was seized, and which structure, it is claimed, was rented to Santinella for the purposes of storing liquor. The case was not disposed of today, being continued to next Saturday at the request of Santinella's attorney, the day after the hearing before the federal authorities takes place.

Santinella and Librizzi were arrested following the seizure of a touring car registered in Librizzi's name, and which, it is alleged is owned by Santinella, and which contained about $3,000 worth of liquor and bootlegging equipment after the booze had been transferred to the automobile in an effort to change its place of storage, it is claimed.

GETS HIS LICENSE BACK— DROVE PAST NORWICH CAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 24—Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operators' licenses of Joseph Barrity, 114 Hempstead street, and Socrates Deligearges, 341 Bank street, recently suspended, to be returned to the owners. Barrity suffered the suspension of his license as a result of having violated the law in operating his automobile by a motionless trolley car that was receiving and discharging passengers on one of the streets in Norwich, three weeks ago.

CASE OF SAILOR DEITS CONTINUED TO THURSDAY

NEW LONDON, Aug. 24—When William D. Deits, a sailor on the United States patrol boat 188, awoke from a drunken stupor Sunday morning he found himself charged with manslaughter in having been instrumental in causing the death of John Henify, a sailor on the same boat, whose home is in Philadelphia. The pair had other sailors with them, Ralph Wheeler and Francis Moss. Wheeler is in Lawrence Hospital with a fractured arm. He was unable to appear in court when Deits was arraigned today. Moss was unhurt after the car Deits was driving smashed into a tree on the lower boulevard on the way to Ocean Beach but he was held in custody as a material witness. His bail was fixed at $500 and the case was adjourned to Thursday.

Long after midnight Saturday Deits was on Main street, and in a restaurant he met the fellows who became his companions. They proposed that they should buy the gasoline and that all should go to the beach. The offer was accepted and the party started. On Montauk avenue it is claimed they put the speed upward went along the highway at a pace that was of steam car speed. Near Glenwood avenue there is an acute curve in the road and the driver of the Deits car did not make it. Instead he ran upon the sidewalk and hitting the curbing, careened off and against a tree that smashed the automobile. Henify was thrown out and against the tree. The concussion fractured the skull. He died then and there. Wheeler was badly hurt, but he escaped with a broken arm. He was hurried to Lawrence hospital where he remains. Little of the circumstances could be told by Deits. The case was put over in the police court this morning Thursday.

In the meantime Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich will make inquiry into the circumstances attending the accident and render an opinion to the prosecutor. What the charge against Deits will finally be is not known. It is of a very serious character now.

It is understood that the Deits machine was bought from a dealer in second hand machines and that only $35 was paid in cash for it, the balance being secured by note accepted by the dealer without endorsement. The car is said not to have been insured so that the loss of Henify will not be able to recover, nor will the dealer get anything more than the $35 he has already received.

The affair brings to public attention again the fact that every automobile should be insured before a license to operate it is granted by the state. Many of the automobiles are a menace to people using the highways, for in the event of accident the injured person cannot recover.

STATE TREASURER BUYS BRANDEGEE REAL ESTATE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 24—State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers has negotiated for the acquisition of the real estate at the Pequot, formerly owned by the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee, and papers that will transfer title in the property to Mr. Rogers are in course of preparation. The land to be acquired by Mr. Rogers includes the former site of the Pequot hotel and the numerous cottages adjoining the hotel site. Mr. Rogers has also negotiated for the purchase of the share of Col. M. Gray Zalinski, brother-in-law of the dead senator, in the Peters cottage, corner of Montauk avenue and Chapel street. The price involved, it is understood, is about $75,000.

Mrs. Minnia Sonnenberg has also acquired a farm of 160 acres in Montville formerly owned by Senator Brandegee. The price paid for this property was about $5,500.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

There was a dearth of news relative to Norwich happenings in Norwich 75 years and the space of the Norwich Courier on that time was devoted largely to the chronicling of events of the government and to letters from California where a number of local people are seeking their fortune among the gold fields. The slavery question occupied some little notice as the question was becoming more and more a paramont issue of the country.

Extracts from the files of the Norwich Courier follow:

Tuesday, Aug. 20, 1850—"The Campbells" world-famous musicians, played to a capacity house last evening and the performances were in their best vein.

This week the work of the United States census commenced in this city and Assistant Marshal Jones informs us that he is meeting with some hindrances. Among the questions he is required to ask is one regarding the value of real estate owned in the family. Very many people believe that the information sought is to be the basis of a new taxation under the new state law. It would be well for people to remember that if the information is refused they are liable to a fine of $20.

The earnings of the Nashua and Worcester railroad for July were $15,832.40, an increase of $3,417.08 over the same month in 1849. The total earnings for 1850 exceed those of 1849 by $16,501.71.

When a flat-bottomed boat in which 25 persons were sailing overturned on a pond at Lynnfield 14 of the passengers were drowned. The passengers were members of a picnic party of the First Christian Society of Lynn, Mass.

The story of a plot to form a confederacy out of Mexico and the southern states is branded as sheer humbug by Washington. Senator Hingston and Gen. Lopez, who were mentioned in connection with it have publicly denied all knowledge of the affair.

Thursday, Aug. 22—Jenny Lind is probably on her way across the Atlantic. According to previous arrangements she was to take passage on the American steamship Atlantic, whose day of sailing from Liverpool for New York was yesterday.

At a meeting of the officers of the 3rd regiment at the American House, this city today Major J. M. Nelson was elected Colonel, vice Elijah Allen, resigned; Capt. J. H. Trueman, Lieut. Colonel, vice J. W. Saunders, resigned; and A. R. Hale, major, vice J. M. Nelson, promoted.

Newspapers arriving from California tell of the discovery of gold on Feather River. At one of the diggings $900 was taken out in two hours on one day and $700 on the next. One man said that a good day's work was added about an ounce of dust. The amount of property destroyed by fire in San Francisco is estimated at $5,000,000.

Barnum offers $200 for the best original National song. He wants it for Jenny Lind to make her debut in when she arrives in this country for a concert tour.

Saturday Aug. 24—The trial of Thomas Kinnoss and Levi Case on the charge of robbing the Pequot Bank of Westerly, R. I., of $15,000 on December 10th last was held in New York this week. The jury failed to agree, nine being for conviction and three for acquittal. The chief reason against the request of the jury was that the vicinity of Newport at the time of the robbery was full of strangers, and that some of them had taken part in the theft. The friends of the defense say that they were in New York on the day the robbery was committed.

An insurrection in which 400 slaves were to be engaged was discovered at Lowndes county Alabama, last week. The rendezvous of the negroes was fired upon by the whites and one slave was killed and 20 others wounded. The slaves then fled. It is said that the slaves were incited to the insurrection by an Abolitionist for whose apprehension $6,000 has been offered.

It is reported that the Indians are committing depredations through all parts of New Mexico. An order for 10,000 standing arms has been received by the government.

Local people with relatives in the vicinity of Stockton, Cal., are worrying over the report that recently a party of twelve was found murdered in the region near Double Springs. Local relatives are now waiting for further particulars and names.

The Hutchinsons sang last evening to a very crowded house such a house as we do not remember to have seen in Norwich on any similar occasion. Many went away unable to get in while a very large number among those who did get in were obliged to stand during the entire evening.

The dispute over the Texas boundary and the right of the Texas state legislature to send two regiments to Santa Fe is the substance of an interesting letter received in Norwich this week.

FUNERAL IN CHICAGO OF VICTOR FREMONT LAWSON

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Victor Fremont Lawson, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, was laid to eternal rest today. Simple funeral services were held for him in the New England Congregational church in the presence of many notables of national, civic and newspaper life, and his body was buried in Graceland cemetery alongside that of his wife who preceded him in death by eleven years.

A sermon in which Victor F. Lawson, the man, was dealt with rather than the journalist who became an international figure through his publication of the Daily News and co-

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The past week saw considerable progress made on buildings in the process of construction and a number of the large projects were brought almost to the completion stage. The work on the Bishop school on the East Side is almost completed the work of grading and finishing up the interior will be completed within the next two weeks.

The South Ward at the Norwich state hospital is rapidly assuming definite proportions. During the past week the contractors have brought the work along to the first floor and the structural steel work will be set in place within a short time. The H. Wales Lines Co. has the contract and the plans were by Cudworth and Thompson.

Several new houses in the Norwich Town section and East Great Plain have been started during the past few weeks and rapid progress has been made. Since July first there have been about 20 applications for building permits in the town. The new zoning system requires that all new building must be passed upon through the building permit method. The town permits are issued by Town Clerk Holbrook and are similar to those issued by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton for the city.

The garage for Syar Bros. on Main street is practically ready for occupation. W. S. Spencer has the contract and the building is of brick and concrete construction.

At the office of Fire Marshal Stanton several applications for building permits were received and several will be granted this week.

New London

Plans have been prepared for an addition to the dwelling of Mr. Shinman on Washington street. The addition will be on the third floor of the present house and will provide three new rooms. There will be new plumbing and electric wiring and other improvements.

Announcement has been made of plans for extensive alterations to the Ebenezer Avery house in Groton which was sold recently to Adam Lapowski of this city. It is said the house will be remodeled for business purposes. Considerable unfavorable comment has been aroused by the proposed changes among those interested in preserving the house for its historical interest.

Sidney Sulman, 8 Shapley street, has purchased the property at the corner of Main and Church streets, from the Misses Frank and Alice Crump. The property has a frontage of 110 feet on Main street and 140 feet on Church street. Mr. Sulman plans to demolish the old residence now on the site and replace it with a business building. The proposed structure will contain four stores and a garage.

The permit has been issued for a building designed for purposes for the Holy Ghost society, to be erected at 177 Bayonet street. From private plans the building will be 28x58 feet, of frame construction. The construction will be done by day labor.

The contract has been awarded for a house on Fifth avenue for William Williams, Phillips street. The dwelling will be 24x26 feet, of frame construction. It will be arranged cottage style, for one family. The cost will be about $4,000.

Pieretti Bros., of Centerbrook were the lowest bidders for the construction of a concrete floor in the Konomoc Engine Co. house. Their bid was $3,550. Other bidders were: Oliver Woodworth Construction Co., Pearl street, and Thomas Occhialini, 4 Chelsea street.

Alterations are being made at the Ocean Spray cottage at Ocean Beach for A. Casara. The work consists of an addition 40x40 feet, and interior changes. The addition will include a dance hall and 20 new rooms. The new construction will cost between $8,000 and $10,000.

Building Permits

Holy Ghost Society, society building, 177 Bayonet street, $4,000.

William Williams, frame dwelling, Fifth avenue, $4,000.

William Wrennisch, garage 48 Sherman street, $400.

Rosa E. Enos, frame garage, 165 Bayonet street, $100.

J. N. Lapolnte, addition, 216 Pequot avenue, $500.

Number of permits issued for the week, 5; estimated cost of buildings, $9,000.

Danielson

Competitive plans have been submitted by five architects for the proposed addition to the high school building. The proposed new building will provide accomodations for 450 pupils, besides rooms for domestic science and manual training departments, a gymnasium and an auditorium. A town meeting is to be called soon to act upon the project. The committee in charge consists of Fred E. Bitgood, chairman; Damase Boullais, Alma Forcier, Frederick A. Jacobs, John A. Gilbert, N. Lorne Grieg, James N. Tucker, William Kinder and Frank E. Harrington.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week, there were in sales of real estate a decrease of six sales as compared to the same week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $53,700 and $24,000.

The sales of real estate in New London during the past week numbered 7 one more than for the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $17,441 and $65,150.

State Building Permits

Building permits were issued this week in the towns of the state reported in these columns to the number of 451, comparing with 312 issued in the corresponding week of last year, and 275 in the same week of 1923. The cost of new construction for the week amounted to $1,175,276 as against $580,147 a year ago, and $576,762 in 1923.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS BEARISH.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(A. P.)—Sporadic bear selling and profit taking inspired by stiffening call money rates and the speculative belief that a "technical reaction" was due, interrupted the upward movement of prices in today's stock market, closing quotations disclosing considerable irregularity. There were no news or trade developments of any consequence to influence the movement of prices, but merger and dividend rumors were again widely circulated in connection with the bidding up of the rails and specialties, nearly two score of which were lifted to new peak prices for the year.

With July earnings reports and current freight traffic statistics giving promise of a splendid showing by many carriers in the last half of the year, operators for the rise had little difficulty in attracting a following to the rail shares. Southern Railway was run up more than 3 points to a new high record at 106 1-4 in apparent expectation of a more generous dividend distribution to stockholders and Chesapeake & Ohio attained a new peak at 108 7-8 on a revival of reports that minority stockholders who are opposing the proposed "Nickel Plate" railroad merger had reached a satisfactory agreement with the Van Sweringen interests.

Additional new 1925 high records were established in the railroad group by Frisco common, St. Louis Southwestern common, Seaboard Air Line common and preferred, Western Pacific common, Western Maryland common, Kansas City Southern common, and Missouri Pacific preferred.

Standard industrials turned slightly reactionary after an opening period of moderate strength. U. S. Steel common touched a new high on the current upswing at 125, the price at which common stock was last offered to employes of the corporation, and then fell back a point for a small fraction of the day. American Can closed 3-4 lower at 245 after selling 3 points above that figure. Texas Gulf Sulphur showed a fractional loss at 111 1-2. American Smelting, Coca Cola, Famous Players, International Harvester, Radio Corporation, Sloss Sheffield Steel, United Cigar Stores and White Motors also fell back a point or two.

A sudden revival of activity and strength in Chrysler Motors, which ran up 1 1-2 points to a record 141 1-2 and then reacted to 140, was widely construed as a runaway short interest. The demonstration apparently frightened shorts in some of the other automotive issues. Mack Trucks closing 2 1-4 points higher at 219 1-4 after having touched six points below that figure. Nash Motors broke 18 points on a few sales.

General Railway Signal was another spectacular feature, soaring 23 points to a new peak of 340, or 40 points above the year's low. Other leading specialties included Allied Chemical, Beechnut Packing, Brown Shoe, Hudson & Manhattan, Kelly Wheel, Loew's Inc., Loose Wiles, Postum Cereal, Pressed Steel Car, Roebuck and United Drug, up two to seven points and many of their best prices in the day. Reports that Philip Morris & Company were planning the consolidation of the largest cigarette companies in the world, sent that stock up 10 points in point of the year's gain.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent, advanced to 4 1-2 when some of the banks began calling loans in the afternoon. Time money was quoted at 4 1-2 per cent., depending upon collateral. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Sterling exchange in Newyork and French bankers' francs ruled around the parity, respectively. Foreign exchange in general was dull. Demand sterling ruled around $4.85 3-8 and French francs were slightly higher around

BOND MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(A. P.)—through brisk rallies took place alward course more slowly today alcelerate a settlement with the United few individual foreign government, domestic railroad and industrial issues. Trading was in reduced volume, with the institutional buyers who were active last week apparently withdrawing from the market.

With the opening of discussions at London for funding France's war debt to Great Britan, interest was revived in French bonds, carrying the government's 7 1-2s and 8s to new peak prices for the year. The buying, which also embraced the French municipals and rails, was based on the theory that an agreement with Great Britain would do much to accelerate further proceeds on their debt to the United States.

A jump of almost five points in Florida, Western and Northern 7s recalled the sensational advance of these bonds several weeks ago, when it was announced that holders would receive valuable real estate rights upon their retirement. Application of the parent company, the Seaboard Air Line, to issue new securities to finance construction in Florida was a factor speedily carried out.

CURB MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(A. P.)—Uneven price movements characterized today's curb market but the major activity was on the side of rising prices. Oils held relatively firm, a gain of 1 1-2 points in Prairie Oil & Gas being one of the few important changes in that group.

Admission to trading of Southern Dairies A and B stock, the former of which is exchangeable, share for share, for the common stock of Chapin-Sacks which Southern Dairies has absorbed, was one of the features of the industrial list. The A stock opened at 56 and then eased to 54 and the B, was active between 32 2-3 and 32 7-8, closing near the top. Rights to subscribe to the B stock were offered to Chapin-Sacks stockholders at $30 per share.

Johns-Manville soared 8 points to a record top at 152 and net gains of one to 2 points were recorded by Durant Motors, Goodyear Tire, Gould Coupler and Nickel Plate. Dubilier, Pathe Exchange and Union Carburetor Ligt were heavy.

Speculative interest in the public utilities centered in Southeastern Power & Light, National Power & Light and Power Corporation of New York, which were bid up 3 to 5 1-2 points. Associated Gas & Electric and Middle West Utilities, reacted on profit taking.

FOR SALE—A bargain for some person that wants a good home. Where is the person that will accept a good farm of 130 acres in a good state of cultivation, some young growing timber and 300 cords of standing wood, besides a good lot of fruit trees, as a gift? All you have to do is to buy the buildings and I will give you the farm. Good neighbors and never-failing water included, and a nice trout brook and the best hunting in the state. You will not have to buy any meat for your family, only plant vegetables in the back yard and you can get a nice deer any time and for every one you kill there will be two more come to the funeral the same as flies; so the meat bill is included in the deal. Now don't be like the man that had his horse stolen then placed a lock on his barn, but—Wake Up—the early bird gets the worms. Besides I have some nice new milch cows and heifers due to freshen soon and some good saddle and work horses at a bargain. Tel. 852-2, Mystic Dlv., or call at the Starlight Farm. More information can be had for the asking. LaFayette B. Main, R. F. D. 1, Box 47. aug25d

Broadway Theater

Again Zane Grey and Paramount have joined hands in glorifying the Great West, and the result of their painstaking efforts revealed itself last night at the Broadway theater. The Light of Western Stars is the rather brilliant title of this new photo-thriller, and, as is typical of practically all Zane Grey stories, it depicts another glorious, colorful phase of the early, romantic West.

The action reaches a point of tremendous suspense when Beery captures Miss Dove and Holt, and forces the latter to take the "walk of death"—a favorite form of execution at that time, in which the victim is apparently turned loose and to be shot as he makes a dash for freedom. Holt's escape and the startling developments that follow furnish plenty of excitement and some brand new thrills.

The Light of Western Stars has everything the average movie-goer looks for in film entertainment!

A very good comedy and an up to date news makes this program an outstanding one.

Breed Theater

Ben Lyon sacrificed his yearning for college to follow the lure of the movies. Ben has the physical prowess of a good half-back and a love for good books, and now he is feeling what he missed, for he is playing a college boy in The Necessary Evil, coming to the Breed theater Wednesday and Thursday.

Ben is co-featured with Viola Dana in The Necessary Evil. In the supporting cast are Frank Mayo, Gladys Brockwell, Thomas Holding, Mary Thurman and Betty Jewel.

Playing With Souls the stirring Thomas H. Ince drama with Olive Brook, Jacqueline Logan and Dustor Collier, will be shown again today for the last time.

By the use of certain elaborate plants hydrogen may now be manufactured at $2 to $3 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Viceroy of India

Lord Reading, Viceroy of India, who is returning to his post for a few months at the most, due mostly to the report throughout India that he had not pleased the King. As Chief Justice of England, Lord Reading held an enviable post, being one of the most judicious men known, and his ability aided him in ruling India, a land where he had very little experience. His going back is hailed by the 30,000,000 natives, who also grieve, for it means the end of the rule of the man who was fair to poor and rich alike. Lord Reading is physically ill, but returns to his post until a successor is named in a few months. Upon his return to England, it is rumored that he will be offered either a Marquisate or the Knighthood of the Garter.

NEW DAMAGE ACTIONS ARE FILED IN SUPERIOR COURT

According to papers filed Monday with the clerk of the superior court in this city Charles Arthur Richards of New York has brought suit against the Connecticut Silica Corporation, a Delaware corporation owning property in North Stonington and Ledyard. The property is at what is known as Lantern Hill, off the Norwich and Westerly highway.

The suit is brought to recover on a promisory note. It is claimed by the plaintiff that on November 23, 1921, the defendant corporation owed him $33,051.54, as evidenced by their promissory note of that date, payable on demand. On June 16, 1922, the defendant corporation, to secure the note, mortgaged three pieces of land with improvements thereon, situated partly in Ledyard and partly in North Stonington.

The plaintiff claims foreclosure of the mortgage, possession of the mortgaged premises and $35,000 damages.

Disposed from Land

Sophie I. Hoover of Voluntown has brought suit against Grace Rice of Voluntown to recover possession of premises in Voluntown. The plaintiff claims she owns property in Voluntown and that the defendant wrongfully entered the land, August 11th of this year, and dispossessed the plaintiff who now asks for a judgment for possession of the premises which are valued at $3,000.

Claims Damages of $1,500

Damages of $1,500 are claimed by Grazio Perrone of New London from J. G. Sullivan of Passaic, N. J., in a suit which was filed in the superior court office Monday. The plaintiff claims that on July 24, 1925, as he was operating his machine in a westerly direction on the New Haven turnpike in the town of Waterford, the defendant, driving his automobile in an easterly direction ran into his machine and damaged it.

Ask for $2,000 Damages

The Griswold Co., of Groton has been made defendant in a superior court action brought by P. Schwartz Co., New London. Damages of $2,000 are claimed on the common counts.

Didn't Keep Up Payments

Coston Bruchcon of New London is seeking damages of $1,100 in a superior court action filed with the clerk of the superior court in this city. The action is brought against George Kozinos and Costas Kozinos of New London. Plaintiff claims that the defendants were indebted to him January 17, 1923 to the amount of $1,600, as evidenced by a note of that date. Defendants were to pay $40 a month on the note with interest semi-annually. No payments have been made since June 17, 1924 and there is due $955 with interest.

"REGULARS" WILL PARADE AT LEGION CONVENTION

Lieut. Col. Thomas E. Troland, chairman of the committee of arrangements for the parade, which is to be the feature fo the seventh annual state convention in New London of the American Legion and which will begin at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the third and last day of the convention, is rapidly securing the desired number of units to participate. Already Col. Troland has secured the following detachments of military, naval, National Guard and Coast Guard.

One platoon of regulars and band from Fort H. G. Wright, bluejackets from the U. S. S. Camden and the Submarine Base.

One battalion of sailors and a marine band from the cruiser Raleigh.

One company of sailors from the section base of the Coast Guard.

Headquarters company, Battery A, Battery B, Battalion headquarters and Combat train, and band from 192nd Field Artillery.

Headquarters company, 54th infantry brigade.

Battalion of 4th, 242nd Artillery, N. G., now encamped at Fort H. G. Wright.

The above named are but a portion of the list which Col. Troland is now working upon and he is making arrangements for a contingent from the C. M. T. C. now at Fort Terry to parade. At present it is undetermined as to just what navy destroyers will be sent here for the occasion but it is believed that several battalions of blue jackets will swell the parade in addition to those already mentioned.

Col. Ferguson at Fort Wright is doing everything possible to co-operate with the parade committee. The islands are at present practically undermanned and for that reason Col. Ferguson could not spare but a platoon of regulars for the parade. However, he promised the crack 11th Coast Artillery band and expresses his desire to co-operate in any manner that he may.

Col. Troland has received many replies from the various civic organizations that they will parade. Practically every legion post in the state will have a good sized contingent in line and most of these will be headed by either a band or a fife and drum corps.

DISABLED VETS ELECT OFFICERS FOR YEAR

The state convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War opened at Niantic Sunday with over a hundred delegates from every post in the state. State Commander Thomas McKenna of New Britain presided and the convention was featured by the presence of many notable visitors from among the national officers of the organization, National Executive Committeemen Thomas McLason of Hartford spoke and National Liaison Officer John E. McCarthy of New York city also addressed the convention. Major Thomas J. Bannigan of Hartford, was present at the convention, the arrangements for which were in charge of Camp Director Fred K. Inness.

James D. McKenna of New Britain was re-elected commander of the state department of the Disabled American Veterans of the World. Raymond J. Meegan of Hartford was elected senior vice-commander. Other officers elected were:

POQUETANUCK DRIVER FINED AT GROTON

Robert C. Martledge of Poquetanuck, truck driver for the Gulf Refining company, was fined $100 and costs by Judge C. C. Costello in Groton town court Monday morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving a motor vehicle while he was under the influence of liquor. Judge Costello remitted $75 of the fine.

Martledge was taken into custody Saturday afternoon by Captain Andrew F. McCarthy of the Groton police, who observed the driver of the truck operating the machine in a queer manner. He took the man to Dr. E. P. Douglas, who pronounced the man under influence of liquor. Martledge was unable to secure a bond so he was placed in the lockup where he spent the night. Martledge complained throughout the evening that he was sick and stated that his eyesight was failing and that his leg was paralyzed. He asked for Dr. Frank W. Hewes, who was summoned to his assistance. Dr. Hewes examined the man and stated that the ailment was due to the effects of the liquor and that no serious illness had resulted. Martledge paid his fine.

Clavin L. Swan Critically Ill.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

The school of nursing connected with the William W. Backus Hospital in Norwich, Conn., is now registering students for the September classes. This school is registered in Connecticut and the course of instruction is two years and four months given in a general hospital of 90 beds. Students must be graduates of grammar school and have one year of high school work. A new nurses' residence opened this year affords each student all of the comforts and conveniences of home.

N. E. GRANGE LECTURERS OPEN ANNUAL CONFERENCE

STORRS, Aug. 24—Grange lecturers of New England, approximately 600 strong, opened their fourteenth annual conference at the Connecticut Agricultural college today. A unique feature of this conference is that practically all delegates, including those from northern Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, made the trip to Storrs by auto, with the various delegations arriving throughout the day. Outstanding speakers on today's program were National Lecturer Orlando L. Martin of Plainfield, Vt., and State Lecturer Raymond Cooper of New York. The afternoon session was opened with a meeting of the Quinebaug Pomona Grange, in Hamley Armory.

A get-gether social and dance was held this evening after the regular program was presented. The Quinebaug Pomona Grange orchestra opened the evening meeting, with the Prologue given by the Rev. G. F. Goodenough of Ledyard, Conn. A tableaux "The Four Seasons," was next presented by the New London County Pomona Grange. President Charles Lewis Smith of the Connecticut Agricultural College followed with an address of welcome to the Grange Lecturer. Short talks were then given by the following state lecturers; Mearle J. Harriman of Redfield, Me.; John A. Hammond, Laconia, N. H.; Albert W. Lawrence, Springfield, Vt.; Berton T. Mowry, Raynham Center, Mass.; Mrs. Walter Rodman, Davisville, R. I.; Charles A. Wheeler, Storrs, Conn.

An interesting contrast between agriculture and rural life seventeen years ago and today, was drawn by National Lecturer Martin in his talk here this afternoon, in which he spoke of the commission appointed by President Roosevelt in 1908 to study the agricultural situation, and the report of that committee. He explained how the commission, which had for its personel some of the best agricultural minds in the country, drew up a set of points which they offered as being the causes of unsatisfactory rural life. Mr. Martin outlined what he considered the more important of these points and showed that while they existed seventeen years ago, they were in the main done away with today, making rural life much more satisfactory than it was at that time.

Poor highways was the first point mentioned by Mr. Martin, who said that today our country is bonded to the extent of over one billion dollars which is being expended to improve the roads and thereby eliminate one of the disadvantages to country life in the past.

Schools was the second point brought out by Mr. Martin, and he said that the rapid strides made in educating the country child was a great improvement over conditions a few years ago.

The Roosevelt Commission asserted that the lack of modern conveniences in the farm home was a serious drawback to country life, but this condition has been remedied now according to Mr. Martin, who said, the farm home has all the conveniences common to the city home, and sometimes many more.

Community cooperation is much better now than it was in 1908, according to Mr. Martin, and he attributed this in a large part to the influence of the grange in rural communities.

That the difference of the industrial world to the farmer has engaged to an attitude of real interest was also brought out by Mr. Martin. In the past few years the industrialist has learned that his prosperity depends on the prosperity of the farmer, stated Mr. Martin, and he is now interested in the problems of the farming population.

"Some Present Day Needs" was the subject of the address given here this afternoon by State Lecturer Raymond Cooper of New York. Speaking his subject by the direction family, Mr. Cooper said we need a more and economy in health, in effort, and in money. A greater sense of honesty and optimism was needed, as well as a need of better business methods and better business judgment, he said.

That a phrenological study be made of every child when young, as a means of determining what its vocation or profession should be, was the assertion of Mr. Cooper in the course of his remarks explaining why we should have a greater economy of effort. Characterizing phrenology as a great science, Mr. Cooper claimed that it would help to get young people situated in the work they were best fitted for, and prevent years of wasted time and effort in training for the wrong position or vocation.

Mr. Cooper stated that economy of health was one of our greatest needs, and the one most often neglected. There should be less indulgence in drugs, and in the wrong articles of diet, he said, as well as the methods and practices of living that wear down one's resistance to disease and other disorders. Regarding economy in the use of money, Mr. Cooper remarked that we have too many luxuries, and that greater care should be taken in the spending of the money which represents so much hard work in the earning.

That we should look more on life's brighter side was Mr. Cooper's statement in outlining the needs of greater optimism. At the bottom of it all was the need for better and brighter homes, he said ones that would develop more self-respecting men and women who would be true to the highest ideals of our Americanism.

U. S. Senator Hiram Bingham of New Haven and National Grange Master L. J. Taber of Columbus, O., will address the grange lecturers tomorrow night.

DR. JAMES J. DONOHUE READS PAPER AT UTAH CONVENTION

Dr. James J. Donohue, of Norwich, member of the board of compensation commissioners of Connecticut, has returned from Salt Lake City, Utah, where he attended the four days' convention of the twelve annual meeting of the International Association of Industrial Accident Boards and Commissions. The convention lasted from Aug. 11th to 26th inclusive. Headquarters was at the Utah Hotel.

On the evening day, Tuesday, during the morning session, Dr. Donohue read a scholarly paper on "Torpor and Its Results from an Administrative Point of View," which led to a general discussion by the boards, experts and authorities in attendance.

Dr. Donohue was elected a member of the medical committee of the organization, and was named as chairman of the committee on resolutions.

The convention brought together a distinguished company of specialists and writers interested in the subjects discussed.

The officers of the association are: President, O. C. McShane, chairman of the industrial commission of Utah; vice-president, E. M. Wisdom, chairman of the board of compensation commissioners of Connecticut, and the secretary-treasurer is Bert Hunt Stewart, United States Commissioner of labor statistics.

LEDYARD MAN MAKES FLIGHT IN PLANE

John R. Wieman, well known resident in Ledyard, made his first trip in an airplane Sunday while visiting at Crescent Beach. Mr. Wieman, who is 78 years old, has watched the progress of the airplane since its invention with considerable interest and often expressed a desire to make a flight in one. Sunday he realized his desire and was as enthusiastic ovre the flight in the skies as a ten year old boy.

DESERTED BY HUSBAND FOUR YEARS AGO

Anna P. Kierstead of New London, is suing her husband, Ralph B. Kierstead, also of New London, for a divorce, on grounds of desertion. Before her marriage she was Anna M. Russell and the couple married December 8, 1920. Plaintiff charges her husband with desertion since February 4, 1921. She asks permission to resume her maiden name, Anna M. Russell.

Observed 71st Birthday.

Thomas W. O'Keefe, well known retired undertaker in Middletown, observed his 71st birthday Saturday at his home in that city.

Mr. O'Keefe was for thirty years an undertaker in Middletown, retiring in 1914. Recently he and William Henry Allen of Norwich were granted life certificates as embalmers in this state. They are the first two undertakers in Connecticut to receive these certificates.

During the administration of Governor Baldwin, Mr. O'Keefe was a commissioner of the Connecticut board of embalmers and was reappointed by Governor Holcomb. As a member of the board he was treasurer and later president.

Guests at Fisher's Island

Mrs. James Clifford and Mrs. Edward Cregan and grandson Gilbert H. Miner Jr. spent the week end at Fisher's Island. Mrs. Clifford was entertained at the home of Mrs. Joseph Smith and Mrs. Cregan and grandson visited her daughter, Mrs. William E. Beaudry.

Mrs. Amos Phillips of Jewett City was a caller at the home of Mrs. J. C. Clifford Saturday.

Mrs. Robert McElrath of Jewett City called at the home of her sister Mrs. Ella Cregan Sunday.

SUES WIFE FOR DIVORCE ON STATUTORY CHARGE

Lawrence B. Thurlow of East Lyme has started divorce proceedings against Edith C. W. Thurlow, formerly of East Lyme, now of Buffalo, N. Y. The papers in the case were filed Monday with the clerk of the superior court in this city. Mr. and Mrs. Thurlow were married September 13, 1904 and the wife's maiden name was Edith Crawford Woods.

The husband charges that his wife committed a statutory offense at East Lyme between July 1, 1924 and April 1, 1925. The couple have three children, one 13, one 16 and the other 3 and there is an adopted child, aged 6. The husband wants a divorce and custody of the children.

WANTS DIVORCE, ALIMONY AND CHANGE OF NAME

Among the new divorce cases filed Monday with the clerk of the superior court in this city is one brought by Emma M. Searles of New London against Hubert Avery Searles of Bridgeport. The couple were married January 22, 1917 and her maiden name was Emma Yvonne Mendoza. She claims desertion since June 12, 1922 and asks for a divorce, alimony and permission to resume her maiden name.

GEO. GUILE TRAINING AT FORT TERRY

Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Guile and their daughter, Miss Lucile Guile of Kinney avenue, have made two trips recently on different days, to Fort Terry, Plum Island, N. Y., making the trip over from New London, on the government boat, General Hyde, to visit Mr. and Mrs. Guile's son, George, who has been in training at the citizen's military training camp during August. On one occasion they had as their guests, Mrs. John O. Peckham and Miss Emma Furnace and Robert Glassbrenner, the last two mentioned, violin pupils of George Guile. There are about 250 boys in training at this camp, representing several of the New England states.

Other Norwich boys at the camp are: Denny Grieco, Denny Madico, and Alfred Blake.

Mr. and Mrs. Guile were much impressed with the camp and the enthusiasm of the boys over their experiences, indicated that they have had a most enjoyable time while in training.

Motor Trip to Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Lucas and ...ster son, John, Jr., of Spring Garden avenue, left Monday morning for a few days' motor trip to Providence and Boston, stopping at several resorts by shore resorts.

MARRIED AT BERMUDA, NOW SEEKS DIVORCE

Married at Bermuda, February 27, 1904, Hobson Dunkley Smith of New London is now suing his wife, Lillian Young Smith; formerly of New London, now of unknown address, for divorce on grounds of desertion three years ago. Her maiden name was Lillian Alberta Young. Mr. Smith charges he was deserted May 18, 1922. The papers in the case were filed Monday at the office of the clerk of the superior court in this city.

SEEKS DIVORCE AND CUSTODY OF CHILD

Rose M. Fensley Sullivan of East Lyme has brought a divorce suit against Dennis Sullivan of East Lyme, charging desertion. Her maiden name was Rose Mullin and she married Dennis Sullivan, November 13, 1899. Desertion since February 27, 1922 is claimed by the plaintiff. She wants a divorce and custody of a fourteen year old daughter, Elsie May Sullivan. The papers in the case were filed Monday with the superior court clerk in this city.

POETRY

AUGUST.

The yellow goldenrod is dressed
In gala-day attire;
The glowing redweed by the fence
Shines like a crimson fire;
And from the hot field's farthest edge
The cricket's soft refrain
With mellow accent tells the tale
That August's here again.

In shining blue the aster wild
Unfolds her petals fair;
The clematis, unreaching, seeks
To clasp and kiss the air;
The brilliant poppy flaunts her head
Amidst the ripening grain,
And adds her voice to swell the song
That August's here again.

The dusty thistle by the road
Scatters a silver spray;
The sun pours down his scorching beams
Upon the fainting day;
The blackberry vine bends with its weight
Of fruit down in the lane,
And adds its testimony, too,
That August's here again.

The wild hop, from the young tree's bough,
Sways on the languid breeze,
And here and there the autumn leaves
Gleam faintly through the trees;
All Nature helps to swell the song
And chant the same refrain;
July and June have slipped away,
And August's here again.

—Helen Maria Winslow.

BISHOP SLATTERY DEFENDS ELIMINATION OF WORD "OBEY"

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—(By the A. P.)—The protest of the Rt. Rev. Irving Peake Johnson, Episcopal bishop of Colorado, against the elimination of the word "obey" from the Episcopal marriage ceremony, brought a quick response today from the Rt. Rev. Charles L. Slattery, bishop coadjutor of Massachusetts and chairman of joint commission on prayer book revision which proposed the change.

From Hancock, N. H., where he is having a vacation, Bishop Slattery sent to the Associated Press his rejoinder summarizing the attitude of the commission. The amendment, which he says he feels sure will be ratified at the triennial general conference at New Orleans in October, is, he says, in the interests of simplification and directness. He believes that the promise and the espousal being the same for the man and the woman will be stronger because of the elimination of "obey" and, further, that marriage being a mutural relationship the use of a mandatory expression has lowered the divine height of matrimony.

"DIVORCEE" SINCE "MARRIED," OPPOSES WIFE'S PETITION

BRIDGEPORT, Aug. 25—Although he got a "divorce" in Yucatan, and was since "married," Howard M. Dumbell, formerly an Episcopalian rector in Darien, intends to combat the petition for a decree of divorce his wife, Anna Sherrod Dumbell, Darien, has filed in superior court here.

This was indicated this afternoon when Attorneys Carter and Cressy, of Stamford, filed in court a formal notice that they would represent Dumbell in the case. Their appearance, however, is special, and limited only to the question of jurisdiction.

Dumbell's opposit on on jurisdictional grounds may center solely on a contest against the allowance of alimony by the Fairfield county superior court.

Mrs. Dumbell asked for financial maintenance and the custody of their eighteen year old son. She was married on April 8, 1890, and charges intolerable cruelty.

DECLARES DANCING HAS BECOME "INDIVIDUALISTIC"

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—Looking back over 60 years as a dancing teacher, Joseph T. Martin, of Kirkston, N. Y., oldest and only living charter member of the American Society of Teachers of Dancing in convention at the Waldorf-Astoria declared today that tripping the light fantastic is no longer a standardized affair as it was in civil war days. Instead, he says, it has become an "extremely individualistic performance" with everyone following his own proclivities.

The "modified" Charleston continues to be a subject of debate at the convention, but some delegates are putting forward the "Miami cuss," and the "Cuban Dunzon" to displace the Charleston in the hearts of flappers.

Virtually all agree that the modern dance filled American ballroom floors with couples bent upon "more active expression."

SCRAMBLE FOR POSSESSION OF HOMESTEADS IN FLORIDA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The scramble to get possession of homesteads in Florida rapidly is ending up the government's available acreage there.

General land office officials said today that less than 10,000 acres of federal land now remain open in Florida, and at the present rate it all will be gone by the end of this year except choice areas withdrawn by the interior department for sale at price commensurate with present Florida values. The land office at Gainesville is flooded with applications to take up public land, and the applicants will take any sort of land they can locate.

On June 30, 1924, the government had 79,606 acres in Florida, but on last June 30 its holdings had dwindled to 20,127 acres.

The barn, a work shop and a small dwelling on the farm in Washington, Conn., of Professor Richard Dodge, a member of the faculty of Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, were destroyed by fire yesterday. Two registered Holstein bulls and six registered Holstein cows were burned to death and 150 tons of hay were destroyed.

Rough Sea Halts Swim

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 25.—(...—A rough sea today made necessary another postponement of the attempt of Ishak Helmy, the Egyptian, to swim the English Channel, which had been set for tonight. Owing to the unfavorable weather prospects, Helmy did not set a new date for his attempt. The several channel swimmers here, however, continued their training today despite the rough water. Miss Gertrude Ederle the American girl, who intends to wait for favorable tide conditions at the end of the month, is gradually increasing her workouts both in the water and on land, swimming two hours each morning and walking in the afternoon.

MAYOR HYLAN BITTERLY DENOUNCES TAMMANY HALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—All traces of amity in New York's already seething political campaign disappeared today when Mayor Hylan made public a letter bitterly denouncing Tammany Hall, linking Governor Smith's name with the legislative record of State Senator James L. Walker, his opponent for the democratic mayoralty nomination.

Addressed to United States Senator Royal S. Copeland thanking him for his support and proffer of assistance to the Hylan cause, the letter announced the mayor's intention "to speak freely and call a spade a spade."

Mayor said he ... ... the person of former Governor William Sulzer, who wrote the mayor in praise of his administration. "I am for you now because you have made one of the best, one of the most honest, one of the most courageous, one of the most capable and one of the most efficient mayors in all the history of one city," Mr. Sulzer wrote.

Mr. Sulzer's entry into the campaign revives as it does that in January, 1913 when Charles F. Murphy, the late Tammany chieftain, was largely instrumental in causing his impeachment, after he had been elected on the democratic ticket.

The republican leaders, satisfied with their showing last night when French D. Waterman and republican citizen designate for mayor Waterman and Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the Columbia University, outlined their campaign on a "business vs. political" basis, continued their organization today. They plan to enlist the aid of three former governors to combat Governor Smith's support of the Tammany ticket which will open Thursday night in Brooklyn. The republican big guns will include former Governors Charles S. Whitman, who is candidate for district attorney, Charles E. Hughes, former secretary of state, and Nathan L. Miller.

REDUCTION OF GASOLINE PRICES IS WIDESPREAD

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—(A. P.)—Gasoline prices came tumbling down in many Atlantic seaboard and middle western states today, giving widespread joy to motorists.

A general reduction of one-half cent a gallon by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was the fourth to be initiated by that company this month and it brought the tank wagon quotations throughout its territory to 16 and 17 cents a gallon. The Gulf Refining Company, the Sinclair Oil and Refining company and other competitors in New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina and the District of Columbia met the Standard Oil's cut.

In New York city, Yonkers and points in Long Island a cut of three cents a gallon by the Tidewater Oil Sales Corporation and the Gulf Refining company brought the tank wagon quotation to 17 cents a gallon. A price of 16 to 18 cents prevailed in most upstate cities and in New England. The same level was established in Pennsylvania and Delaware through a one-cent cut by Atlantic Refining Company.

Competitive conditions in the middle west which caused the Standard Oil company of Indiana to lower its gasoline price two cents a gallon today also forced the Sinclair corporation to make a similar cut.

An invasion of gasoline from the Pacific coast was said in oil circles here to have prompted recent reductions in the east and indirectly to have shut off the eastern outlet for many of the midcontinent refiners.

Even Canada joined in the price cutting wave, the Imperial oil company, Ltd., reducing the Imperial gallon from 28 to 27 cents.

STATE HIGHWAY DEPT. TO HOLD BEAUTY CONTEST

HARTFORD Aug. 25.—(AP)—The state highway department is to hold its own "beauty" contest to determine which girl in the department will be "Miss Highway," during the next year. The contest will be decided at an outing of the Connecticut Highway association at Hammonasset beach on Saturday, September 12. The judges have not yet been chosen, but all girls employed by the state highway department are eligible for the contest.

The beauty contest is only one item among a large number listed in the program of events for the outing. There will be water sports, baseball, tugs o'war and other athletic events, while a chowder party and sheep bake will be followed by dancing. A. W. Bushnell is president of the association, and A. R. Collier is chairman of the arrangements committee. The bridge department has issued a baseball challange to other departments for the championship of the association.

HAMLET PRESENTED IN 20TH CENTURY ACTING

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The experiment of presenting Hamlet in a twentieth century setting was made at the Kingsway Theatre tonight, and the result fully justified the confidence of the producers, the crowded audience receiving the performance with every mark of approval.

To emphasize the idea that the play has an appeal for moderns as strong as when it was first staged, the characters were clothes after today's fashions, the women in frocks of the latest styles with hair bobbed or shingled, and the men in immaculately cut Prince Alberts with creased trousers and spats or well tailored lounge suits, graveside scene wearing "plus fours," but the acme of modernism was reached when one of the men lighted a cigarette. There was, however, no touch of burlesque. Cecil Hardwicke impersonated the melancholy Dane.

Warfare Renewed by Chinese Tongmen

Killings Have Been Made in New York, Boston and Pittsburg Following Six Months' Armistice.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—AP.— The pistol shots which early today struck down three men, two of them Chinese in Boston, echoed half across the United States as Chinese Tongmen, after a six months' peace, renewed their warfare.

H. Yen Ung, Yee Yip, a restaurant employe and Hip Sing, Tongman, and Joseph D. Crowley, a bystander, were wounded in the burst of gunfire in Boston's Chinatown. Yee Yip who was most seriously injured, disappeared after the shooting but was later found and taken to a hospital.

Almost immediately after the Boston outbreak, Ho Key, a member of the rival On Leong Tong here, was found lying dead on the crowded Chinatown street with three bullets in his back. It is believed he was a victim of Hip Sing revenge.

In Pittsburgh, Shing Sun, a launderer was killed and shortly afterward in ... Sing, in Minneapolis, was murdered. In St. Louis, Long Choey, former "King" of Chinatown there, was seriously wounded by enemy Tongmen, and in scores of other cities where the great Chinese Tongs have outposts, police feared the Tongs were busily preparing for battle.

News of the outbreak on Yee Yip spread over the country as quickly as telegraph wires could carry it. He was shot, but he was a member of the Hip Sing Tong, and the shots which felled him destroyed the gossamer threads holding together the armistice arranged six months ago between the Hip Sing and the On Leong Tongs.

Warned by code messages, the gunmen of the rival Tongs skipped from door doorways to avenge the new blood debt and to settle accounts held over from the peace conference here last March.

The terror which the declaration of war spread among the peace-loving members of the two Tongs was indicated when Chin Hin, of New York a member of the Hip Sings, was so frightened by repeated knocking on the door of a room he was occupying in Newark, N. J., that he ran to the roof and jumped through the window of an adjoining building, cutting himself severely.

The new outburst followed by only a few hours the burial of Lee Kue in Boston, foremost citizen of New York's Chinatown, who was most influential in arranging the truce. Members of both Tongs sat side by side in his funeral cortege as all Chinatown paid last respects to him.

Until last October, there had been no hostilities between the two Tongs for twelve years. Then came a sudden outbreak of hostilities which lasted through the winter. The On Leong Tong is composed principally of Chinese Merchants. The Hip Sings, larger but less wealthy, draw their members chiefly from chinese seamen, laundrymen and restaurant workers. The Tongs are strictly American organizations, offshoots resulting from grafting of Oriental civilization upon the western world.

EXTRA PATROLMAN IN BOSTON'S CHINATOWN

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Chinatown's shadowy streets were patrolled by extra details of police tonight to guard against resumption of hostilities between rival factions of the On Leong and Hip Sing Tongs, which resulted in the shooting of two Chinese and a white man in a street revolver battle last night.

Extra precautions against another outbreak were taken when police learned that Chinese in several widely separated eastern cities were shot last night soon after fighting began here. In addition to uniformed patrolmen, numerous plainclother men moved through the Chinese quarter in pairs when night fell.

Outwardly Chinatown was normal. The restaurants were filled, the stores, perhaps, were not so crowded as usual, but everywhere along the drab streets Chinese squatted on their door steps, talking earnestly. Everyone familiar with the quarter knew that last night's battle, which caused great excitement, was the leading subject of discussion and conjectured.

DETECTIVES IN CHINESE QUARTERS IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Aug. 25.—(AP)—A uniformed policeman was on duty in front of the store used as a club by Hartford members of the On Leong Tong tonight and a detail of plain clothes detectives was on duty in the Chinese quarter following resumption of Tong warfare in other cities. Two members of the Hip Sing Tong were murdered here last Thanksgiving eve cition at Hammonasset beach on Saturday, September 12. The judges have not yet been chosen, but all girls employed by the state highway department are eligible for the contest.

The beauty contest is only one item among a large number listed in the program of events for the outing. There will be water sports, baseball, tugs o'war and other athletic events, while a chowder party and sheep bake will be followed by dancing. A. W. Bushnell is president of the association, and A. R. Collier is chairman of the arrangements committee. The bridge department has issued a baseball challange to other departments for the championship of the association.

SPANISH WARSHIPS DESTROY REBEL VILLAGES IN MOROCCO

MELILLA, Spanish Morocco, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The coast line of Alhucemas has been virtually levelled by the gunfire from Spanish warships which were rushed there after the long range bombardment of the island of Alhucemas by the rebels.

The cruiser Alfonso XIII, firing broadsides, put the enemy's guns out of commission and destroyed several rebel villages. A squadron of giant airplanes bombed Abd-El-Krim's headquarters at Ajdir.

TWO MEMBERS OF FAMILY DIED WITHIN LAST 24 HOURS

WALLINGFORD, Aug. —(AP)—Two members of one family here have died suddenly within the last 24 hours. Phillip Simmons was fatally injured last night when he fell down a flight of stairs at his home and died this afternoon in the Meriden hospital, death being due to a fractured skull. He was 70 years of age. Mrs. Simmons, when she discovered her husband lying at the foot of the stairs, suffered a stroke of paralysis and died shortly afterwards. She was 63 years old. They are survived by four daughters. Funeral services will be held Thursday morning.

Governor of Texas Denies Requisition

Of Gov. Smith of New York For Mrs. Roscoe Canady, Charged With Kidnapping Her Own Child.

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 25—(A. P.)—Requisition of Governor Al Smith of New York for extradition of Mrs. Roscoe Canaday of San Antonio, charged in New York with having kidnapped her won child, Roscoe, Jr., from her former husband, was denied today by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

Governor Ferguson in announcing her refusal of the requisition said she did not believe "that Mrs. Canaday as a devoted mother has done anything more than any other would do under the circumstances."

She said she did "not believe any jury in New York or Texas would convict any good mother on the testimony of a husband who would want to put his wife in the penitentiary simply because she wants to continue the care and control of her own infant child."

ASSERTS KLAN MUST KEEP ITS MEMBERSHIP SECRET

BUCKEYE LAKE, Ohio, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The Ku Klux Klan must revert to its original intention of keeping its membership secret if it is to achieve the object "to which it is dedicated," Glenn Carter, grand dragon of Nebraska, asserted today before the national meeting of state and regional heads of the organization here.

He denounced the growing practice of klansmen to appear in public unmasked. "This has done more to prevent men who might be inclined to join than any other thing," he said.

He advocated a "universal return to the practice of klansmen never appearing in public unless masked.

"If our membership is known," he declared, "many men sympathetic towards the Klan may be deterred from joining for business, political and social reasons."

Carter's stand was opposed by several of the grand dragons and titans. No definite action was taken. In Ohio, the strongest klan state in the Union, according to leaders of the order, it has been the recent practice for klansmen to appear in public unmasked. This is true in other states, also, speakers declared.

Of chief interest on tomorrow's program will be a discussion centering around the best means to obtain cooperation of Protestant ministers in the religious work of the organization.

RUHR TURNED OVER TO GERMANS AFTER FOUR YEARS

DUESSELDORF, Aug. 25—The French and Belgian troops today turned over the Ruhr to the Germans after four years' occupation, undertaken to compel Germany to pay reparations. There were no disturbances, no demonstrations, no public expressions of either partings between young French soldiers and their German sweethearts.

In the great industrial area once operated almost entirely by or under the supervision of the French and Belgians, the members of the waterways commission at Duesseldorf, Ruhrt and Duisburg and three French soldiers too ill to be removed from the hospital, alone remain.

QUESTIONS DISCUSSED BY THE SOCIALIST CONGRESS

MARSEILLES, France, Aug. 25—(A. P.)—Ridding Russia of Bolshevism, Great Britain of unemployment and the United States, Germany and England, of too long working hours were hotly debated questions that kept the International Socialist Congress and its commissions in somewhat of a turmoil today.

An eight-hour resolution finally was adopted. It urged world efforts to enforce this law and especially to insist upon shorter hours in these three countries, which are considered particular offenders.

There was some criticism of the new Jewish Socialist party in the credentials committee, but Delegate Kahn of New York assured the congress that "the $300,000 Jewish Socialists in the United States are far from being all bankers."

CONSTABLE SUES MYSTIC MAN FOR $6,000 DAMAGES

BRIDGEPORT, Aug. 25—Clarence Schofield is a constable for the town of Darien. He was on official traffic duty June 1, directing motorists on the Boston Post road, Darien, when a motor truck owned by Henry J. Marikle, Mystic, knocked him down, dragged him fifty feet, broke six ribs, fractured an ankle and covered his body with lacerations and abrasions. He filed suit in superior court this afternoon, asking damages of $6,000 from Marikle. Constable Schofield declares his injuries are permanent.

German Finds Cotton Substitute

BEETLINGEN, Germany, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Cutting of cotton imports into Germany by half may result from a new method of weaving cloth with hemp, invented by the German textile expert, Dr. Gminder. The hemp, it is expected, will replace in part the cotton formerly used in the cloth. There are about 3,000,000 acres of moorland in Germany adapted to the raising of hemp.

FRANCE AND BRITAIN FAIL TO AGREE ON DEBT TERMS

M. Caillaux Will Return to Paris and Submit to His Colleagues New Propositions—British Chancellor of the Exchequers Churchill Will Have New Proposals to Make to the British Cabinet as a Result of Conversations With M. Caillaux

LONDON, Aug. 25—(A. P.)—Almost all hope that an agreement would be reached this week providing for the payment of the French war debt to Great Britain has vanished. After his third conversation with Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, M. Caillaux, the French finance minister, today informed the newspaper representatives that there would be no agreement for the present.

"The only thing I can say," M. Caillaux remarked, "is that I shall go to Paris with new propositions on Thursday probably and ask my colleagues to consider them."

Similarly Mr. Churchill will have new proposition to offer to his cabinet colleagues by reason of the meetings.

It was reported late tonight that Mr Churchill had reduced his maximum demand upon France to £14,000,000 annually, but insisted that this should all be in sterling and without any dependence on sums which France may receive out of the Dawes plan.

M. Caillaux, on the other hand, is understood to take the position that France is unable to pay more than £10,000,000, part in sterling and the remainder either in goods or specie, depending upon what France collects from Germany and the nature of what is collected, whether money or kind.

A very significant incident of today's debt discussions, which carried M. Caillaux into contact with several prominent British financers, was the luncheon at which the American ambassador, Alanson B. Houghton entertained Mr. Churchill and the visiting French finance minister. As a French mission will shortly go to Washington to take up the debt question, it is generally presumed that the three statesmen talked about the general debt situation.

Indeed, the impression is gaining ground that nothing will be done about settling the French debt to Great Britain until Europe sees the outcome of the France-American debt conference at Washington.

Speaking of his conversations with the British chancellor, M. Caillaux said: "We have continued to make effort sto reconcile our points of view. I shall remain in London tomorrow and leave perhaps Thursday—perhaps, I am not sure.

This morning M. Caillaux talked with Sid Montagu Norman, governor of the ank of England, and after lunching with Mr. Churchill and Ambassador Houghton, had a long talk with Reginald McKenna, one of Britain's financial authorities, followed by a short conversation with the chancellor of the exchequer. Tonight Mr. Churchill had M. Caillaux and six other guests, including Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, and the French and British financial advisers at his official quarters, No. 11 Downing street.

ACTIVITY RENEWED ON MASSACHUSETTS RUM ROW

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Renewed activity after a period of quiet is reported on the Massachusetts rum row by the Coast Guard. Eight schooners were reported "loafing" twenty miles off shore between Thatchers Island and Cape Cod. Included among the ships off shore are the British schooners James Parker, I'm Alone, Beatrice James, Mty and Ahibance, and the French schooner La Parisienne from La Havre. The eighth has not been identified. It is believed from the way the vessels ride that they are well laden although some now show more freeboard than on their arrival. This indicates it is said, that some deliveries have been made to shore boats Coast Guard cutters Ossipee, Gresham and Ceusinet aided by fleets of seventy six foot patrol boats and smaller picket boats from Boston and Gloucester bases are keeping the schooners under close surveillance. Reports to the Coast Guard indicated reinforcement of the rum row off the coast of Maine.

WORCESTER YOUNG MAN WAS FEIGNING AMNESIA

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 25—A young man found on the street early Sunday and regarded as an amnesia subject because he could not tell his name, and who has been in the hospital, today said he was Joseph Dunphy of Worcester, Mass., just as he was about to be finger-printed for the police identification records. He admitted to the police that he had been fooling.

The police notified the man's parents who explained that the son had started for Philadelphia for a visit to recuperate after illness and that he had left by bus for that city.

NEW FILM TAX LAW WILL CLOSE MANY PICTURE THEATRES IN CONNECTICUT

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Closing of many of Connecticut's 167 motion picture theaters was forecast at a meeting today of theater owners of Connecticut with film distributors in the offices of Will H. Hays, Movie High Commissioner, at which the situation brought about by Connecticut's new film tax law, recently upheld by the Federal Court was discussed.

The motion picture producers and distributors of America will remove their New Haven Film Exchange upon advice of their counsel and ship pastfilms into Connecticut by Parcel Post and Express, it was announced. The $10 per reel tax will be paid from a fund being raised by the motion picture houses having contracts.

Many theaters having no contracts may be cut off entirely from a source of supply of films, it was said.

Arrangements for borrowing sufficient funds for the payment of the tax until the present contracts expire have been made by the motion picture owners of Connecticut, The New Haven Film Board of Trade and The Boston Film Board of Trade, Joseph W. Walsh, of Hartford, president of the Connecticut Theater Owners Association, announced.

Exhibitors not having pictures under contract will not come under operation of this fund and may be compelled to close their theaters, Mr. Walsh said.

"After existing contracts have been completed the exhibitors will leave to the distributors the problem of paying the tax," Mr. Walsh asserted.

Mr. Walsh headed a delegation of theater men of Connecticut, which included L. M. Segal, of the Poli Circuit, Hartford; Max Field, of New Hartford; I. J. Hoffman, of Amsterdam, and M. J. Fournier.

The producers and distributors fought the Connecticut tax bill, which also contains a censorship feature, to the courts of that state and in the Federal Court, and recently announced their intention of taking it to the United States Supreme Court during the coming term.

The provision of a tax of $10 per thousand feet of film, spokesmen of the producers and distributors state, is considerably higher than the average rental of films. When the present contracts with the distributors expire and the theatre managers are the only beneficiaries of the fund to pay the film tax, it is expected that many managers, unable to meet the tax, will be forced to close their theaters.

AGENT SPLAIN EXPLAINS HOW TO DIVIDE TAX

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Members of the Connecticut committee of theater owners who attended a meeting of motion picture film producers and distributors in New York today when steps were considered to combat the state's new tax on films returned to this city tonight and immediately went into session to discuss the situation. They refused to comment on their decisions after the meeting.

John J. Splain, special agent for Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett, stated tonight that he could see no possibility of a boycott closing up the theaters of this state, pointing out that films could be shipped into this state with the tax paid by the distributors and theater houses but a small sum. Films are taxed but once when they come into the state he said, and could be used by several theaters. The original tax could then be divided by the theater owners showing the pictures, each paying a share of the first assessment.

OWNERS OF THEATRES TO APPEAL TO GOVERNOR

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Owners of 167 motion picture theatres in Connecticut will appeal to Governor John Trumbull for a special session of the legislature to act upon the situation created by the operation of the new motion picture film tax law, it was learned here tonight following a meeting of the Connecticut committee which attended a conference of film producers and distributors in New York, today.

Decision has been reached by the motion picture distributors, it was said, to remove all exchange offices from the state, and that pictures exhibited henceforth in this state would be shipped here by express or parcel post.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

At a special borough meeting held Tuesday night and attended by about 100 voters it was decided to construct the sewer petitioned for on Broad street between the property of Ida A. Armington and Oscar J. Boullais. It was also decided to construct the sewer on Winter street between Spring and Mechanic street. The borough also makes an appropriation of $1450 for this work.

Late Tuesday afternoon it was announced that the grammar school grounds had been obtained for parking next Saturday, with police protection, and that in order to give the "out-of-town buyer" an equal chance with the others the stores would not open till eight o'clock. The banners to be suspended over Main street will be hung some time today to still further advertise the event.

The death of Mrs. Rose Genest, 62, occurred Tuesday afternoon at Moosup. She is survived by her husband, Joseph Genest. Mrs. Genest was born in Canada.

Tuesday night the motor pumper of the fire department was given a test by underwriter's Inspector Wright. The big machine was given the O. K. by him. Tonight (Wednesday) he will inspect the General Putnam steamer.

While coming down Franklin street Monday night, one of the front tires on a Chevrolet truck owned and driven by Cleophas Belanger blew out and the wheel dropped off. The other one, unable to sustain the weight of the machine also came off and dropped the front end of the truck to the ground. The machine came to a stop near a stone wall. Mr. Belanger was not injured.

Unusually hearty co-operation among the merchants of Danielson promises to make next Saturday, Dollar Day, one of the biggest successes of the year. Given good weather, many will visit Danielson and this means a big amount of business. The Dollar Day committee of the chamber of commerce has provided for suitable parking places and most important of all, there will be police protection. The idea that on Dollar Day merchants unload a lot of odd stock on the public is not true. One man in particular has scraped barrens in one commodity that are real bargains and for which he was forced to look a long time. He will sell his product for almost cost price, yet will stand back of all he sells. This year the event is being widey advertised.

An interesting coincidence is noted on Broad street where one of the newest houses in Danielson has been built right beside the oldest.

Of the flood of markers to stick on the rear end of an automobile a Rhode Island car was seen Tuesday with the latest one. It was "Oh Katharina."

Miss Mildred G. Burns has resumed her duties as a nurse in the Hartford Hospital after spending two weeks' vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Burns of Prospect street.

At the plant of the Paco Company on Maple street the old brick stack has been torn down for reconstruction. It had become somewhat cracked in spots and so it was deemed best to tear it down and build it over again.

While he was in bathing at Old Killingly Pond, Harry Pate dove off the raft and in some manner threw his shoulder out of joint. It was impossible for his companions to set it back, so Dr. F. P. Todd was summoned. He soon had it in place and Pate went home none the worse from his experience.

Mrs. Anna Clapp, of Hartford, is visiting relatives in Danielson. Mrs. Clapp is a nurse in a hospital near Hartford.

FLEW OVER HIS HOME ON HIS WAY TO BOSTON

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 25.—When an aeroplane passed over Danielson this afternoon no one, not even his wife, knew that James Masthay was a passenger on the flight. Mr. Masthay is stationed at Annacosta field, Washington, D. C., and on his way home flew from there to Boston and took the train to Danielson. His coming was a complete surprise to Mrs. Masthay and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Gartland of Mechanic street. They had not the slightest idea that he was on his way to see them and that it was he who had flown over their heads but six hours before. Mr. Masthay will stay until Friday and then go to Boston and from there fly to Annacosta, once more passing over Danielson.

EASTERN DAIRIES COMPANY COMPLETING MODEL PLANT

DANIELSON, Aug. 25.—The new distributing plant being built for the Eastern Dairies Company on Reynolds street, is the only one of its kind in this vicinity. Although not quite completed it is in use every day. Only minor work such as grading still has to be done. In the plant are two storage chambers kept at a temperature of about six degrees below zero. This is done by an ammonia machine that forces ammonia through pipes that go into the store room. The ammonia is compressed and cooled with water.

After cooling the ammonia, the water is piped to a spray fountain in front of the plant, where it helps to beautify the place. A feature of the storage chambers is a device which enables the men to tell when one is inside and not lock the door. Lights must be on in the room when someone goes in and when they go in a small signal light outside also burns. In case an employe accidentally turns off the lights, preparatory to locking up, the man inside will immediately call for illumination and so let the one outside know that he is still in there. The ice cream is delivered to the waiting trucks through a small cubby hole in the wall made so that the cans are easily handled and still let out but a minimum amount of the cold. There is also a crusher that breaks the cakes of ice put on to the distributing trucks, and connected with it is a conveyor that dumps the ice in. The ammonia compressor is a small electrically driven unit, that is turned on whenever it becomes necessary to lower the temperature. An accurate record is kept of it throughout the twenty-four hours of the day by a recording thermometer. To step from outdoors in the store room is like taking a long jump from the equator to the North Pole. The plant has a capacity of fifty-five hundred gallons of ice cream and distributes it to all the surrounding towns and villages. T. J. Arrigan is the local manager of the Eastern Dairies Company.

PUTNAM

The body of three year old Beverly Durand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Durand of Vandale street who was burned to death at Plattsburgh, N. Y., Saturday evening, arrived here Tuesday morning by train. Mrs. Durand, who is nearly prostrated over the affair, came home last evening by automobile, accompanied by her husband and his brother, and by Mrs. Wallace Smith of this city. They drove to Plattsburg Sunday on receipt of the news of the accident.

The little girl had in some manner gotten hold of some matches and although she had been out of her mother's sight but five minutes she and a little playmate had set fire to a pile of papers. Her dress caught fire and in an instant her body was enveloped in flames which spread to her hair. As soon as the blaze was extinguished, a neighbor carried her, wrapped in a blanket, to a hospital two blocks away. The doctors found that she was so badly burned that there was no hope of her living and they made her as comfortable as possible until her death, five hours later.

The funeral took place this afternoon, the services of the Episcopal church being held at the home, the service being read by Rev. F. H. Elgelow of Christ church, Pomfret. Then the body was taken to St. Mary's Catholic church where the burial service was read. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. Mr. Durand is a Catholic and Mrs. Durand is a member of St. Philip's Episcopal church.

At a meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce at the Putnam Inn, Monday evening, there was a lengthy discussion over the matter of providing a public parking place for automobiles. A committee appointed at a former meeting, consisting of Walter J. Bartlett and Charles Seder, reported that the land adjoining the Buick Service station in the rear of Willis Carroll's drug store was the most available site. A committee will be appointed to see if the co-operation of the City Council can be secured to provide a watchman for Wednesday and Saturday evenings, if the grounds are obtainable.

SALESMAN'S CAR BURNED ON SO. KILLINGLY HILL

DANIELSON, Aug. 25.—A 1921 Franklin demi-coach, owned and operated by M. A. Kollet, of Millville, Mass. a representative of a Milwaukee tool and forge company, was almost completely burned tonight near the top of South Killingly hill.

Mr. Kollet had been experiencing trouble with his car and stopped near Danielson for its repairs. Near South Killingly the car began to backfire and the lights went out. Smoke came out from the front end and had Mr. Kollet had an extinguisher he could then have saved his car. A passing motorist gave assistance but disappeared before his identity could be learned.

The fire started near the carburetor and followed the gasoline to the rear of the car. The only parts left of the burnt machine were the headlights and right front wheel entire.

Mr. Kollet saved most of his samples but lost his two new spare tires. The machine was insured for only part of its actual value.

WHY DON'T YOU USE SAN-GRI-NA To REDUCE SAYS WOMAN WHO TOOK OFF 50 POUNDS of UGLY FAT

Do You Want a Figure Like This? It is Miss Peg Evans of N. Y. City. All She Did Was to Use SAN-GRI-NA

Do you want to improve yourself? To be attractive, young looking? Do you want health and happiness? Then GET RID OF YOUR EXCESS FAT. IT'S KEEPING YOU DOWN IN EVERY WAY. Have you tried everything to reduce, without success, and are you so discouraged that you are willing to remain fat and unattractive, or do you want to know of something harmless, easy, inexpensive and sure in results?

Whatever your case may be, 10 pounds too much or 50 pounds, YOU CAN GET RID OF IT JUST AS I DID. Let me tell you how I took off 50 pounds of ugly fat with practically no expense and no trouble whatever, after I had been burdened for years. First, I tried diets, which weakened me so that I had to stay in bed to recuperate. Then I exercised, without any results. Then one day I heard about SAN-GRI-NA. As a last resort, I tried it. With one box I lost 6 pounds, and in a little over seven weeks I lost Forty-Five pounds more—never regained a pound since, and enjoy the best of health.

I HAVE PROVEN IN MY OWN CASE AND IN HUNDREDS OF OTHERS, THAT SAN-GRI-NA WORKED WHERE EVERYTHING ELSE HAD FAILED. I have given this same advice to society women, moving picture stars, actresses, working girls and business men who have succeeded beyond hopes. All you need to do is to go to-day to any good drug or department store, get a package of SAN-GRI-NA, and take two small tablets before each meal. Go at your work as usual, eat as you care to—do not change anything in your mode of living. Simply take SAN-GRI-NA, and watch your figure lose that clumsy appearance and become more and more slender each day. At the same time your health will improve. You will feel younger, full of pep and ambition. SAN-GRI-NA IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS, does not contain habit-forming drugs. Do not accept any substitutes. "SAN-GRI-NA IS THE ONLY THING I EVER FOUND TO REDUCE, AND I TRIED THEM ALL!" On sale at any good Drug or Dept. Store.

If your druggist does not carry SAN-GRI-NA in stock he can get it from his wholesaler or you can send a money order or check for $1.50 direct to the Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 B'way, N. Y. C., and one full sized box SAN-GRI-NA will be mailed you direct.

On sale at any good drug or department store. If your druggist does not carry San-Gri-Na in stock he can get it from his wholesaler or you can send a money order or check for $1.50 direct to the Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 Broadway, N. Y. City.

WESTERLY

Westerly fire district is to hold its annual meeting this (Wednesday) evening in the town hall with Lewis Stanton, moderator. It is anticipated that this annual meeting will be the largest in the history of the Westerly Fire district, first because there is a contest on for the positions of First Second and Third Assistant Engineers of the district, and second for the reason that the boundaries of the Westerly Fire district have been enlarged since the last annual meeting on the first Wednesday in December. The district has been enlarged by the addition of the Central Park area, the Avondale area, a section along Beach street, and sections along Franklin and High streets.

So far as is known, unless a dark horse appears there will be no opposition to the present Westerly Fire Chief George E. Egger.

The new candidates in the field for fire executives are Howard D. McFarland, Morris Laing and Leroy Hoadley, all young men and active firefighters for a number of years in Westerly. McFarland and Laing are members of Rhode Island No. One Engine company and Hoadley is a member of the Avert Hook and Ladder company. In the selection of assistants by the voters of the district, Fire Chief Egger is reported as taking a neutral stand between the old board of his associates and the new aspirants.

Judge Elias B. Hinckley of Stonington sat in regular session Tuesday afternoon in the Probate Court for the town of Stonington when a number of probate matters were disposed of by him, this being his first appearance in the Pawcatuck session in over a year. Judge Hinckley acted in the absence of probate Judge Frank H. Hinckley of Mystic, who was confined to his home by illness.

Two Ford automobiles collided on the Westerly end of the Pawcatuck River Bridge Tuesday afternoon about 5 o'clock, when the car ahead, stopped suddenly and the rear auto smashed into it. No more serious result followed than a broken headlight on the rear automobile. Patrolman Fred Ferraro of Westerly investigated the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Ward, recently married in Nova Scotia, following a short wedding trip, have arrived at their home at 5 Elm street, Westerly.

Westerly and Pawcatuck Masons have been in attendance at the 100th anniversary of Charity and Relief lodge, F. and A. M. of Mystic, which began Sunday with a service at the Methodist church, Mystic, and continued through Tuesday evening at the Masonic temple, Gravel street.

Fire alarm No. 33 was sounded Tuesday morning, shortly after 6 o'clock for an out of the district fire which proved to be the Watch Hill cottage "Longshore," occupied by Congressman Richard S. Aldrick and family, residents of Providence. The fire in the butler's pantry spread to the bedrooms on the second floor. The alarm was sounded by a servant and the family fled, scantily attired. They were given shelter by other colonists. The origin of the fire was traced to an electric heater left burning during the night. The fire department battled with the flames for more than an hour and saved the building. Heavy damage was caused by smoke and water. The house is owned by Mrs. Thomas Thacher of New York and is located on the lower end of Aloha road fronting the beach.

A ladder of the Watch Hill truck was broken when the truck was started too quickly. The big Fox-Ahrens pumper of the Westerly department which responded to the call returned to the Westerly quarters as the fire was under control and out before their arrival at the Hill.

The first annual charity bazaar of Westerly Elks, which has been in progress at the Schultz-Murray property on Elm street, closed Monday evening. The bazaar opened last Wednesday evening and during the five nights that it was held, over 12,000 visited the grounds. The gross receipts were over $10,000, and although the expenses were heavy, it is thought that several thousand dollars will be available for local charities. During last week, the crowds were attracted to the carnival by the excellent vaudeville program. Monday night, a number of acts were given by Dan Mulgrew and his assistants from Providence.

The success of this year's carnival is due mainly to the efforts of the committee in charge, Alfred H. Chapman, chairman; William S. Martin, secretary; Richard J. Butler, Jr., treasurer; Harold S. Barber, Joseph L. Lenihan, Louis E. Kinney, William Orlando, James Negrelli, James McVey, Simon Wreschinsky, Anthony Cormick and Joseph T. Grills.

An idea of the activity in the town of Westerly during the summer months can be gained from the 16 building permits signed by Inspector Louis J. Rossi, of the Westerly Zoning commission, during June and the 32, or twice that number, granted by him in July. These are the first permits granted since the ordinance has been in operation, in Westerly which requires zoning building permits to be obtained, before construction work is begun. Following is the list of permits, granted with dates of application, petitioners, construction, size and locations for the two months and represents a considerable amount of construction work now being carried on:

Charles M. Sauer was a business caller with Rhode Island state authorities in Providence Tuesday morning.

David Novogrod of Westerly, and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Alpert, of Putnam formerly of Westerly, were among the managers of Connecticut motion picture houses who attended the sessions of the meeting of motion picture house managers in New Haven the past week end.

Following the re-location of the side-walk curb on the south side of West Broad street, workmen Monday and Tuesday completed the sections of the cement sidewalk broken out as the walk was narrowed, by relaying new cement. Additional paving blocks were also set in the roadway which now has added width, the work being carried along in front of the Walton block.

It may be necessary for the next session of the Rhode Island legislature to be asked to appropriate money for an addition to the Washington County jail at Kingston where Deputy Sheriff Fred Bull is keeper. Tuesday, Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell of Westerly reported that eleven prisoners were held there and the addition of more "guests" at the county jail would begin to tax its accommodations.

At a meeting of the Watch Hill Fire District Monday, a committee was authorized to complain to the Westerly Town Council about the dumping of sewage in and along the shore of Little Narragansett Bay. A dozen or more voters expressed the opinion that a stop should be put to this practice which, they alleged, is endangering the health of the resort.

Upon suggestion of the Treasurer, Horace E. Burdick, a tax of three mills on each $400 worth of real estate was levied. The following apropropriations were made: For repayment of illegally assessed taxes on intangible personal property, with accrued interest, $5,000, for park commission, $1,500; for janitor service at fire station during 1924 and 1925, $400.

Henry L. Burdick of Providence, moderator of the district, presented three proposed ordinances pertaining to the recording ordinances, regulating the parking of vehicles and strengthening the powers of the health officer. All three ordinances were adopted and added to the bylaws of the district.

Remarkable Mexican Bird

A remarkable bird found in Mexico is the bee-martin, which has a trick of ruffling up the feathers on top of its head into the exact semblance of a beautiful flower; when a bee comes along to sip honey from the supposed flower it is snapped up by the bird.

DEVELOPING WATER PRIVILEGE

Developments and extensions are constantly being made. Communities and households which did not have electricity last year are now equipped. Industries are taking advantage of waterpower privileges and the many opportunities for getting electrical current. But hydro-electric power plants have been established and they are being continued or increased in number. High tension lines are being stretched in all directions and yet with all the effort there have been made to replace the steam-power by water power there are still instances upon thousands of horsepower going to waste daily. If many of these streams were properly and fully harnessed there would be a quick and brisk demand for the cheap power.

It is not probable for a long time at least that there will ever be a full utilization of the waterpower privileges of this country. No one would dare say when the power privileges so located as to admirably serve industrial centers will be completely developed and yet each year sees progress in the right direction.

According to figures furnished by the report of the geological survey there is now in this country a total horsepower development of just over 19,000,000 from the rivers and streams, and one interesting feature of this is that ten per cent. or more of industrial horsepower has been developed in the past year. This increase is only a greater recognition of the natural advantages awaiting to be developed but a determination to get the benefit of them.

Cheap power is always one of the cries of industry. Through the use of the water privileges a permanent source of cheap power is obtainable and it removes such annoyances as coal strikes, fuel shortages and transportation troubles. When it is considered that there is about 5,000,000 horsepower going to waste each year it can be realized that it will be some time before its complete use will be approximated and yet if it could be cut down at the rate of a million a year the limit would soon be reached.

MEETING GREATER TRAFFIC

Advocacy is being given in Chicago to the widening of the highways that lead into that city from other states. It is due, of course, to the existing question which is created by the present day motor traffic and which is going to be expected to increase. Where relief can be contributed that course is being followed but there are more automobiles every day and consequently it must be expected that the highways are going to be more crowded.

It is possible to do several things in the way of regulating traffic but when it comes to handling traffic from the north, south, east or west over one or more arteries of travel it is apparent that the roads must be widened or new avenues opened.

Chicago's plea even concerns other states, and it is to be realized that such conditions must enter into the general scheme of highway construction insofar as it is possible to carry it out and not neglect other sections of the commonwealth. In asking Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan and even Missouri to help out in this direction it is to be realized that the situation is not so different from what it is in Connecticut where the state is about to build a parallel highway between New York and Bridgeport to take care of the overcrowded conditions.

Wider highways will no doubt help to relieve the situation about Chicago in road construction the highways today are being built in a different manner and at a greater width than they were 15 years ago. It is the response to experience and conditions. Roads are being widened where present construction warrants it and the building of new roads is bound to serve to relieve much congestion on main lines of travel. This is going to be appreciated by the people of this vicinity in using the new Gardner lake road for reaching Connecticut river points and beyond. Relief from the jam of the Boston Post road will be appreciated by the motorists as well as the points where congestion is invariably experienced. The auxiliary highway appears to have advantages over the wide thoroughfares where traffic could run several cars abreast.

RUNNING THE LEVIATHAN

The desirability of cutting down the heavy expenditures of the government in the maintenance of the merchant marine is fully appreciated. If we are to have a merchant marine and there is no other way of doing so except through government support and operation, it should at least be done at the lowest outlay that will accomplish what is aimed at.

Satisfaction is to be gained from the fact that substantial reductions have been made. Since President Palmer has been at the head of the emergency fleet corporation he has lopped off much of the waste. The introduction of efficiency and economy has brought about a much needed change. This improvement is expected to continue while there is some progress being made in disposing of some of the established lines to private capital and in selling certain of the vessels which have not been and probably never would be used.

When President Palmer hastens, however, to check the rumors that the Leviathan may be withdrawn from service, because of the projected cut in the allowances for the operation of the ships, he recognizes the importance of that liner as the leader of the American fleet and its advertising value, while he does not overlook the harm that could be done to the American passenger fleet and to the value of the Leviathan by permitting others through the handing about of idle talk to create the idea that it is going to be tied up.

If it can be shown that the American fleet can be run at less cost there is probably no one who would welcome suggestions, or who can be relied up to accomplish it, more than President Palmer of the emergency fleet corporation. He has done much and will do more. He is alive to the responsibility that rests upon him but in that connection he understands the importance of keeping the Leviathan in operation. Its value as an asset is much greater as a going proposition. Even the loss under operation would be preferable to putting it in the position of a horse that eats its head off through doing nothing.

WEARING OUT A WELCOME

There is such a thing as wearing out a welcome, and it is well illustrated in the many instances where denial is made of the use of property by picnickers because the privileges have been so greatly abused as to make no other action possible. No one could be expected to tolerate the conditions which some have been forced to meet, with property destroyed and grounds littered with debris of all kinds.

The situation in Florida borders on that very situation, if we mistake not, when the bureau of publicity of that state advocates the ending of all free camps and the placing of a charge on all motor campers in order to eliminate those who are not considered a benefit to the state.

By its free camps, which by the way are not restricted to Florida, that state has invited great numbers of motorists who make constant use of such grounds. The Florida experience has been that there is a large class to be found in such camps who are no more than gypsies. They leave a broken down equipment and expect to get their living off of the people encountered and they are regarded as "undesirables and a menace to health and property."

It is the very class which has become a large number of the people of Florida to recall their welcome to all people. They have made a bad impression and the result is that efforts are underway to exclude them, as the inevitable outcome of those who are unappreciative of what is being done for them and who are disorderly. To take all that can be gotten and then ignore all gratitude even to the extent of causing the populace to become soured on all who call themselves campers.

POISONOUS LIQUOR

The death of four persons in a New York hospital from drinking poisonous liquor is simply a repetition of an old story. Less is heard about such cases now because they attract less attention and because no doubt the use of wood alcohol as such in the making of the contraband liquor has for the most part ceased. This does not mean that the makers of bootleg whiskey are taking care to see that they get the best grain for their mixtures, for there are too many cases of poisoning because, but the quick poison is apparently reduced, though the New York cases show that it is still enough to get that which gets when taken in sufficient quantities.

There are those who manufacture and those who distribute. In the illegal business extensively carried on, there is the disposition to create the impression that the real stuff is being provided or else it is an imported brand in which full reliance can be placed. Without a question there is some liquor being smuggled into the country but those who engage in such a practice are not looking out for the welfare of their trade. They are out for the last dollar that can be obtained, and like those in New Hampshire who were arrested in Canada for smuggling alcohol from this side of the border into the dominion to be made into "Scotch" whiskey there are those who are ready to provide any brand that is desired, properly labeled, upon order.

With the great amount of rotten liquor that is being disposed of in these days of prohibition, the surprise is not that there is an occasional death from its use but that the number isn't greater and figuring more conspicuously in the news of each day.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Those who haven't got their coal bins filled are doing the most worrying these days.

It isn't often that one gets the sunny side of the street in August, but it happens.

The man on the corner says: Much more satisfaction is gotten at this season of the year by keeping away from the thermometer.

Caillaux thinks the next thing France should do is to arrange to pay the debt to this country. That will create no opposition over here.

"Germans have had their fill of fighting", reports a returned visitor from Europe. How long before the same can be said of the Riffians?

Now it is indicated that those who are to be injured by the threatened coal strike must sit still and watch the storm approach without trying to prevent it.

In connection with the threatened coal strike it might be noted that the automobile industry is kept humming with the least amount of slack time through price reduction.

Senator Borah declares the Belgian debt settlement terms are indefensible if they are to be used as a precedent. But that is just what the debt settlement commission has been emphasizing is not to be the case.

TRAGEDY OF FLOWERS

It may have been too steady attendance at Valentino movies or too rabid reading of bestseller romances, but Cora suddenly awakened to the conviction that Joe did not love her any more.

She just didn't register. She tried to think back to the time when he had still looked at her with that adoring courtship gleam in his eyes, but she could not remember when it had faded.

Worst of all, for the last two years he had utterly and absolutely forgotten their wedding anniversary, while his Christmas presents had been checks! Once it had not been too much trouble for him to go miles out of his way to get a particular kind of candy of which she was fond.

It was not very hard to progress from this state of mind to feeling actively injured. Joe deserved punishment. That was how she came to think of sending herself the flowers and candy. Jealousy, she knew, was an emotion easy to arouse and if Joe were still jealous of her all hope was not lost. On her last birthday Joe had raced in under the wire with a check and she secretly felt he had not remembered the day at all until reminded of it by her package from home. No doubt he would forget it again this year.

And so a week before the date she began by ostentatiously displaying an expensive box of candy on the living room table, the sort of box purchased mainly by young men very anxious to make a showing with their girls, not at all the kind of a box bought by a person married and settled down and who, craving candy, buys bargain seconds which taste just as good if they don't look so well. She waited rather breathlessly for Joe's surprised comment and question.

"Hello!" he remarked when he noted the confectionary. He poked about gingerly and abstracted a bonbon. "I always liked these squashy things," he told her amiably and found two more before he departed to read his paper.

Cora bit her lip and got out of the room rapidly.

Was he plain dumb or was it just because he didn't care at all?

So when she was downtown the day before her birthday she went to an expensive florist and deliberately ordered a box of American beauties sent to herself. She would scrimp on the housekeeping money and it would serve Joe right! Nobody on earth could pass over American beauties casually. He'd have to ask who sent 'em—and then, well, they'd see.

Joe came home a bit early the next day and found her just finishing the arrangement of the roses in a cupple of tall vases. "Hello, there!" he said jauntily, shedding his coat and smiling at her. So far as he was concerned the roses might have been dandelions, for he said nothing about them. Neither did he remark on its being her birthday. Nothing whatever unusual happened.

Bewilderment and consternation swept Cora and then rage possessed her. There simply was no use! Out in a secluded corner of the kitchen she wept by herself—and then Joe was shaking her by the shoulders. She looked up to see a comprehending, amused light in his brown eyes.

"Goose!" he said. "I suppose you did it for some reason, but I'm blamed if I know what! And I don't even know now what the tears are about! When you got those roses yesterday I was in back at the florist's, writing a check for the birthday flowers I ordered for you—guess that's the delivery boy ringing at the door now—I'd have got beauties if I'd known you were so crazy about them—"

He left her to take in his box of flowers. Cora found herself hastily drying her eyes, her heart thumping. She wondered why she should feel so horribly ashamed of herself, all mixed up with this happy glow. And she knew Joe stood just as much of ever having her actions explained to him as he did of being crowned king of Zambesia.

"Thank heaven he takes things as a matter of course!" was the surprising thing she said. — Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, who is about to launch a nation-wide campaign to outlaw the use of the steel trap in the fur industry, is a famous actress who for some years has been a militant if more or less silent worker against cruelty to animals in every form. Born in New Orleans, of a well-known theatrical family, Mrs. Fiske was three years old when she made her stage debut as the Duke of York in Richard III. This was in Little Rock, Ark. Twenty-nine years later, in New York, she was recognized as one of the greatest American portrayers of realistic parts, winning this reputation as Tess in Tess of the D'Urbervilles. In her earlier career she had been seen with Junius Brutus Booth, John McCullough, and other of the famous players of the day. When two years ago the National League of Women Voters selected the twelve women who were in its opinion the most notable in the country, Mrs. Fiske was chosen to represent the stage.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn will give you a clue to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

An Appreciation of a Chronicle From Home.

Mr. Editor: A Warwickshire woman, leaning against a sunny veranda scented with climbing honeysuckle, read and re-read with interested appreciation the letter which the wife of a Norwich minister wrote to the "Bulletin" from her country town and joyfully reflected that interchange of sympathetic visitors cannot but multiply those ties which, light as air but strong as iron, still bind the erstwhile colonies to the mother land and remind us on either side the Atlantic of the noble heritage we hold in trust—our language, our legend and history, our English Bible and Book of Common Prayer.

It is interesting to note how in the course of time the vocabulary of the sundered peoples has come to vary even in the simplest speech, and how the American less a slave to tradition than we, does not scruple to alter spelling to save his time, and phrasing, to elucidate his meaning — the prayer for bishops and curates has lost what might seem to a modern ear its hopeless note and no longer emphasizes the marvels worked when such respond to the healthful spirit of God's grace: for the president is besought "health and prosperity," for the king "health and wealth long to live," since wealth suggests welfare of mind, body and estate not merely dollars.

Such differences often send one harking back to the common base and set us exploring the fascinating field of etymology. A man on the pier-end remarking he has no "pole" to which to attach his fishing line, while the Englishman casts with his rod, reminds one of the equation, probably obsolete in a land of decimals, 5½ yards equals 1 rod, pole or perch: one learns to like syrup at breakfast though one hated "treacle"; to remember that in a "shop" a man makes what a "store" distributes; one would hesitate to "operate an automobile" past a pillar which winks "Go slow to the right" though one drives a little "car" at home.

Warwick is not a city, for it has no cathedral; Birmingham, the big hardware village of a million people, its swollen neighbour, became one by royal charter some 30 years ago: Winchester college is not a university but a public school; peddlers are extinct, but street hawkers are licensed (they may push a barrow of fruit or fish but must not cry or hait to sell their wares, a beautiful bit of workable compromise, for the shopkeeper is heavily rated).

And just as words strike one oddly here, it is quaint to note as new to an American, the verb "to punt" and the great ugly popular open motor we write "charabancs" and call "charrabang" while though "yard" and "garden" are synonymous in origin, a London back-yard, naught but paving stones, would be a poor substitute for a Warwickshire garden.

Naturally, here where every language finds a home, Americans pronounce every word their way, and smile at our would-be French accent in detour, depot, chauffeur and garage.

One wonders what "quaint expressions of friendliness the Warwick hostess used; she certainly did not say, "Pleased to meet you."

It was a breath of cool air to an alien to read that chronicle at home with its touch of wistfulness in the reference, by an alien, to the ivy that clothes an old English garden and also a New England parsonage, but "alien" after all means only "other, different," and difference makes for lasting friendship, if only each take trouble to understand.

The Missing Link.

Mr. Editor: In answer to Mr. Troland, may I say, that while there are a few links missing that there is enough of the chain to show that there were such links, whether or not we ever find them. The Smithsonian Institute at Washington will show you all the links in the chain in the development of the present day horse from a three toed animal about the size of a dog which one time roamed the plains of Kansas.

Scientists I am sure would be pleased to have individuas and the people as a whole, study and consider the facts which they have learned, and to know something of the problems which they are considering. Most of them however, are too busy doing things to waste time with those who are satisfied to pass the "loud laugh of the vacant mind." If there are those who would like to know something of the knowledge gained by science without studying all sciences, let them read from our library Saleeby's Evolution, The Masterkey, The Circle of Life, or Hueckle's Riddle of the Universe.

Whatever advancement man has made in the last 500 years has been due to science in spite of the opposition of the church. Read Warfare of Science and Religion by Andrew D. White.

It was my intention to outline the evidences for evolution as gained by a study of astronomy, geology, anthropology and embryology, and perhaps compare these with the teachings of the Bible, but space and time forbids.

Why Bobby Coon Was Interested

Who talks too much will sometimes find
He's told more than he's had in mind.
—Old Mother West Wind.

Peter Rabbit scratched a long ear with a long hind foot, and then for a long time scratched the other long ear with the other long hind foot, a way he has of doing when he is puzzled. Bobby Coon had shuffled off in the moonlight along the bank of the Laughing Brook in the direction of the Smiling Pool. Peter watched him out of sight, all the time scratching his ears. Why had Bobby Coon been so interested in what Peter had told him about Mrs. Snapper the Snapping Turtle digging on the roof of Jerry Muskrat's house? Why had Bobby so abruptly lost all interest in fishing and started off down the Laughing Brook? Why had he been so anxious to know exactly where Mrs. Snapper had dug that hole? Peter couldn't find a satisfactory answer to any one of these questions. So after a bit he started on after Bobby Coon. He just had to know what Bobby was about.

He sat down where he could watch Bobby

Bobby shuffled along quite rapidly. He didn't stop, as he usually does, to investigate everything that catches his eye. He just kept on until he reached the edge of the smiling Pool where the Laughing Brook flows into it. There he sat for a few moments staring over at the house of Jerry Muskrat. Peter took great care that Bobby shouldn't know that he had been following. He sat down where he could watch Bobby, but where he could himself be unseen. Bobby began to wade into the water. He was wading straight out for Jerry Muskrat's house. When the water got deep enough Bobby began to swim. When he reached the house he climbed out on the roof. He shook himself. Then he began to hunt very carefully all over that roof. Peter could see him very plainly in the moonlight.

Bobby seemed to know when he had found the place where Peter had seen Mrs. Snapper the Snapping Turtle digging a hole. Anyway, it was right there that Bobby Coon began to dig. He pulled out the dead rushes and the mud with those little black hands of his. He worked fast, did Bobby Coon. At last he took something out—something white, went to the edge of the water, washed it and then ate it. At once he went back to that hole and got another. He did the same thing with this one. Whatever it was that Bobby was eating, he certainly was enjoying it. Peter lost count of the number of times Bobby pulled something out of that hole.

After a long time Bobby felt around in that hole and brought out nothing at all. He tried again with the same result. It was quite clear to Peter that whatever it was that Bobby had found none was left. Then Bobby didn't bother to dig that hole in search. He once more began to go all over the roof of Jerry Muskrat's house as if looking for another place in which to dig. But he found nothing to interest him and after a bit he swam ashore.

Almost at once Bobby saw Peter Rabbit. He saw the look of curiosity in Peter's face. Bobby grinned. "Thanks, Peter," said he, "for the fine dinner I have enjoyed."

Again Bobby grinned and his grin was broader than before. "I've just had," said he, "a splendid dinner of eggs—the eggs of Mrs. Snapper the Snapping Turtle, and if you hadn't told me where they were I shouldn't have had that dinner."

"How could I tell you about them when I didn't even know Mrs. Snapper had any eggs?" demanded Peter.

Bobby chuckled. "Some folks can tell more than they know," said he. And that was all Peter could get from him.

The next story: Peter Tells Jerry All About It.

From Small Beginnings

Faraday, the Blacksmith's Son, the Scientific Leader

In 1812 a certain Mr. Dance took some books to a London shop to be bound. He happened to talk with a young apprentice named Michael Faraday. Seeing that the boy was interested in science he invited him to go with him to hear Sir Humphrey Davy, the great chemist.

That invitation was opportunity. Michael Faraday went to the lecture and wrote an accurate report of it and sent it to Mr. Dance, who, in turn sent it to Sir Humphrey Davy. Now, Sir Humphrey had been born the son of a wood-carver and had been an apprentice so that he knew what was going on in a poor boy's mind. He wrote kindly letters to Michael Faraday. When he learned more about the boy he recommended him as a laboratory assistant. Finally, he took the young fellow on a long trip through Europe and taught him all he knew. That kindness is as much to the credit of Sir Humphrey Davy as is the invention of the safety lamp that makes mining less dangerous.

Thirteen years after Faraday had heard that first scientific lecture he was director of the laboratory of the Royal Institution. Eight years more and he was professor of chemistry in the same famous school.

Faraday studied all his life until his death at the age of 76. His discoveries in connection with magneto-electric enduction led to our present use of electricity. He discovered the magnetization of light, and also what is called diamagnetism, as well as much else in the scientific field.

In spite of the fact that his father had been only a poverty-stricken blacksmith, and that he himself, up to the age of 22, had been nothing but a bookbinder's apprentice, he had risen through earnestness and hard work to be the scientific leader of his time. He died full of years and honors, an example of high success achieved by an inquiring mind.

POETRY

Four Summer Roads

In waking dreams there come to me
Four happy roads in fantasy.

In green and slender tracery
Tall willows arch beneath the sky,
And shadows, on the road below,
Dance light, 'twixt sunbeams, to and fro;
And through the shimmering, green-flecked air,
A bridge leads o'er a river there,
'Neath whose green banks gray minnows lie,
While up and down the boats pass by;
And on this road there naught may be
But peace and summer minstrelsy.

Pink sweetbrier scents the breeze of June
White elder greets the bees' soft croon
Blue iris nods to wild rose gay,
O'er trickling brook the tall ferns sway,
And upward, by rocks strong and bold,
Framed in strange mood of Nature's mould,
The road leads to an open plain
Where sea-tanged winds hold merry reign,
And on this road there naught may be
But joy, and wind-tossed melody.

Far to the dim and sandy shore
A narrow road leads evermore,
Through lavender, marsh rosemary
And reeds that sway Pan's symphony,
Above, the sky shines brightly blue,
The sea sings chanteys old and new,
That, ceaseless, to our listening ears,
Bring strange, sweet thoughts from far-off years:
And on this road there naught may be
But tender hope and memory,
Through pine woods, odorous, stately, still,

Beyond the brook, across the hill,
A winding road, through needles brown,
Leads far from hamlet, farm, or town—
And through it echoes every day
The soft, cool sound of splashing spray,
And suddenly, to wondering eyes,
Three foam-flecked waterfalls arise;
And on this road there naught may be
But crystal waters' ecstasy.

Still dreaming, half-awake, to me,
Come these four roads, in fantasy,
And each is best I ever knew,
For each, Beloved Ones, leads to you!

Sinfonia Eroica

He comes, the happy warrior,
The wind has blown him on!
He is great and terrible and sweet.
From flaming hair to rapid feet,
His presence strides the earth full-armed complete
Oh, underneath his helmet-run
The crowded lilies lie.
From some Elysian feast he comes,
Struck with the passion to the drums,
And fragrant from the feast, behold, he comes!
He holds all morning in his face
All fury and all fire.
His panting heart bursts with disdain
Of all that hinders him from pain;
And mine with longing that he might remain.

Names That Recall Others

Bath Salts for Bass

The big brother had decided to clean up and apropos to the preliminary ablutions unearthed a bottle of radiant bath salts that a loving sister had bestowed upon him his last birthday. Little brother had been with big brother on a fishing trip when several bass were caught. It so happened that little brother wandered into a room with big brother and surveying the many colored bath salts inquired what they might be. The big brother without elucidating said: "Bath salts."

Little brother pondered for several minutes while big brother prepared his bath. He examined the bath salts critically. He unscrewed the top and smelled and after several minutes of silent meditation he asked with puzzled air, "Well how do you catch bass with them anyway? Do you just pour it on the water and wait for the bass to come up?"

CONNECTICUT LEADS COUNTRY IN AVIATION INTEREST

(Special to the Bulletin.)

STORRS, Aug. 25.—That Connecticut leads the country in interest in aviation was the assertion of Senator Bingham in his talk on the future of aviation given here bore the New England Grange Lecturers tonight.

Senator Bingham treated his subject from military, naval and commercial possibilities and repeated his statement made yesterday to President Coolidge that the government should provide a bureau of air navigation to foster commercial aviation in the country.

That commercial aviation is much safer than is commonly supposed was the statement of Senator Bingham who outlined the rapid strides made by this industry in Europe. Insurance rates on valuable papers, jewelry and silk sent from London to Paris by airplane were only 1-3 the cost on the same articles sent by boat or rail. This was because of the practical elimination of the danger from the loss by theft.

Three things are needed to make airplane flying safe said Senator Bingham. The first of which is government inspection of companies and pilots, which he said should be done by the department of commerce. The second is navigable airways which will be lighted by beacons and lighthouses as a means of showing the aviators the way in night flying. The third thing needed is more airports which he said should be provided with shops, hangars, gasoline, telephone and radio equipment. These must be built by state and municipal governments. The city of Hartford has furnished an excellent example in this respect. Senator Bingham also said that no state in the Union has done as much as Connecticut in the promoting and developing of aviation.

Leasing of the Seaside Los Angeles to a private company that would use for passenger cruises over the North Atlantic to Europe in summer time was stated by Senator Bingham. The senator does not think that the ship can compete with the airplane in commercial flying over land because it is less speedy and has not proved itself in Germany where formerly it has been tried out. For ocean air navigation he believed, however, that it surpasses the airplane.

PUTNAM WOMAN SUES TO RECOVER LOAN

According to papers filed Tuesday with the clerk of the superior court in this city Olive E. Thatcher of Putnam has brought suit against Dorothy M. Lyon of New London for $1,500 claiming that on March 5, 1920 she loaned the defendant $1,150 and that the defendant has never paid the same.

FACES $100,000 DAMAGE SUIT FOR FAILURE TO KEEP AGREEMENT

Damages of $100,000 are asked by the Textile Engineering Co., of Providence, R. I., in a superior court action which that concern has brought against Gurney E. Still of Mystic. The plaintiff concern claims that on or about May 21, 1924, the defendant entered into an agreement with the plaintiff to which agreement the Braided Thread Corporation with plant in Mystic and Joshua B. Hale of Providence were also parties.

It was provided that the plaintiff would employ the defendant during the existence of the agreement to have complete charge of and authority over the plaintiff's operations in constructing and delivering to the Braided Thread Corporation and to the Middlesex Braided Thread Co., Hale Braiders, under the plaintiff's existing contracts with them.

The plaintiff duly employed the defendant during the existence of the agreement, to wit, from May 21, 1924 to May 21, 1925.

The defendant has failed, neglected and refused to perform the several agreements and undertakings as contained in the agreement and has broken said contract and by reason of its failure, neglect and refusal to carry out his agreements and undertakings, and by reason of his breach of said contract the plaintiff has been greatly damaged and its business has been greatly impaired and the plaintiff has suffered great financial loss and damage.

According to the agreement the defendant agreed that he would use his best efforts to make the Hale Braiders and to deliver the same to the Middlesex Braided Thread and to the Braided Thread Corp., devoting as much time to the business of the plaintiff as "shall be necessary and helpful for that purpose." He was to have the braiders all made and delivered within one year.

That he would with money and notes received from the Middlesex Braided Thread Co., and with money to be supplied by the Braided Thread Corp. pay or satisfy on behalf of the plaintiff all the plaintiff's debts as listed on a schedule made a part of the agreement within six months from May 21, 1924.

G. E. Still of Mystl and the Braided Thread Corp of Mystic have also been made defendants in a suit for 12,040 shares of Braided Thread Corp. bought by The Textile Engineering Co. of Providence. It is claimed that the shares, according to a written contract were to be deposited with Ralph M. Greenlaw as trustee of Providence. The plaintiff claims:

A.—A mandatory injunction directing and ordering the defendant, G. E Still, to forthwith perform his said contract with the plaintiff and to forthwith deliver to and deposit with said Ralph M. Greenlaw, as trustee, a certificate or certificates aggregating 12,040 shares of the common capital stock of the defendant, Braided Thread Corp., together with a power of attorney covering the same.

B.—An injunction to restrain the defendant, his employes, servants and agents, from selling, transferring, conveying, negotiating, pledging, mortgaging or in any way encumbering any of the shares of the common capital stock of the defendant.

In another suit against The Braided Thread Corp. of Mystic the Textile Engineering Co. of Providence is seeking $50,000 damages. The plaintiff claims that the defendant promised and agreed in a written agreement to furnish to G. E. Still money to enable G. E. Still to pay all of the debts of the plaintiff. The defendant has failed to carry out its agreements.

GASOLINE-LIGHTED MATCH— CALL FOR FIREMEN

The fire department received a telephone call at 5:34 o'clock Thursday evening for a fire in an automobile owned by Robert Rogers of 22 Calhoun street but the flames had been practically extinguished when the firemen arrived there was no damage to the automobile.

Mr. Rogers had stopped his car in front of the filling station at No. 495 North Main street conducted by Stanley Chmielewski to replenish his supply of gas. While the tank was being filled by Mr. Chmielewski, Mr. Rogers who was watching the gauge unconsciously struck a match and ignited the fumes of the gas, which caught fire to the car.

In the interests of safety, the proprietors of gas filling stations should insist that the drivers stop their motors and throw away lighted cigars or cigarettes and refrain from lighting same, while the tanks are being filled with gasoline. This precautionary measure should be followed for many fires are caused in this way by careless people.

HUMANE AGENT WYANT AT HARTFORD CONFERENCE

District Agent Frederic H. Wyant, of Norwich, and Agent John Swezey, of New London, representing the Connecticut Humane society, were called to the head office in Hartford Monday, by General Manager H. Clay Preston, where they were in conference the greater part of the day, concerning matters of importance in the society's interests. The main thought was how better service could be rendered people and animals in this location.

The officers of the society in talking over the situation exclaimed that it would be a wonderful help, if people would cooperate with the society in making known to the head office, or to the several agents, any cases that they know of in a suffering condition, in fact any case that involved cruelty to living beings or animals. This society renders much relief throughout Connecticut during each year and all cases that are reported receive as prompt attention as can be given; the more serious ones perhaps receiving first consideration.

LOCAL DRIVER HELD AFTER AUTO CRASH

Everett Fuller of this city will appear in the city court this (Wednesday) morning on a charge of reckless driving, his arrest on that charge followed an automobile accident at the corner of Washington and Sachem streets about 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. Friese was driving down Washington street when his car struck a car driven by Fred Tuell of Providence, which was coming out of Sachem street, both cars being considerably damaged.

The accident was investigated by Officer Fraser who also took Mr. Heponstall, a companion of Mr. Tuell, to the Backus hospital, where physicians found him to be suffering several lacerations of the right hand and an injury to his shoulder. For a short while Mr. Heptonstall was in an unconscious condition, probably from shock. The injuries were not found to be of a serious nature and Mr. Heptonstall returned to his home later in the day.

NORWICH DRIVER FINED IN WORCESTER COURT

(Special to the Bulletin.)

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 25—John Dubreuil, 44, 225 Main Street, Norwich, Conn., was fined $200 today in district court here on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and an additional fine of $200 for permitting an unauthorized person to operate. He appealed. The officers who arrested Dubreuil testified that he was intoxicated in his automobile which was being driven on Grove street by Dubreuil's 14 year old son. The youth told the court that he had been able to drive the car all right until he saw the policeman when he became frightened and struck a pole.

WEBSTER D. COPP RESIGN AS LEGION COMMANDER

Commander Webster D. Copp, of Robert O. Fletcher Post No. 4, American Legion, tendered his resignation as commander of the post, Tuesday evening, at a special meeting of the post, held to discuss plans for the state convention to be held at New London on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Commander Copp has served the post almost since its organization having held every office in the post with the exception of treasurer, and in tendering his resignation, stated that he did so with regret, but although he could no longer serve the post and the Legion, in his official capacity as commander, he would be always ready to serve as a private in the ranks.

Before his resignation, which takes effect on August 29th, following the state convention at New London, was accepted by the post, Past Commander William A. Anderson, speaking for the members, voiced regret that Commander Copp had been forced to resign from office and moved that the post congratulate its commander on his advancement to the position of state bank examiner and accept the resignation with regret. This was unanimously voted and a rising vote of appreciation of services rendered was also given.

The meeting was presided over by Vice Commander Samuel Jennes and John A. Cunningham, as chairman of the On to New London committee reported that color bearers and color guards had been secured for the big Legion parade to be held Saturday afternoon, and that Houston's East Side Drum corps would head the local men in the parade.

He also mentioned the uniform wearing of post caps during the parade Saturday, and the post voted that these caps should be worn if possible. It was also voted that all Norwich post members wear a rose during the parade, emblematical of Norwich, the Rose of New England. It was also voted that the delegates to the convention be uninstructed by the post, thus giving them a free hand to vote as they saw best for the Legion.

The delegates, Past Commander William A. Anderson, Chaplain Rev. Edward C. Dunbar and Clarence Whitaker, announced that the Norwich post would have headquarters during the convention, the place to be announced during the convention.

The matter of inviting the Auxiliary of the post to have the use of the new post rooms was also brought up for discussion and it was the unanimous vote that Adjutant Jonathan L. Johnson, notify the auxiliary that they would be welcome to the use of the Legion rooms in the Uncas bank building.

The subject of proper grave markers for graves of veterans of the World War was also brought up and the post voted to follow the policy of national headquarters upon receipt of information on this subject.

The meeting was one of the best attended of the year and it was evident that Fletcher Post will send a large delegation to New London Saturday to participate in the events of the final day of the convention especially the big parade which is to start at 2 p. m. sharp.

With the time for the opening of the seventh annual convention of the Connecticut department of the American legion drawing near, a lively race for the office of department commander is anticipated. So far as is known at present there are but four candidates. Harry Jackson of New Britain, Leroy Downes of South Norwalk, Kenneth Cramer of aHrtford and Attorney Justus Fennell of Stamford.

It is expected that during the 11th hour other hats will be tossed into the ring but the above four seem at present to all be solidly backed. With the refusals of Colonel Dorsey and General Payne of New London to accept the nomination officials say that the race for commander's honors will not involve any New London members. Just whom the delegates from this section will support has not been made known.

There is however a lurking suspicion by those who purport to know that sentiment about here is not at all unfavorable to Attorney Fennell.

Fennell who is this side of 40, is a tall well built man, of drawing personality. When he was captain of Battery C, 6th regiment, heavy artillery, A. E. F., which was made up of Illinois and Connecticut men the captain gained many friends from about here. He was a great favorite with the men in the regiment 69 of whom were New Londoners. This regiment was made up at the island forts.

Mrs. O. D. Oliphant of Trenton, N. J., national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, will visit New London during the seventh annual convention of the Connecticut American Legion. Mrs. Oliphant has long been actively engaged in the work of the auxiliary.

She was organizing state president of the auxiliary in New Jersey and was its first and second president. She refused a third term stating that "This is not a one-woman organization.' She has been a prominent figure in the national organization since the first national convention of the auxiliary, five years ago at Kansas City, holding such national chairmanships as Memorial, Legislative and Americanism. At the annual convention held in St. Paul, Minn., last September she was chosen almost unanimously as the national president of the auxiliary.

Since assuming the duties of the national presidency, Mrs. Oliphant has taken up her residence in Indianapolis, Ind., the national headquarters of the organization.

Mrs. Oliphant will be received by Miss Mary C. Coyle of Waterbury, the state president and other prominent women members of the auxiliary. A number of social functions are being planned in her honor.

In her address here Mrs. Oliphant will outline the national program of the auxiliary on rehabilitation child welfare and Americanism, particularly stressing the nation wide legion endowment fund campaign and the defense conference held at Washington.

A Peculiar Accident

A resident of Brooklyn, Conn., Mrs Victor Smith had a peculiar and painful accident last week. The electric pump in her home suddenly stopped and as Mrs. Smith went to examine it, she in some way touched something that started it going. Her hair became caught and but for the presence of Mr. Smith and his quick action a fatality must have been the result. Mr. Smith threw the belt from the wheel which stopped the machinery, but not before Mrs. Smith's scalp was torn some and her face badly bruised. Mrs. Smith was rushed to the Day Kimball Hospital where she has since remained

Auto Tour to Vermont

Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Whiting have returned home from a four days trip by automobile, through central and northern Vermont. During the trip the weather was very clear and the mountain scenery was at its best, although the natives reported a very rainy season. While on the trip and in passing to the east of Lake Champlain, the local party saw hundreds of acres of fine grass which had not been cut this year because the land was too wet to get teams onto to do the cutting and harvesting of the crop.

GRANGE HEAD ADDRESSES LECTURERS AT STORRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS, Aug. 25—That Henry Ford was indulging in a pipe dream in predicting synthetic milk in the course of his recent remarks criticising the cow, was the assertion of L. J. Taber of Columbus, Ohio, national master of the grange, in a talk before the New England Grange Lecturers here tonight.

"Great men sometimes indulge in pipe dreams," said Mr. Taber. "Henry Ford may be one of the world's wizards in mechanics and manufacturing but he evidently knows little of basic agricultural conditions. His recent criticism of the cow, his complaint of her inefficiency, and his promise of synthetic milk and substitute food carries little concern to the farmer.

"If Henry Ford were producing automobiles as efficient with fuel as the dairy cow is with food, he will some day have billions where he now owns millions. It is interesting to note that while Ford makes fun of the cow and makes fun of the farmer, and criticizes his inefficiency, that in reality the dairy cow is the world's most efficient food producer. She can take the rough raw materials, the coarse fodders, the clovers and the grains and manufacture nature's most efficient food. It is interesting to note that the cow has become the foster mother of humanity, and even Ford keeps them by the score to supply milk, with its life and health giving qualities, for his Detroit hospitals.

"This is interesting only to remind us that agriculture is still basic and that it does and will produce the food and the fiber for the clothing for mankind," said Mr. Taber. "The young men of the present and the children of tomorrow can go forward and choose agriculture for their life work knowing that they must still feed and clothe the world."

"It is a pleasure to come to New England, the Grange Gibraltar as it were, and discuss the problems of greater efficiency in our work. The history of the grange is secure with service, but to hold our place in the years ahead the Grange must be of continually greater service in rural life."

"As Master of the National Grange, I want to congratulate the New England State Lecturer, the subordinate lecturers and officers on this the largest and most successful conference of this kind ever held during the life of the Grange. It is well to remind you that the Grange is fifty-eight years old, that it has eight thousand subordinate organizations, and approximately eight hundred thousand members."

"Knowledge is power," continued Mr. Taber, "and it is only as we brighten the lecture hour, as we study more keenly the problems of agriculture, as they add to the social life and intellectual outlook of the grange membership, can we expect our order to continue to grow and prosper."

"Having traveled from the Atlantic to the Pacific, having visited every grange state, we can say with confidence that better days are in store for those who till the soil. Doubt and discouragement still beset the farmer in some sections. His problems are many and difficult, but conferences like this can be made a tremendous factor in solving his problems."

"We must remember that there can be no weakening in the moral and spiritual qualities of our citizenship if agriculture and the nation move forward as they should. The greatest strength of the grange has been the fact that it has confidently placed emphasis on both spiritual and moral qualities that hold before the membership high ideals of citizenship, of patriotism, and of religious life."

Mr. Taber's subject for the evening was the Grange Lecturer and Public Opinion, stating that public opinion was the most powerful factor in our life. The Grange Lecturer should see that the membership understands the problems of agriculture and has a right attitude toward farming. Agriculture is a business as well as a mode of life, but the farmers' problems will respond to sound business treatment the same as any other calling. The membership should understand that better marketing, orderly production, economy in government, honest enforcement of law, better rural organization, education and team work between country and town are the factors that in the long run will make for permanent and prosperous agriculture.

The Grange Lecturer must recognize that the home is the heart of agriculture. The Grange has lived because it has been founded upon the home and has been seeking to make it brighter, happier, and better. The Grange must build not only better homes but better rural communities and the life of the Grange should touch for good the educational, the social, the spiritual and the financial conditions of every community in New England and the nation.

The lecturer should see that the membership has a proper understanding of the problems of their own organization, to see that the Grange is alert and awake, that it is properly financed, and that the Pomona, State and National organizations function in the interest of rural life.

Grange membership should realize that our liberty and our future are dependent upon public opinion that holds true to the ideals brought to America by the Pilgrim and the Pioneer, carrying love of liberty, faith in God and willingness to work.

NEW ENGLAND GRANGERS WILL TOUR CONNECTICUT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Aug. 25—When the fourteenth annual New England Grange Lecturer's Conference, which is now in session at the Connecticut Agricultural College, is brought to a close Thursday, Grangers from Massachusetts, Maine and Rhode Island will start on a tour of Connecticut, visiting points of historical, educational and industrial interest.

The tour will be divided into two sections, with the Massachusetts and Rhode Island groups making the first section which will spend one day on the road, and the Maine delegation making up the second section, which will spend two days on the road. The first section will be in charge of Charles M. Adams, Assistant Steward of the Connecticut State Grange, and the second section will be in charge of Charles A. Wheeler, Connecticut State Lecturer.

Hartford will be the first city visited by the Grangers, and the building of the Traveler's Insurance Company will be the first point of interest visited. Here the Grangers will be told that the building is worth $5,000,000; is 521 feet high with the tower one of the seven highest in the world; that 4,500 people are employed under its roof; and that the Traveler's Insurance Company has representatives in every town and city in the country.

A visit will also be made to the Connecticut State Capitol Thursday morning, where the Grangers will listen to addresses by State Commissioner of Agriculture Philo T. Platt, Acting Governor Brainerd, and L. H. Healey, a Past Overseer of the National Grange. The House of Representatives and the Senate Chamber will be visited at this time also.

Of further interest in Hartford is the Wadsworth Atheneum and the Morgan Memorial, both of which will be visited Thursday morning. Here Mrs. Berger, the Curator, will show the Grangers some of the worlds choicest specimens of pottery, tapestries, Belgium and Italian laces, as well as paintings and statuary.

Visiting Meriden, the party will make the plant of the International Silver Company their objective, where they will be conducted through the buildings of this industry.

Yale University will be the attraction in New Haven, and at this institution some time will be spent in a tour of the college buildings, the Yale Art School, and the Peabody Museum. The summit of East Rock will also be visited by the Grangers.

From New Haven the drive to New London will next be taken, with a short stop at Hammonasset Beach planned. Points of interest to be visited in New London include the U. S. Naval Submarine Base, and Fort Wright on Fisher's Island, where an inspection of this coast defense will be made.

On their way back to Storrs from New London Thursday night, the Maine delegation will stop in Norwich where they will be entertained by the Norwich Grange. Arthur Avery, master of the grange is chairman of the committee that will welcome the visitors.

WOMAN'S SECRET OF BEAUTY

Beauty lies in the care a woman bestows upon herself and in keeping at bay those dread ailments peculiar to her sex, which drag her down and leave telltale traces upon her countenance. Sparkling eyes, the elastic step and a clear complexion never accompany organic troubles. Distressed expressions, a sallow complexion, dark circles under the eyes, lassitude, headaches and mental depression are the telltale symptoms of women's ailments. Women so troubled should not lose a day in taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, the most successful remedy known to overcome woman's ills and restore health and beauty.

EAST ENDS AND YANTIC BATTLE TO TIE SCORE IN TWILIGHT LEAGUE GAME

In a spectacular contest, the East Ends and the Yantic Mills team battled to a two to two tie, Tuesday evening. The game went the full route of seven innings and was played in the record time of 55 minutes.

Harry Mills and Gil Jones, the rival twirlers hooked up in an exciting pitcher's duel, one being about as effective as the other. Mills allowed seven hits while Jones was touched up for five. Jones also had a slight edge in strikeouts, fanning five, one more than did Mills. Both twirlers received glit-edged support, that of Jones being especially brilliant. Although not hit safely as many times as Mills, Jones was hit much harder than the East Side pitcher. Seven of the East End batters went out via hard liners to the outfield, six of which were caught by E. Hoxie in center. Mills on the other hand in addition to his four strikeouts, assisted in retiring ten more batters via grounders to the box, which showed where the Yantic batters were hitting the ball. Mills ten assists gives him the record for most assists in a twilight game to date.

Yantic got off to a one-run lead in the first frame. Hewitt led off by rolling a grounder to Normandin, and when the East End shortstop threw wild to first Hewitt went down to second. After H. Hoxie had grounded to Mills, and Sweet had fanned, E. Hoxie doubled to left and Hewitt rallied with the initial counter. Jones ended the frame by going out, Murphy to Coughlin.

Yantic had a chance to score again in each of the next two frames, but dumb baserunning ruined their opportunities to push a runner across the plate. Rathbun led off in the second with a double but was caught stealing third while Hewitt was retired in the same manner in the next stanza.

In the fifth, however, Yantic managed to count once more on a walk and two singles. With two out, Hewitt walked and went to second on H. Hoxie's single to left. Big Boy Sweet came through with a one-base hit over second, and Hewitt rode home. E. Hoxie ended the inning with a line drive to Allard.

With their back to the wall, the East Siders launched an attack in the sixth which netted two runs and tied up the game. With one out, Mills got an infield hit to third. Bill Austin shot a line hit to left, and when the ball evaded Marchand, Mills tallied, and Austin went to second. Murphy rolled out, Jones to Sweet. With two out and the tieing run on second the stage for all set for Joe Belair. Joe came through with a dropping Texas league single over first base and Austin tallied with the tieing run. Allard then went out, H. Hoxie to Sweet.

In the final stanza, Yantic made a final bid for the game, but fell short. With one out, McCall drew a pass. Hewitt got an infield hit to third, and McCall took second. H. Hoxie grounded to Mills, and each runner moved up a base. Mills then retired Sweet on an easy grounder to the box.

In addition to the sensational fielding by Mills and E. Hoxie, there were other field plays of note. Allard featured with a fancy catch of Hoxie's drive in the fifth, while Normandin's stop and quick throw of Jones grounder in the sixth was nothing short of highway robbery. The score:

Tonight's Game

Last night's game was just the opposite of the Hallville-Central game which was slow and sluggish, the game last night going the full seven innings in exactly fifty five minutes. From the very start both Yantic and the East Ends played good clean, snappy baseball, both teams furnishing their share of thrills and unlike Monday's game the game went through without a single argument and there was not the least sign of stalling which is a new tactic that one of the teams resorted to in Monday's game. It sure was a great game from the very beginning and everyone no doubt enjoyed it.

Tonight's game between the Eastern Conn. Power Co., and the fighting Saints should be another game well worth watching as both of these teams are playing great ball of late. E. C. P. as a result of the Centrals defeat on Monday night are pretty close to first place and can't very well afford to lose a game not even to the Saints who are fighting gamely to get out of the cellar. Mgr. Case's team is playing great ball of late giving the best teams some hard goes and it was only two weeks ago that they held the Palace to a 6 to 6 tie.

Father Simcox, Dickson or Parish will do the twirling and Sheffcott will catch for the E. C. P. and Chick Stanley at first, Joe Barry or Davis on second, Bill Ringland at short, Whitney at third and Jack Clabby, Lester Hall and Bill Hull in the outfield.

The Saints will line up in the following order, White catch, Zemnike or Spike Liberty pitch, West at first, Dinty Moose at second, Nap Liberty at short, Hoffman at third and Gilbert, Bush and Koslowski in the outfield.

Greeneville Wins Swimming Cup

Greeneville's athletes climbed another notch in prestige by capturing the Inna swimming meet and with it the cup for the championship. With Lake Quest out of it, Greeneville had an easy time of it in every event but the 50 yard dash and the diving. The diving was won by Stevens of Laurel Hill, Elizabeth street surprised by nosing out the Falls for second place. Laurel Hill placed fourth. Summary:

Sr. 50 yard free style, 1st Osiak Falls, 2nd Bartucki, Greeneville; 3rd McHugh, Greeneville.

Jr. 25 yard dash, 1st Tenent, of Greeneville; 2nd, Abigal, Greeneville; 3rd Parcheski, Elizabeth.

PLAYGROUNDS ACTIVITIES
Falls Win Baseball Title

The Playground ball season of 1925 made its final bow yesterday afternoon at the N. F. A. diamond. The "Fade-Out" of the ball season saw the Falls, Champions of American League, striving to wrest supremacy from Greeneville leaders of the National League. A valiant seven-inning struggle brought the Falls, victory by a hair in a 6-5 contest.

Every inning was replete with a maximum amount of real baseball. The game was a struggle from start to finish. The promise of victory kept seesawing back and forth during the entire seven innings. At the beginning of the seventh the score stood five to four. Greeneville made it 5-5 in their half of inning. When the Falls came to bat in their half of the last frame the stage was all set for a baseball climax. Younce took a base on balls. Finnegan hit into a double play. Burnes, next batter, singled. Dosh poled out a one-bagger sending Burnes to second. Lewis was next batter up. With two and one on him, Boreneer, Greeneville's relief pitcher, made a balk while trying to get Burnes off second, giving Burnes third base. Burnes came home on wild throw to second, incidentally procuring for the Falls the Playground World Series. The score:

Playground Track Meet

Today is the day of days in Playground athletic circles. The final track meet of the season, open to all Playgrounds, will be run off on the cinder-path at the N. F. A. grounds. The meet promises to be the best speed exhibition since the Boys Olympic contests.

Every event on the program will give the spectators a sure-fire run for their money. Prospective Forrets, Murchisons and Hubbard's will strive for a first break of the woolen thread in the century and furlong. Budding Nurmi's and Ritolas will fight vallantly for the blue ribbon over longer routes. The broad jump and high jumps will see new Osborne's and Hubbard's leap to fame. The meet will bring forth a scintillating galaxy of playground luminaries.

In the 100 and 220, Epps, of L. H. Robinson of Elizabeth St., and Red Head of Greeneville the favorites. If Epps can last he should cop a prize on 440 as well as first or second in both jumps Greeneville promises to be the dark horse in both relay events.

This final track program should prove to be of tremendous interest in juvenile circles. The crowd expected will be to speak in the mildest of terms, generous. The spectators should be furnished a little bit of comedy on sideline when girls have their sack race and potato race.

The committee in charge of meet has been very fortunate in its choice of officials for this afternoon's performance. "Billy" Bowes, of Greeneville, well known for his past activities in playground athletic contests will serve as official timer of meet. Myles Standish, has consented to fulfil the capacity of clerk of course. Matthew J. Sheridan of Elizabeth St., Ed. Sullivan of Greeneville, Ted Finnegan of Lake St., and Charles Sage, swimming and physical instructor will judge placing of contestants. John P. Murphy, of the Academy grounds will send the boys off from their marks.

BOXING TO BE REVIVED BY DUWELL ATHLETIC CLUB

Plans are under way for an open boxing show some time in September according to announcements made by the executive committee of the Duwell club which has secured Jackie Wilson as matchmaker. It is planned to hold the show at the Duwell Athletic field.

Just what the card will be is undecided as yet but it is planned to give the local boys a chance in the preliminaries and semi-finals. It has been suggested that Young Coulon and Kid Miller be matched for the semi-final bout if these boys can be brought together. Some time ago there was much newspaper talk between these boys but now is a change for them to talk business with Matchmaker Wilson.

Another local boy whom the public would be pleased to see in action is Frankie Busch against some boy in his class. If the local boys are willing to talk reasonably about terms it is probable that they can be put on but if they demand more than they have been getting in other places why Matchmaker Wilson will go outside the city for his talent.

EXPECT GATE OF $40,000 AT KAPLAN-HERMAN BOUT

HARTFORD, Aug. 25.—(A. P.)—State Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue, reported to a conference of state and federal tax officials today that the gate receipts from the Herman-Kaplan featherweight championship fight at Waterbury tomorrow night are estimated to reach $40,000 in the event of favorable weather.

On that amount, the federal and state governments will take approximately $8,000 in taxes and Internal Revenue Collector Eaton will assess the $15,000 guarantee to Kaplan, a Connecticut man, additionally, under the personal income tax. An attendance of 20,000 is figured on and Chief Field Deputy Federal Collector W. Ellery Allyn will be at the arena with a picked squad of twelve revenue men to protect the government's interests.

The conference was held in Collector Eaton's office at the call of Colonel Allyn at the direction of Colonel Eaton. State Tax Commissioner Blodgett was invited to attend. His department will collect $2,000 in taxes if the receipts reach $40,000, and the state athletic commission will take another $2,000, while the federal government's share will be $4,000. George Mulligan, and Edward Curley of Waterbury, promoters of the fight, were also present at the conference.

England has now won two out of three series held for the Wightman Cup, which is designed to be emblematic of the women's international lawn tennis championship.

GIANTS GET FIRM HOLD OF SECOND BY BEATING REDS

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The New York Giants strengthened their hold on second place today by winning the first game of their series with Cincinnati 7 to 6. Catcher Hartley's hitting was the big factor in New York's victory. He doubled in the fourth, and scored on Nehf's single. He cleared the bases with a triple in the fifth and scored the winning run in the eighth on Ferguson's single.

After Young was hit with a pitched ball by Donahue in the sixth inning, he rushed out to the box and took a few punches at the Cincinnati pitcher. Third baseman Pinelli got between the players, and Umpire Quigley carried Young away. Young and Donohue were both put out of the game. The score:

MANN'S HITTING BEATS PIRATES IN CLOSE GAME

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Mann's hitting was responsible for Boston's 2 to 1 victory over the league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates at Braves field this afternoon. After Welsh singled in the first inning he was sent across the plate with the Braves' first run when Mann tripled to the scoreboard. In the sixth, Gautreau's single, Welch's sacrifice and Mann's base hit gave Boston its winning run.

Somerville fans turned out in large numbers to pay honors to their fellow townsman, Harold "Pie" Traynor, the Pirates' third baseman. They presented him with several gifts. His triple after Gooch drove out a two bagger gave Pittsburgh its only run. After the second inning Barnes, the Braves' hurler, held the Pirates to but two hits.

For the third time since 1908 President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh club, came to Boston with his team, as a compliment to Traynor. Score:

DE BERRY'S SINGLE IN NINTH BEATS CARDS

BROOKLYN, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Hank De Berry's single with the bases filled in the ninth scored Dick Cox with the run that gave the Robins a 5 to 4 victory over the Cardinals today. The victory carried Brooklyn within a point of fourth place.

Duster Mails started for the Cards and gave way to Allan Sothoron after pitching six innings. Tiny Osborne was the first pitcher used by the Robins. He allowed only one hit until the seventh when he became wild and was relieved by Jess Petty. In the fifth Fournier hit his 21st home run of the season. Score:

TRIPLE PLAY HELPS INDIANS BEAT ATHLETICS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 25.—(AP)—A triple play executed by Cleveland helped the Indians defeat the Athletics 4 to 3 today.

Miller led off in the second inning with a double and took third on Pertin's single. Galloway hit to Spurgeon, who tagged Perkins out on the base line and threw to L. Sewell in time to get Miller at the plate. Galloway in the meantime had rounded first and was thrown out at second, L. Sewell to J. Sewell.

Walberg prevented Cleveland from scoring until the sixth when Buckeye led off with a single and scored on Jamieson's sacrifice and Lee's single. Score:

YANKS BUNCH HITS AND BEAT WHITE SOX

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—(AP)—New York bunched hits today and easily defeated Chicago 7 to 4 in the first game of the series. Thurston, who started for the locals, was driven off the mound in the first inning. Kerr checked the hitting until the third inning when the Yankees scored two more runs. Edwards the third pitcher to go on the hill for Chicago, pitched a better game but was touched for two runs, one of which was a homer by Meusel in the seventh inning, it being his twenty-fifth of the season. He knocked out his twenty fourth homer off of Kerr in the third inning. No one was on base either time. Jones pitched a good game for the visitors especially in the pinches. Joe Dugan, third baseman of the Yankees was unable to play and probably will be out the rest of the season due to an old injury to his knee. Score:

Breed Theatre

Sam and Ben Lyon as a spectator sits the emotional grip of a stirring drama, the conviction dawns that behind his action and clash of forces the author has concealed a message—a serious life problem which, through fear of detracting from the dramatic interest, has been deliberately half concealed.

Such a drama is "The Necessary Evil," which opens at the Breed Theatre today with Ben Lyon and Viola Dana as featured roles.

Not until the plot had been [illegible] and the interest in [illegible] safely keyed that the men [illegible] prepared "The Necessary Evil" [illegible] disclosed the purpose which they were actuated at the [illegible]. And by the use of an ingenious device they have suggested a problem which is one of the vital interests of today—suggested that problem without stressing it to the impairment of the dramatic story.

"The Necessary Evil" is an adaptation by Stephen Vincent Benet's magazine tale, "Uriah's Son," which tells of a man and his stepson who were in love with the same girl. The rivalry for the hand of the girl is developed into a gripping, pulsing story, in which the interest is held to the final outcome.

Ben Lyon in this colorful play shows more markedly than ever the ripening of his dramatic powers. It is Ben's biggest opportunity to date, and he is seen in a role into which he fits neatly.

Broadway Theater

Another wonderful program of five big R. F. Keith vaudeville acts opens at the Broadway theater tomorrow, so watch next and don't miss it.

William de Mille's latest Paramount production, Men and Women, which comes to the Broadway tomorrow is a fine domestic drama, laid in New York [illegible] it has to do with a young married couple and their longing for the finer things of life—even though [illegible] be beyond their means. Near disaster is the result.

Featured in the leading roles of the production are Richard Dix, Neil Hamilton, Claire Adams and Robert Agnew. Dix is a bank cashier and Miss Adams plays his wife. She receives pretty clothes. Hamilton, in the role of Ned Seabury, is assistant to Dix in the bank. He has been [illegible] Wall Street with great [illegible]. He loves Mrs. Prescott and presents her with valuable gifts, much to the displeasure of the husband.

Men and Women was adapted to the screen by Olga Beranger from the stage play by David Belasco and Henry DeMille, father of the Paramount [illegible] producer.

WOMAN BIGAMIST IS RELEASED FROM NEW LONDON JAIL UNDER BONDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 25.—Agnes Landsberg Stone is in the county jail awaiting the convening of the superior court next week, to answer there to a charge of bigamy. Why she supposed she had the right to marry Dennis Murphy last Christmas, when she was then the wife of Joseph Stone, who was very much alive and in the possession of health and his faculties, is not known, but Agnes did that very thing. She had been married to Stone then since the 14th of August, 1922. Late last July Stone made known here that his wife was the woman who married Murphy and she was arrested for bigamy. In court she demurred through counsel and was held for trial in court next week. She gave a bond then in the sum of $1000, with Charles Bloeser, a Groton barber as surety. Today Bloeser got what the police term "cold feet," went to the clerk of court and wanted to withdraw from the bond. Bloeser was told to produce the woman and she would be committed to jail. Bloeser did this so Agnes now occupies quarters at the county jail. It is reported that Bloeser learned that Agnes and her two husbands were on the street last evening together so he got scared that the woman was not playing fair. He then made up his mind to surrender her that she might get a bond from some one who had more confidence in her.

This evening Mrs. Murphy was released from jail when Louis Liffenson became surety on her bond, which calls for her appearance at the next term of the superior court.

Patrick Brady, claiming to be a railway trackman, was fined $10 and costs. Brady had taken so many "powders" that he was under the impression when he was found down and out near the railroad station, that he was on his way across the river bridge headed for Midway. He offered a promise that he would not be in court again if allowed his freedom this time, but his record was such that the court did not accept the promise at face value. So Brady went to jail.

The funeral of Elizabeth, widow of Hezekiah B. Smith, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her residence, 55 Huntington street and was attended by a large gathering of mourners, including members of patriotic societies. The services were conducted by Rev. Myron E. Gengler and Rev. Charles E. Spoonhower and officers of the Women's Relief Corps. The bearers were members of the Sons of Veterans. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of Julia Poblinski, three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Poblinski, Harrison St., were held Tuesday. The child was fatally burned Sat. evening when her dress became ignited by the burning of matches which she had obtained during the temporary absence from the kitchen, of her parents. The funeral was held this morning at 9 o'clock from the National Polish church. Burial was in the National Polish cemetery, at Norwich.

Mrs. Raymond Bailey 742 Tilley street; James Valerio, 154 Hempstead street; Miss Emma Macgowan, Bancdegee avenue, Groton; Theodore Pierson, R. F. D., No. 2, Waterford; Mrs. Matilda Young, Groton; Mrs. Anna Darling, Fishers Island; Lieut. Com. Russell Lucas, United States Coast Gyard revenue cutter Beale and William Bonnaville, United States Coast Guard destroyer Burrows, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dimissed today.

Two youths were discovered attempting to burglarize the Peerless Bowling alleys, Golden street, early this morning. The youthful crooks did not accomplish much, for they were scared away. The crooks went to the rear of the bowling alleys where they smashed a window. The sound of the crashing glass was heard by Mrs. Emily Montague, residing next door, who communicated her information to Patrolman John Sullivan, who was at the corner of Green and Golden streets. The officer went to the rear of the alleys over a fence the crooks leaped over a fence that permited them to escape by going through a yard and to Green street, where they disappeared in the darkness. The bowling alley has suffered numerous breaks by youths, presumably among a gang that loiters about the place evenings.

Following the arrest a fortnight ago of Sam Santinella, 44 Shaw street and George Librizzi, 135 Jefferson avenue, public service operator charged with violation of the prohibition law, Arthur Messer, 39 Simmer street was arrested this noon charged with violation of the liquor law and in the arrest of Messer, it is alleged that his apprehension is the sequence to the arrest Sunday night of Eric Swanson, who, it is claimed, is an agent of Messer. The trio of arrests has revealed that a feud exists between the liquor element in New London and more serious trouble than mere arrests for bootlegging is predicted by those intimate with the leaders of New London's liquor ring. It is an acknowledge fact that considerable jealousy exists between Santinella and Messer and it is openly asserted by both that the other has turned "squealer" in supplying the authorities with information as to the violations of the liquor law in this city. This was revealed Sunday night, on the arrest of Swanson, for he was taken into custody on information supplied the authorities by James Guardabasso and a life-guard at Ocean Beach. Tocosta, brother-in-law of Santinella's day's arrest was on information furnished by Louis Villano, of Tenth street, who claims to have purchased a gallon of alcohol from Messer several days ago. It was at the home of Villano that the alcohol taken from Swanson and which it is claimed was the output of Messer, was to be delivered. Santinella has openly asserted that Messer supplied the authorities either in person or through agents, with the information that led to the arrest of Santinella and Librizzi.

The police have obtained a clue which may lead to the arrest of youths who robbed Mrs. Lena Shapiro, 2 Tinker court, of two diamond rings and a small amount of money, Sunday evening, when a bathhouse at Ocean Beach, hired by Mrs. Shapiro was entered while the woman was in bathing.

Mrs. Alice Scagge, of Huntington, W. Va., and daughter, Mrs. Anna Lehman, Ashland, Ky., are paying lengthy visit to Mrs. Scages' sister, Mrs. Jennie Taylor, 96 Blinman street. Mrs. Scaggs and Mrs. Taylor have not seen each other in 22 years.

Mrs. Mary E. Taylor, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is ill at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. David Quinn, Green street, Mrs. Taylor, who is a former resident here is an annual visitor to New London.

James Devibe, formerly of New London, now employed in New York, where he is house detective at the Hotel Plaze, has concluded several days' visit with friends in this city.

Francis Sullivan, 50 Norwoc avenue, reported to the police this evening that while his automobile was parked in front of his residence last night a thief visited the car and stole a spare tire and rim.

Patrolman Michael Dorsey, is absent from his beat at Ocean Beach, being confined to his home at Montauk as a result of stomach trouble, with which disorder he has been troubled for some time.

The city is being elaborately decorated in preparation for the mammoth American Legion parade, which will conclude a three days' session Saturday. Already the electric light poles on both sides of State street have been decorated with American flags and bunting and the entire front of the city hall is draped with varied colored flags and bunting. Many of the places of business on State and Bank streets will be decorated before Saturday.

John Hendry, of Bank street, employed many years as bookkeeper by the Central Coal company, was transferred from his home to Lawrence-Memorial hospital this evening suffering from ulcers o the stomach. His condition is considered serious.

PEEPING TOWN FINED CAUGHT IN AN ALLEY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 25.—Jimmy Dacos's snape is against his claim anyone who searches for him. It was that way with Policeman Howard Sloan when he saw Jimmy in a alleyway on North Bank street after midnight Monday. Now James has the reputation of going into alleyways especially when there are windows through which a view of the interior of bedrooms may be obtained. When Sloan saw that Jimmy was in view he watched him and observed that Jimmy was getting a view of the bedroom where there was no drawn window. The policeman went after Jimmy and got him. The latter had excuses but they were not accepted by the officer and in court today, they were not given credence. Jimmy's story was that he was anxious about for employment to and in the transfer of baggage from a taxicab to the railway station. He told some other alleged facts but they were not related to the subject under investigation, so Judge Crump imposed a fine on Jimmy and at the same time warned him against being presented for a like offense in the future, recalling to his attention the fact that he had on two previous occasions at least been convicted of the offense. The colored man had a friend at court and she produced the $5.00 to show that she had confidence in James and she paid that rather than to see her friend go to jail. She told Judge Crump that in taking him into her custody that will be beneficial to him of [illegible] needs them.

CORONER INVESTIGATES DEATH OF SAILOR HINIFY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 25.—An investigation into the cause of death of John Hinify, has begun. The sailor, who was stationed aboard the United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 188 at the state pier, suffered a fractured skull and lacerated brain, early Sunday morning when thrown against a tree, while riding on Montauk avenue in a machine owned and driven by William Deets another sailor. Formal inquiry was instituted at the police station this afternoon by Coroner Jeremiah J. Desmond, of Norwich. All the witnesses, including Deets, Frances Moss and Ralph Wheeler, sailors, who were also passengers in the death car, together with Patrolman Henry Sylvia and autopsist, who happened along when the accident occurred, related their version of the fatality. The investigation was concluded but it will be several days before Coroner Desmond renders his findings.

Deets is under arrest without bail on a technical charge of manslaughter.

NEW LONDON CHINESE FEAR VENGEANCE OF TONGS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 25.—With the outbreak of another Tong was in metropolitan cities early today when a number of celestials were slain, local Chinese restaurant proprietors and laundrymen displayed no little signs of fear for their lives. In one instance it became known, that a Chinese restaurant proprietor would make application to City Manager William A. Holt for permission to carry a revolver as a protection to himself and his employes. The alarm expressed by the local Chinese eclipses the fear they displayed several months ago when the Tong war was started in New York and extended to Connecticut cities as well as to Rhode Island and Massachusetts. The local Chinese received telephone messages at 2 o'clock this morning that the Hip Sing Tongs were on the war path in New York, Boston and St. Louis and the informers warned the members of the On Leong Tong to be on the alert for attacks by the warring factions who it is believed, will again strike in the Connecticut cities.

NORWICH TOWN

Norwich Town friends of Warren Stapleton, a former resident here, learn that he has a fine position at Atlantic City, N. J.

Rev. and Mrs. Edward H. Smith and family, of Ing Hok, China, are to be guests over Sunday of Rev. and Mrs. Frank Fuller of Stafford. Rev. Mr. Smith is to speak at the Congregational church, where Rev. Mr. Fuller is pastor. After returning to Norwich for a few days' stay with relatives, the Smith family will pay a visit to Fall River Congregational church, from which Rev. Mr. Smith is commissioned in his work in China, going thence to Philadelphia to visit relatives, leaving for the Pacific Coast on their homeward journey about September first, after a year's leave of absence in this country. Rev. and Mrs. Smith will be accompanied to China by their youngest daughter only, the two older girls expecting to remain in this country.

During the Christian Endeavor convention at Storrs recently, Rev. Mr. Smith was present for the week, giving a talk daily.

While in his native land the past year, he has been welcomed into many churches, being freely called upon to supply various pulpits where his services have always been helpful and inspiring.

Rev. and Mrs. James B. Aldrich and sons, Lewis and Mark Aldrich, returned recently to the Methodist parsonage, following ten days' motor trip through the White Mountains, New Hampshire, and Vermont, extending the trip as far as Canada. They were accompanied on the journey by Rev. and Mrs. Aldrich's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Comstock, and their children, Mary and Allen Comstock, of Haddenfield, N. J.

The regular Sunday morning service, also the Young People's Christian Endeavor meetings at the First Methodist Episcopal church, are to be resumed Sunday, August 30th.

Services at this church were discontinued for two Sundays, owing to Willimantic Camp Meeting. The Thursday evening prayer services also the Sunday evening preaching services, are not to be resumed until after September first.

Miss Mary Bacheler and her brother Thomas Bacheler of East Town street, had as callers Sunday evening, their nephew, Rev. Theodore Bacheler and family of Talcottville, who are passing the summer at the Fuller cottage at Gardner Lake. The family was returning from Willington, where Rev. Mr. Bacheler had preached that day, in a former pastorate. The Norwich Town Bacheler family, were guests of their relatives at Gardner Lake, Monday, making the trip by automobile.

In his sermon at the First Congregational church, at Sunday morning worship, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey preached from Hilippians 4:10, with reference to the first half of the verse—But I rejoiced in the Lord greatly, that now at the last your care of me hath flourished again. In display in the vestibule at this church, are some clever drawings by George F. Hyde, portraying the olden time church, also a record of statistics, etc., arousing much interest among parishioners. Rev. Mr. Bailey, in the course of his instructive sermon, said it was from this display that the idea presented itself to suggest a theme for his sermon.

The main thought connected with the theme, was the ministerial relief given by the funds accumulated for that purpose by the Congregational church. This church has subscribed $1,800 to the Pilgrim Memorial fund. The full total of this fund is eventually to be $8,000,000. At present $6,175,000 is being accumulated. Ministers over forty and under sixty years of age, can go into the annuity fund but those beyond sixty years of age being eligible to this annuity fund, will have to resort to the income from the Ministerial Relief fund. Much emphasis was laid on the good flourished as found in the text, as this applied to the substantial amount given by this church, which was an example to show how this church is flourishing, as the Pilgrim Memorial fund is flourishing. Rev. Mr. Bailey was also desirous of having the members of his congregation know that the servants of the church are better looked after now, than ever before. The church is to be thanked for its wisdom and its spirit. Prior to 1910, the average salary of the Congregational minister, was only $500. Following the church service, Rev. Edward H. Smith was in charge of the Men's Forum, giving an entertaining talk on China.

In the absence of President Arthur Avery, the leader scheduled for the Young People's Christian Endeavor service, his sister Miss Louise Avery, presided. The topic was Deeds of Envy, Anger and Hatred, with many Scripture references. The meeting was held on the lawn at the rear of the chapel.

STUDY FRENCH PEOPLE BEFORE STUDYING LANGUAGE

A short exploratory course in French is proving a popular study at Holderbeck Junior High School, Los Angeles, Calif. It will furnish an appreciative background to the study of the language. The human aspect is kept uppermost through study and discussion of the manners and customs of the people and drill in the pronunciation of frequently used French words, with a minimum of actual language study. Pictures, postcards, slides, plus personal experiences of the teacher and others, make the French people very real to the students. The school library carries books adapted to children's reading, and teachers report that the cultural results of this study are seen in other classes—music, geography, history, science, an appreciation and especially in the regular modern language classes.

Lipscomb seated in the dead of the three cabin cockpit of Amarth, Ga., representing all the schools of the city, public and private, white and colored. During the past year this organization disbursed considerable sums in community service. A mountain boy and girl were maintained in college and was supplied to underprivileged children, a bed was endowed in a children's home, needy pupils were furnished clothing to enable them to keep in school, a playroom and play and industrial equipment were given a local tuberculosis sanitarium, and Christmas joy was brought to many overlooked little ones.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Stock pces moved irregularly higher today in a market that was featured by wild speculation in a few motor stocks and specialties. Chrysler was the spectacular performer, soaring twenty points to a new high record price at 145 on what was widely characterized as urgent buying by a trapped short interest. This represented a gain of nearly thirty points in two days. White Motors rallied over six points to 102 1-8 and then eased to 101 3-8.

Waves of profit taking and bear selling, apparently inspired by stiffening money rates and growing uneasiness of investors over recent fluctuations in many issues, swept over the market at intervals throughout the day but they were generally well absorbed and failed to stem the rising tide of prices. Widespread gasoline price cuts in the east and middle west did not bring out any extensive liquidation of the oil shares, although the Pan-American issues were conspicuously heavy.

Further accumulation of the railroad shares, particularly these with promising merger or higher dividend prospects, lifted several southern and prices for the year. Among them were Frisco common, Seaboard Air Line common and preferred, Western Maryland, Wabash common and Southern Railway.

Standard industrials were again mixed. U. S. Steel common closed fractionally lower at 123 3-4 with trading in relatively small volume. Baldwin crossed 117 and then fell back to 115 1-4 for a net gain of 3-4. American Can dropped 3 1-4 points to 242 3-4.

Losses of one to two points also were recorded by American Sugar Refining, American Water Works, Coca Cola, Colorado Fuel, Cuba Cane Sugar preferred, Electric Power & Light certificates, Fisk Rubber, International Harvester, Montana Power, Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, St. Joseph's Lead and Woolworth.

General Railway Signal broke 18 points to 322. Weakness also developed in Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Fleischmann, Havana Electric, Westinghouse Air Brake and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

Bullish demonstrations in such issues as Foundation Company, Pierce-Arrow common and preferred; Postum Cereal, Sears-Roebuck, International Business Machine, Mathieson Alkali, New York Shipbuilding, Railway Steel Spring and U. S. Realty resulted in net gains of two to six points. In addition, new peak prices for the year were established by Allied Chemical, American Linseed, Brown Shoe, Columbia Gas, Eaton Axle and Philip Morris.

Withdrawals of funds by interior banks in apparent anticipation of heavy north-end requirements was reflected in stiffer money rates. Call loans renewed at 4 1-4 per cent, as against 4 yesterday, and then advanced to 4 1-2, closing at the top. Time money also was firmer, 60 to 90 days funds being quoted at 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 per cent, instead of 4 to 4 3-8, with corresponding advances in the longer maturities. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A sharp drop of fifty points to 16.50 cents in Polish zlotys featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held firm around $4.85 3-8 but French francs were slightly lower around 4.68 cents. Norwegian and Danish kroner maintained their gains of the past few days, ruling around 17.04 and 23.90 cents, respectively.

DR. CHARLES OSGOOD'S DIVORCED WIFE SEEKS INCREASED ALIMONY

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 25—A fortune left to Dr. Chas. Osgood of New York and Windham, Me., by the late Charles Henry Osgood of Norwich, is the storm centre of cross actions brought in superior court here by Dr. Osgood and his former wife, Mrs. Lorena M. Osgood of New York and Paris.

Eight years ago Mrs. Osgood secured a divorce from Dr. Osgood on grounds of cruelty. She was also awarded the custody of a then two year old son and alimony of $400 monthly. Subsequent to the divorce her former husband came into a fortune of nearly a million, left in the will of his father. Mrs. Osgood has now filed petition to alter the divorce decree in order to obtain increased alimony and a separate fund to support and educate the boy. She asks further that a provision of the decree allowing the father to have his sons company for three months of each year be also altered as she alleges the father has exerted influence on the son to turn him against his mother.

In a counter action Dr Osgood seeks to alter the decree to give the boy into either his custody or into the care of Mrs. Maude Hyde of Norwich, the child's grandmother. Dr. Osgood will contend in the hearing to be held September 1st that the mother is unfitted to have custody of the son and that the boy's real love is for his grandmother, whom he calls Aunt Maudie.

Dr. Osgood married his second wife some months ago, and now maintains a real residence in Windham a short distance from the house where in his first marriage took place in 1913.

NORWICH COUPLE WERE MARRIED 60 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Thurston of No. 13 Town street, who are spending the summer at their cottage at Quonochontaug beach, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary and also the 86th birthday of Mr. Thurston, on Monday, August 17th, with a big family gathering.

Mrs. Thurston's only sister, who was a bridesmaid at the wedding, and who is now 83 years of age, was also present, as was Mr. Thurston's sister, who is 76 years old, and who celebrated her 50th wedding anniversary four years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurston were united in marriage at Oxford, Mass., August 17, 1865. Their union was blessed with seven children, three of whom are now living, H. N. Thurston of Dayton, Mass., Mrs. J. T. Cunningham of Springfield, Mass., and Mrs. John McCabe of Mystic, Conn.

These children, with grand children, nieces and nephews, great nieces and nephews, cousins and friends, to the number of 55 sat down to a well filled table, in the center of which was a large wedding cake and birthday cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurston received many gifts from relatives and friends among them being $60 in gold, a dollar for each year of their married life. The couple also received the best wishes of their neighbors at the beach, who called during the day to offer congratulations.

The house was beautifully decorated with flowers which had been received from Mr. and Mrs. Thurston's many friends at the beach.

HURT IN ACCIDENT CLAIMS $15,000 DAMAGES

[illegible] D. Young of East Lyme and Theron A. Avery of East Lyme are made defendants in a damage action brought against them by Harriet W. Allen of New London and filed Tuesday in the superior court office on this city.

Plaintiff claims that on Dec. 15 1924 she was riding in a motor vehicle owned by Irene D. Young and operated by William S. Young, husband of Irene D. Young. They were driving on the highway leading from Colchester to New London.

At the time in question Theron E. Avery was operating a motor vehicle along the highway in an opposite direction.

The two vehicles collided and the plaintiff was severely injured. She claims $15,000 damages.

S. A. DOLBEARE TAKEN TO BACKUS HOSPITAL

Sidney A. Dolbeare of Gardner Lake [illegible] well known W. B. [illegible] is [illegible] in connection with [illegible] believed to have been brought on as the result of injuries received some weeks ago when he was in an automobile accident on the Gardner lake [illegible].

Mr. Dolbeare had seemingly recovered from his injuries but began to develop symptoms of brain concussion and his condition rapidly became worse, until it was necessary to remove him to the hospital. Mr. Dolbeare remains in a semi-conscious condition most of the time and his condition is considered serious.

COLCHESTER ACCIDENT CASE CONTINUED TWO WEEKS

The case of Captain John L. Kaiser, instructor attached to the 169th Infantry, C. N. G., held for reckless driving, came up before Justice of the Peace Fred Baker in Colchester, Monday afternoon, and was continued for two weeks.

Kaiser was held on the reckless driving charge after an accident in Colchester, Saturday when he ran down Kive Goldstein, 70, a hotel owner in that town. Mr. Goldstein's condition was reported as comfortable Monday night at Mt. Sinai hospital, Hartford, where he was taken following the accident, but it has not yet been determined whether or not he is suffering from a fractured skull.

MAYOR WATERS INVITED TO STATE FAIR

Mayor Milo R. Waters, with all other mayors of Connecticut cities has received an invitation to be guest of Mayor Norman C. Stevens of Hartford, at the Connecticut state fair, on September 8th. While in Hartford the visiting mayors will enjoy luncheon at the fairgrounds and later go on a tour of the grounds and exhibits.

held at Manresa College, Keyser Island, off South Norwalk.

Cards received from George N. Beardow and party who are enjoying an automobile trip through northern New York, locate them at Niagara Falls.

Napoleon Pepin of North A street has returned from spending a week in Montreal, P. Q., Canada.

Ernest Potvin of Willimantic was a business caller in the village Tuesday.

On Saturday evening a pleasant birthday surprise party was given Miss Rose Chennette at her home on Norwich Avenue. The evening was spent with games and music. Refreshments were served by the hostess. Miss Chennette received many handsome gifts.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

The school of nursing connected with the William W. Backus Hospital in Norwich, Conn., is now registering students for the September classes. This school is registered in Connecticut and the course of instruction is two years and four months given in a general hospital of 90 beds. Students must be graduates of grammar school and have one year of high school work. A new nurses' residence opened this year affords each student all of the comforts and conveniences of home.

SUES TO COLLECT CLAIM AGAINST LENNEN ESTATE

George E. Parsons of Norwich and Jesse H. Wilcox of Stonington, administrators of the estate of the late James Lennen of this city are made defendants in an action brought in the superior court by Lucius H. Wilcox of this city to collect $25,480 from the estate. Mr. Wilcox represents in his complaint that at the time of the death of James Lennen, and for a great many years prior thereto, the plaintiff and said Lennen had been close personal friends. That on Dec. 5, 1918 said James Lennen was severely assaulted and beaten on the head requiring him to depend upon the escort of some person. On Jan. 1, 1919 Mr. Lennen became afflicted with a bodily ailment, which required him to wear medical appliances and these appliances required frequent fitting and adjustments.

That on Jan. 1, 1919, the said James Lennen requested the plaintiff to act as his escort and companion. That on Jan. 1, 1919 the plaintiff and James Lennen entered into an oral agreement, that at his death, by will or otherwise, the sum of $25,000 would be paid him for his services.

NORWICH PEOPLE ATTEND OHIO RUDD REUNION

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Dowsett who are enjoying an extended western trip, are last reported as being in Sandusky, Ohio, with Cleveland, Ohio, as their home centre, where they are visiting Mr. Dowsett's cousins.

A distinct feature of the vacation was the thirty-sixth annual reunion of the Rudd families of Ohio, relatives of Mr. Dowsett. The reunion was held this year at Ashtabula at the home of Mrs. Alice Rudd Williams, with the largest attendance in the history of the families.

The record of having made the longest trip to attend was divided between Mr. and Mrs. Dowsett and Mr. and Mrs. Edwain A. Roberts, the latter the niece of John D. Rockefeller, who came from Lexington, Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. Dowsett will remain in the west about two weeks longer.

TROLLEYS RESUME FORMER STOP AT HARLAND'S CORNER

It is gratifying to Norwich Town residents, who take the Yantic trolley car for the city, that they are again privileged to get on at Harland's Corner at the same location as in past years. This affords a safer place for the trolley to stop in making the down trip out of Yantic, owing to the increasing automobile traffic congestion. The Connecticut Company conductors were instructed about a week ago, to begin stopping again at the old station.

Passengers alighting from the up car going toward Yantic are to continue to the old location.

Often times automobilists do not stop at this dangerous curve when passengers are going on and off trolley cars and previous to this change people were obliged to get on in the middle of the street.

HIT BY FORD COUPE SUES FOR $10,000

Through her guardian, John Cafaro of Groton, Nellie Cafaro, a minor, of Groton, has filed suit in the superior court [illegible] J. M. Garrison, of Boston, for $10,000 claiming that on July 13, 1925, the plaintiff, while crossing on foot, the public highway in Groton, the defendant driving a Ford coupe, in a reckless manner, at an excessive rate of speed, did run the plaintiff causing her body to be severely and painfully bruised, her head, legs and body bruised, and to become permanently injured.

WATERFORD MAN SEEKS DAMAGES OF $15,000

Damages of $15,000 are asked by Arthur J. Martin of Waterford in a superior court action which he has brought against Louis Lazowitz and Maurice J. [illegible] of New London. The plaintiff represents that on May 6, 1925 the plaintiff was operating his motorcycle on the road from New London to New Haven when the defendant carelessly and negligently struck him with their automobile causing serious injuries to himself and damaging his motorcycle.

TOLLAND CO. SUPERIOR COURT AT ROCKVILLE SEPT. 8TH.

At Rockville, cases are being prepared by State's Attorney Thomas F. Noone for the September session of the Tolland County superior court which will open with a civil term September 8. The exact number of criminal cases to be heard is not known yet due to the large number of appeals pending.

The state police are co-operating with the state's attorney in preparing the cases. Judge Isaac Wolfe of New Haven, now in Europe, is to sit at this term. He is expected to return shortly. Considerable civil business is also to be heard.

One of the cases is a $12,000 damage suit of Francis A. Minor against Samuel Ginsberg. This resulted from an automobile accident at the Union Garage, at Rockville, April 8, when Ginsberg drove his automobile into the garage and struck a car upon which Minor was working. Minor has since been forced to get about on crutches. A conference was held in Rockville August 11 in an effort to settle the suit.

On September 8 a naturalization session will also be held, Commissioner Allen F. Church of Boston will be in charge.

YOUNG MAN FROM WESTERLY IS TO STUDY AT ROME.

For excellence in scholarship during his courses at LaSalle academy, Providence, and St. Charles college, Catonsville, Md., and as the result of attaining the highest mark in a competitive examination for the Catholic Young men of Rhode Island, Joseph Lamb of Westerly, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lamb, has been appointed by Rt. Rev. William Hickey, D. D. Bishop of Rhode Island, to pursue his studies for the next six years at the American college in Rome.

Mr. Lamb is preparing himself for the priesthood and his scholastic standing has always been excellent during his studies at LaSalle and St. Charles college. In the competitive examination held recently, eighteen boys entered and Mr. Lamb received the highest rating.

He was graduated from LaSalle in 1923, and from St. Charles college in 1925. He expects to leave for Rome in October and will remain there for the next six years to pursue his studies.

ASKS PROPERTY TRANSFER BE DECLARED VOID

Joseph A. Stanners of New London, administrator of the estate of Mary Packer Clark, late of New London, has filed suit against Lizzie Clark Rogers of New London, to have declared void a certain conveyance of property. It is alleged in the complaint that April 26, 1923 Mary Packer Clark was the owner of valuable real estate in New London. That on or about that date Mary Packer Clark was in poor health suffering from various bodily infirmities and was then 83 years of age. April 26, 19[illegible] Mary Packer Clark conveyed the real estate to Lizzie Clark Rogers, the defendant. It is alleged the conveyance was made without consideration and as a result of undue influence brought to bear on Mary Packer Clark. The plaintiff asks the court to declare the conveyance void.

Her maiden name was Mabel Wright and they were married June 30, 1915. The statutory offense is alleged to have been committed between September 1, 1923 and August 19, 1925 at New London. There are three children, Ethel, aged 9; Robert, aged 7 and Vivian, aged 3. Ethel and Robert are with the plaintiff. He asks a divorce and custody of the two children now with him.

CHARGES WIFE DESERTED HIM IN APRIL, 1920

Charging desertion Edward V. Hall of New London has started divorce proceedings in the superior court against his wife, Imogene L. Hall of New London. Her maiden name was Imogene L. Cook and they were married November 24, 1915. Desertion since April 10, 1920 is alleged and the plaintiff claims a divorce. The papers in the case were filed Tuesday with the clerk of the court in this city.

COLCHESTER WOMAN SUES TO DIVORCE HUSBAND

John Oxley James of New Rochelle, N. Y., is being sued for divorce by his wife, Esther L. James of Colchester. The papers in the case were filed Tuesday with the superior court clerk in this city. The couple were married March 19, 1914 and the wifes maiden name was Esther Langford.

She claims he deserted her during the month of May 1916. There is one child, Janet James, aged 9 year. A divorce and custody of the child are asked for by the plaintiff.

Children sent to School Healthy

Many of the children in Connecticut entering school this fall will start their school career in a normal, physical condition. This has been made possible by the monthly attendance at the well child conference for pre-school children, which have been held in 41 towns in Connecticut.

Each child has received a thorough physical examination, and mothers who are most interested in their welfare have been in touch with their family physicians so that all handicaps in the shape of physical defects have been corrected.

There is a monthly well child conference in Wauregan. Mothers should avail themselves of this opportunity by attending the September conference in Company Hall, Wednesday, September 2, from 2 to 4 p. m.

CARPENTER'S WIDOW GIVEN AWARD FOR DEATH OF HER HUSBAND

Compensation Commissioner James J. Donohue of this city has filed with the clerk of the superior court his finding in the case of Mary Esther Morris of Parrsboro, N. S., dependent widow of the late Stephen Morris of Norwich, claimant against William S. Spencer of Norwich, employer.

May 2, 1925, Mr. Morris was employed as a carpenter in the construction of the new school house on East Main St. He fell in the rear of the building on the second floor, sustaining a fracture of the skull which resulted in death almost immediately. It is found and agreed that the fatal injury arose out of and in the course of the deceased employment. It is also found, according to the decision, that the employe left surviving him, his wife and that she is the total dependent of the deceased. The deceased also left three children, Elizabeth Josephine Morris, Mark Hamilton Morris and Stephen Lloyd Morris.

Besides the payment of all medical and hospital bills including the call for the ambulance, the respondents are ordered to pay $100 towards the funeral expenses and compensation to the widow for a period of 312 weeks, payments to date from May 3, 1925, at the rate of $18 a week, accrued payments from May 3, 1925 to Aug. 29th both dates inclusive totaling $306 to be made in a lump sum and weekly thereafter.

HUMAN FLY CLIMBS WAUREGAN HOTEL BLINDFOLDE

James Smith, youngest human fly in the game conquerd ethe Wauregan Hotel building, Tuesday night, making the climb to the top window of the hotel while blindfolded. The final climb over the cornice of the building, which was beyond his reach was made without the blindfold, Smith using the rope long enough to allow him to get one hand onto the roof, from where he swung himself up and onto the roof completing the climb.

The start was made from the ground with blindfold already placed and the entire climb was made in about 20 minutes, Smith taking each story with seeming ease, although from the ground it looked [illegible] as if he was having a hard time of it [illegible] as he left the ground below him.

Owing to the sloping roof of the hotel and the situation of the chimneys the bicycle stunt, which was advertised for last Friday, was not carried out Tuesday night. A crowd of several hundred people watched the climb.

Smith leaves this week for Providence where he is to try several buildings and it is expected that he will return to Norwich in the future to climb the court house building while blindfolded.

LOCAL VOITURE DISCUSSES GRAND PROMENADE PLANS

Conductor William A. Anderson and members of the wrecking crew of Voiture Locale No. 743, La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, held a meeting at the local Legion post rooms, Tuesday night, and discussed plans for the Grande Promenade of the Voiture, to be held at New London on Friday evening of this week.

Voiture Locale is in charge of the "prisoners" that evening and also has charge of most of the degree work of the evening. At a recent session of the voiture the work of the locale wrecking crew was commented upon most favorably by state officers and it is expected that the work at New London will be of even smoother nature and provide no little pleasure for Voyageurs attending the promenade.

The voiture activities begin in the morning, Friday, and continue throughout the day, winding up in the evening with a big street parade and the initiation at the state armory.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR MISS CATHERINE CONEFREY

SAMUEL MINGO HELD ON CHARGE OF THEFT

Samuel Mingo, 16, of this city, was arrested Tuesday night by Sergt. John T. Casey and Officer Patrick Shahan on a charge of theft. It is alleged that Mingo appropriated a sweater coat from the Norwich Steam Laundry truck on which he was riding with the regular driver. The alleged theft took place several days ago and the owner of the laundry saw him wearing the sweater coat Tuesday evening and his arrest followed. The sweater coat is owned by a Colchester customer of the laundry. Mingo is out on bonds of $100 for his appearance in the city court this (Wednesday) morning.

Playgrounds Handiwork Exhibit

An interesting display of handiwork accomplished by girls at the Norwich playgrounds during the summer, is now on exhibition in the windows of the Boston Store, and is attracting considerable attention. The work is a high grade and reflects credit on the girls who finished the work and also on the teachers and instructors at the playgrounds. The display includes baby layettes, which are to be given to the United Workers, basketry, rugs, dresses, school bags and novelties. Work by the younger children includes pencil holders, needle books and holders, all together making a display well worth viewing.

HAS BROUGHT SUIT AGAINST SAVINGS BANK

Jennie Manning of New London has brought suit in the superior court against The Savings Bank of New London. It is claimed by the plaintiff that on or before June 20, 1923, the plaintiff loaned $2,000 to the defendant and that the defendant received $3,000 for the use of the plaintiff. The $3,000 was found to be due the plaintiff, on an account then and there stated between them. Though the money is due the plaintiff the defendant has never paid the same. Plaintiff claims $3,000 damage.

SAMUEL BLONDER FILES SUIT FOR $2,000 DAMAGES

Samuel Blonder of New London is made the defendant in a $2,000 damage action brought in the superior court by Aldo Guilliani of New London. Plaintiff claims that on April 1, 1924, defendant had in his possession a Liberty touring car, value $2,000, belonging to the plaintiff. Defendant, on that day, used the car without authority, met with an accident, damaged the car and shortly thereafter converted the same to his use.

MOTION PICTURE EXCHANGE TO BE REMOVED FROM CONN.

Announcement Made by Will H. Hays, President of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America—Mr. Hays Asserted That No More Contracts Will Be Made For Shipment of Films Into Connecticut Until the Situation is Clarified.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Members of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America will remove all exchanges from Connecticut at the conclusion of existing contracts, President Will H. Hays announced today.

Mr. Hays denied reports that shipment of films into the state had been stopped because of the taxes imposed by Connecticut but added that no further contracts would be made until the situation had been remedied.

"The exhibitors, producers and distributors are united and unanimous in their conclusions that the situation is impossible," he said.

"The Connecticut law which provides for censorship of political censorship of a method of expression and for a tax of a confiscatory nature is as unjust in its provisions and conceptions as it is impossible.

"It is a most unfortunate condition, placing an entirely unnecessary and oppressive burden in the amusement of the people, and placing in the hands of one man the determination of what method of that amusement shall be.

"This is a serious economic problem. There is relief for the picture theatre owners, producers and distributors [illegible] an appeal."

OFFERS TO PAY STATE TAX ON MOTION PICTURE FILMS

HARTFORD, Aug. 26—(A. P.)—An offer to pay the state tax on motion [illegible] arrangement [illegible] will be satisfactory to the tax [illegible] even to payment of the tax before entry of the films into this state was made to Tax Commissioner Burpett today by Charles C. Pettijohn of New York, chief counsel for the motion picture distributing agencies. Details of the agreements which means the collection of the tax from distributors to the tax rate at least for the present, would be completed at a conference to be held in New Haven tomorrow.

While the offer came voluntarily all payments will be made "under protest" Commissioner Blodgett said following a conference at the Capitol with Mr. Pettijohn, Benedict M. Holden, counsel for the distributors in this state, and special Agent John J. [illegible].

The distributors will pay the tax under agreements to be made tomorrow. Mr. Pettijohn, said, but this will not affect the method of distribution of films to the theatre owners. He said that films will be shipped by parcel post and express for the present as the trucking agencies were moved from New Haven to New York today.

Mr Pettijohn placed the records of the New York and Boston distributing offices at the disposal of the commissioner for the purpose of collecting the tax. This proposal would include the [illegible] officials of the department [illegible] the books at these offices or any similar arrangement suitable to the tax commissioner, he said.

The small theatre owners will be protected by the proposed arrangements, Mr. Jettijohn said, declaring that it was for this reason the distributors were willing to make arrangements for payment of the tax. "We have borrowed about $90,000, "he said," to meet the tax payments and do not intend to allow the owners of the small theatres to suffer, if we can prevent it."

The closing of the New Haven distributing offices, today will force about 500 persons into unemployment, he estimated. "We are sorry this has to be so," he said, "but it is necessary. Our distributing companies are owned by individual stockholders, numbering many thousands, and many are small shareholders. It is necessary to protect their interests, and the New Haven office would be operated at a loss, so we must find other means of distribution."

PICTURE DISTRIBUTORS TO LEAVE NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Efforts of the fight being made by the motion picture producers and distributors against Connecticut's new tax on motion picture films were apparent today when the colony of distributors of motion picture films for Connecticut theaters, located here, began to break camp preparatory to leaving the state. It is expected that by Saturday practically every distributor will have withdrawn beyond the borders of Connecticut.

It will then be necessary, it was said here today for individual theater owners to go elsewhere to obtain films and as these films will be shipped into the state by parcel post or express, it will compel the exhibitors to pay the tax.

It was the prediction among owners of small neighborhood motion picture theaters today that many of them would be compelled to close their places immediately and that others would follow suit in a short time. The owners declared that they would be unable to meet the tax on the films and continue their business.

The theater men were of the opinion that it would be impossible to pass the tax along to the patrons of their houses as this would decrease attendance and throw much of the business to the larger theaters which show films in addition to other attractions.

The larger theaters of the state will not be affected at once as they are under contract with the distributors for the delivery of films and as these contracts will be honored, many films will continue to reach Connecticut. These contracts, however, will not be renewed, until the film tax situation has been remedied, according to the distributors. It is the smaller theaters without these contracts that will suffer first, it was said.

DOLLAR LINER STRANDED IN FOG OFF NANTUCKET

BOSTON, Aug. 26—Stranded for almost 12 hours on Half Moon Shoal off Nantucket today, the Dollar steamship President Garfield was floated on the high water at 4:30 o'clock this morning.

The steamship 10,981 tons gross, [illegible] which grounded in a thick fog, was floated without the assistance of [illegible] mechanical vessels which had alongside during the day. The liner was not damaged and proceeded to Newark for New York. The President Garfield sailed from Boston last night with 70 passengers, including Robert Dollar, president of the line, and Mrs. Dollar aboard. She was [illegible] navigated by a coast pilot when she struck the shoal. Radio calls were sent out by the company's Boston office and three government boats set out to assist the stranded liner, which was on her 15th round-the-world cruise from Boston Yesterday. The coast guard destroyer Porter intercepted the radio [illegible] and was alongside of the liner at 9 o'clock. The coast guard cutter Acushnet arrived about noon and the latter Gresham, sent out from the Boston navy yard at 9 o'clock this morning was beside the grounded vessel at two o'clock this afternoon.

COREY HELD IN $25,000 ON A CHARGE OF ROBBERY

BOSTON, Aug. 26—(A. P.)—Frank Corcoran, known also as Corey, of Worcester, Mass., recently found not guilty of the murder of Mrs. Mae Price in the Hollis hotel, Boston, on May 31, was ordered held in $25,000 bail on an indictment charging robbery when arraigned in superior court today. He pleaded not guilty to a charge of robbing Mrs. Price, who was wardrobe mistress of the Brown Derby Theatrical Company. She was found dead with hands bound, on her bed in the Hotel Yorks.

DANCING OF CHARLESTON MADE BUILDING SWAY

HOBOKEN, N. J., Aug. 26—(A. P.)—A condition bann was placed today by Director of Public Safety McNeely upon the Charleston, newest flapper dance. In orders to the police he instructed them to stop the dance in any hall where its portrayal brought about a noticeable vibration of the building.

The action was based on the report of a policeman stationed in a Grand street dance hall Tuesday night. He said the cavorting of the Charlestonians made the building sway menacingly.

ETHEL BARRYMORE HAS HAD HER TRESSES SHORN

NEW YORK, Aug. 26—(A. P.)—Ethel Barrymore, whose long tresses have contributed greatly to her fame as an actress, returned from London on the Olympic today with a shingle bob. She answered surprised questions by saying:

"I did it because I felt too conspicuous in London theatres with it long."

She did not comment on the fact that some of her most famous roles have been enhanced by her wealth of hair.

ASSORTMENT OF CLOTHES FOR THE WELL DRESSED MAN

CHICAGO, August 25—The well-dressed man of today must have the following assortment of clothes or be hopelessly behind the times:

A dinner coat for semi-formal occasions.

A full dress suit for formal occasions.

Four sack suits for business wear.

A sport suit.

A frock coat for formal day wear.

A high hat to be worn with frock coat and full dress suit.

Two overcoats, one of dark material for formal wear, and one of lighter color for business wear.

The list was issued by the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers, meeting here. It was also announced that it is all right to wear [illegible] again but "balloon" trousers are frowned upon.

MAN KILLED WHEN STILL EXPLODED IN ANSONIA

ANSONIA, Aug. 26—(A. P.)—One man is dead, another dying and a third seriously burned as the results of the explosion of a 100-gallon still here tonight. Flames caused by the explosion practically destroyed a four family dwelling house and set fire to the rear of a five family tenement. Nine families were driven out by the fire. The loss is estimated at $12,000.

The man killed by the explosion is Dominick Lobelino, 40 years old of 48 Factory street. He was blown through the door of the garage where the still was located and died a few minutes after being taken to Griffin hospital.

Michael Obanes, 32 years old of 51 Central street, received burns about the back, chest and legs and is not expected to recover.

Ferdinand Roxes, 30 years old of New York city, who attempted to beat out the flames on the other men's clothing, recived burns about the hands and arms.

BANKERS INTERESTED IN DEBT ANNOUNCEMENT

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP)—International bankers today displayed keen interest in the announcement that a basis had been reached for funding Frace's debt to Great Britain but withheld comment on the terms of proposal.

The fact that an agreement, in principle, had been established for the payment of the French debt in sixty-two annual installments of 12,500,000 pounds, however, was plainly satisfying in financial circles.

In accord between Great Britain and France, bankers indicated, probably would smooth the way for a settlement with the United States and the participation of Ambassador Houghton in discussions with the British and French negotiators led them to believe that prospects were favorable for a Franco-American agreement along similar lines.

News of the agreement reached Wall street too late to find reflection in the financial markets.

Terms of France and Great Britain on Debt

To Be Contingent Upon the Arrangement France Makes For Payment of Debt to the U. S.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—A tentative agreement for settling the French debt to Great Britain in sixty-two annual payments of 12,500,000 pounds each was reached today by Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, and M. Caillaux, French financial minister. The total payments would thus be 775,000,000 pounds, the original debt being 523,000,000 pounds.

The whole agreement hinges, however, on what terms the French debt to the United States is settled and on whether the French government approves.

Mr. Churchill made it plain in statement tonight that the British were willing to go through with the bargain he and M. Caillaux have arrived at only in the event that the United States receives no more from France in proportion to the size of the two loans than Great Britain.

On the face of today's agreement it would seem that Great Britain is willing to forego receiving any of the principal sums she lent France provided the French pay slightly more than two per cent. on their loan each year for sixty-two years—the time which it will take the British to pay their debt to the United States under the existing agreement.

Under the agreement there is to be a partial moratorium until 1930, by which time the French treasury will have been relieved of its burden of helping the bank of France pay off the debt of 1,300,000,000 francs to the bank of England, the last payment of which is to be made five years from date.

In principle, it was agreed to take no cognizance of what the Dawes plan may or may not yield in settling the Anglo-French debt, France's payments of 12,500,000 pounds, a year are, according to Mr. Churchill, to be on "the sole responsibility of France, subject to an agreement being reached on various matters of detail and subject to governing conditions of proportionate and equal treatment by France of her creditors."

Or, to put it another way, Mr. Churchill might well have said, "equal treatment of France by her creditors."

Mr. Churchill's statement doubtless was issued especially for home consumption, as he gave copies only to representatives of the British press. It says that M. Caillaux "reserved his opinion on these propositions and promised to lay them before his government."

The French finance minister in a separate statement says he considers that, apart from any question of figures, "an arrangement with Great Britain would be worthless unless it contains stipulations, only partly accepted by Mr. Churchill, to suspend the transfer of annuities in any case where these operations threaten to disrupt exchange."

M. Caillaux further considers that, "whether in one form or another, guarantees should be given to France that in no case would she have to pay to all the allied and associated powers higher sums than she will receive from Germany."

Both Mr. Churchill and M. Caillaux paid tribute to one another's good will and insisted that the negotiations were only temporarily suspended—obviously to wait and see what happens when the French come in contact with their American creditors."

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

MacMillan Arctic expedition resumed its southward voyage.

The navy slashed more than $40,000,000 from original budget estimates for 1927.

One man was killed and one injured during Turret drill on the battleship Oklahoma.

Secretary Davis returned from abroad and immediately began checking up on the coal situation.

Agricultural economics post to whom Thomas P. Cooper of Kentucky was appointed, was opened to competitive examination.

A special commission held that the Columbia river basin reclamation project was not required.

District officials and employes were found responsible for sinking of the government steamer Norman in Mississippi river with 23 deaths.

The state department was advised that Dr. Harvey J. Howard American captured by Chinese bandits, would be released soon.

MACMILLAN EXPEDITION IS FIGHTING ITS WAY SOUTH

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26—(AP)—Racing with the icy barriers that threaten to lock the Northland earlier than usual, the MacMillan Arctic expedition again is fighting its way south through blinding snow and heavy fog.

Held up by bad weather in Murchison Sound, the Peary and Bowdoin, MacMillan's ships, are forging ahead in an effort, to clear the ice-filled waters of Melville Bay before passage is closed to them. Dispatches to the National Geographic Society said today the Peary had reached Parker Snow Point, about 150 miles south of Etah, while the Bowdoin, rather than expend fuel in a battle against head winds, hove to in the lea of Sanders island, a few miles farther north, to spend the night.

The passage through the "notorious Melville Bay," the society said, will present the hardest stage of the southward trip. The bay, which occasioned the explorers some delay on their voyage north, will be entered after the ships pass Cape York, a few miles south of their present anchorage.

RED CROSS RELIEF FOR THE MACKINAC DISASTER VICTIMS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26—The American Red Cross today sent $1,000 to its Pawtucket-Central Falls chapter for use in relief work for victims of the Mackinac disaster.

James L. Fieser, national vice chairman said both the Newport and Pawtucket-Central Falls chapters have the full financial backing of the national organization in their relief work and that whatever financial assistance proves necessary to enable those chapters to complete a thorough rehabilitation program for the sufferers will be granted.

National headquarters informed the chapters that adequate financial assistance would be given but until today no request for funds had been received.

Two Day Truce For Rival Chinese Tongs

No More Killings Pending the Outcome of a Meeting in New York at 3 P. M. Friday.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The threatened countrywide war of rival Chinese tongs has been averted, at least temporarily.

After a conference today at police headquarters, leaders of the Hip Sing and On Leon tongs, principals in the bloody outbreak yesterday that reached from coast to coast, were returned to their headquarters in Chinatown with the understanding that there will be no more killings pending a final meeting in the district attorney's office Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Police reported an agreement had been reached at the Chinese Merchants Association prior to the conference at headquarters whereby killings of tong members was to cease in New York pending a final settlement.

Suave, and neat to the point of foppishness, the rival tong mentors were ushered into the conference room with their attorneys and high police officials. There was nothing suggestive of sudden murders from ambush that have flared up in the last few days and which have cost the lives of four men and caused the wounding of at least five others.

Officials are confident that for the present at least sudden death will not strike down any tong men. In the past the word of the tong leaders has been kept and police are sure that the truce will be respected.

When the conference was called the police were prepared to follow the example of the San Francisco authorities who held the tong leaders personally responsible for deeds of violence that marked California tong war. But the attitude of the tong leaders in agreeing to a truce resulted in their being returned to their quarters in Chinatown under guard to await the meeting Friday.

MAY COMPLICATE THE WASHINGTON NEGOTIATIONS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Developments in the foreign debt situation abroad today were regarded by observers here as likely to have the effect of seriously complicating the forthcoming negotiations for funding the debts of France and Italy to the United States.

While officials were louthe to go too far in discussing the new problem disclosed today, it was plainly evident they expect France to bring pressure for terms with the United States similar to those granted by Great Britain, but France, it may be said on official authority, will be told that she owes the United States more than she owed Great Britain, and that the annual payment must be greater.

Another phase of the foreign debt situation that attracted attention here was the report of an apparently certain delay by the Belgians in taking parliamentary action on the funding pact with the United States. American debt commission members generally felt that such delay was not likely to be fatal to the agreement, but it was suggested that if earlier ratification by Belgium were possible, the atmosphere, as it surrounds similar action by congress and bears on the French and Italian negotiations here, would be materially cleared.

With the French-British settlement operative treasury experts believe Great Britain would be drawing sufficient annual payments from her debtors and from reparations to offset the full amount being remitted yearly to the United States.

BODY OF EDGAR A. BANCROFT HAS ARRIVED IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 26—(A. P.)—The body of Edgar A. Bancroft, late ambassador to Japan was brought back here today and, received by a guard of honor, was taken to the Fourth Presbyterian church, where it will rest in state until the funeral tomorrow afternoon.

In addition to relatives and friends at the railway station when the body arrived from San Francisco were delegation representing Japanese and American official life and civic bodies.

To the strains of "Nearer My God to Thee," played by the Second Infantry, U. S. A., band the plain cedar coffin enclosing the late ambassador's body was placed on an artillery caisson.

To th eslow dirge of Chopin's "Funeral March," the soldiers wheeled into a column of squads and began the march to the church. The thoroughfares were lined by thousands of persons who doffed their hats as the flag-draped caisson slowly rumbled by.

The simple funeral service of the Presbyterian church will be said tomorrow, after which Mr. Bancroft's body will remain in the church until Friday morning, when it will be taken to Galesburg, Ills., for burial.

BOYS WERE HALTED IN THEIR CAREER OF CRIME

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 26.—(AP)—The apparent start of a career of crime or adventure on which two Bridgeport, Conn., boys had embarked was halted by police officers early today when they arrested James Duffy, a negro, in an automobile that had been stolen from Bridgeport, Duffy's companion, a white boy, escaped from the arresting officers by leaping down a high bank and eluding pursuit. The two occupied a car said to belong to George Peloquin. They were garbed in the manner of movie wild west heroes and their equipment included a revolver, several boxes of ammunition and a dagger.

ENGINEER OF MACKINAC VOLUNTEERS TO TESTIFY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 26—(A. P.)—Chief Engineer John Grant of the ill-fated excursion steamer Mackinac, on board which a boiler exploded in Newport harbor August 18 and took a toll of 51 lives, disregarded the advice of his counsel at the federal hearing into the district today and declared himself ready to bear the blame with whomever is guilty with him, if by his act such catastrophies might hereafter be avoided.

"The responsibility must be placed on somebody" he said. "I am satisfied to go through. Whatever happens to me, I won't stretch the truth. Ask your questions."

SUSPENSION OF HARD COAL MINING REGARDED CERTAIN

Government Observers of Situation See No Hope of Averting a Strike—Experts Are Studying What Might Be the Effects Upon the Nation of a Prolonged Shut-Down—Operators Have Reiterated Their Determination to Reject the Demands of the Mine Workers—Would Renew Negotiations With the Miners Provided the "No Strike" Committee Would Arrange Meeting.

WASHINGton, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Government observers of the anthracite coal situation sees no hope of averting a suspension of work in the anthracite fields September 1 and have turned their attention to a study of the effects upon the nation of a prolonged shut-down.

Their preliminary study of the situation has convinced these officials that anthracite stocks on hand will meet the demand until December, when unless production has been resumed, they fear there will be such a shortage as to make emergency action of some kind necessary.

What form this "emergency action" might take, the officials declined to conjecture, but they expressed the belief that any attempt at outside intervention to bring the opposing sides together would only aggravate the present situation.

Attitude of Operators

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Anthracite operators at the close of today's conference with the citizens' "no strike" committee here announced they would renew negotiations with the miners, provided the committee arranged a meeting and provided the operators were not expected to abandon their opposition to the check-off and wage increases.

W. W. Inglis, chairman of the operator scale committee, outlined the offer in a statement addressed to the committee and designed to clearify the operators' position.

It read as follows:

"You wish further interpretation of our answer to questions presented to you. We hoped that you would understand our reply to mean this. 'In order to avoid a suspension on September 1, we are willing to renew negotiations with the representatives of the mine workers looking toward a new agreement, provided you arrange a conference and provide further it is distinctly understood that we have not agreed to abandon our opposition to the check-off and wage increases, both of which we are willing to consider fully, but both of which we now believe to be unsound and unwarranted."

COOLIDGE KEEPING AN EYE ON THE FUEL SITUATION

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 26—(A. P.)—President Coolidge, keeping an eye on the fuel situation with a view to insuring consumers an adequate supply in the event of a shut down of open shop mines next Tuesday, conferred today with James Storrow of Boston, who was fuel administrator for New England during the war and during the anthracite suspension in 1924.

Mr. Storrow declared that even if the anthracite miners quit work September 1, there should be no concern in the part of the public even in anthracite consuming territory for three months at least. There is a good supply of coal in storage, he said, with railroads in position to move it, unlike the situation two years ago.

Expressing the view that if an anthracite tieup is to come there could be no better time so far as the public is concerned than the present, Mr. Storrow said he thought that anthracite consumers would turn readily to the use of substitutes including bituminous coal and oil, if a shortage is felt.

William H. Coolidge of Boston, a bituminous operator also called today at White Court, but he insisted his visit was of a social nature and that the coal situation was not discussed.

VOLUME RECORDS BROKEN BY ANTHRACITE MINERS

HAZELTON, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP)—The thirty seven anthracite miners on the Hazelton and Mahanoy division of the Lehigh Valley Railroad smashed all 1925 records yesterday when 921 cars of coal were sent to market, according to figures given out today. This approaches the maximum tonnage produced during the world war.

With the wage agreement between the miners and operators expiring August 31, demand was strong for fuel and the output from now until the end of the month is expected to be exceptionally heavy.

SON OF THE PRESIDENT PHOTOGRAPHED AT DEVENS

CAMP DEVENS, Mass., Aug. 26—(A. P.)—John Coolidge, son of the president and a student citizen soldier at this camp, was turned over by those in authority to the tender mercies of some 15 photographers this afternoon and a delegation of newspapermen.

For the best part of the hour allotted, Corporal Coolidge and his squad did "squads right" and "squads left," "right by squads" and "to the rear march" while cameras clicked and movie men used up feet of film.

"What was your object in coming up here," the young corporal was asked.

"You'd have to ask Father," was his only reply.

Asked if newspapermen had bothered him during his stay in camp, he commented, "No, but it wasn't their fault."

Camp authorities have ruled against interviewing and photographing the president's son during the training period. But today more photographers were on the scene than when the president reviewed the Yankee division.

Would he return next year? Young Coolidge said that he planned to, hoped to and had enjoyed this year's encampment very much, in fact more than last year.

It was said on reliable authority that if he does return next year, as is regarded probable, he will hold the rank of sergeant.

TWO MARINES TO FACE SUMMARY COURT MARTIAL

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 26—A summary court martial has been directed for the two marines charged with having gone to sleep while on guard duty at the summer white house. The trial probably will take place within a few days aboard the presidential yacht Mayflower at Marblehead, where the pair is under arrest.

Captain Adolphus Andrews, naval officer in command of the Mayflower and also the commanding officer of the marine detachment here, and his subordinate officers declined to discuss the charges against the marines, which were preferred by Lieut. J. D. Wright, naval officer, who made an inspection at white court during the absence from Swampscott of Lieut. Cesar Allan Poe of the marines.

It was established however, that the two men are Corporal Sharton of Cleveland, Ohio, and Private Key of Texas. It is understood that their defense in part will be that they were required to do excessive duty at the marine camp here in addition to their duty at guard at White Court.

The court which will try the two men has authority if they are found guilty to fix a maximum penalty of dishonorable discharge.

A PORTION OF TOKYO HAS BEEN INUNDATED BY RAIN

TOKYO, Aug. 27—(A. P.)—The floods, caused by a 36 hour rain, which yesterday inundated the Honjo district of the city, have subsided. It is estimated that 30,000 houses were submerged, the residents spending the night on the hillsides. The damage is estimated at several million yen. A number of casualties are reported.

The flood was the worst in ten years. The Honjo district, the lowest lying part of Tokyo is situated along the Sumida river near its mouth and is intersected by numerous canals. It is a poor district and overcrowded. It is here where the greatest number of casualties occurred in the earthquake of September 1923.

ALLIES INVITE GERMANY TO PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

LONDON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—France and her allies have invited Germany to enter into negotiations for a definitive treaty intended to guarantee an endless era of peace in western Europe.

The invitation was extended in a note handed to the German government by the French ambassador at Berlin on Monday and made public in the various capitals tonight. It is a reply to Germany's note of July 20 on the subject of security.

If their reply, the French, in common with their allies, confine themselves to observations on only three points. This doubtless was done in conformity with the recent conclusion reached by the allied statesmen that the time has come to put an end to note-writing and open the way for the commencement of conversations.

The three essential points on which the French would postulate all future efforts to guarantee the security of themselves and their neighbors are that the treaty of Versailles must not be modified, that Germany should enter the league, not with reservations, as Germany has suggested, but on an equal footing with the other members, and that provision should be made for compulsory arbitration of future disputes between nations.

An early conference between the German foreign minister and the allied foreign ministers is already in prospect. Word came from Berlin tonight that the French, British and Belgian ambassadors had joined in a statement that the allies considered it advisable that their juridical experts should meet German experts as soon as possible to clear up technical questions and pave the way for a meeting of the foreign ministers. It is expected that the experts meet in London next Monday.

SUFFERING OF PARTY MAROONED ON ICE FLOE

MONTREAL, Canada, Aug. 26.—(AP)—A tale of suffering in the sub-Arctic, with forty-six men and two women marooned on a drifting ice floe after the sinking of the Hudson's Bay supply snip Bayeskimo, was told by one of the survivors who reached Montreal today.

The Bayeskimo left Montreal July 7, with provisions for the Eskimos and outposts along the Labrador and Ungava coasts and the isolated stations of the Hudson's Bay Company in Hudson's Bay and James Bay. She also carried a number of missionaries, trappers and traders.

Squeezed by pack ice, she sprang a leak and sank in Ungava Bay on July 23. Captain Lloyd transferred his crew and passengers to the floating ice, on which they drifted, sixty miles from land, in a driving rainstorm for ten hours.

Eventually they were picked up by the steamer Nascopie and landed at one of the trading posts. All the supplies were lost.

DIVORCE SUIT SEQUEL TO A ROMANCE IN FRANCE

STAMFORD, Aug. 26.—(AP)—G. Frederick Stark, a practicing attorney in this city whose home is in Darien, today brought suit in superior civil court for a divorce from Harrybelle D. Stark whom he married in Paris in October, 1918. The allegation is desertion and custody of a five year old daughte ris requested.

The libellant was a lieutenant in the aviation corps during the war and his bride was a war nurse whom he met while on foreign service. Mrs. Stark is thought to be in North Carolina.

WILLIMANTIC

That Senator James J. Walker would be elected Mayor of New York city by a Democratic majority of 100,000 votes was predicted Wednesday, by Edwin J. Donnelly, who was formerly associated with the political leaders of New York. The subject of his talk was "The Political Significance of the Metropolitan Primary Battles" and was given at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Exchange Club held in the Y. M. C. A. at noon. Mr. Donnelly is a member of the club. The speaker bases his prediction regarding Senator Walker's election on his deductions of practical experience gained while manager of two campaigns against Mayor Hylan, when he was one of the leaders in a series of conferences which decided the candidates to represent the Republican party. The present Democratic primaries represent two major questions, he said, one being whether Hearst or Smith will control the delegates to the 1928 Democratic national convention and whether the leadership as affects the metropolis will remain in Kings county or be transferred to Tammany Hall.

In outlining Democratic party policies in New York during the past decade Mr. Donnelly stressed two errors made by the late Charles W. Murphy, when he allowed the nomination of Mayor Hylan eight years ago and accepted the candidacy of Senator Copeland. The Tammany chieftan believed at that time that there was no possibility that either would be elected.

Referring to the Republican primaries the speaker was of the opinion that Judah J. Lyons, former secretary of state, was in the proper light to defeat Waterman, the choice of the so-called leaders of the party. The Bennett candidacy he termed a neglible one. The citizens' ticket, he said, appears to have a very good chance in the coming metropolitan elections.

President Clarence E. Simonds was in charge of the meeting. It was voted to hold a meeting in Mansfield at an early date.

A talk was given also by Sherman P. Hollister, who described his recent vacation trip during which he observed many farms and greenhouses and their system of management. He found that many were retaining the primitive methods used during the early part of the last century. He also visited the estate next to the White Court in Swampscott, Mass.

Rev. Arthur W. Clifford, formerly of Windham Center, now of Weymouth, Mass., also spoke on the friendly contacts to be derived socially and commercially in a small town.

The wedding of Miss Alma Therese Chasse, daughter of Mrs. Clarinda Chasse, of Carey street and John D. Ahern, son of David P. Ahern of High street was solemnized at eight o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Mary's church by Rev. E. A. Mathieu who also sang the nuptial high mass. Arthur B. O'Connor was best man and Miss Isabelle I. Chasse, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Miss Lillian Bryant, of Jewett City, also a cousin of the bride was flower girl.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe meteor. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal flowers. Her maid of honor wore a blue georgette frock trimmed with gold lace, a hat to correspond and she carried pink roses. Little Miss Bryant was dainty in a peach colored frock. The bride's gift to the maid of honor was a novelty bracelet set with sapphires and to the flower girl she gave a gold ring. The groom received a green-gold watch. Mr. Ahern presented the best man a Knights of Columbus ring and gave his bride a fur neckpiece. A breakfast was served at the home of Mrs. Daniel Chasse, of Carey street, and was attended by relatives and friends from Norwich, Jewett City, Boston, Hartford, Central Falls, Providence, and Willimantic. Mr. and Mrs. Ahern are spending a honeymoon in New Jersey and upon their return will reside at 10 Bedford street.

John Nasin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Nasin of the North Windham Road and Miss Vera Richmond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Richmond of 135 Chaplin street were united in marriage at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon at St. Paul's Episcopal rectory, Prospect street by the rector, Rev. F. C. Woodruff. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Denis Vertefeuille, the latter being a sister of the bride.

The bride was gowned in white silk satin, wore a veil and carried pink and white gladioli. The matron of honor wore a gown of powder blue silk georgette, with a hat to match and carried pink gladioli. Twenty-five relatives and friends attended the reception following the ceremony, held at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Nasin are to make their home in a newly furnished apartment at 99 East Spring street.

Harold T., ten months' old son of William D. and Lucy McGrath Kelley, died Tuesday night at the home of his parents at 37 Elm street. The child had been ill a week. His parents have four other sons, John, Raymond, Russell and Lawrence Kelley. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock with burial in St. Joseph's cemetery. Killourey Brothers were in charge of the arrangements.

Solomon Haddad, has instituted civil proceedings against Moses B. Haddad to recover $2,400 which the plaintiff claims he loaned the defendant. Damages of $2,500 are claimed. Constable Joseph Peck served papers attaching property owned by the defendant Wednesday, the property including real estate and a bank account. The case will be heard the first Tuesday in October in the Windham county superior court.

Edward Alibozek and John Lamorte, local public service drivers, pleaded guilty to a violation of a city ordinance by parking longer than the forty-minute parkin limit between Church and North streets, when they appeared in the police court Wednesday morning. Deputy Judge Russell A. Andrews issued an ultimatum that the parking regulations must be observed or a court trial would be in order and then imposed fines of $2 and costs in each case. The cases were the first of this nature to be heard in court in some time.

Clarence Phillips, 16, of Vernon, was charged with obtaining goods under false pretenses, in Coventry town court Wednesday morning. He pleaded not guilty. Phillips is alleged to have a bicycle last April from Scott J. Cushman of Coventry and after making one or two payments neglected to pay up the balance. Justice of the Peace Alber tM. Gilman found the accused guilty and sentenced him to the reform school at Meriden, suspending judgment and placing him on probation for six months, in the custody of his father, on condition that the costs of the case, $16.60, be paid as well as the balance on the bicycle, at the rate of $3 a week. Grand Juror Robert Brooks prosecuted the case.

The Standard Oil Company met the present level of the Gulf Refining company gasoline prices Wednesday by lowering the wholesale price to garages and filling stations to 16 cents, plus the two cents state tax. The price now prevailing to the retail trade in the city is twenty-two cents a gallon with some of the Andover dealers going one cent better and selling at twenty-one cents retail.

Nineteen men in the construction and repair crew of the Western Union Telegraph Company are making their headquarters in four railroad coaches on a siding in the local yard. The crew is in charge of Foreman Charles Byers and is engaged in repairing the lines between Columbia Junction and Middletown and the lines on the Providence division. They will remain here about a month.

Mrs. Mary Nowak Connors has instituted civil proceedings against Dan Wack of this city, to recover an alleged unpaid bill of $34.14 for groceries. The supplies were purchased before August 20. Damages of $100 are claimed. Constable Joseph Peck attached an automobile owned by the defendant and the case will be heard before Justice of the Peace Artuur T. Kelley, September 12.

Joseph Slowack, 15 of Lebanon was thrown to the ground and sustained two broken bones below the elbow, when a horse which he was riding, on his father's farm bolted and reared. The boy was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where Dr. F. E. Wilcox set the fractures.

B. M. Welch's grocery store at Chaplin was broken into late Sunday night or Monday morning and fifteen dollars' worth of cigars and cigarettes was taken, along with two law volumes. County Detective William E. Jackson has been called to investigate the case. It is believed that the party or parties responsible for the break also committed similar acts at the Herbert A. Gillette and William D. Grant stores in this city.

Sabbagh Brothers of East Boston, Mass., have brought civil action against Salem S. Haddad, of this city, to recover an alleged unpaid bill of $16.15, claiming damages of $50. An auto truck was attached Wednesday by Constable Peck to sustain the action. A bond was furnished by Moses B. Haddad for the release of the truck. The case is returnable before Justice of the Peace Foss, September 19.

Annie, the two year old daughter of H. Applebaum, of Hebron, sustained a deep cut in the palm and lacerations on the wrist, Tuesday, when she fell while carrying a glass jar which broke when she struck the ground.

The nine-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Slanek of Windham, was taken to this city Monday after she had swallowed a briar while playing in a hay field near her home. The obstruction was removed from the larynx by Drs. Hendry and Jenkins.

The weather continued hot Wednesday. At Herbert Chappell's Store on Main street an exposed thermometer registered 112 degrees during the noon hour Tuesday and Wednesday and remained as high as 100 degrees at 3.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. A slight breeze assisted in making the heat bearable.

Fannie, the five year old daughter of H. Seplowitz, of North Windham, was thrown from a teter board on which she and companions were playing, Tuesday afternoon and sustained a compound fracture of the left arm below the elbow. Dr. F. E. Wilcox reduced the fracture.

A party of eighteen members of the Sorority of the Methodist church met at the Willimantic Society House at the Camp Ground recently and presented Miss Helen McKell, one of their members, a friendship pin. Miss McKell has moved to Attleboro, Mass., to make her home.

NATIONAL CAMPAIGN FOR PERFECT CHILDREN

The National Congress of Parents and Teachers is cooperating with the Interior Department, Bureau of Education, in a campaign for a 100 per cent physically perfect school population entering the first grade. In order that good school work may be done, parents are urged to see that the youngsters entering school for the first time are in first-class physical condition. It will save loss of time from school, suffering, and expense if they are given a thorough physical examination, their eyes and teeth, throat and nose looked after, and care taken that they are properly fed, rested, sunned, exercised, cleansed and clothed, ready for the opening of school in September.

An Unusual Custom

Strange custom from Tallahassee, Fla., which is said to date to old Spanish days. When a man dies his relatives draft out a document on which is written the time and place of the burial. They hand this to a negro, who puts it on a silver salver and bears it through the town, showing it to passers-by. A courteous rite, which might, however, become hazardous if practiced outside Tallahassee and the South. In New York they would arrest the negro, thinking he was soliciting alms. In Chicago he might get busy with the document, but it would be even money he would be minus the salver.—Baltimore Sun.

SCALES ARE SUPERINTENDENT'S TRAVELING COMPANION

Portable scales occupying the rear seat of his automobile accompany the superintendent of Grant county (Wash.) schools on all his tours of inspection. He plans to weigh every grade child in the county twice every year. He has found 25 per cent of the pupils to be underweight. A meal-planning chart presented to each teacher, and health meetings for parents held at school centers, were parts of his health program. In schools visited the second time the underweight percentage had been reduced or eliminated entirely, and in some of the high schools the teeth of the pupils had been attended to and diseased tonsils and adenoids removed.

Japan Bars Our Dancing

The Tokio police have said formally that the dance styles of Europe and America are detrimental to the morals of the Japanese. And that is absolutely nothing for us to get excited about. Presumably they know their own people and when they say, that for the Japanese, Western dancing is immoral, they are probably correct. It follows, therefore that they feel justified in establishing curfew measures to discourage it among their own people.

The diplomatic perspicacity of the Tokio officials is shown in that to the curfew regulations do not apply to the Imperial Hotel, where Westerners congregate. But still, we have their opinion of our dances.—Detroit News.

Thee "opportunity" rooms where individual instruction is given to retarded pupils are maintained at Webster school, Dayton, Ohio. The average pupils, in addition to regular branches, are given home-making courses. The boys are trained in handwork and fitted to enter the regular trade school. This special work is correlated in a practical way with academic studies, and all bills, receipts, and letters must be carefully typewritten. Music is emphasized. Since these rooms have been established no case of truancy or discipline has occurred.

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood Co who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

TELEPHONE GIRL NOW WELL

Suffered Two Years. Relieved by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Marshalltown, Iowa.—"At the time I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a telephone operator and had been suffering for two years with bearing-down pains and cramps in my legs so I could scarcely walk. At times I could not do any kind of work on account of my trouble. My mother was taking the medicine for the Change of Life and she thought it would help me and it did. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills. I recommend your medicines to my friends and I will answer all letters asking about them."—Mrs. P. E. EVERTS, Box 149, Marshalltown, Ia.

Mrs. Norton's Experience

"Before I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was weak and nervous, and had such terrible dizzy spells that I could not stand some days. I had no appetite, was restless at night and felt all rundown. My husband got me a bottle of the Vegetable Compound and I am surprised at the results after taking it."—Mrs. CLARENCE S. NORTON, 18 Pierce St., Dover, N. H.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The Minnetexit Hook and Ladder Company has made arrangements with a producing company of Fostoria, Ohio, for the production of one of their most recent and best plays, "Fleurette" a comedy with music. It will be put on two nights in October by local entertainers. The cast has not been entirely selected but it will include only well known and popular amateur actors from Danielson.

The light of the fire of the Franklin car, burned on top of South Killingly Hill late Tuesday night could be seen a considerable distance. Traffic at that time was not very heavy, so few people were inconvenienced by having to wait till the fire burned itself out. M. A. Kollet, of Millville, Mass. owner of the car, had been to Danielson earlier in the day to sell his product. He appreciated the assistance given him by the operator of a Ford touring car, but who left before his name could be learned.

Mrs. John B. Lucas and daughters have returned from a motor trip to Canada.

The following published in a recent issue of the "New York Times" is of local interest. It was written in New Haven, and sent as a special to the Gotham newspaper. President William J. Hutchins of Berea College, Kentucky, said in an interview "some years ago Berea College abolished football and I have been very happy in this fact. We believe that we have every justification for abolishing football from our sports. The direct and indirect cost of intercollegiate football is very great and Berea College is maintained for giving the best possible education to the men and women of the mountains who are practically without funds." President Hutchins is a Yale graduate, son of Isaac Hutchins, who formerly lived the house corner of Main and Stearns streets now owned by Luther Pilling. He is a distant relative of Mrs. Harry E. Back.

In a collision Wednesday morning about eleven o'clock, an automobile owned and driven by William Mayall, 26 South Beacon street, Hartford and a S. N. E. Telephone Company line truck driven by Rosario J. Warner came together at the corner of Centre and Main streets. The Hartford machine was proceeding toward Putnam and the telephone truck was coming up Centre street and started to turn down Main. At this point the two machines crashed and both were quite badly damaged. No one was injured. The accident was investigated by Chief of Police John McFarland.

L. E. Burroughs, a contortionist who calls himself "The Human Knot," gave a performance in front of the Jodoin block, Main street, Wednesday night. He claims to have been with the A. E. F. circus in France and after the war he was told by doctors to remain out of doors. So he and a companion purchased a machine and have toured the country in it, giving exhibitions on the way.

About half past four Wednesday an alarm was rung in from box 34 on the corner of Main and Winter streets. An auto wrecker owned by William Williams had in some way caught fire. A near-by resident came to his assistance with a small extinguisher and by the time the fire department arrived the blaze was out.

The death of Annie Watson, colored, of Brooklyn occurred Wednesday morning. As yet details of her relatives are unknown, but her son-in-law is expected to arrive today (Thursday) and give the required information.

When Perlin E. Nash of 18 Plantation street Worcester, saw the big Seagrave pumper proceeding up Main street in response to the alarm from box 34, he became confused and his Ford coupe got caught in the car track, then jumped out and crashed into the Ford coupe of Omer Hubert of 151 Main street, this city, which was standing at the curb. The Nash fender was stove in, the left front wheel and tire badly damaged, and some of the spokes in the other front wheel were broken. The Massachusetts car also sustained a broken right front wheel and tire, besides a smashed fender. Neither Hubert or Nash and his companion was injured in the crash.

Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Colwell and children of Mechanic street have returned from a trip to Lake Champlain and have gone to spend a few days at Oakland Beach, R. I.

Mr. and William A. Graves of Mechanic street were recent visitors in Mansfield, Mass., where they attended the 150th anniversary of the founding of the town.

Miss Ethel Congdon has been spending a part of her vacation at New Bedford, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Tibbles ad children of Hartford, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Anderson of Brooklyn.

OLD GEN. PUT PUMPER SHOWS UP WELL IN TEST

(Special to the Bulletin.

DANIELSON, Aug. 26.—The old General Putnam steam pumper of the fire department was given a test tonight and although the try out was somewhat abbreviated, it proved a success. Fired by Winthrop Short and run by Fred Armington the pumper delivered powerful streams of water through a hundred-fifty foot length of hose with an inch and quarter nozzle and another through a 550 foot length, with an inch and an eighth nozzle. A pressure of 45 pounds was at the end of the shorter length, but just as the other length was to be measured the water supply had to be shut off. The new hydrant on Salisbury street where the test was conducted had faulty grips and had not the capacity to take care of the large amount of water used. The water flowed up through the ground making it look as though the hydrant had burst inside. The test was immediately called off and the pumper sent back to the fire station. Later on, water company officials stated that the trouble was due to the faulty action of the grips. The test showed, however, that the steamer is in very good condition and always ready for service. This, together with the motor pumper, which was tested Monday, provide sample fire protection for the borough of Danielson. The steamer is of the Rotary type with with a sectional boiler and has a working steam pressure of 100 pounds.

Kills Catarrh Germ In Three Minutes

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method called Lavex kills the germ in three minutes, yet it is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night. To prove it and to introduce Lavex to a million sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid, to any one who will write for it. PUTNAM

Because a state highway department motor truck made an onslaught upon his modest roadster in Clinton, Walter J. Beckwith of Clinton is suing Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald of Putnam and Arno I. Usinger who drove the truck, to recover $5,000 damages.

Mr. Beckwith says in his complaint, filed at Middletown, in the superior court, that because of the accident he was unable to follow his occupation for a period of three months. He also says that he has suffered much physical pain and mental anguish and is likely to continue to suffer for some time to come. September last was the day of the accident to Mr. Beckwith, a Clinton druggist. The State Highway department was working on the Boston Post Road and many trucks were in use, including the one driven by Usinger. About 4 p. m. the plaintiff, so the writ says, had stopped his car on Hull street, just off Main street, in Clinton. He was on the right side of the highway and was examining the engine of his machine from the left side, all with care, when he was caught by the big truck and was so injured that he was unable to attend to his business for three months.

In order to insure some possible return if judgment is in his favor against Mr. Usinger, plaintiff has garnisheed the Clinton National Bank for all moneys it may belonging to the defendants.

Morris E. Jones died Monday night at his home in Utica, N. Y. He is a brother of Mrs. W. J. Bartlett, Miss Gertrude Jones and Thomas L. Jones of Putnam. Mrs. Bartlett and Miss Jones left for Utica Wednesday and Mr. and Mrs. Jones will go today (Thursday). The deceased had always lived in Utica but had visited his relations in Putnam from time to time.

Miss Bertha Sargent of Worcester, Mass. is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Pease of Fremont street. Miss Sargent, who is now assistant to the pastor of the Piedmont Congregational church at Worcester, was for a number of years assistant to her father, the late Rev. F. G. Sargent, who for more than twenty-five years was pastor of the Second Congregational church in this city.

Mrs. William Bouissoneau of Center street has returned from a visit to friends and relatives in Clinton, Mass.

Richard Gibney and his son, Luke Gibney and family, leave Thursday for Grand Rapids, Michigan where Mr. Gibney will attend the Grand Army Encampment which opens there September 1. Mr. Gibney has been a resident of Putnam for many years, having been in the continuous employ of the Putnam Woolen Company for fifty-four years. He is having several weeks' vacation and is making this trip during that time. The trip, which they are making by automobile will take them to Detroit where they will visit James and Francis Connors, children of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Connors of this city. After the encampment they will make the return trip by way of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. John Porter of New York are guests of Mrs. Porter's mother Mrs. Smithies and sister, Mrs. Warren W. Averill, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Averill, on Pleasant street.

JEWETT CITY

The body of Mrs. Frederick P. Partridge was brought from Hartford on Wednesday afternoon for burial in the family lot in Jewett City cemetery. The bearers were Dr. G. H. Jennings, Deacon J. E. Phillips, Dea. D. L. Phillips and Rev. J. W. Payne, all friends of the family. Rev. G. Keene Gray, pastor of the Congregational church read the opening committal prayers, followed by prayer by Rev. J. W. Payne who gave the benediction. Representatives of Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R., were present, with several other old-time friends. There were beautiful flowers. Miss Mary M. Partridge, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Schultz and son McAllister and a cousin Miss Avery accompanied the body to Jewett City.

A friend contributes the following:

A Tribute

To those who had the joy of an friendship Mrs. Partridge was a woman of rare personality. She had an unusual enthusiasm for all the interests which her life touched. Her loyalty and steadfastness, her quick and generous sympathy, her honesty and unselfishness of motive, drew to her a circle of devoted friends who found in her a woman of wide vision, of sincerity and directness of purpose and of ripe and balanced judgment.

Her innate courtesy, and dignity of thought and language and her rare humor made her one of the most delightful of companions—her eye kindling with instant appreciation of the least contribution from another.

She was indeed a woman "nobly planned". In her one felt the sympathy of a great heart and a high soul. Every visit with her left one satisfied, and with a rare sense of goodwill. These memories are eternal and help us on our way.

Bedroom furniture for sale at Jewett restaurant.—Adv.

Sylvester Kowaski, who smashed into John Zarwicki's automobile in Sycamore dale, Saturday afternoon was presented before Justice of the Peace Drew at Grand Juror Humboldt's home in Lisbon, Monday evening. He was charged with reckless driving and was fined twenty-five dollars and cost which amounted to [illegible] seven dollars.

The United States Civil Service Commission is to hold an open competitive examination at Jewett City, Conn., for the positions of clerk in that post office, on September 17.

Eligibles are first appointed as substitutes and are required to be available to render service whenever needed. Vacancies in the regular force are filled by the promotion of the senior substitutes. The salaries for regular employes range from $1700 to $2100 per annum. These positions are permanent during good behavior. Retirement on an annuity is provided for at 65 years of age, or in the case of total disability. Compensation during disability for injuries received in the service is allowed and annuities are given to dependents in case of death as a result of such injury.

Fifteen days' vacation with full pay is allowed with an addition of ten days' sick leave with pay.

The necessary blanks are at the post office. This office has only one substitute and must have two.

RATHBONE ANTIQUES BRING VERY GOOD PRICES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MYSTIC, Aug. 26—The public auction of the household goods of the late Mr. and Mrs. John S. Rathbone was held at their late home, Park Place, yesterday. They had been long interested in antiques for many years and dealt in them, consequently their house was furnished with and filled with them. After they were appraised a private sale was carried on for three weeks and then the balance was offered to the public at auction. A good [illegible] and in some cases the [illegible] price.

The most valuable piece sold was the set of six dining room chairs once owned by Tom Paine, which was sold for $900 to James Davidson of New London. A tip-and-turn table sold for $700 and a sideboard for $250 was bought by Margaret Palmer of New London. One chest of drawers brought $20 while another went for $71. A Windsor chair sold for $17. A davenport and a few other pieces were not sold, also pictures, as the offers were not enough.

PORTRAIT OF CHARLES I MAY BE BY VAN DYCK

Some time ago a citizen of Oslo, Norway purchased an old and rather large painting representing a cavalier with lace cravat, a tuft beard on his chin and waved hair. Examination by experts has established that the painting represents King Charles I. of England when about 35 years old. In order to determine whether the portrait was a copy photographs of it have been forwarded to all galleries known to possess original portraits of Charles I.—indsor castle, Hampton Court, the Louvre, Antwerp, Brussels and the Muse National del Prado in Madrid. Replies from those places are to the effect that the Oslo portrait was not copied from any known portrait of King Charles. The suggestion has been put forward that the painting is a Van Dyck. Anthonis Van Dyck was court painter to King Charles in 1632. During the nine years from 1632 to 1641 he painted no fewer than 17 portarits of the king and the royal family.

The Bat

The bat is not built for long distance flying as its dizzying zigzags, its circular skids, its tremulous phantasmagoria of motion indicate. "Noctu" knows his weakness and infirmity upon the ground, for the moment he is weak and limited in many ways, but in his quest of survival the bat justifies himself to the world and renders great service by keeping down the races of mosquitoes, beetles, flies and other insects, which if unchecked so greatly overmultiply. In his shadowed, agitated promenade, the bat is first aid in checking the myriads of insects that continually press hard upon the domain of man.

The bat travels only to gather food for its young and for itself. It prefers to be at home, for to its domestic habits the bat foregoes many of the minor pleasure of human life. Mother bat carries her young in a pouch under her soft breast. Winged and secluded nook of a cave, or where the leaves hang thick upon the trees, baby bat nurses as all mammal children do. Membranous wings of the mother curtain and shield the wee, downy child. Mother bat folds her child away in her cape and dispenses nourishment to it from her body. So even the shadowed flight of the bat is often a material quest for food.

Whether protrading in the light of the moon or concealing itself from the heat and care of the day the bat is one of the best friends of humanity. It harms or destroys nothing except insect food which is all too plentiful. In its dumb way it lays hold on some of the finest things in human life, such as nursing and protecting its offspring, gathering and storing food and helping to maintain the nice balance of nature. It should be protected and nourished rather than [illegible] and scorned.—Minneapolis Journal.

QUARTER OF MILLION CARS ARE STOLEN EACH YEAR

That the automobile owner has much to fear from the theft hazard is indicated by theft data recently compiled by the research division of the American Automobile association. Figures based on 41 cities of the country show that during the past 12 months 275,000 cars valued at $150,000,000 were stolen.

Of the cars reported stolen, 17 per cent, or 46,788, were not recovered. The figures were primarily compiled in connection with the campaign to secure adoption by all states of a uniform certificate of title laws. Twenty states have already put such a law into effect and the investigation has shown that thefts in these states have greatly diminished and that at the same time the proportion of recovery of stolen cars was much greater than in the states that do not have such a law.

Apart from the security for property that has accompanied the putting into effect of a certificate of title law there has been a tendency to reduce automobile insurance theft, while the reverse is true where no such law is in operation. The bureau of investigation of the department of justice is convinced that a uniform law in all the states would go far to do away with the interstate traffic in stolen automobiles.

This view is based on the experience the department has had in administering the Dyer anti-theft law, which made interstate or international traffic in stolen cars a crime. Since the law was passed in 1919, federal authorities alone have recovered close to 7,000 stolen cars and more than 1,000 automobile thieves have been placed behind bars in federal penitentiaries.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE REAL MONEYMAKER

Brooklyn bridge is a shrewd landlord. Its eye to advancing values of business property is shown by the announcement that it will increase its rents some 25 per cent as present leases expire. Commissioner Mills, of the department of plant and structures as its fiscal agent started the boost recently when he raised the first two tenants from $5000 to $10,000 a year.

Brooklyn bridge as a business building has been more or less a novelty for all its forty years. This the oldest of the vast East river spans has been more commonly regarded in the public mind as a great transportation institution, content to bear upon its patient back the daily thousands coming and afoot, who come and go between Manhattan and Brooklyn.

Yet the same causeway of which the city is so proud is also a roof to a considerable business population. Chief Engineer Edward A. Bryne says it shelters 71 business houses within its 50-foot arches—41 on the Manhattan side and seven in Brooklyn.

Six of the firms have been tenants for more than a quarter century. Collectively they contribute to an annual rent roll amounting to $71,610.20.

Salmon Dying From Heat

Large numbers of salmon in the River Eden, one of Britain's finest angling haunts, it was reported to the Eden fishery board meeting at Carlisle are dying as a result of the prolonged hot weather. The same fate has befallen salmon in other border rivers. The Annan, Esk and Nith fish show no sign of disease, and the heavy mortality is attributed to the lack of oxygen in the water through the heat and the evaporation of the rivers.—Manchester Guardian.

Captured By Chinese Bandits

Dr. Harvey J. Howard, eye specialist, attached to the Rockefeller Hospital in Peking, China, was captured by Chinese bandits on July 20, at the same time that Morgan Palmer, another American, was killed at his ranch on the Sungari River near Harbin. Dr. Howard, his son and other Americans were visiting at the Palmer ranch when the outrage occurred. Energetic efforts are being made by the State Department in Washington for his release and demands have been made on Dr. Sze, the Chinese Minister to the United States, for reparations for the killing and kidnapping.

AERONAUTICAL REGULATION.

That there is none more enthusiastic than Senator Bingham when it comes to aviation and none more anxious to have it properly regulated and fostered has been manifested on numerous occasions. He has had valuable experience in connection with it dating from the days of the war and he thoroughly understands what he is talking about.

Thus it can be appreciated that when he called upon President Coolidge for the purpose of discussing the position of the government in relation to aviation there was a profitable conference. Senator Bingham is interested in getting government regulation of aviation and he believes that the time is ripe for the government to act in encouraging expansion along commercial lines.

[illegible] he urged taking control of aeronautical operations quite the same as has been done with navigation it is easy to understand that this is what must eventually be the plan. Regulation is bound to become necessary and the quicker it can be undertaken the easier it will be to deal with such a matter and getting compliance with the requirements.

It cannot be expected that the states will undertake to fix routes. Inspect all planes and give consideration to aviation matters outside their own boundaries. Even [illegible] they undertake to deal with conditions within their jurisdiction there can be expected to be much confusion with the various states taking different views of problems. With the government directing aviation and supervising it there would be uniform action throughout the country and all would be adhering to the same rules and regulations.

Efforts to get congress to take action along this line have been previously made, but the lower house has stood in the way. The time hasn't come when various air lines are competing, but there is no desire to wait until that time arrives. It is advisable to make a start even though the first effort is not perfect and has to undergo repeated revisions.

RESTORING CONFIDENCE.

It is the desire of President Hindenburg that this country should have confidence in Germany. It is a laudable wish and it is far from being among the impossible. It is a matter which rests almost entirely in Germany's hands and conduct. President Hindenburg recognizes that condition thoroughly understands what caused it. Thus it [illegible] not to be a difficult matter for him to shape the course of his country so that it can [illegible]

Germany was responsible for the [illegible] for a [illegible] nothing but contribute to the ill will it created. It persisted in showing that it was not entitled to the confidence of this or other nations, but there are reasons for believing that Germany has learned its lesson. [illegible] understands its mistakes and that there is a strong influence at [illegible] to so shape the future as to avoid them and to [illegible] the past.

It is the prediction of President Hindenburg that there will be a continuance of [illegible] conditions in this country. Such is of course [illegible] Germany, it is important to world trade and it is important to those who are looking to Germany to make [illegible] obligations [illegible] the war. With [illegible] money [illegible] an end it creates a far [illegible] impression than it did when it was balking and [illegible]

When a [illegible] president that he is satisfied at the deep interest Americans are showing [illegible] and to realize that it is the [illegible] of responsibilities instead of ducking them. Germany [illegible] to get [illegible] money has no easy road before it but it is in the manner in which it tackles the grades and keeps headed in the right direction that [illegible] going to help about a restoration of that faith and trust which were so badly [illegible]. Grave [illegible] president's country to [illegible] end.

FLEECING THE GULLIBLE.

Because of the fact that it believes that the people of this country will lose about one billion dollars this year through fraudulent stock transactions, it is the advice of the Better Business bureau of New York that investors investigate first.

The advice is excellent and even investigation doesn't give positive assurance that there will be no loss. Losses occur even after there has been a careful study of statements and conditions. They result invariably because of conditions that could not be foreseen. While investigation does not guarantee protection, any more than knowing how to swim positively insures a person against [illegible] and if more did it or sought reliable advice there would be a tremendous decrease in the amount gathered in by the swindlers.

There are those who like to, are willing to and can afford to take a chance. They go into many things with their eyes open. They understand it is a gamble. They see what they consider a reasonable chance or good prospect. There are others who [illegible] their hard earned money into anything but what is absolutely safe. Fore the most part these know there fun can be the [illegible]d, but the attractiveness of certain propositions, the knowledge of what others have done and the eagerness to get something for nothing because of the alluring pictures that are painted by the glib tongued agents too frequently causes individuals with large as well as small amounts which they cannot afford to lose to entrust their [illegible] with schemers.

It is this class which can be invariably detected through investigation of their propositions. Those with experience understand their methods and are able to quickly analyze their proposition. Even advice to those who invest such schemes isn't always heeded. There is occasionally a man in [illegible] the stranger rather than [illegible] friend. It is costly. The billion a dollar a year loss tells the story, but it is a story which too many are willing to believe until they have gone through the mill personally.

SUSPICION GOVERNS.

Few understand the difficulties with which explorers in foreign lands have to contend. Meeting climatic conditions, avoiding disease and keeping away from known pests and outstanding dangers come as a matter of course. There is more or less knowledge of what is to be expected. But when it comes to dealing with the [illegible] of the people from whom [illegible] must be obtained and among whom it is necessary to circulate [illegible] different problem. [illegible] are not to be rated as savages.

[illegible] clearly set in connection with the orders which have been received by the expedition which has been ordered out of Mongolia. Sanction [illegible] been [illegible] for the scientists representing the American museum of natural history to make a careful study with excavations in Mongolia for scientific purposes. Everything proceeded well until suspicion was aroused that the maps which the party had made in marking their progress and indicating the ground covered were being made for other purposes.

Mongolia has come under bolshevic control. This is most unfortunate to that region but apparently it doesn't safegard it at the present time. At any rate the fear that this scientific expedition is laying the groundwork for the overthrow of bolshevism there has resulted in orders to leave. Had there been a devotion of all their time to the support of bolshevism there would have probably been nothing said but [illegible] suspicion not established fact has gotten in its work and that serves as the basis for Mongolian judgement. Other difficulties are slight compared with suspicion under bolshevic eyes.

NEW YORK TRAFFIC.

New York has had much difficulty in getting respect for its traffic regulations and it was not so long ago that the police were taken to task for failing to enforce them. When new orders went into effect there commenced to be an overcrowding of the courts. There was as much congestion in the courtrooms as in the streets and now, on the eve of a mayoralty campaign, more orders have gone forth. This time police are told not to make so many arrests and issue so many summonses for small violations.

It is to be expected that a policeman will use some discretion regardless of the city in which he is supposed to uphold the law. There are times when a bit of advice will go much farther than an arrest, and is much more justified.

One might gather that the police of New York have chafed under the criticism against them and the orders given to them. Possibly they have become irritated at the manner in which their judgement has been flaunted when cases were brought into court. At any rate they apparently filled the court with so many technical violators as to flood the channels of justice, irritate the motorists and bring [illegible] constant protests. As a result, and possibly with a political tinge to it, they are being told to change their methods, use a little judge [illegible] and [illegible] or warn many whose conduct has been getting court attention.

Just what effect this is going to have upon traffic conditions will be eagerly awaited. Perhaps less would be sought of the change if it was not being made when a hard fight is being started for the mayoralty.

THE STAR WITNESS

The junior member of the law firm of Legal & Lawlor smiled brightly at the stern-lipped woman across his desk who was to be his client's star witness in the coming suit.

"Now, then, Mrs. Rondbout," he began, "there's a little question that we can't seem to get straight somehow. I told your friend that we'll have to settle it before we go to court tomorrow. It's just a minor detail, but we must clear it up."

"Oh, absolutely," agreed Mrs. Rondbout complacently. "You can depend on my testimony. John—that's my husband, you know—says that if there's one thing in this world that's dependable, it's my word. Sometimes I almost think I'm too conscientious, but then one can't ever be too exact, can they? It's just my nature never to do things by halves. I've always been that way. When I was a schoolgirl I used to take the greatest pains—"

"Er-hum!" interrupted the junior lawyer. "Yes, I'm certain your testimony will be of the greatest help.

"Oh, I hope so," sighed Mrs. Rondbout. "For dear Millicent's sake. She and I are such old friends, you know. I told John just the other day that I am only too glad to be her witness even if I never have been in a courtroom before. Are the judges very stern?"

"The one who will try our case is very kind and patient. Mrs. Rondbout. Now let's get down to this little detail," smiled the junior lawyer, but not quite so brightly as before.

"Details! I love details," exclaimed Mrs. Rondbout happily. "Most people don't, you know. They like to do the big things, trusting to the little ones to take care of themselves But I always say just the opposite. If you take care of the details, the big things will just have to come out all—"

"Exactly, Mrs. Rondbout. I perfectly agree with you," accorded Lawlor.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"Prohibition Is a Failure"

Mr. Editor: Knowing that your paper is always open for comment on events which affect our city and country I am taking this liberty of writing on a subject which I trust will be of general interest.

I have just returned from a vacation spent in the province of New Brunswick, Canada. While I was there a general election took place which affected provincial affairs only. New Brunswick, as you well know, is under the prohibition act but unfortunately liquor is easily procured. The government that was in power and coming back for re-election to the people had promised, upon re-election, government control of liquor, which would have made conditions almost as bad as they were in the days of the open bar. Fortunately the people spoke by their ballot in a very decided way and that party which had promised liquor was gloriously defeated in that they had only eleven seats out of the 48, the party standing for prohibition having the overwhelming majority.

Everywhere we hear the cry, "prohibition is a failure." Even here in Norwich "Canadian beer" can be bought for $2 a bottle. Only within the past two weeks a "soft-drink" shop was raided and liquor seized. The proprietor of this "hell-hole" can be seen mostly any day sitting on the porch of his place of "business" waiting for his "customers". He is seemingly enjoying life. He has a large closed automobile. Sunday morning he takes his family and goes along to church. I do not know for what purpose. Does this man fear a fine, when there is a conviction proven against him? No. He has made enough to provide for the fine. Then how are we going to stamp out such undesirable citizens? One of the laws of our land is "thou shalt not steal." The man who breaks that law is sent to prison. Do we hear anyone saying, "the law against stealing is a failure." No, we do not, but stealing goes on every day. Then why say "prohibition is a failure." If the man who sells liquor is sent to prison, and he should be, for he is a law breaker, instead of being fined, I feel sure that the fear of prison bars will do more to make the people of our city known as law abiding and put to work at some honorable occupation those such as this man that I have cited, who are nothing but parasites taking the money from husbands of wives that need clothing and babes that need bread.

Four hundred years were spent in the fight against slavery. The general opinion was that slavery could not be abolished. Then like a flash from the blue sky the black man had his freedom. Be not weary, prohibitionists, in your labors, to do away with liquor and its curse, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not. God's work must go forward. Liquor and the men who handle it are of their father the devil, therefore they cannot endure for the day is coming when even the devil will bow in subjection before the only God whose name is Jehovah.

Sincerely for the cause of prohibition
G. R. F.

Facts in the McKernan Case

Mr. Editor: In your issue of Monday, Aug. 17th you printed a news item which among other things stated the following as facts:

1. That John H. McKernan of Mansfield City approached James Green of Eagleville and threatened to shoot him.

2. That Doctors R. C. White and J. A. Girouard of Willimantic found Mr. McKernan to be suffering from a mental disorder.

3. That Mr. McKernan was committed to the Norwich State Hospital for the insane.

Believing in your good faith and presuming that it is your policy to adhere to facts I would request you to publish the following corrections:

1. John H. McKernan resides in Eagleville and not in Mansfield City.

2. James Green of Eagleville alleged that John McKernan threatened to shoot him.

3. Both doctors did not find also McKernan to be suffering from a mental disorder.

4. Mr. McKernan was not committed to the Norwich State Hospital for the insane but was sent there pending a hearing on his committal. These are the facts. In addition I wish to state that McKernan's relatives received no official notification of the unfortunate predicament in which he found himself. Fortunately, however, they did receive information from other sources. Last Saturday at the probate court Mr. McKernan was present with persons interested in his behalf and faced his accusers. An agreement was finally reached whereby the complaint was withdrawn and Mr. McKernan agreed not to reside on his property in Mansfield.

In conclusion, I wish to assure Mr. McKernan's friends most emphatically that he has never suffered from any mental disorder and trust that his long record as a peaceful, law-abiding citizen will serve for the present to refute these charges that have been made against him, and I hope that the general public will kindly suspend its judgment.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Peter Norbeck, who has announced his intention to try for another term in the United States senate, where he has served as one of the representatives of south Dakota since 1922, celebrates his fifty-fifth birthday today. Senator Norbeck was born at Vermillion and has seen Dakota develop from a sparsely settled territory into a prosperous state, in his city days he was a farmer. Then he went into business as a well driller and finally drifted into politics. His political career previous to his election to the United States senate included three terms in the upper house of the South Dakota legislature, one term as lieutenant-governor and two terms in the governorship. He filled the governor's chair during the period of the late war and pursued a vigorous and patriotic policy which commended him to the country in general.

Facts That Recall Others

What Makes Grapes "Wild?"

Robert was present during a conversation between his mother and some friends who were discussing the merits of the wild grape for pies, jelly, etc. With a puzzled expression on his face, he said:

"Mom, what kind of grapes are wild grapes?"

Mother explained to him that wild grapes grew in the woods and were much smaller than "tame" grapes, whereupon Robert asked again:

"Will the wild grapes run away from you when you go after them, and will the tame grapes come to you when you call them?"

It was then that mother realized how utterly futile her attempts to make clear to her son why the wild grapes were called "wild."

She Was Different

Mollie came home after a visit for the afternoon with 5-year-old Nellie.

"O, mother!" she cried. "Nellie was rude and cross all the afternoon. She just quarrelled and quarrelled."

"Well," said mother, "if a little girl had treated me that way when I was a little girl, I should have come home."

"Well, I didn't," said Mollie, "I just slapped her face and stayed."

From Small Beginnings

Sir Edward Frankland, the Druggist Clerk, Founder of Modern Chemistry

"That's the greatest boy I ever saw," said the druggist, as he nodded his head toward a boy who was bending over a test tube that he was heating. "He's determined to know everything. I've had many boys here to learn the business, but young Frankland is the best of the lot. He's had one or two accidents, but on the whole he's careful, and he always knows what's about."

This was in England, about 1835. The boy was Edward Frankland, who later became Sir Edward Frankland, who did much to establish the theory on which modern chemistry is founded. In England a druggist is still called a "chemist," and he well deserves the name. In the days when Edward Frankland, at 14, began to work for the druggist, or "chemist" the boy had to do with nothing except drugs and chemicals. He had had a limited education in the grammar school, and had gone to work in the little laboratory when he was only 14. There he helped carry on the work of the place and made himself as useful as he could. At the same time he studied chemistry and practiced experiments for himself. Another boy might have done nothing except the assigned work, but Edward Frankland was determined to learn more and more. He worked in the laboratory until he was 20. In those boyhood years he experimented with everything in the place. He was forever mixing, distilling, powdering, and preparing chemicals. He studied all the books on chemistry that he could find, and he did every experiment that he could find mentioned. Before he left his first place he had performed many experiments that no one have ever attempted. Because he made his work his play he made himself an expert chemist at 20.

The little laboratory became too small a world for the youth, so he went down to London, and finally over to Germany, where he worked in great laboratories. By the time he was 22, without having gone to college, he had mastered a highly technical education, and had become one of the best chemists in England. He cared for no rest and for no amusement aside from his work. When he visited the Alps and climbed to the top of Mount Blanc, the highest mountain, he did it to study the effect of altitude on combustion, and from that visit he developed a theory that revised chemistry, and increased our knowledge of the heavenly bodies.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

WELLINGTON

"As hilly as San Francisco or Rio de Janeiro," "as land-locked as Seattle," "as windy as Chicago"—these phrases used by travelers in describing Wellington will help Americans to construct a picture of the capital city of New Zealand, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Part of the United States fleet will stop at Wellington on its homeward voyage from Australia.

"Wellington has the best situation geographically of all New Zealand cities," says the bulletin, "for its harbor opens on Cook Strait, the natural water roadway that splits New Zealand's land roughly into two equal parts. Situated on the southern tip of North Island, the city is almost exactly at the geographical center of the Dominion, and in a position from which steamers can reach the ports of both islands by the shortest voyages. Because of this strategic central situation Wellington took from Auckland in 1865 the capital of the Dominion.

"Although Wellington undoubtedly has the best location with regard to New Zealand, it has not yet overcome Auckland's advantageous position for the South Sea trade and the fact that both the big New Zealand ports can be reached with about equal ease from Sydney.

Wellington's population is short of 120,000 but it is growing with great rapidity and may yet overtake that of its larger sister city to the north.

"As is the case with Sydney, Auckland Hobart and Melbourne Wellington owes much of its prosperity to its excellent harbor. Shipping enters through a relatively narrow bottleneck to find a great, broad lakelike body of water opening out beyond. A rim of high, steep hills hems the harbor in. At places these rise a little distance back from the shore, at others they meet the water in bold promontories, their edges carved for roadways or their flanks pierced by tunnels. In nearly every little bay, as one passes into the harbor, are found suburban communities reached by ferries.

"The city of Wellington lies on the southwestern side of the harbor. Only a narrow strip along the coast is level and a considerable part of this has been reclaimed by filling in a part of the harbor. On this level plot near the water is the business section of the city and the government buildings.

"Wellington obviously has been cramped by its hills; but just as obviously it has struck out to conquer them. Few cities have had to go in so deeply for engineering enterprises in order to expand. The hills rise steeply to heights of 700 feet or more. For years the city builders of Wellington have been carving and terracing their slopes, filling in gullies, tearing away ridges and building innumerable retaining walls and bridges and the work still goes on. Streets outside the level plot wind snakily along slopes, working ever higher and higher. As in Rio de Janeiro one man's house looks down upon the roof of his neighbor's below, and in turn is looked down upon by his neighbor's above. On some of the hills houses have been built all the way to the crest, and each year sees on other hills a revision upward of the high house mark." Special cable and electric tram lines run up several of the hills.

"So rough is Wellington and its environs that the city's race track (almost a necessity in Australian and New Zealand communities) had to be placed 20 miles out in the country. The distance does not deter racing fans. On the days of racing meets the railroads do a thriving business and the downtown streets of the city seem almost deserted.

"The status of Wellington as capital of New Zealand has brought a considerable group of public buildings to the city. At first these buildings were of wood due to an earthquake scare near the middle of the nineteenth century. The old government building is one of the largest wooden structures ever built. In recent years brick stone and concrete have been used to a greater extent in erecting large structures. The new building which houses Parliament and the Town Hall are monumental buildings of marble.

"The capital of a country devoted largely to state ownership must have structures to house activities whose names sound strange to those familiar with ordinary capitals. In Wellington in addition to the department structures usually associated with the conduct of a central government are the buildings of the government life insurance service the railway department, the government trust (which administers wills) and other unfamiliar state activities.

"The city of Wellington also is deeply in business for its citizens. It owns its water works, electric power and plant, ice factory, street railway lines, cemeteries, public baths, slaughter houses, and has a municipal monopoly for the distribution of milk."

CUBAN TEACHERS STUDY AMERICAN EDUCATION

A vacation excursion of 81 Cuban educators composed of teachers, school officials, representatives of the Cuban department of instruction and belles arts and of the University of Havana, under the guidance of Dr. Francisco Gonzalez Cuesta, is now in this country for the purpose of studying educational institutions and methods in the United States. According to advices from Frank Bohr, American consul at Cienfuegos, Cuba, the party is not official, but it is financed partly by popular subscription and partly by the individuals composing the party. A similar former visit of Cuban teachers in 1900 was productive in improving the organization of the public-school system of the island, and Mr. Bohr expresses the hope that American school officials and private organizations will unite in making the visit of this party a memorable event.

WOMAN'S LIFE SAVER

Mother of Nine Convinced

Due Dose of Beecham's Pills are the Remedy for Sick Headaches and Constipation

"Your pills certainly have done 'Wonders' for me. I am thirty-eight years of age, been married thirteen years and am the mother of nine children.

"I was suffering from headaches and constipation for nearly fifteen years when I happened to read one of your 'ads' in the paper. Having a headach that day I went to the druggist and bought a box of Beecham's Pills. I took a dose. That dose was a 'life saver' to me. Since then I have had no more headaches, and my health is good. I recommend them to whomever I meet."

Mrs. H. LaVigne, Jersey City, N. J.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR MISS MILDRED PERKINS

At the W. W. Backus hospital Wednesday evening a farewell party was tendered Miss Mildred Perkins of Brattleboro, Vt., instructress of nurses at the hospital for the past year and a half, by a number of her friends. Miss Perkins has resigned her position with the hospital as instructress and Saturday is to return to her home in Brattleboro. Her place will be filled by Mrs. Ruth Raymond of Norwich, a graduate of William W. Backus hospital training school, who will begin her duties Monday.

The features of the evening was the presentation of part of the play entitled, School at Huckleberry Corners, which afforded considerable amusement, by the student nurses under direction of Miss Anna Gordon, floor supervisor of nurses and a short radio program given by Miss Dorothy Doolittle, broadcasting from station WWB. Dancing was enjoyed until 12 o'clock and refreshments were served.

During the evening Miss Perkins was presented a birthday cake and by student nurses and old timers several substantial remembrances by student nurses and officers of the hospital, and her friends expressed their sorro for her leaving.

ANNOUNCE CHANGE IN GRANGE SUPPER PLANS

A change in the original plans made by Norwich Grange to entertain the Maine Grange lecturers who are attending the New England conference at Storrs was announced Wednesday evening. According to the original plans the supper was to have been served at the fairgrounds but announcement made Wednesday evening is to the effect that the supper will be served at the Elks Home.

The Maine Grangers are coming to Norwich Friday evening, instead of Thursday evening, as previously announced. A misunderstanding over the supper plans was responsible for the error in the date. At least 150 Maine Grangers are expected in the delegation which will visit this city, as part of their two days' tour of the state. They will be met at the Norwich State Hospital in Preston by Arthur F. Avery, master of the Norwich Grange, at 6 o'clock standard time Friday afternoon and escorted to the Elks Home where the supper will be served. The menu will include cold meats, potato salad, vegetable salad, tomatoes, lettuce, pickles, rolls, fruit and coffee.

The visiting Grangers will be welcomed to Norwich by Mayor Milo R. Waters and there will be several talks on the programme with music by an orchestra.

FITCHVILLE BIRTHDAY PARTY COMBINED WITH SHOWER

Tuesday evening at Fitchville, a birthday party was given Albert Tolson, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tolson. The young host received many gifts. A beautifully decorated birthday cake held seventeen lighted candles and was cut by Mr Tolson.

Games were played and music was furnished by the Mohegan Orchestra of Norwich. Another delightful feature of the evening was a surprise miscellaneous shower given Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith, it being the second anniversary of their marriage. Gifts were presented them in a gayly decorated basket, by Mrs. Earl Blonshine Mr. and Mrs. Smith responded with sincere thanks The success of the affair was due to the plans and efforts of Mrs Blonshine.

George Farrell was heard in a well rendered solo, which received hearty applause and he responded with an encore

Ice cream and cake were served by Mrs. Tolson, assisted by her daughters Mrs. Paul Turcotte and Mrs. Blonshine.

About thirty were present, including guests from Norwich, Greeneville and Fitchville.

Providence, R. I., was settled in 1636.

REMINISCENCES OF FIFTY YEARS IN NEWSPAPER WORK

The feature of the Wednesday meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held at the Wauregan hotel was a most interesting talk by Frank H. Pullen on Fifty Years in the Newspaper Game. Mr. Pullen reviewed the progress made from the old handset days to the present time of the linotype. He also told of many interesting incidents in the editorial department of the newspaper.

Mr. Pullen said in part:

To a newspaper man a current event is a dead issue and stale news 24 hours after it is first published. And it is the newspaper man's job to report what the other fellow says rather than stand up and try to talk himself, when he really has nothing to talk about.

A man of years, not necessarily old until he feels so, naturally deals more in the past than the future, so I must ask your pardon, if I inflict upon you a few reminiscences that stand out particularly in my mind after 52 years' connection with the newspaper game and its fascinations, even though they date back 30, 40 or even 50 years—long, in fact, before some of you were born. But the fun of some of the things that have happened during that long period still lingers.

When I went to work as office boy for the Lowell Courier in September, 1873, newspaper conditions were entirely different from what they are now. There were in those days no typewriters, no telephones, no trolley cars, automobiles, radios or even electric lights or power. Newspaper copy was all written out in long hand and set up in type by hand, largely by girls, who by digging hard at piece work could earn perhaps ten or twelve dollars a week. Compare this with present day conditions.

Most of the papers of those days were four-page affairs printed on slow presses driven at first by hand power then perhaps by hot air engines and still later by steam. Electric power and type-setting machines came long after. The paper carries had to fold their papers by hand before starting out on their routes.

Among the boys who did this in the same office and at the same time with me was the present Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, now a prince of the church, who has achieved world honors.

The male printers of that early day were largely given to strolling and drinking habits. One of the most expert in our office was of this sort earning good money for those days but always hard up and continually borrowing money from his employer. He had buried his grandmother so many times that the old lady practically rose up from the grave in protest. New excuses had to be invented from time to time. Finally he appeared before his boss one evening and begged the loan which of course, meant a gift of ten dollars because his wife was going to have a baby, and to prove the truth of his statement he brought along the lady herself. I believe he got the ten dollars.

General Benjamin F. Butler, who was a resident of Lowell, tried three times to be elected governor of Massachusetts. One election night when we were giving returns by stereoptican the tide was against him. Town after town was put out showing adverse Butler figures. Finally a voice from the street shouted: "Give us some Butler towns." Immediately the answer was flashed back: "We'd give Butler towns if we had 'em." You can imagine the roar that then came up from the street at this sally.

On his third trial Butler was elected governor. When the result was known for a certainty his managers chartered a train to take him to Boston. As his carriage passed through the main street under our office window on his way to the station we flashed his picture on the screen with the caption, "Governor Butler," the street crowd was always a Butler crowd and bedlam broke loose. Arriving in Boston Butler, who was always fond of quoting Scripture, mounted the steps of the old Revere house on Bowdoin Square and his first words to the people were: "The stone which was rejected by the builders, the same has become the head stone of the corner." General Butler was really beloved by most of the citizens of his home town, even though many of them could not see their way clear to vote for him, and when he died they gave him a wonderful funeral demonstration.

Funny things are continually happening in the newspaper game. One of the funniest I recall happened in Lowell many, many years ago. Word came into the Courier office that ex-Mayor Peabody, a local celebrity, had dropped on Pawtucket street. This was confirmed from several sources and as a complete obituary of the man was put file in the office it was not necessary to go near his home. The whole story was printed that afternoon and on the bulletin board it was headed "Suddenly Called" in big red letters, a foot high. While the press was grinding out the papers, a local wag, who lived across the street from the ex-mayor, stepped into the office and said: "I guess you had better take in your bulletin board out there. Peabody 'suddenly called.' I was over at his house at one o'clock, when he was eating his dinner and he said he never felt better in his life." We stopped the press and got in touch with the editorial room. After some telephoning it was decided that the dead man was another Peabody, who lived on Pawtucket street. So we took out the big story, put in a little one and finished the edition. Next morning we learned that it was not even the second Peabody but a third one. Captain Peabody bought a dozen copies of the first edition and said that was a fine obituary we had of him. He lived for perhaps 20 years after that.

Just one Norwich incident and I am done. Years ago a report came into the Record office through the police circles one afternoon that a notorious Ledyard character, had murdered his wife. This was confirmed by several sheriffs and constables in the vicinity so we printed the story. Later in the afternoon one of our reporters drove over to Ledyard to get a bigger story for the New York papers. Reaching the place of the supposed tragedy at dusk he met a rough looking man coming out of the barn with a lantern. "What do you want," asked the big fellow. The reporter was scared, but he stammered out, "Is this Mr. C——?" "Yes." "Well, how is you wife?" asked the reporter. "She's all right, come into the house and I'll show her to you," growled the farmer. So he led the way in and, sure enough, there was the weak little woman very much alive. Realizing that we were in bad, and seeing visions of a libel suit, the reporter succeeded in softening up the alleged murderer, who admitted that he might have been a little gruff; but sheriffs had been coming to the house all afternoon and he thought the reporter was another one. Learning that the alleged murder story had been published he said he would see his lawyer in Norwich next day. We immediately got in touch with the lawyer, who good naturedly said he would try to straighten the matter out. Next day the Ledyard man and the lawyer appeared and the published story was read to them. The only thing that the man seemed to really object to was the printed statement that he was a horse thief. "No, he was not a horse thief. He had been tried for horse stealing but was acquitted. Correct that and it would be all right," so the incident ended. But it was a close call.

Now, a serious word to you Rotarians as men of affairs. Some of you are at the head of big business. You may have strike on at the mill, or an employe may have been injured in an accident. You naturally do not want too much publicity. But when a reporter calls you up for the news, do not turn him down flat, as too many mill managers are inclined to do. Tell him the whole story and suggest to him what features might properly be eliminated. The reporter will respect your confidence. But if you turn him down he is bound to get the news somewhere—it's his job—and the published story may not be to your liking. The great James G. Blaine, who got on famously with the reporters, always told them the whole story of any important public matter, pointing out what might properly be printed and what had better be omitted. He said himself that no reporter ever betrayed his confidence. Treat the newspaper man right, every time.

Vice President Edwin A. Harris presided at the meeting in the absence of President Weymouth, and Joseph C. Worth acted as song leader. There were several solo numbers by members of the club. The committee chairman made short reports of activities for the month.

Axel McNicol, chairman of the program committee announced the program of next month's meeting as follows:

Miss L. Case will be song leader for the September meetings, the five-minute speakings being Mrs. Alfred Richards, J. Henry Shanahan, Harold M. Lester and Clinton E. Lane. The usual musical number as usual, concluded the exercises.

There was a very interesting account of a fishing trip on Block Island given by Grosvenor Ely and another interesting talk by Otto Ernst on a recent trip to Buffalo. He also is a member of the club. The committee chairman made short reports of activities for the month.

TABER ADDRESSES GRANGERS AT STORRS MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn., Aug. 26—The fourteenth annual conference of New England Grange Lecturers, which was called by National Master Taber, the largest and most successful meeting of its kind ever held during the life of the Grange, was brought to a close here tonight with a meeting featuring an address by Charles M. Gardner, of Springfield, Mass., high priest of dances, a concert by the Peerless orchestra, following which a social hour was also part of the evenings program.

That we have come today in America to the conclusion that standardization was the keynote of Charles M. Gardner in his address in the closing meeting of the New England Grange Lecturers conference here tonight. We have become a nation of button pushers, he said, and now we want someone to push the button for us. What we have in America is to go ahead and use mechanical and standardize the duties of our lives and new work and principles of the grange will help to bring this about.

Mr. Gardner declared that the grange has enjoyed a continuous and healthy growth in its 51 years of its existence because of its difference in the three following vital points: its pulling power in attracting and holding members, its adaptability as an organization and because of its not dependent on material environment.

"The Influence of the Grange Upon Its Members," was the subject presented by the Rhode Island Grange delegation in opening the day's meeting at nine o'clock this morning. This was followed by the Vermont patrons, with the subject, "Influence of the Grange Upon the Community."

This afternoon the Connecticut Pomona Granges presented an interesting and complete program on "The Home" which was given in six parts as follows: "Economics" Fairfield and New Haven County Pomonas "Responsibilities" Quinebaug Pomona, "Education and Art," New London County and Sea View Pomona; "Recreation and Health," Excelsior and Housatonic Pomonas; "Music and Religion," East Central and Mountain Pomonas; and "Co-operating with the Agencies," Central Pomona. The New Hampshire program, which was to have been given this afternoon was cancelled because of the death in Springfield Mass., of Mrs. John A. Hammond, wife of the New Hampshire State Lecturer.

A tour of inspection to the final gardens of the American Dental society and the experimental fields of the college was next following the afternoon lectures.

Two separate trips of Connecticut will get under way early tomorrow morning when the visiting delegations from Maine, Massachusetts and Rhode Island set out to see the many places of interest in Connecticut. The Maine Grangers will spend two days on their trip throughout the state, while the Massachusetts and Rhode Island delegations will spend but one day.

Announcement was made here today to the effect that next year's Grange conference would probably be held at the University of Maine, at Orono. It is planned to alternate these conferences between northern and southern New England.

Connecticut Grangers who have been in attendance at the Storrs Conference this summer are as follows:

Edna E. Kretzner, Wethersfield; Mrs. Hanna Bates, Thompson, Mrs. Caroline Bidwell, Glastonbury; Charles A. Weaver, Meadow Meadow; Wheeler, Madeline Wheeler, Dorothy Wheeler, Storrs; Mrs. E. J. Whitham, Groton; Miss Mary Clack, Beacon Falls; Mrs. Nellie Bakeman Oronoque; Miss Marion F. Bates, Thompson; Mrs. Saville Greene, Groton; F. K. Perry, Mrs. F. K. Perry, Mrs. Linda Alfred, Union City; Mrs. L. A. Hotchkiss, Union City; Geo. T. Clark, Beacon Falls; Tyler D. Davidson, Bethany; Mrs. Lena Wetherbee, Elliott, John Wetherbee, Elliott.

Bessie R. Case, Collinsville; Mrs. Edith M. Johnson, Collinsville; Mrs. H. D. Sikes, Suffield; Mrs. George L. Creelman, Suffield; Miss Bernice Wheeler, Burnside; Mrs. Charles Warren, South Manchester; Mrs. Laura Loomis, South Manchester; Arthur E. Loomis, Mrs. Florence Trask, Miss Helen Chedell, South Manchester; Mrs Estelle Kibb, Wethersfield; Minnie P. Shaeln, Putnam; Mrs. Lizzie A. Wilson, Torrington; Mrs. LaVerne T. Dudley, Rockfall; O. E. LOCAL THEATRES ARE PROTECTED BY CONTRACTS

The announcement received by all Norwich theatre managers Wednesday, that all film exchanges are leaving New Haven Saturday, and that theatres will receive films from New York or Boston until present contracts expire, will not greatly affect local theatres for some time to come, according to statements by managers of the Palace, Broadway and Breed theatres, each of whom states that they have contracts for some time ahead and will continue to run features as in the past.

There is one thing, however, that will greatly affect the policy of the local theatres after their present contracts expire, this being the method to be adopted by theatre owners of the state in proportioning the amount of taxes among themselves, whereby the burden will not be too great for any one theatre to assume.

It is understood that a meeting has been called for today (Thursday) at New Haven, when all theatre owners will meet to discuss this important subject, which will have great affect upon future policies to be followed out by all Connecticut theatres.

If this meeting of theatre owners decides upon some method of proportioning the tax among all theatres, the booking of shows from New York and Boston will still go on, as the proportionate tax will not become a burden not of too great proportion for any one theatre to assume. Should the decision be against the proportioning of the taxes among the theatres showing the reels, then the theatres of Norwich, with others in the state, will have a problem on their hands which may be solved in one way only, namely, the discontinuance of all feature pictures.

If the last mentioned course is followed and each theatre is left to assume responsibility for the full tax there would be but two ways to proceed in the theatre game locally, as well as throughout the state. The first method would be to raise admission prices five or ten cents per person, thus endeavoring to raise sufficient revenue above present reenue to offset the amount which must be paid close to $150 per week, for each theatre, and this would mean 1800 ten cent admissions at advanced prices, to make up for the amount of the tax.

This policy is not looked upon with favor by the management of either the Broadway or Palace theatres, which are able to run vaudeville instead of pictures, but as for the Breed, there would be practically nothing else to do; the Breed would either be compelled to raise prices of admission, or close down until the law was repealed.

The Palace theatre, in case contracts run out and they must pay full tax themselves, on all features run, would probably go over to straight vaudeville, musical shows, light drama, or to some other type of performance which would not necessitate the use of pictures. There is a possibility that vaudeville, a news reel and a comedy would comprise the show.

The situation at the Broadway theatre would be practically the same for the management is against raising admission prices, feeling that the public does not want them raised under present working conditions. Of course if feature pictures are continued after contracts expire, and the theatre must assume full cost of tax, a demand for movies would be met and the public, because of the tax, would, as usual, be the goat, having to pay the advanced price. The policy of vaudeville shows of various kinds and the showing of news reels and comedies would be the better way out of the problem and would be the policy of the theatre.

It is evident that neither the Broadway or the Palace theatres desire to raise admission prices for pictures because of the so called, "spite law," as both managers feel that the public would take to vaudeville or other kinds of shows, until the law, which they term unjust, could be written off the statute books.

Smaller theatres around Norwich, if the full tax must be paid by them, will simply have to close down, unless a remedy is produced. It is stated that small picture houses could buy a full show for around $15, this being a ten reel show. With the news reel exempt, eight reels would be taxed for about $80, an amount just about 75% per cent more than the entire show would cost them by purchase from the dealing houses, a suicidal amount for any small one-night house to pay for the privilege of losing money.

LARGE CROWD WITNESSES PLAYGROUND EXHIBITION

Wednesday evening over 700 people gathered at the Rockwell street entrance to Mohegan park to witness the final exhibition of the dramatic department of the city recreation commission, under the supervision of Miss Catherine P. Dodd. In former seasons it has been the custom for each playground to stage its own dramatic programme and the final exhibition consisted of a repetition of these plays.

This year for the first time the dramatic department has been organized under one supervisor and the programme has been broader in scope and more varied in form than any thing attempted in previous years. The entertainment Wednesday evening was planned to bring into play the talents of the Little ones of the various playgrounds.

The programme opened with a running dialogue by Elizabeth street play center, followed by a charming operetta staged by the children of the Lake street center. Following the operetta little Miss Mary Chioda of Hobart avenue, a young dancer of unusual ability entertained with two dance numbers. The Falls play center cleverly presented a health play, A Toothbrush Fantasy. Between the acts of this play the Greeneville Harmonizers favored with popular selections and the programme closed with a good night march and song by the children of Thamesville and Hobart avenue grounds.

The programme was a decided success and the little ones were heartily applauded. The costuming of the Lake street children was decidedly unique and elicited much favorable comment from the audience. Much credit is due Mrs. Loretta Colletti Tempester who personally designed and made most of these costumes and to Miss Irene Werth, the enterprising instructor of that active play center, for her earnest co-operation, both in the preparation of the properties and in the coaching of the playlet. That a spirit of community co-operation exists was evidenced by the sincere interest shown by the large audience.

As for the performers themselves special mention should be made of Tom Fogarty of Elizabeth street play center, Mary Smith, the Red Robin of the Lake street play center, and Mary Chioda of the Hobart avenue play center. The programme was both unusual and attractive and the dramatic department feels well satisfied with the work of the season. The evening's programme was as follows:

Selections, Greeneville Harmonizers: dialogue, Thomas Fogarty and Grace LaRochelle; operetta, Cinderella in Flower Land, Lake street; toe dancing, Mary Chioda; A Toothbrush Fantasy, Falls play center; Good Night March and song, Thamesville children.

Had Beach Outing

Six buses loaded with young people from Camp Mowegen, Quinebaug, had an outing at Ocean Beach, Tuesday. There were about 130 boys in all who enjoyed the cool plunge in the ocean and later a basket lunch. The stories tell in for their share of lots of fun were the youngsters, after having the water proceeded to fill up with pop corn and ice cream.

LEVI CHAPIN, AGED 75, WEDS MRS. ELIZABETH HINELINE, 74

HARTFORD, Aug. 26.—(A. P.)—Levi Chapin, 75, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hineline, 74, residents of the Old Peoples' Home on Jefferson street, were married this afternoon in the mayor's suite at the home by Rev. Dr. C. Thomas of St. James' Episcopal church. Mr. Chapin formerly lived in New Hartford, and Mrs. Hineline was a resident of Forestville. Both have been married before. Mr. Chapin's wife having died about four years ago. The couple met at the home, and there the autumnal romance developed under the wistful gaze of the other residents, whose romances live only in retrospect.

ELIZABETH ST. TRACK TEAM WINS ANNUAL PLAYGROUNDS MEET

Playground athletics for 1925 have bidden us a fond adieu. A most eventful summer season culminated in a fitting close yesterday afternoon.

The N. F. A. grounds were the scene of the third annual track and field meet of the Norwich Playground Association. The meet was open to juveniles from all of the local grounds.

A dark horse first breezed home down the stretch Wednesday afternoon. A team which held a good third and possibly a second in betting proved the sensation of the hour. Matt Sheridan's Elizabeth St. harriers, displaying the effects of a surprisingly well balanced team took the meet with 54 out of a possible 144 points. Laurel Hill, next with the benefit of individual high scorers, gleaned 40 pts. Greeneville took 28—the Falls piled up 14 and Lake St. 8.

The times were unusual for so slow a track. Epps, wonderful little sprinter for Laurel Hill, turned in a remarkable card of performances for the day. After stepping away from his field in semi-finals, Epps forged to a 11 1-5 victory in the century. In the quarter-mile run, test for stamina and grit, Epps let rivals set pace, but over last 220 he started a sensational closing sprint for the tape. A thrilling dash up the back-stretch brought him under the wire in 1.02.

The quarter and half mile relays were the stellar attractions of the afternoon's diverse program. In the 440 yd relay for Junior Boys Matt Sheridan's well balanced team sped to victory in 1.03. The half-mile Senior relay brought Laurel Hill, Greeneville, Elizabeth St., and the Falls to the mark. Marshall, Laurel Hill lead off man jumped his field at start, passing on the baton with two yard lead to members. The men from Greeneville, Laurel Hill and Elizabeth St. were on pretty even terms as it came to final footing. Epps, anchor man, sped away from Elizabeth St. and Greeneville's anchor men. With a magnificent burst of speed he closed for the tape in record time of 1.55. Elizabeth St. was one full yards neamd with Greeneville teamies.

To Matt Sheridan should be tendered a great amount of praise for the splendid showing of his team. Handicapped by lack of any individual leaders the happy blending of a sustained balanced squad of boy and girl athletes made this victory possible over Greeneville's heavier team and Laurel Hills individual performances.

Following all the trophies have been supplied distributed to the lucky ones. Ripple Series cup, to Greeneville, the Swimming cup and to Elizabeth St. the Track trophy—there but remains the award of pennant to Playground amassing greatest number of points. The summary:

LARGE ENTRY LIST FOR E. C. TENNIS TOURNEY

That the annual Eastern Connecticut Tennis tournament, which is held this year under the sanction of the U. S. Lawn Tennis association will be a big event is evidenced by the size of the entry list which numbers 45 at the present time. Included in this entry list are a number of college net stars from eastern university teams as well as a large number from the eastern part of the state.

The tournament includes the men's singles, doubles and mixed doubles. The play for the men's singles title will start on Friday Sept. 4th at 2 o'clock with the finals being played on Labor Day. The matches are open to all players in good amateur standing. There will be prizes for winners and runners-up.

Complete team entries include the Nub Base, Old Lyme, New London, Eastern Point, Norwich Montville, Baltic, Jewett City and other places. The courts at the golf club where the tournament is to be held are in perfect condition and will be just right for fast play.

The Norwich team of Powers, Harwood, Disco, Roantree and Clapp plays a team match with Old Lyme on Saturday at Norwich.

Healy Pitches No-Hit Game

Eddie Healey pitched his Warrior team to a 6-5, no-hit game last night. This victory gives league leading team a record of seven wins and one tie, thus gaining for them sure the handsome trophy. There will be a formal presentation of bronze statuette tonight at the Lake St. ground.

Junior Twi ball has run its course but in its brief passage it certainly has left a pleasurable ripple on the baseball pond in its passage.

TROUBLE ARISES BETWEEN THREAD CITY TEAMS

That the big game between the South Windham All-Stars and the Willimantic West Ends is now on the fence and very much in danger of a suicide was made known Wednesday when it was brought to light that a wrangle has occasioned great odds between Managers Porter and Heller of the respective teams. It appears that Manager Heller wants the game played on a 60-40 basis while the South Windhamite balks at tthis and refuses to concede unless the winner takes all. Heller has been encouraged in his stand by his pilot, "Lefty Smith" and the remainder of his outfit in addition to many of the supporters of the team. The time limit for a concession had been set at 6 o'clock Wednesday night and up within a few minutes of that time no answer had been received, Manager Heller plans to engage in a game with either the Taftville team or some fast Hartford aggregation.

KAPLAN IN FINE SPIRIT FOR TONIGHT'S BOUT

MERIDEN, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, featherweight champion who defends his title against Babe Herman at the Waterbury Eastern league ball park tomorrow night, stands ready to defend his 126 pound crown.

The champion went through a light workout today and at the finish issued the following statement:

"I am in good shape and am going out to win in as short order as possible. If Herman beats me it won't be my fault as I have trained hard and am feeling fine. That is all I can say. I'll do the rest with my hands."

Kaplan was in a happy mood today, dancing around and showing plenty of spirit. He appeared absolutely carefree and his attitude spread to his managers, trainers and on-lookers, whose spirit surged to a high point.

Meriden will be practically deserted tomorrow night. More fans than attended the Kaplan-Kramer fight in Madison Square Garden last January are expected to go to Waterbury.

FABER BESTS PENNOCK IN PITCHING DUEL

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Chicago shut out New York, 1 to 0 in a pitching duel between Red Faber and Herb Pennock, today. Hooper's double and Kamm's single in the second inning scored the only run of the game. The visitors started after Faber in the first inning by cracking out three successive singles but the red-head tightened up and was never in danger thereafter. Score:

DONAHUE URGES EARLY START FOR WATERBURY

NEW LONDON, Aug. 26—(A. P.)—State Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue urges fight fans of Connecticut, New York, Rhode Island and Massachusetts to leave early for the Kaplan-Herman bout in Waterbury tomorrow night to avoid last minute congestion. As at least 10,000 autos are expected in Waterbury, it is the hope of the commissioner that motorists will arrive early enough to avoid a jam. He declared today that the preliminary bouts would start promptly at 8:30 o'clock and added that boxers must be ready to hop into the ring as soon as the preceding bout is over on penalty of $1 a minute for delay.

WORCESTER BEATS HAMPDENS IN WELL PLAYED GAME

WORCESTER, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Worcester defeated Springfield today in a well fought game 6 to 3. Gary Fortune could not withstand the Panther attack. Bosse, a former Worcester player, made a home run over the right field fence. Score:

INDIANS MAKE IT TWO STRAIGHT FROM ATHLETICS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Cleveland made it two straight from Philadelphia today, winning 3 to 1. While held the Athletics to 5 hits and outpitched Harriss and Rommel, both of whom were knocked out of the box. While started the attack with a triple.

The visitors fielded loosely in the sixth inning when the Indians, batted around scoring five runs.

Philadelphia's only run was scored on a double by Cochrane and two infield hits. While struck out six. He received brilliant [illegible] support. Score:

DETROIT WINS EASY GAME FROM RED SOX

DETROIT, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Earl Whitehill turned in another victory for Detroit when he held Boston to six scattered hits to give the Bengals a 10 to 2 win over the easterners. Boston made its two runs in the sixth on Wingfield's single, Williams' triple and Boone's sacrifice fly. It was Whitehill's fourth straight triumph.

BROWNS TURN TRICK AGAINST SENATORS AGAIN

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 26—(A. P.)—The St. Louis Browns again pounded Washington's star hurlers and won again from the enators today 11 to 3 in the second game of the series. Washington retained league leadership, however, as the second place Philadelphia Athletics also lost.

The visitors used five pitchers and the locals four in what turned out to be a slugging match. Coveleskie was retired after the first two innings. Then Ruether and Marberry were hit for a total of six runs in the third.

The Brpwns got thirteen hits for a total of twenty-five bases. These included two triples by Sisler and home runs by Lamotte and H. Rice. The Senators hit fourteen times for a total of twenty-one bases. Stanley Harris Washington manager, was ordered from the field in the fourth inning when he started an argument with Umpire Owens. Nick Altrock, Senator coach also was waived off the field when he started some of his funny stuff.

GIANTS DIVIDE WITH REDS IN TWIN BILL

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP)—New York split a double-header with Cincinnati today, winning the first game, 6 to 5, and losing the second 2 to 1, in 13 innings. As the Pirates won at Boston, Pittsburgh increased its lead to five and one half games.

Irish Meusel's 18th homer of the season coming in the eighth inning decided the opener in which Frank Snyder also hit a four-bagger.

The second game developed into a pitching duel between Jack Scott and Adolfo Luque. Each team scored a run in the first inning. In the 13th, Walker got an infield hit, took second on Heike's sacrifice and scored on Cavney's single.

With the bases full in the 11th and 12th the Giants were unable to score. Luque allowed only six hits, and both of them came between the first and 11th innings.

Lindstrom was added to McGraw's list of injured players when he was spiked by Critz in the fourth inning. The score:

PIRATES BLANK BRAVES ALTHOUGH OUTBATTED

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Although outbatted and outfielded by Boston in the second game of the series today, the league leading Pittsburgh Pirates were victors, 2 to 0. In the first inning a pass to Moore, Rawlings infield hit and Cuyler's bunt, on which R. Smith failed to force Moore at third, were followed by Barnhart's sacrifice fly, letting Moore score. In the ninth Rawlings knocked a home run into right center. The fielding of Gautreau and Wright was sensational.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

INFORMATION ABOUT CONNECTICUT AGRICULTURE

What is probably the first detailed descriptive account of agriculture of a state by towns is set forth in the Storrs Experiment Station bulletin, A Description of Connecticut Agriculture, which has just been published. Professor L. G. Davis and Clarence I. Hendrickson of the economics department of Connecticut Agricultural College are the authors of this bulletin which is the last of a series of studies intended to present the facts basic to the development of a sound agricultural program for Connecticut.

Agricultural workers will find in this bulletin a more clear-cut and detailed picture of certain phases of Connecticut agriculture than has heretofore existed. The bulletin is largely based on the 1920 census figures by towns, and it is to be followed by a second showing the trend of development between 1920 and 1925. Accurate and detailed figures are presented showing the crop condition among other things, of the following: Area of crops and figures will on the towns ... cutting wood, corn, oats, woodland and pasture land, size and value of farms, cattle, horses, hogs, poultry, fertilizer and many other figures showing the number of foreign and native born persons gainfully employed in agriculture; and production figures on the more important crops and livestock of the state. Through this data it is possible to get a complete and accurate picture of the agriculture of any town in Connecticut.

That foreign-born farmers predominate in the regions of poor agricultural development is one of the most interesting facts brought out in this study. The cheapness of the land in these areas has lured the immigrants ignorant of the lack of opportunity there, or who have been willing to accept the low standard of living which these lands afford.

Connecticut's four main agricultural areas are described as those devoted to tobacco growing, vegetable and fruit growing, dairy farming, and that area which is predominately woodland.

Nineteen areas are in the Connecticut and Housatonic River Valleys, occupying much of the best lowland of the state. Here farms are small, values are high, and the agriculture well developed. It is a region of agricultural and industrial activity. Tobacco is the third crop in point of acreage, being grown on 26,930 acres or slightly over five per cent of the crop area of the state in 1919, from which the figures were compiled. In the ten year period from 1909-1919, there was an increase of almost sixty-eight per cent in the amount of land in tobacco in Connecticut.

One fairly well defined fruit and vegetable region is found in the state, beginning at Bolton and Marlboro, running in a westerly direction to Wethersfield. Region following the central lowland to New Haven. From there it follows the coast, narrowing to the New York state line. It is from ten to twenty miles wide, and in this region fruits and vegetables predominate and are combined with dairying. Farms here tend to be small to medium in size and of moderate value, except as influenced by urban development.

Connecticut's leading agricultural industry is dairying, which in the last few decades has changed from the production of cheese and butter to the production of whole milk for the cities of the state and neighboring states. The value of the products of Connecticut's dairy industry is here so placed at $[illegible],000,000. Litchfield County, the southern dairy county of the state in the manner of dairy ... total amount of milk produced and the total value received from the sale of dairy products. New Haven County, with an average production per cow of 4,534 pounds of milk, leads in average milk production.

The predominately woodland areas include Northeastern Litchfield County, southern Middlesex and southwestern New London counties also a section comprising Windham counties. In these areas a large portion of the crop acreage is low. The farm business is small, total production is low, population sparse, and a large majority of the farmers find it impossible or difficult to secure a satisfactory living from farming alone.

FEWER WESTERN CATTLE FOR FALL MARKETING

There will probably be about 250,000 fewer cattle marketed from the range country this fall than last fall, with the principal reduction in the southwest, according to estimates of the United States department of agriculture. The estimated number to be marketed this fall is 4,077,000 head compared with 4,322,000 last fall and 4,208,000 in the fall of 1923.

The region covered by the estimate includes North Dakota, western South Dakota and Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas and the states west. This estimate is based upon reports from the various states based upon August first conditions as reported by cattlemen and others connected with the cattle industry. Marketings are dependent upon prices, feed conditions, and financial conditions, and changes in conditions may result in either larger or smaller movements.

In the states west of the continental divide the fall movement is estimated at 679,000 head compared with 678,000 head last fall and 616,000 head in the fall of 1923. Present indications are that the marketing from Utah and California will be about the same as last year with an increased number from Arizona and Nevada and a few less from Idaho, Oregon and Washington. Most of the cattle in this area move westward.

The northern ... sections of Montana, ... western South Dakota ... Nebraska, Wyoming and Colorado report a probable fall movement of 1,553,290 head compared with 1,527,000 head last fall and 1,451,000 in the fall of 1923. Montana, Wyoming, North Dakota and Colorado report about the same movement as last fall, while a small increase is indicated for the western parts of South Dakota and Nebraska.

The principal decrease is reported for the southwest, where fall movement is estimated at 1,847,000 head compared to 2,117,000 in the fall of 1924 and 2,041,000 in the fall of 1923. Because of dry weather the movement from the southwest from January to July has been very heavy, with a considerable increase from Texas, while Oklahoma marketed 323,000 during this time compared with 226,000 during the same period in 1924. In New Mexico a record number of cattle, 254,000 head moved during the first seven months of 1925 compared with 164,000 in the same time last year and a six year average of 166,000.

Feed conditions over the range country are generally very good except in the southwest. All states west of the divide and Wyoming have much better feed and hay crops than last year. In Montana, Colorado, North Dakota and the western sections of South Dakota and Nebraska the hay and feed crops are not so heavy as last year, but there is ample supply for range stock. The feed and hay crops in the southwest are very light. Ranges over all the range country except in the southwest have been very good and water ranges are generally good. In the southwest recent rains have greatly improved and the fall range outlook is rapidly improving.

Excellent feed supplies in Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Utah will result in more cattle feed for market this winter than last winter. Feed was very short in this section last fall and feeding was limited. Most of these cattle will move to coast markets. A shorter hay and beet crop in Colorado indicates a reduction in cattle feeding.

MAKING SURVEY OF CONNECTICUT APPLE INDUSTRY

There has just been started in Connecticut a survey of the Connecticut apple industry. This is a part of a larger New England wide study of the apple industry being conducted by the experiment stations of New England. The purpose of the study is to determine the position which the New England apple industry holds with relation to its competitors and to get a better basis for forecasting and predicting production of the different varieties and grades of apples. The whole study will include: 1. Studies on the farms to determine the varieties, age and condition of trees, methods of growing and selling; 2. Studies of competition to determine the regions which are competing with us for our ... the extent of their competition, and to determine how strong their competition is likely to be in future years; 3. Studies of marketing to include an analysis of prices, methods of sale, costs of marketing, storage, a study of cooperative marketing organizations and the possibilities of marketing. The work included under one and two above is being conducted for Connecticut under the general supervision of L. G. Davis, Professor of Agricultural Economics in Connecticut, with Sumner A. Dole, formerly county agent in New Haven County, in active charge of the field work. Messrs. Clemens J. Demand and Harold O. Woodward who graduated from Connecticut Agricultural College last June are assisting Mr. Dole in this project.

All ... records taken in this ... will be considered confidential ... Experiment Station bespeaks ... upon the hearty cooperation ... every apple grower of Connecticut in this project to secure information for advancing the interests of the New England and Connecticut apple industries.

The executive committee of the Connecticut Pomological Society has voted to endorse and commend to the fruit growers of the state the New England Apple Survey proposed by the New England Research Council.

LONG CORN SHUCK GIVES EAR DOUBLE PROTECTION

The corn scientists have found a way to fool the corn-ear worm. Now they are trying to develop well beyond the tip end of the ear for growing in the South, where the corn-ear worm is an active ally of another pest—the corn weevil. The corn-ear worm has a natural habit of entering the ear at the tip end of the shuck, eating his fill as he progresses down along the ear and finally cutting his way out when he is fed up. These holes made by his exit have proved to be ideal places for the weevil to enter and do further damage. The scientists have found that when the corn-ear worm enters a long-tipped shuck, however, he is more apt to bore out before he reaches the kernels, consequently doing less damage to the ear and also leaving fewer open doors for the weevil.

A number of years ago the United States department of agriculture showed that weevils were unable to cut through corn husks, although they could eat the hardest rice popcorn without difficulty. The problem accordingly was to produce husk-protected strains that also would be good yielders. The problem was not a simple one, but some suitable and fairly desirable one, but some suitable and fairly desirable strains were found. Then it was discovered that the weevils were relying on the work of the corn-ear worm to gain entrance.

Now the problem is to develop a strain of corn that has long-tipped husks. As yet the experimenters are having some difficulty in developing a type with husks of sufficient length to fool the corn-ear worm and not too long to prevent the emergence of the silk, so that the ear will fill well. Some encouragement for the ultimate solution of the problem, however, lies in the fact that there is considerable variation among strains in the length of husk projection that causes poorly filled ears. These strains will furnish the corn breeder with raw material to shape into the self-protecting, long-tipped variety that is wanted.

GROWING ALFALFA IN THIS COUNTRY

C. B. York of Stonington reports great success with his first try with alfalfa. Mr. York sowed a three-quarter acre piece with Hubam clover in the spring of 1924. The Hubam did not turn out any too well and the alfalfa looked rather weedy in the fall and was somewhat discouraging to Mr. York. This spring, however, the alfalfa showed up fine and was cut the last day of June. The estimated yield was two and one-half tons for the three quarters of an acre. This has so encouraged Mr. York, that he intends to sow nearly ten acres in the spring.

The second crop of alfalfa may be cut when it is well in bloom.

Alfalfa sown in the spring should not as a rule, be cut this season. In case blossoms are abundant and there is a growth of a foot and a half before September, a crop may be harvested. Setting the mower to leave four or five inches of stubble is also much better than cutting close.

Alfalfa may not usually be safely sown after August 1. Very fertile, sandy soils which are thoroughly prepared, will produce a larger growth when sown late, and consequently can be seeded somewhat later with a reasonable degree of success. A top growth of eight inches and well established roots are essential to insure wintering.

There are many failures with alfalfa:

When little or no lime is used.

When seed is not positively known to be of a hardy strain or variety.

When weeds are not eradicated before seeding.

When a fine seedbed with a smooth surface is not prepared.

When the seed is not inoculated.

When acid phosphate is not applied before seeding.

When nurse crops are so thick that the small alfalfa plants cannot get either moisture or light.

When the seeding is so late that the plants cannot become well established before winter.

When cut or grazed after September 10.

Nicholas H. Butler

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler President of Columbia University and a power in politics of the Republican Party, returned to America recently after some weeks spent abroad. In a prepared statement, Dr. Butler said that there has been a decided advance in Europe within the last two years. He sees hope for World peace in the security pacts and disarmament conferences. He hails the increase of prestige of the International Court of Justice as one of the greatest advances. An immediate conference with Samuel Koonig, Republican county leader, gave rise to the rumor that the college president might be a candidate for Mayor of New York.

Here's Instant Relief from Bunions and Soft Corns

Actually Reduces the Swelling—Soft Corns Dry Right Up and Can Be Picked Off.

Says Emerald Oil Must Give Complete Satisfaction or Money Cheerfully Refunded.

Get a two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) today. Every well stocked drug store has this, with the distinct understanding that your money will be cheerfully returned if it does not reduce the inflammation, soreness, and pain much quicker than any remedy you ever used.

Your bunions may be so swollen and inflamed that you think you can't go another step. Your shoes may feel as if they are cutting right into the flesh. You feel sick all over with the pain and torture and pray for quick relief. What's to be done?

Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes all the pain and soreness disappears. A few more applications at regular intervals and the swelling reduces.

And as for Soft Corns a few applications each night at bed time and they just seem to shrivel right up and scale off.

No matter how discouraged you have been with pads, shields, or other applications, if you have not tried Emerald Oil then you have something to learn. Something that will end your foot troubles for ever.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for reducing varicose or swollen veins.

Every good druggist guarantees Moone's Emerald Oil to end your foot troubles or money back.

Web of Pipe Lines

The transcontinental underground web of pipe lines that silently supplement the surface feeding of industry has been developed into an oil-carrying system that is comparable with the expansion of the railroads after the Civil war.

A network of more than 65,000 miles of two to twelve inch pipes touch both coasts and spread into the midcontinent, connecting crude oil fields, with refineries and industrial plants in distant sections of the country. This system is estimated to represent an investment of $518,500,000 in the United States.

One of the largest companies figured that if the work of transporting the oil were taken over by the railroads tomorrow, it would require two million tank cars, in addition to 10,000 locomotives, to handle it.

Three main or "trunk" lines join the central and western fields with the Whiting, Ind., refineries, and two of these continue to the Atlantic seaboard. Another trunk line connects the Salt Creek, Wyo., and Big Basin region with this line at Freeman, Mo.

The system is made up of dozens of trunk lines, tapped by gathering lines or feeders. If all these trunk and gathering lines were connected in one line they would reach three times around the earth. The most recent addition was the 1,400-mile line from Teapot Dome to Chicago, via Kansas City. More than 50,000 barrels of oil are required to fill the line which carries a "frozen liquid capital" figured at $800,000.

The trunk lines are of eight and 12-inch pipe, while the gathering lines range from two to six inches. The pipes are laid three feet under ground.

Oil is forced through the pipes by powerful pumps, located thirty to fifty miles apart along the line. The oil moves at a speed of three or four miles an hour, depending upon the contour of the country and the viscosity of the petroleum.

More Women in Germany

The latest census shows that there are 2,282,000 more women than men in Germany. In 1919 the figure was 2,821,000 so that since the war the number of "surplus women" has been decreased by over 600,000.

Same fine One-Profit Coach -at a NEW REDUCED PRICE

INCREASED volume of sales—founded on Studebaker's policies of one-profit manufacture, and no yearly models—made it possible to reduce the price of this Standard Six Coach.

Already a wonderful value—a leader of the line—the lowest priced closed car ever sold by Studebaker—its previous low price has been cut one hundred dollars.

Many of the superiorities of this one-profit Coach are hidden until revealed by thousands of miles of usage. You can't see the fine workmanship inside the engine, nor behind the durable wool upholstery—the high-grade steel — the finest northern white ash and hard maple. But here are some things that you can check against competitive cars to satisfy yourself that this is a Studebaker of the same fine quality as before the price cut—a Studebaker more up to date than the newest yearly models.

EXCESS POWER—According to rating of National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, this is the most powerful car of its size and weight.

ABUNDANT ROOM—Room to stretch your legs—room to enter or leave without disturbing occupant of folding seat.

FULL-SIZE BALLOON TIRES—For which the steering gear, fenders and even the body lines are specially designed.

AUTOMATIC SPARK CONTROL—No spark lever on steering wheel, but—

SAFETY LIGHTING CONTROL—On the steering wheel, at the driver's finger tips.

INSTRUMENTS—Including 8-day clock, gasoline gauge, speedometer, oil pressure gauge and ammeter, in single grouping under glass, on beautiful silver-faced dial.

IMPROVED ONE-PIECE WINDSHIELD—Automatic windshield cleaner, weatherproof visor, rear-view mirror, attractive cowl lights and cowl ventilator.

CO-INCIDENTAL LOCK—To ignition and steering wheel, which serves to reduce the theft insurance rates on Studebaker cars—single key operates this lock as well as that on the door and the clever device on the spare-tire carrier.

COMPLETELY MACHINED CRANKSHAFT—To obtain perfect engine balance and thus reduce vibration to a minimum.

There are only two cars manufactured on the one-profit basis. Studebaker in the fine car field, and the Ford in the low priced field. Only in these two cases does one company in its own plants make all bodies, all engines, all clutches, steering gears, differentials, springs, gear sets, gray iron castings and drop forgings.

The recent reduction was in price only. Quality has been maintained. Come in and see this coach. You will find it the same fine car as before the price reduction.

PAIGE JEWETT

WE have made Jewett Coach comparison-proof—in roominess—in quality of detail—in price!

To its already ample roominess—unmatched in the Coach field—we have skilfully added length without bulk—for even more roominess.

Jewett Coach now has more entrance space than any two-door car on the market.

It's the greatest example of manufacturing and designing skill Jewett has ever produced.

A Coach with so many great qualities, you will be hard put to the task of finding its greatest.

You will get an impression of quality when you see Jewett Coach such as you have never associated with so low a price. To look so good—Jewett Coach must be good.

And when you drive—you will realize instantly that Jewett has made a truly great motor even greater in smooth, quiet power.

See These Improvements!

You will be impressed with its new completeness that neglects nothing—charmed with its distinctive new coloring and upholstery.

To appreciate this great car you must see its many improvements. The new coincidental lock that locks steering wheel and ignition with one turn of the key; a new air cleaner that keeps road dust and grit out of the cylinders; indirect lighting that eliminates glare on the instrument board; light switches conveniently at hand on the steering gear; gear shift and emergency brake levers moved forward to provide clear floor space in front, and many other equally important improvements.

It Took 17 Years to Build It

Jewett has concentrated the experience of 17 years on this Coach. Through all these years it has been our constant desire to produce a car as good—as beautiful—as completely an engineering triumph as Jewett Coach—at a moderate price!

Already Jewett Coach has produced for us a sales record unequalled in our business.

Now—we offer a greater Jewett Coach, with all its improvements at an important reduction in price.

Come in and let us show you what these improvements mean with yourself at the wheel. adv.

Peter Tells Jerry All About It

Careless folks should not complain
When things occur to give them pain.
Old Mother West Wind.

Bobby Coon shuffled out of sight on his way back to the Green Forest. He was feeling in high spirits was Bobby Coon. His stomach was full—full of nice fresh eggs, the eggs of Mrs. Snapper the Snapping Turtle. Bobby felt at peace with all the world. Behind him at the edge of the Smiling Pool he had left Peter Rabbit. Peter wasn't happy.

"What is the matter with you, Peter Rabbit? Why have you such a long face?" demanded Jerry Muskrat, who happened to come along just then.

"Oh, there's everything," retorted Peter. "Something terrible has happened—and I—I guess it's my own fault."

Jerry saw that Peter was feeling bad. "Tell me about it, Peter," said he.

Peter sighed. He was sitting there on the edge of the Smiling Pool with Jerry. "Do you see that house over there?" asked Peter. Jerry frowned. "Why, yes, I've been seeing there? Why, who's been [illegible]

"I can tell you," said Peter.

"Who," demanded Jerry.

"Bobby Coon," replied Peter.

Jerry looked puzzled. "Now, what under the sun was Bobby Coon digging a hole in the roof of my house for?" he cried.

"Some one else dug one there first, and then filled it up," said Peter.

Jerry cocked his little round ears. "Who was that?" he inquired.

"Mrs. Snapper the Snapping Turtle," replied Peter.

Jerry laughed. "Oh, so that's it," said he. "Of course she dug that hole to lay her eggs in. And of course Bobby Coon dug that hole to get those eggs."

"Yes," said Peter miserably. "That's it. I saw Mrs. Snapper when she dug that hole, but I didn't know what she

"What is the matter with you, Peter Rabbit?"

dug it for. I asked Bobby Coon about it, and he came straight over here and dug out and ate all those eggs. He didn't leave one."

"We'll I wouldn't fret about it badly about it," replied Jerry. "If people will leave their eggs around they deserve to lose them. Anyway, Mrs. Snapper will never know that those eggs were found. Now that she has laid the eggs, she'll never give them another thought. I will just swim over and fill that hole up, and that will be the end of the matter. I am glad Bobby found those eggs. We don't want any more Snapping Turtles in the Smiling Pool and Laughing Brook. We have enough, as it is. Mr. and Mrs. Snapper are awful eaters. It is just as well that they shouldn't have any family here this year. I shouldn't feel badly about it, Peter, if I were you. Mrs. Snapper has lost her eggs, but she'll never know it. Probably she'll forget that she ever had any. I'm going to swim over there right now and fill that hole in."

Peter felt better. He watched Jerry swim over, climb out on the roof of his house and fill in the hole that Bobby Coon had made. When Jerry returned Peter had a question for him. "Weren't you surprised to learn that Mrs. Snapper had hidden her eggs in the roof of your house?" he asked.

"No," said Jerry. "She has done it before. It really makes a first-class place for those eggs. It is damp enough and it is warm enough to hatch those eggs and Mrs. Snapper is smart enough to know it. Well, I can't stay here gossiping all night. I, for one, have too much to do."

So away swam Jerry, and Peter made his way back to the Green Forest, feeling a lot better.

No Scientific Man Can Prove Evolution

KEYSTONE VIEW CO. NEW YORK

So says Dr. R. A. Millikan, of Chicago, internationally famous physicist and Nobel prize winner. He claims that no scientist can prove evolution. There is too much dogmatism in science, as well as in religion, claims Dr. Millikan, but we are all completely up in the air in our understandings. More caution is necessary before anything, including evolution, can be proven true.

WHEN CAPT. JAMES WALKER RAN THE STEAMER ELLA

Under the lead of "taking a look back," Judge Frederick P. Latimer writes in The New London Day:

Something like thirty years ago, along toward 4 o'clock in the afternoon, the children wading on the northern beach of Mystic Island, would look up from their business with the shells and periwinkles and see over in the mists toward Stonington a couple of yellow splashes and a black smokestack sticking up between. That would be the gallant steamer "Ella," in charge of Capt. James. Walker, of Norwich, who took care of more children in those days than the old woman who lived in a shoe ever thought of doing.

No monument has ever been publicly ergcted to the memory of Mr. Walker. The present generation scarcely recalls that there was such a man. But there should have been a monument. He was a wonderful personage. That ancient craft, the Ella, was the greatest floatin nursery that ever perambulated in these parts, if ever anywhere else. Every day in summer she would come sposhing and rumbling down the river, loaded with children carrying along their lunches and sand pails and shovels, with kindly, patient Capt Walker to look after them and keep them from falling overboard all day, herd them together when it was time to get back on board at Watch Hill, Mystic Island, Lyle's or Osprey, or Eastern Point, and deliver them safely back at Norwich when the twilight fell.

A great craft, the Ella! Remember the whistle? The whistle was composed of three parts—hiss, sputter and moan.

The little Niantic's toot was quite different. It was shrill and clear, like a peanut cart under full pressure of steam.

There was a Niantic plying from New London then, and a Water Witch. The Niantic was a screw steamer, somewhat larger than an elongated washtub, and puffing all the while like the S. N. Briggs. The Water Witch was a trifle bigger and less noisy. The Gypsy and Osprey came later and were quite commodious craft, nearly as large as Captain Smith's faithful Manhanset, first out in the morning and last home at night on her grand run to Greenport and Sag Harbor around Shelter Island.

Then ploughed also the graceful Sunshine over and back from Saybrook and Middletown. The lordly Block Island boomed her paddling way up and down channel every day with foam enough in front of her to make a tidal wave, her ice-boxes laden with bluefish and swordfish—in part for Brush's restaurant, where a big dinner with a big piece of pie was procurable for twenty-five cents.

The venerable Metropolitan, the old City of Norwich and the Delaware were in port. The Worcester, famed as Niagara Falls, in the honeymoons of the past; the City of Boston, the City of New York, the Kelsey, the Lawrence—and the wee Storm.

Besides these moved on the bosom of the harbor also the ancient contrapted ferryboats, and the two that carried the trains back and forth to Groton. Perhaps that was a little more than thirty years ago, but no matter.

What we are driving at is that in the evenings of the fine summer days London harbor was a glassy stretch of water, compared to what it is now. So were the streets, but not as now. No trolleys, only horse cars. Instead of automobiles, crowding carts and carriages, hacks, buggies and carryalls. No electric lights in those days. Only gas. Remember the lamp-lighters?

A police force of one.

There was also something called a saloon, whatever that might have been.

Times have changed, but are the people any happier?

Shut your eyes and hear the Ella whistle. Open them and there goes the bus to Providence. Overhead an airplane. On the streets, honking, and bobbed-hair and flappers. The sun do move.

BARNUM AS MAYOR STOLE ONLY AWAY

P. T. Barnum the circus owner closed his term as Mayor of Bridgeport Conn. by this address to the Common Council. He was entertaining a motion to adjourn sine die.

"Now, Gentlemen, let us fold our tents like the Arabs and silently steal away, congratulating ourselves that this is the only stealing which has been done by this honorable body."

Barnum's gavel fell and he turned and winked at the councilmen. "Now you are all dead cocks in the pit," he remarked.

Harvey W. Root has discovered this and other forgotten incidents of Barnum's term as mayor, which he has included in an article upon the great showman in McClure's.

A new method of oiling water to prevent mosquito multiplication consists of mixing waste oil with sawdust which when sowed in seed sinks to the bottom and releases oil for four or five days.

Increases Tobacco Crop

Production of tobacco in Georgia is increasing rapidly and has already assumed an important place as a cash crop in the southern half of the state according to the department of agriculture, which bases its conclusions on recent investigations in that state and North Carolina. The marketing season for tobacco opened in July 2 in Georgia, and on Aug. 4 in South Carolina. Marketings were comparatively light in both states, because farmers were still occupied with harvesting and curing.

Early marketings usually consist largely of sand lugs and first primings, and therefore top prices are not expected. The average price for all sales in Georgia during the opening week was approximately 15 1-2 cents a pound. Figures for South Carolina have not been compiled, but the department expects they will probably be somewhat lower than those of Georgia.

Georgia planted 9,000 acres of bright tobacco in 1922. This was increased to 16,200 acres in 1923, and under the stimulus the acreage was increased to 39,300 in 1924. This year the acreage is estimated at 71,400, and there is talk of further heavy increase for 1926. In 1924 there were only nineteen auction warehouses in the State for handling the crop, while this year there are 45.

In less than two years 200 small rural schools in Texas have accepted the provisions of the rural aid law and have introduced instruction in prevocational and industrial subjects according to plans furnished or approved by the state department of education. The state contributes to rural schools of two or more teachers, under certain conditions, not more than $250 each to aid in installing equipment for industrial training in practical agriculture, animal husbandry, farm mechanics, and the household arts. The reports of the results of the new instruction are entirely favorable.

POETRY

The Heart of the Tree

What does he plant who plants a tree?
He plants the friend of sun and sky;
He plants the flag of breezes free;
The staff of beauty, towering high;
He plants a home to heaven anight
For song and mother-croon of bird
In hushed and happy twilight heard—
The treble of heaven's harmony—
These things he plants who plants a tree.

What does he plant who plants a tree?
He plants cool shade and tender rain,
And seed and bud of days to be,
And years that fade and flush again;
He plants the glory of the plain;
He plants the forest's heritage;
The harvest of a coming age;
The joy that unborn eyes shall see—
These things he plants who plants a tree.

What does he plant who plants a tree?
He plants, in sap and leaf and wood,
In love of home and loyalty
And far-cast thought of civic good—
His blessings on the neighborhood.
Who in the hollow of His hand
Holds all the growth of all our land—
A nation's growth from sea to sea
Stirs in his heart who plants a tree.
—Henry Cuyler Bunner.

The Sweetbrier

Our sweet, autumnal western-scented wind
Robs of its odors none so sweet a flower,
In all the blooming waste it left behind,
As that the Sweetbrier yields us; and the shower
Wets not a rose that buds in beauty's bower
One half so lovely; yet it grows along
The poor girl's pathway, by the poor man's door—
Such are the simple folk it dwells among,
And humble as the bud, so humble be the song.

I love it, for it takes its untouched stand,
Not in the vase that sculptors decorate;
Its sweetness all is of my native land;
And e'en its fragrant leaf has not its mate
Among the perfumes which the rich and great
Buy from the odors of the spicy East.
You love your flowers and plants; and will you hate
The little four-leaved rose that I love best,
That freshest will awake, and sweetest go to rest,
—John G. C. Brainard.

BRINGS $1,000 DAMAGE ACTION AGAINST KNIGHTS OF KU KLUX KLAN

Walter F. Parmelee of New London has filed suit in the superior court against the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Incorporated, a corporation existing under the laws of Georgia and located in the city of Atlanta, Ga., "doing business" in the state of Connecticut. According to the complaint on or before May 1, 1925 the plaintiff lent $539.57 to the defendant corporation, and the debt has not been paid. The plaintiff claims $1,000 damages.

Brings Suit Over Property.

Harriet Tucker Morgan of Old Lyme has started a suit in the superior court against Frank L. Saunders, also of Old Lyme, and guardian of the estate of Grace Hope Morgan, a minor, residing in Old Lyme. Grace Hope Morgan is the daughter of Harriet Tucker Morgan. August 15, 1924, Frank L. Saunders was appointed guardian of the estate of Grace Hope Morgan by Old Lyme probate court.

The plaintiff alleges that Dec. 4, 1923, she was the owner of a certain tract of land with dwellings in Old Lyme. On that date plaintiff executed a certain deed of said strip of land. The plaintiff has retined the deed in her possession and has never delivered the same to the grantee therein, Grace Hope Morgan.

On Dec. 13, 1923, the deed was recorded in the Old Lyme land records. Since Dec. 4 1923, the plaintiff has been and now is in possession of said deed, according to the complaint constitutes a cloud on the title of the plaintiff to the premises.

The plaintiff asks a judgment determining that the deed was never delivered to Grace Hope Morgan and that the latter has no right, title or interest in the real estate.

Files $10,000 Alienation Suit.

Claiming $10,000 damages, Reuben Lubchansky of New London has filed an alienation suit against Julius Stone of New London. Plaintiff is the husband of Lottie Lubchansky and claims that the defendant alienated the love and affection of his wife.

Three Suits Against Woman Driver.

Damages of $500 are claimed by Marguerite N. Maxson of Groton in a suit she has brought against Jeanette Osiason of Fall River, Mass. Plaintiff claims that on July 7th, this year, she with Irene D. Noyes, was riding in a Hudson automobile owned and operated by James R. Maxson, husband of the plaintiff. They were driving from Mystic to Pawcatuck. Near the Pleasant Hill Dairy Farm a Maxwell coach driven by the defendant ran into the machine in which the plaintiff was riding. The plaintiff was injured in the crash.

As a result of the same accident James R. Maxson, owner of the Hudson, has brought suit against Jeanette Osiason asking for damages of $2,000 for the damage of his machine and for the medical attention and nursing of his wife, Marguerite W. Maxson who was injured.

Irene L. Noyes of Boston, who was riding with Mr. and Mrs. Maxson at the time of the accident, has also filed suit against Jeanette Osiason asking damages of $350 for personal injuries.

HOME FROM TRIP TO EASTERN STAR ASSEMBLY

Mr. and Mrs. Arad R. Manning and Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Geer have returned from Toronto after attending the 18th triennial assembly of the General Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star.

The assembly had the largest attendance in the history of the order and was the first ever held in Canada.

Delegates and representatives were present from all the states and provinces, Alaska, Mexico, Scotland, Cuba, Canal Zone, Philippines and Porto Rico. There were thirty-five members from Connecticut.

The sports of the grand officers showed the order to be in a very prosperous condition. 301,000 new members being admitted since 1922. Business houses of all kinds in Toronto displayed banners and window cards with "Welcome O. E. S." The Norwich party combined a sight seeing trip with their visit. They crossed the Bear Mountain bridge, traveled the Storm King highway, visited the Ashokan reservoir (which aerates the water and has 100 times the capacity of the proposed Deep River Rock (Reservoir) Watkins Glen and Niagara Falls on the way to Toronto.

On their return trip they crossed on the Fort Erie-Buffalo ferry and followed the Lake Erie shore into Ohio, where at Ashtabula they turned south to Pittsburgh.

From Pittsburg, the Lincoln highway was followed over the Allegheny Mountains, a stop was made at Tuscarora summit, where a view of 50 miles can be seen on a clear day, then on to Gettysburg where several hours were spent in being conducted over the battlefields, by a guide. A few miles west of Philadelphia the Lincoln highway was left for a visit at Valley Forge park. The homeward trip then took the party to Niack, Tarrytown by ferry to Danbury, Waterbury, Meriden, Middletown and over the new East Haddam, Hadlyme, Norwich pike, covering 1,705 miles.

HAVE NOVEL PLAN TO BEAUTIFY STATE HIGHWAYS

A novel plan for beautification of Connecticut highways is under consideration by the state highway department. The proposals made known Wednesday in a statement issued by the department, also shows a determined policy on the part of the state to eliminate dangerous trunk line curves where possible and to improve sight lines where curves cannot be removed.

The scheme contemplates the use of areas abandoned where roads have been straightened and sharp-angle curves reduced. It is planned to conduct contests and offer cash prizes for the best economical plan submitted for each place where beautification is proposed. The winner of the competition will be required to estimate the cost of development and execute it under supervision of the department.

A group of judges will be selected to pass on the plans. The scheme is expected to interest florists, nurserymen, foresters, landscape gardeners, artists, students and others.

At this time the department has in mind as a basis for experiment the Saybrook-New London section of the Boston Post road. On this route the highway has been straightened in many places, and the old curves are the spots where the plan would be tested. These places vary in size from small plots to several acres no longer practicable for road usage. If allowed to stand in their present condition it is felt they would become unsightly.

The department is seeking opinions and co-operation of nurserymen, florists and others interested in the plan Essential features of the winning plan, is is pointed out, must be its economy and regard for sight lines which will not interfere with safety. Cost of maintenance is another element which will play an important part in determining the selection. For example, the department explains it would be well for contestants to avoid plans which would entail heavy expense in grass mowing, tree trimming, etc.

It is estimated that there are hundreds of road side places available for development on the various state highways.

Another Season of Fairs

From the first of September until the middle of October the circuit of fairs will be followed by the state health department, leaving in its wake a state wide health message which should reach many thousands of people.

The September fairs include East Haddam and Washington September 2 and 5, Goshen, State Fair at Charter Oak, Park, Hartford, Griswold, Woodstock, Wolcott, Lyme, Chester, Marlborough and Broad Brook.

Alaska does an annual export and import business in excess of $100,000,000.

ISSUES STATEMENT ON RATS AND RAT KILLERS

The state department of health on Wednesday issued the following statement on Rats and Rat Killers:

The four standard and approved methods of combatting rats are: the rat proofing of buildings; the removal of rat food supply; trapping; poisoning. These methods if diligently carried out may be depended upon to give results. Another method of combatting rats is much advertised but it is said to be uncertain as to results. It consists of giving rats food which contain a living culture of bacteria with the idea of infecting rats with a disease which they will pass on to other rats before they themselves die of it. Contrary to the claims of effectiveness for such products, most authorities who are not interested in their sale point out that they are ineffective and expensive. The germs used appear to be only mildly pathogenic for rats.

While the method of combatting rats by means of bacteria, viruses, etc., is supposed to be harmless to human beings it is a fact that the bacteria used belong to the food poisoning group of germs. The germ often used is described as belonging to the paratyphoid B group. It is well known that some of the germs in this group can cause serious disease in man. Nobody knows when the germs used to kill rats may develop pathogenic power and thus be dangerous to man. Experts strongly advise against the use of such products.

Persons who give contracts for rat extermination would do well to ascertain the methods of extermination used. Recent inquiries have elicited the information that a living culture is often used in combatting rats under such conditions that the owner of the property where it is used knows nothing about it. This is said to have occurred even in food establishments where there would be a possibility of the germs getting into the foods and being distributed in that way.

It may be of interest in this connection that outbreaks of food poisoning have been traced to germs found normally in the alimentary tract of rats and mice. In some instances foods causing such disturbances have been shown to have had an opportunity to become infected by mice and rat drippings. Thus it appears that germs may be passed from rats to humans through the human food supply and this is another reason why cultures of living germs should not be fed to rats.

Ballou Family Reunion

Mount Hope, the ancient home of Metacom, or King Philip, the greatest of the sachems of the Wampanoags, now privately owned, has been offered the Ballou family for their annual reunion Saturday, August 29th. Here are seen the famous King Philip's chair and spring, the marker placed by the R. I. Historical society many years ago to mark the place of his death; and from the top of the mountain, which is easily accessible, there is a most remarkable view of the near by islands in the beautiful bay. Prudence Island in the immediate foreground was the ancient home of John, the oldest son of Mathurin Ballou, and is therefore of particular interest as seen from this advantageous point.

Advocates Mine Dusting

Explosion disasters, causing 918 fatalities in 1922, 1923 and 1924, have been traced to coal dust. Tests conducted at the experimental mine of the bureau of mines at Pittsburgh have established that a mixture of 60 to 70 per cent of non-inflammable dust with the coal dust will effectively blanket and prevent a dust explosion. This conclusion has been verified by actual mine practice in France and England and to a limited extent in this country.

Consequently the bureau of mines is using every means at its command to encourage wider use of the dusting of coal mines. This consists in applying inert rock dust to the walls and floor of mines in such quantity that dust explosions from ignition will be prevented or an incipient explosion will be effectually smothered. As a result of the activities of the bureau and other agencies it was reported in February last that 42 American coal mines had adopted the dusting method.

A wide extension of coal-mine dusting demands a tremendous tonnage of dusting material, says the bureau. The location of a source of supply is one of the first problems that confronts the operator. For better dissemination of accumulating coal dust and for illumination the dust should be light color. To safeguard the miner's health the dust must be low in silica. The price must be kept moderate or the cost of dusting will be prohibitive.

A summer university course in psychology, languages and international law, with Esperanto as the language of instruction, was conducted this summer in Geneva in connection with the seventeenth Universal Esperanto congress meeting there—the first time in history that an artificial language has been used in that way. Esperantists from many parts of the world attended the congress, the culmination of various national congresses previously held in the most important European countries, in America, and Japan. Almost every civilized country now issues a publication in Esperanto and the national language and about 15 magazines are published in Esperanto only.

WESTERLY

The annual meeting of Westerly Fire district, the first to be called with the change of date as adopted at the last session of the Rhode Island Legislature, following the recommendation of a former fire district meeting, was held in Westerly town hall Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by Moderator Lewis Stanton, the call being read by Clerk Carl E. Burdick.

The annual report of Treasurer and Collector Everett E. Whipple, covering the period from the first of December, 1924, the end of the last annual report to the present time, was read by him, showing receipts for the past period of $16,673.05 and expenditures of $16,030.-84 with cash on hand $642.51.

The report showed the net debt of the Westerly Fire District Aug. 21, 1925, to be $3,357.49.

It would appear that in the coming year it would be necessary for the Fire district to borrow more money to carry on the district affairs.

HOWARD-PAPALIA WEDDING AN ELABORATE CEREMONY

(Special to the Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Aug. 26—Miss Marie Josephine Papalia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael D. G. Papalia of Westerly, was united in marriage with James Francis Howard, Jr., of Brooklyn, N. Y., at a ceremony, solemnized and followed by a nuptial mass celebrated by Rev. J. F. Vincent Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, at the Church of the Immaculate Conception. With an attendance of nearly 500, the church was beautifully decorated with pink peadioli and palms. Miss Frank G. Ahern, the organist, played the wedding music. During the ceremony Martin Spellman sang "Oh, Promise Me," also Gounod's "Ave Maria," with violin obligator by Charles Downey.

The bride was gowned in white duchess satin trimmed with rose point lace, the gown cut with court train. She wore a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a bridal shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor Miss Lillian Fallon, wore poudre blue chiffon over pink, and had a blue chiffon velvet hat to match. Her bouquet was of Ophelia roses. The bridesmaids were Misses Camelia and Helena Papalia, sisters of the bride; their frocks were of petal pink chiffon. They wore hats to match and each carried an old fashioned nosegay of garden flowers.

The groom was attended by his brother, George Howard of Brooklyn, N. Y. The ushers were Dr. Philip Papalia, of Washington, D. C., a brother of the bride, and Sidney Teeter of New York. Following the church ceremony an elaborate wedding breakfast was served a party of fifty guests at 120 High street, the home of the bride's parents. Previous to the ceremony photos were taken of the wedding party.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard left on an afternoon train for a trip of three weeks to Boston, Bangor, Me., and the Great Lakes. On their return they will reside at Lake View, Clifton Heights, near Paterson, N. J., the groom being credit manager for a large business corporation.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Juliano Fusco, Sidney Teeter, Miss Bianca Fusco, Miss Dolores Fusco, Mrs. Margaret Murray, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Howard and Mr. and Mrs. James Howard all of Brooklyn, N. Y., and many others.

Following the church ceremony the guests crossed the street to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Papalia, parents of the bride, where the reception was held and the breakfast served by the Ocean House, Watch Hill. The menu:

Abbeville, S. C., claims one of the oldest industrial schools in the country, the De la Howe state school. It was founded on a bequest made in 1797 by Mr. Jean de la Howe, a Frenchman who came to this country in colonial days and identified himself with a Huguenot settlement in South Carolina. The school was established several years afterwards. The attendance was small for a number of years, but since state funds have been made available for further development it has increased to 200 students. A new vocational building is nearing completion, built of graystone and wood obtained from the quarries and forests on the school land.

Mrs. Arthur Church of South Willington was among the callers Sunday at — The Colvers—Willimantic Camp ground with many from Gales Ferry.

Prof. and Mrs. Chester E. Dimick, have as their guests Mrs. Dimick's brother, William R. McKelden and niece Miss Alice Kauffman of Washington, D. C.

Arranging Flowers

There is romance in the arrangement of cut flowers. At least that is what Japanese girls and women, who spend many hours in the arrangement of a few flowers, believe. It is lucky to have an odd number of flowers, they think. Three is a favorite number, although one, five and even seven are used.

A three-flower arrangement represents heaven, earth and man. The water in the vase or bowl represents the surface of the earth and each flower is arranged at a different distance from it. The flower representing earth naturally has the shortest stem, that standing for man having a longer one and heaven the longest stem. Each of the flowers is always tipped in a different direction.

In the spring the Japanese women bend the flower stems slightly to represent flowers in the wind. When a member of the household goes away, a willow branch is bent and arranged in a vase to represent sorrow for his departure. When flowers are to be given away it is customary to give them in bud. Red flowers are used only for funerals.

Leaves as well as flowers are used by the Japanese in their horticultural decorations. A large number of blossoms is never crowded into a single vase but arranged in loose clusters in rather low vases.

The type of vase or bowl depends largely on the kind of flowers to be arranged. Green and neutral vases, representing the natural environment of flowers, are considered for brightly colored blooms, such as yellow daisies, Oriental poppies and marigolds. Sweet peas and other flowers with pastel shades are arranged in daintily colored baskets or bowls.

REASONS FOR FIRST GRADERS' FAILURE TO PASS

That nearly 23 per cent of the first-grade pupils fail to pass to the second grade in due course is shown by an inquiry conducted by the Interior Department, Bureau of Education, as to the causes of children's failures in school. "Inability to measure up to the requirements in reading and arithmetic, unnecessary absences from school, and lack of general physical and mental development account for a great measure for this condition. Unduly large classes, placing children of widely different age and mental ability in the same class, too many interruptions to school work, and lack of cooperation on the part of parents are contributing causes.

A piece of lace about three feet long and linen goods which mysteriously disappeared from a line in the yard of Mrs. David Small, at York, Pa., were stolen by a robin. This was revealed when a nest was discovered made of the lace and cloth. The nest was filled with eggs, and the owner of the stolen goods did not reclaim them.

"Far from the madding crowd"

A lovely day, beautiful scenery, a fine road—the motor trip will be doubly enjoyable if it leads to a dinner at some quaint inn or tea-room.

But the most charming eating-places are the most popular, and the most likely to be crowded. You will avoid the disappointment of being turned away if you make advance arrangements.

No matter how far from home you wish to dine, a toll telephone call will reserve a table for you.

DISTRICT OF COLCHESTER ss. Court of Probate, Aug. 25 1925.
Estate of HESTER H. STRONG late of Colchester in said District, deceased. The administrator having presented his administration account with said estate to this court for allowance, as per application on file more fully appears, it is Ordered—That said application be heard and determined at the probate office in Colchester in said district, on the first day of September A. D. 1925, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice be given of the pendency of said application and of the time and place of hearing thereon, by publishing the same once in some newspaper having a circulation in said district.
JOHN CONDREN, Judge

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Lebanon, within and for the district of Lebanon, on the 26th day of August, 1925.
Present, GEORGE E. BRIGGS, Judge
Estate of ANDERSON O. MARTIN, late of the town of Lebanon, in said district deceased. The administrator appeared in court and filed a written application alleging that said estate is now in settlement in said court, and praying for an order to sell certain real estate belonging to said estate, fully described in said application.
Whereupon, it is ordered, That said application be heard and determined at the probate court room in Lebanon, in said district, on the fifth day of August A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon and that notice of the pendency of said application, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order once in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper having a circulation in said district at least five days prior to the date of said hearing, and that return be made to the court.
GEORGE E. BRIGGS, Judge

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 26—Further confusion of price movement characterized today's stock market. Reactionary tendencies became more pronounced as trading progressed with the easier call money rates, gasoline price reductions and apparent completion of urgent short covering in Chrysler, which broke nine points to 136, all factors in the selling movement.

The announcement that Finance Minister Caillaux was returning to France with a concrete British proposal for the settlement of the French war debt to Great Britain was received after the market closed.

Operators for the rise attempted to stem the tide of liquidation by bidding up U. S. Steel common over two points to 125 7-8, the highest price in months but they were only partially successful.

The sharpest declines took place in high priced issues for which there developed a thin market. American Can, General Electric, Sears, Roebuck, General Baking, White Motors, Havana Electric and West Penn Power were the leaders but breaking 4 to 8 points below yesterday's closing quotation.

The day's trade news was mixed in character. On the favorable side were the establishment of a new high record in car loadings for the week ending Aug. 15, publication of additional favorable July railroad earnings statements, reports of an improved demand for steel products and declaration of an extra dividend of $1 by the Ajax Rubber company. Offsetting these were the passing of the preferred dividend by the Standard Plate Glass company and additional automobile and gasoline price cuts.

Selling of Chrysler was counteracted by the buying of other motors. Willys-Overland preferred was run up over five points to a new peak at 116 on a partial application of cash accumulations towards the payment of back dividends, but it cancelled a large part of its gain before the close. Willys-Overland common closed a point higher at 20 after selling as high as 21. A brisk demand also developed for Studebaker, which was run up to 46 3-8 and then eased to 46 for a large fractional gain on the day. Bullish operators were not altogether unchanged, nearly a score issues being listed to new peak prices for the year during the session. The industrial list [illegible] included Allis-Chalmers, Chandler Packing, Brown Shoe, Certain Teed Products first preferred, Gimbel preferred, Eaton Axle, Emerson-Brantingham preferred, Fisk [illegible] preferred, Hudson & Manhattan, New York Shipbuilding, Reid [illegible], Union Bag & Paper and [illegible].

Motor accessories of the southern group were the outstanding features of the leading railroad stocks Southern Railway, Seaboard Air Line common and preferred and Atlantic Coast Line all mounted to new peak prices for the year.

The [illegible] money market renewal rate was reduced 1 up to 4 1-2 per cent. [illegible] 4 per cent all day. That [illegible] commercial paper rates were lowered.

Sterling exchange in the Scandinavian exchanges featured the firm foreign exchange market. Norwegian kroner rose to 14.45 cents to around 13.45 cents, Danish kroner ruled about 4 cents higher, around 24.34 cents. Swedish kroner steady at 24.82 cents, Dutch florins around 40.38 cents.

ROBERT B. OTIS IN VERY SERIOUS CONDITION

Robert B. Otis, 18 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Otis of West Main street is a patient at the New Haven hospital, suffering a broken neck, received Monday, when he dove from a pier at Camp Hazen, the Young Men's Christian Association camp at Chester, Conn.

At an early hour this (Thursday) morning, an official of the hospital staff stated that he was in a very serious condition.

According to information sent out by Mr. Stanley of New Haven, a state official of the Y. M. C. A., Otis was on the pier at the camp, Monday afternoon and suddenly took a running dive off the pier, heading towards shore. The water is nine feet deep but as he dove deep and at first it was believed that he struck his head on bottom causing a dislocation of the sixth vertebra.

Word was immediately dispatched to Mr. and Mrs. Otis who were in the city and they left late Monday for the New Haven hospital where they have been ever since following the accident. At the hospital Mr. Otis, who was in the water some time, but is nearer the bottom at that point, a gravel bottom, his head would have been more protecting such a blow. He was unable to explain how it happened himself, but as an official at the camp stated that Mr. Otis was in the habit of throwing his head and shoulders back while diving, it is believed that the force of the dive wrenched his neck causing the fracture.

Mr. Otis' condition has been very serious ever since he was taken to the hospital and he is completely paralyzed from the waist down, the fracture bringing about pressure on nerves effecting almost the entire body.

Mr. Otis has attended Camp Hazen since its organization six years ago and for the past three years has been a tent leader and camp pianist. He is most popular among the boys at the camp and the accident has cast a shadow of gloom over the entire camp. His many friends in this city have learned of his injuries with regret and a hope for his recovery, although there seems almost no hope at the present.

After talking with his son, Mr. Otis issued a statement in which he freed the Camp Hazen officers of all responsibility for the sad accident. Young Otis himself stated that he dove; cause bottom and could not tell how his injury came about and therefore the blame could not be that of any camp officials. The accident was evidently one of those which occasionally happen when people are diving, being entirely unavoidable.

New Haven Hospital at 2:45 o'clock this (Thursday) morning reported that Mr. Otis was resting as comfortable as could be expected and that he was conscious.

REV. J. ROMEYN DANFORTH SPEAKER AT ANNUAL BILL DINNER, LEDYARD

Over 200 people attended the 58th annual meeting of the Bill Library association, held at Ledyard Center, Tuesday, and participated in the various activities of the day, which closed with the serving of the annual Bill dinner, which as usual proved most enjoyable, the service by members of the Congregational church of Ledyard being of its usual high type, and the menu served consisting of real home cooked foods, a treat well worth the journey into the country.

The program for the day opened at 10:30 o'clock with the annual meeting of the trustees of the Bill Library association. The usual reports were read, that of Mrs. Billings T. Avery, librarian, showing a substantial increase in the use of the books in the library during the past year, also additions to the library through purchase or donation. The books on the shelves and ready for circulation now number over 450, including reading matter of all kinds, in book form, as well as magazines and periodicals which are also circulated among the residents of Ledyard.

The report of Treasurer Billings T. Avery showed an increase in funds on hand. Expenditures reported included $214.81 for the association meeting of 1924 and $131.72 for library expenses. This figure including salary and all other expenses for operating the library. Funds on hand include the following: Henry Bill Fund, $1,000; This fund which was originally $500, deposited on February 26 1867, with an addition of $40.10, made on March 4, 1867 from funds left over above library expenses, has been used to defray expenses of the annual meetings and since the purchasing of books for the library. Income from United States 4½ per cent bonds $22.27, original gift of Caroline Bill, amount in trust on N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. stock, the gift of Frederick Bill, $417.50, two bonds Edward Prafer Bill $200 and accumulated interest on the bonds, amounting to $124.50. These figures do not include the original values of the bonds or stock from which interest has been derived, or their present market value.

Officers of the association elected for the ensuing year were as follows: President, William I. Allyn; vice-presidents, Isaac G. Geer and Charles A. Gray; secretary, Frederick W. Burton; treasurer, Billings T. Avery; librarian, Mrs. Billings T. Avery. Trustees, William I. Allyn, Billings T. Avery, Frederick W. Burton, Joseph A. Clark, Lorenzo Gallup, Jacob Gallup, Isaac G. Geer, Charles A. Gray, Charles S. Howell, Joseph E. Holdridge, Rev. A. E. Kinmouth, Rev. W. H. Wade. Committees, executive, Isaac G. Geer, Billings T. Avery, Charles A. Gray, Joseph A. Clark, Jacob Gallup, Mrs. Billings T. Avery, Mrs. Frederick B. and Frederick W. Burton.

In remarks concerning the library it was shown that the library was in a very prosperous condition and that among the improvements made during the past year was a beautiful name sign reading, Bill Library, Ledyard, finished in gold letters on a black background, which had been placed over the main door to the library and facing the main road.

Immediately following the meeting of the trustees the meeting was adjourned to the Ledyard Congregational church, where a delightful program was rendered previous to the address of the day, which was delivered by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London.

The program opened with a selection, Poet and Peasant, F. von Suppe, by the grange orchestra: Mrs. William I. Allyn, pianist, Harry Hanks, Fred Doolittle, Miss Phyllis Hanks and Lawrence F. Allyn, violins, the latter being the lad to play in most pleasing manner. The welcoming address was given by Rev. Glenn F. Goodchild, pastor of the church, who voiced the pleasure of the Ledyard people in seeing so many of the descendants of old Ledyard residents present. He also mentioned that on account of the 200th anniversary of the Congregational church at Ledyard, would be observed with appropriate exercises, and that he hoped all friends of Ledyard would attend the services and join in the celebration of this great event in the history of the church.

The next number was a selection, Good Night Beloved, Caro Pensati, by the Grange quartet, Miss Phyllis Hanks, soprano; Mrs. William I. Allyn, alto; Harry Hanks, tenor; Frederick B. Allen, baritone, which was also well received by the large audience. Prayer was offered by Rev. W. F. White of Trumbull, Conn., former pastor of the church, after which a Bachelor song, Oats on the Deep Ploughed Land, Lads, were most unceremoniously interrupted by Frederick B. Allyn. This was followed by the address of the day after which the program closed with a quartet number, Honey Town, Stanley E. Wadsuer, by the Grange quartet; selection, Bohemian Girl, W. Bade, by the grange orchestra and the pronouncing of the benediction by Rev. A. E. Kinmouth of Ledyard, a former pastor of the church.

The address of the day, delivered by Rev. Dr. Danforth of New London was on A Man's Reading, in which the speaker stressed the importance of reading, saying in part, as follows: When children go to the Sunday school or public libraries, the boys do not read the girls books but we find that girls do read the boy's books, therefore, when we choose boy's books, we are choosing a book which is ready by everyone. Thus we see that girl's read more than the boys do for they read both types. Women read certain books but men never read them, yet we find that women do read the books read by men, therefore it is important what men read because these books are read by all.

The important thing is, why do men read and, the answer is, in order that they might grow. We learn things by hearing of them, by listening in over the telephone and in many other ways. We learn by reading the local papers, they are of great interest to us and they can never be replaced by any great outside paper. The local paper will always be with us because it tells of people we already know and of things close at hand. The local paper is therefore the starting point. When we read still further in them, concerning things of the outside world, or read of these things in papers from larger cities, we simply extend our neighborhood, we find that things happening in Shankhai do interest us. When these things become of interest to us we are bigger men and women, the extension of our sympathy makes us grow. Newspapers are a wonderful thing to use to enlarge our neighborhood and make ourselves larger.

Then comes the magazine which contains various things which are not news. Here we find articles and stories, but they are in a compressed form and therefore can not take the place of a book. In reality the magazine is the halfway point between the newspaper and the book.

Then we come to the book itself and immediately we are not concerned with quantity, for it is quality that we ask. We want a book worth while. We want the book to do for us what the newspaper and magazine does for us, but whereas they create the appetite for more, we desire that the book shall satisfy our craving. Newspapers and magazines take us part way, but the book brings us nearest the reality.

We should endeavor to make our lives of "three dimensions, length, which we cherish; breadth, which we do not always appreciate, and depth and height, the most neglected of the three.

By looking at a tombstone we see the day of the birth and death of the person buried, but a knowledge of the person buried there would enable us to fill in between the dates, fine things accomplished during life. Did life begin before we were born, have we grandparents, was there community life and activities in the world before our day? By reading of things of three or more centuries ago, we add this knowledge to our meagre three score and ten years of life, thereby lengthening our lives.

History to many people seems a dead thing, it seems dry and not worth reading. If a man gains this impression of history he has not read it correctly. History tells us of people just like ourselves, it tells of tears and laughter, of the play of children the deeds of strong men and the manner in which many of them met with heroic deaths. By reading history you gather the wealth of the ages and get to know people who lived 5000 years ago better than you know millions of people living today. By reading our lives are extended and we grow. This is the purpose of reading, to extend our life back through the years of the past generations, thereby lengthening, broadening and deepening ourselves. By reading we extend our horizon of life. We learn of the material things about us, things concerning the world in which we live and gain knowledge of that which is above or below us, in other words, we grow.

Without height and depth life is flat and dull. If we continue to reach out through reading, things which were once beyond our reach will soon be brought to us and we may be able to grasp them. It is easy to follow along the level or go down the grade, but the upward reaching is what prevents life from becoming dreary. Through spiritual reading we are able to reach up for the better things, for things which give us hope and pleasure.

President Elliot selected a wonderful five foot shelf of books for himself but no two men care for the same thing. It is better that we should select our own books. We do not send a friend into the shoe store to purchase a pair of shoes to fit our feet. Therefore we should not have others select the books to fit our minds, for by doing this the books often become dust gatherers, we do not care for them after we have bought them. We should first buy the book which contains information concerning which we are already interested. By reading of this we know what we wish to read next, and so on, an unending chain which increases our knowledge.

We should never set aside so much time for reading lest the period should become a burden to us. Once we start reading, however, we should read at least once a day no matter how short the period of reading. By this method reading does not become a burden and the fire in the book is kept burning for us. No man should read a book which is tiresome to him. Either he should read it differently or give it up entirely.

Books and reading teach us two things. First, we become more deeply interested in things about us; second, we become interested in more things. Things which once did not interest us, become interesting. Man does not grow old if he continues to find more things in which to take interest. Continue to read for it will add to your knowledge will make you grow bigger, deeper and wider, because you will become more deeply interested in the things for the good of the heart and mind.

Following the annual Bill dinner friends met for social times and the Bill library was inspected by number of visitors, who remarked upon the system of handling the books and the splendid selection of reading material on the shelves. The Ledyard grange hall was also opened during the afternoon and those who desired to dance were enabled to enjoy this pleasure throughout the remainder of the day.

MOHEGAN INDIANS OPEN 65TH WIGWAM WITH LARGE ATTENDANCE

Celebrating their 65th annual festival, the descendants of the Mohegan tribe of Indians opened Wednesday their two-day Wigwam, at the reservation on Mohegan Hill, below Norwich. In the traditional leafy tent of birch boughs, tables and booths held various products of tribal skill and handicraft, which sold readily.

The wigwam adjoined the ancient church on the reservation and this was opened to visitors during the day and evening. The proceeds of each annual festival go largely toward the expense of this little church.

Visitors were met by a number of members of tribes in the traditional costume of their ancestors, decked in garments, beaded moccasons, feathered head-dress and all. The bravest so imposingly garbed were led by "Chief Occum"—Lemuel M. Fielding—the others being Julian Harris, Jew of Hartford, and a diminutive warrior, Master Norman Swords, aged 5, of New London. Mrs. Loretta Fielding Schultz and others of the attractive girls of the tribe wore the familiar squaw costume.

The oldest woman of the reservation present Wednesday was Mrs. Adeline Dolbeare, who is 78; the oldest man is Edwin Fowler, 80.

An interesting visitor during the day was Chief (and Reverend) Leroy C. Perry, of Providence, the last of the Wampanoag tribe, who is a native of Massachusetts.

The day's activities of the Wigwam began with the serving of an excellent dinner, with the several special dishes for which the Indians have long been famous. There was clam chowder, succotash, brown bread, ham sandwiches, mince and apple pie, cake, coffee and ice cream with yokeage, the last the pulverized dried yellow maize in ancient Indian style.

Crowds came and went throughout the afternoon and evening, liberally patronizing the various tables, where were offered for sale delicious cakes, etc., enticing articles in needlework, wooden spoons carved by Burrill Fielding—who has taken up this art in which the late Henry Matthews was so skilled up to the time of his death at 85—Candy, summer drinks, cigars, etc. etc. There was a grab bag for the special delight of the children. Roscoe Skeesuck had a display of real Indian bows and arrows of his own make, there were flowers, ornaments and other appealing stocks to open the purses of patrons.

For those who would know the future, Princess Tah Yeal Moose, in a leafy booth, told fortunes, being kept busy throughout the day. Music was provided, the pianist being Mrs. Myrtice Germaine, her brother, Elmer Fielding, a sailor from U. S. Destroyer 283, stationed at Boston, also playing, and accompanying Chief Occum and the other singers. The young sailor is home on two weeks' furlough.

Following were the committees and others who aided during the day:

Door committee:—Chief Occum, Lemuel Fielding; candy—Mrs. Harry Francis; cake—Mrs. Gertrude Harris, Mrs. Delana Skeesuck, Mrs. Lloyd G. Harris; baskets and fancy articles, Mrs. Adeline Dolbeare, Mrs. Mary Meech, Mrs. Robert Schultz; ice cream yokeage, soda—Misses Winifred Quidgeon and Hope Holden; grab bag—Mrs. Eugene Hamilton; fortune teller—Mrs. A. G. Fielding; dinner committee—Mrs. Edwin C. Fowler and B. H. Fielding, (Chief Matahga) assisted by—Mrs. H. W. Quidgeon, Mrs. B. H. Fielding, Mrs. Edythe Gray, Mrs. Beatrice Sword, Mrs. Arthur Blakdell, Mrs. Harold Peet and Miss Lucy Marritte; James Strickland, A. G. Fielding, E. E. Fowler, Lewis R. Dolbeare, R. R. Skeesuck, Kenneth Streikland, Elmer Fielding, Harold Quidgeon, Eugene Hamilton and W. Russell Burrows.

Tickets—Misses Ruth Quidgeon, Clara Francis, Thelma Strickland, Beatrice Fowler, Arlene Harris, also Mrs. Myrtice Germaine and Mrs. Shepard.

Mrs. E. C. Fowler is president; Miss Gladys Tantaquidgeon, vice president and Edwin C. Fowler, secretary and treasurer of the society.

It became known Wednesday afternoon that Big Chief Occum—Lemuel M. Fielding will reach his 65th birthday, Sunday, Aug. 30th and he received many congratulations in advance. The big Chief has been in the employ of the Lee & Osgood Company in the wholesale department, for many years.

In interesting personage on the grounds is Miss Gladys Tantaquidgeon (this Indian name means "expert swimmer") who has just completed her first year as a student at the University of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia. Miss Tantaquidgeon has studied art and folklore, devoting much attention to anthropology since she has spoken before societies and organizations on Indian art and traditions. It chanced that there were four other Indian students in the university with her, a girl from Oklahoma, a boy from Ohio and two young men from Wisconsin.

Burrill H. Fielding one of the braves at the Wigwam Wednesday, appeared as Chief Matahga. ("The dances") for several Indian dances were features of the afternoon.

WIFE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE LECTURER DEAD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn., Aug. 26—Word was received here late yesterday to the effect that Mrs. John A. Hammond, wife of the New Hampshire state grange lecturer, had died in the afternoon at the home of friends in Springfield, Mass. This was the only event to mar an otherwise happy and successful conference of the Grange Lecturer's of New England, which was been in session this week at the Connecticut Agricultural College.

Mrs. Hammond started for Storrs in company with the New Hampshire and Maine Grangers, who made the trip by auto. She was taken sick at Amherst, Sunday night, and in the morning was taken to the home of Former State Lecturer Rickert of New Hampshire, now living at Springfield, Mass. Her husband remained with her yesterday morning, which necessitated a postponement of the New Hampshire program. Mrs. Hammond insisted yesterday afternoon that he make the journey here in order to participate in his state meeting, and while he was on the way, Mrs. Hammond's condition became suddenly worse and she died. Mr. Hammond returned to Springfield at once and the New Hampshire program, which was to have been given this afternoon, was cancelled. Mrs. Hammond's home is in Laconia, N. H., and she was widely known among Grange workers in New England.

AUTO INJURIES FATAL TO SYDNEY A. DOLBEARE

Injuries sustained in an automobile accident on the Gardner lake road several weeks ago, are believed to have caused the death of Sidney A. Dolbeare, 62, of Gardner lake, at the Backus hospital at 9:25 o'clock Wednesday morning. Mr. Dolbeare was riding with a companion when the car went off the road and overturned. Mr. Dolbeare received a fractured wrist and other injuries but had evidently recovered, when he suddenly developed symptoms of brain concussion and his condition became serious causing his removal to the Backus hospital in this city. His condition improved at first but on Tuesday night took a turn for the worse and death resulted Wednesday morning.

Mr. Dolbeare was born in the town of Groton, June 21, 1863, the son of the late Joseph Morgan Dolbeare and Eunice Eliza Goodwin. When he was but one year of age his parents moved to Salem and he had made his home there during the remainder of his life.

On May 18, 1892 Mr. Dolbeare was united in marriage with Eva, daughter of Joseph O. and Ellen Deborah Lathrop of Norwich, the ceremony being conducted by Rev. Mr. Ordway of Salem. Mr. Dolbeare is survived by his wife, two brothers, John Franklin of Massachusetts and Fitch A. Dolbeare of Norwich; two sisters, Mrs. W. A. White of Montville and Mrs. Catherine Ringland of Norwich.

Mr. Dolbeare was one of the leading residents of the Gardner Lake section and during his years in the farming business or as a merchant, became known to most of the people in that section as well as in Norwich and New London, where he sold livestock and poultry. He also owned considerable property around Gardner Lake.

For the past 18 years his home had been in the house formerly known as the Bland Tavern. During Colonial times the residence was a tavern and was largely patronized by people traveling between Hartford or New York. While owner of the property Mr. Dolbeare improved it considerably, adding a large piazza and shingling the exterior. Mr. Dolbeare secured the property from the late Levi Mitchell.

Mr. Dolbeare was also active in politics in Salem, representing the town in the state legislature in 1907. He was a member of the town school board at the time of his death and had also served as a justice of the peace.

Mr. Dolbeare was a man who possessed many friends and the news of his death will be received with profound sorrow by friends everywhere in this section. The members of his family left to mourn the loss of husband or brother will have the sincere sympathy of a wide circle of friends in their sad bereavement.

GOVERNOR OFFERS CUP FOR 4-H CLUB WORK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn., Aug. 26—That Governor Trumbull will give a silver loving cup for the most outstanding achievement by a 4-H Club in Connecticut, and that Henry Trumbull, the governor's brother would give another cup for the most outstanding achievement by a 4-H Club during the Connecticut State Fair, to be held Sept. 7-12, was the announcement here today by A. J. Brundage, State Club Leader.

Golvernor Trumbull has been a firm friend of 4-H Club work in Connecticut, and he is offering the cup at his own suggestion as a means of promoting still further interest in this work among the boys and girls of the state.

A club must win the cup three times before permanent possession is possible.

A score card system will be used as a means of measuring the effectiveness of the work accomplished by the various clubs in competition for governor's cup, and the award will be made on this basis. Six divisions are made in this score card, with values on a point basis, as follows: Organization, fifteen points; Records, fifteen points; Results, twenty points; Telling the World, ten points; development, twenty points; leadership development, twenty points. Taken together, these divisions made a total of 100 points.

FINED $50 AND COSTS FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Everett Friese of this city was fined $50 and costs, a total of $64.74, by Judge Arthur F. Libby, when he appeared before the city court Wednesday morning to answer to a charge of reckless driving.

Officer Frasier testified that the Ford coupe owned and operated by Pasco Scamblo of Providence, was coming out of Sachem street at a slow rate of speed and had reached the center of Washington street when it was struck by the Ford touring car operated by Friese. The driver of the Ford coupe also gave similar testimony and when Friese was asked if he desired to tell his side of the story, he replied that the witnesses had told the story about as it was. He was then fined by the court.

Samuel Mingo was before the court charged with theft of a sweat shirt which had been sent to the laundry to be washed. Mingo admitted that he took the shirt out of the laundry truck. In view of the age of the accused the court placed him on probation for one year instructing Mingo that he must report every Saturday during the year to Probation Officer Edwin Hill, otherwise, he would be punished for his crime.

CONN. PHARMACY COLLEGE OPENING PLANNED FOR OCT.

Curtis P. Gladding of Hartford, who in June was elected by the Connecticut Pharmaceutical Association president of the first Connecticut Pharmacy College, said this week that the work of organizing the college was proceeding and the endowment fund, which it was hoped would reach $50,000, is being subscribed. Curt P. Wimmer, professor of pharmacy at Columbia University, will organize and equip the college which is to be located in the old building of the Yale Medical School at New Haven. It is planned to open the college in October.

Locusts are made into an excellent brand of oil for airplane engines.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

The school of nursing connected with the William W. Backus Hospital in Norwich, Conn., is now registering students for the September classes. The school is registered in Connecticut and its course of instruction is two years and four months given in a general hospital of 90 beds. Students must be graduates of grammar school and have one year of high school work. A new nurses residence opened this year affords each student all of the comforts and conveniences of home.

For circular of information address Superintendent of Training School.

SUSPENSION IN HARD COAL FIELD HAS BEEN ORDERED BY PRESIDENT OF MINERS

Cessation of Work is Called For Because the Miners Were Unable to Secure From the Operators a 10 Per Cent. Wage Increase—The Order Involves a Walk-Out of 148,000 Men—About 10,000 Men Are to Be Left in the Mines For Maintenance Work—The "No Strike" Committee of the Business Interests in the Anthracite Region Are Making Efforts to Forestall Suspension.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27.—(AP)—A suspension in the hard coal fields September 1, was called tonight by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

The suspension was called because the miners were unable to secure from the operators a ten per cent. wage increase, adoption of the check-off, [illegible] of wages for day workers and various other demands which they made conditional to renewal of the wage contract expiring August 31.

The order involves a walkout of 158,000 men, of whom about 10,000 will probably be left in the mines for maintenance work, such as the prevention of flooding and cave-ins.

[illegible] operators and the miners were [illegible] today on the [illegible] maintenance work, [illegible] that the full number [illegible] used as a basis of [illegible] and that these men [illegible] for emergency [illegible] the operators to re[illegible] county men.

[illegible] on the other hand [illegible] wanted the right to skeletonize [illegible] forces where practicable.

[illegible] negotiations adjourned without decision at 5:20 p. m. to resume at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

[illegible] have never come up before for discussion by the two sides, but was brought up by the miners this year because of abuses they alleged had occurred in suspensions in the past.

The [illegible] order follows:

"Philadelphia, Aug. 1925.

"To the officers and members of Local Unions of District Nos. 1, 7 and 9, United Mine Workers of America.

"Sirs and Brothers:

"The present agreement between the anthracite operators and mine workers expires August 31, 1925. Your scale committee charged with the responsibility of making a new contract has been unable to arrive at any understanding affecting wages or conditions of employment to be effective after August 31, 1925. Therefore, our membership in Districts Nos. 1, 7 and 9 is advised that no contract being in effect, a suspension of mining will automatically take place at midnight, Monday, August 31, 1925.

"Concerning the question of maintenance men remaining at work during the suspension, we advise that the proper instructions will be issued to our membership as soon as agreement covering this subject can be consummated with the representatives of the anthracite operators. Please hold yourselves in readiness to put our policy with respect to maintenance work into effect as soon as possible after receipt of its contents.

"Your scale committee will continue to exercise every influence to bring about, if possible, a general agreement which will mean substantial progress for the anthracite mine workers. We will endeavor, from time to time, to keep fully advised as to the situation. We hope that the utmost cooperation will be exercised between our membership and the scale committee.

"Fraternally Yours

"[illegible] L. Lewis, International President.

"[illegible] Mitch, International Vice-President.

"[illegible] Kennedy, International Secretary-Treasurer."

[illegible], President District No. 1.

Andrew Mattey, President District No. 7.

A. J. Golden, President District No. 9.

President Lewis said that the issuance of the suspension call had been held up as long as possible in the hope of coming to terms with the operators on the question of the maintenance men. Failing agreement today, the union could wait no longer in making the call, he said, because of the mechanical problem of reaching 158,000 workers embraced by 325 Union Locals in the region in time for action not later than midnight.

Mr. Lewis said that the miners would attend the meeting of the Anthracite Board of Conciliation tomorrow [illegible] and there cooperate in every way with the operators in attempt to settle the question.

A supplementary order will then follow tonight's suspension call, containing whatever agreement is reached.

The suspension came as a surprise to the operators who admitted that, despite the tension existing at the end of the Board of Conciliation meeting, they were not prepared to hear of such a move as yet. Their impression seemed to be that they were being disciplined for opposition to the demands of miners made on the maintenance question.

The Board of Conciliation went through its regular routine from just before noon today until mid-afternoon, settled 17 grievances presented by the men and sent 14 more to the arbitrator for decision.

The board of six men comprised five already participants in the scale negotiations. The five accordingly agreed to continue the jurisdiction of the board to consider working conditions of maintenance men in event of a suspension.

For the first time in the history of such conferences the miners immediately demanded guarantees that the mine owners would not try to "economize" or provide substitutes from their monthly payrolls for these workers. This the operators refused pointblank on the ground that an idle mine did not need as many boilers in service as a mine in operation.

The miners asked, how about pumps? They brought to light many grievances from mine shutdowns in the past in which they alleged the owners had tried to count down pump shifts from three to as low as one. In other words, a pumper or fan man in eight hours was expected to do what ordinarily three pumpers or fan men normally did in twenty-four.

The only agreement reached by both sides was that wages should be at current rates, and if any increase were later made in a new contract the boost should be made retroactive to September 1 for the mine guardsmen.

On the basis of state figures for 1924 the suspension would affect 828 mines, operated by 135 companies, controlling altogether 272 collieries the maintenance problem involved is shown in the fact that 3,624 pumps must be kept in continuous operation to prevent flooding and cave-ins.

Less than a dozen of the corporations and but three of the ten anthracite countries produce the bulk of the hard coal shipped Luzerne, Lackawanna and Schuylkill Counties accounted for 64,000,000 gross tons of the 1924 gross tonnage of 77,929,349.

The principal companies, with the collieries operated by each, according to the state figures for 1924 were: Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company, 18 Collieries, Lehigh Valley Coal Company, 17; Glen Alden Coal Company, 11; Hudson Coal Company, 10; Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Company, 12; Susquehanna Collieries Company 10; Pennsylvania Coal Company, 9; and Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company 8.

The wage controversy developed this year much along the line of the past. The demands were formulated at a tri-district convention in Scranton, Pa., beginning June 29. A full scale committee of forty served the demands upon representatives of the mine owners at the hotel Traymore in Atlantic City early in July. Negotiations were left by long standing custom to a joint sub-committee of six operators and six miner leaders. An early deadlock on virtually all points asked by the men resulted in breaking off of negotiations on August 4.

Upon learning of the suspension order, Major W. W. Inglis, chairman of the operators' negotiations committee said:

"The issuance of the suspension order is of course entirely unnecessary. It means that the employes will lose more than $1,000,000 a day in wages. Business of all kinds throughout the region will suffer. The market for anthracite will be further invaded by substitutes. All this happens because the miners' leaders for reasons of their own refuse to listen to pleas from all sides that no suspension take place pending the making of a new agreement. We urged these leaders two months ago to agree with us that there should be no suspension. We have repeated this, advertised it and argued for it. But there are stronger influence at work than a desire to protect the anthracite industry and the anthracite region from the calamity of a strike.

"The feeling is growing that union policy is dominated by its greater concern in soft coal affairs. This was admitted to be the case in the long strike of 1922 and it looks as though it was true today. Naturally this does not lessen resentment in the anthracite region that this calamity should come upon it. The idea that miners cannot work unless they have a contract that satisfies them in all respects is a relic of the dark ages of unionism. It must yield to reason in the end. So must the strike habit. These recurring suspensions are a curse and reproach. They must be ended by the acceptance of a sane and reasonable method of settling differences by some forms of arbitration rather than by resort to force."

ANDREWS' STATEMENT DENIED BY THE MONGOLIAN MISSION

Moscow, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The Mongolian mission in Moscow today issued a statement denying the assertion attributed recently to Roy Chapman Andrews, leader of the third asiatic expedition of the American Museum of Natural History in Mongolia, that friction between the Russian soviet Government and the Mongolian Government at Urga had created conditions which made a continuation of the expedition's scientific research impossible.

The statement of the Mongolian mission contends that the Andrews' expedition, last reported in southeastern outer Mongolia, has been ordered by the Urga government to leave Mongolian territory because the American scientists had disregarded Mr. Andrews' previous agreement with the Mongolians and had begun non-scientific excavations in a Tumulous region in which such explorations had been forbidden by the Mongolian Government.

The state says that the expedition began a typographical survey of the same region and that its members threatened everyone who endeavored to interfere with their work.

FRENCH TROOPS GAIN GROUND IN MOROCCO

FEZ, French Morocco, Aug. 27—The operations of the French troops in the Branes territory have been crowned with success. The Amessef Ridge has been occupied and the French are making progress beyond that point.

The task of the French troops was a difficult one because of the nature of the ground and the sudden rise in the temperature.

The net result of this operation is to bring General Boichut's troops to the line of old outposts in the Branes country and in addition to put in their possession all the bases commanding the rich valley of Oued Paddar.

Arctic Explorers Are Experiencing Perils

A Big Blizzard Has Been Raging For 24 Hours, With Wind Fifty Miles an Hour.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Weather conditions even worse than those encountered on its northward journey are being met by the MacMillan, Arctic expedition on its retreat southward said a message received today by the National Geographic Society.

The message, dated yesterday and transmitted through the short wave stations of the Zenith Radio Corporation of Chicago said:

"The Peary, which anchored last night in the lee of Ionical Rock, off Parker Snow Point, had to go within 100 yards of a rocky coast to find 25 fathom and, being unable to find good holding ground, was forced to lay under full power all night. In the early morning better visibility made approach to the mainland practicable.

"This morning the airplane carrier changed her position to the tiny but good little harbor at Akpahni.

"There has been a big blizzard for more than 24 hours with a 50 mile wind and high seas. The sea movement is somewhat moderated by icebergs.

GEERMANY READY FOR SECURITY CONFERENCE

BERLIN, Aug. 27—Germany will enter next week's conference of judicial experts at London with the Netherlands free in so far as her obligation to participate in a future formal conference over a security pact is concerned. The invitation extended to Foreign Minister Stresemann by the French ambassador for London parleys was accepted with the understanding that the discussions with the allied jurists would wholly concern themselves with a non-political consideration of the legal phases involved in the enclusion of a security pact.

It was deemed desirable in both sides that an understanding be reached on legal technicalities before more advanced action was undertaken.

If the London discussions are productive of concurring views, the question of a formal conference of foreign ministers will then come up for consideration. With respect to such a conference Germany reserves the privilege of determining whether the various obstructions which the previous exchange of notes over the security pact has failed to remove, have been certainly eliminated from the situation, so that she may enter the conference on a basis of equality.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE RECEIVED CALLERS

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 27—Throwing open the gates at White Court, President Coolidge received several hundred callers today, later went to the nearby city of Lynn to witness the dedication of the largest flagpole in New England and after dinner boarded the Mayflower at Marblehead for the night, preparatory to a cruise tomorrow to Plymouth, ass.

Many of those who visited the summer white house to exchange greetings with the president were friends and neighbors of the days before he went to Washington. An hour during the afternoon was set aside for receiving calls and the lines of automobiles coming in and out of the grounds were so great that several policemen were required to handle traffic.

In addition of old acquaintances who called, Mr. Coolidge received 34 school children from New Bedford, Mass., children of foreign born parents who had won medals offered by the New Bedford standard for proficiency in reading English.

In another delegation were 28 directors of the Lynn chamber of commerce and in another members of the Duxbury, Mass., Stamford, Conn., and Pelton, Marblehead, Mass., yacht clubs which competed in the Massachusetts Junior yacht championships at Marblehead yesterday.

ACCUSATIONS AGAINST HYLAN MADE BY GOVERNOR SMITH

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Governor Smith, in his first address in behalf of the candidacy of state Senator James J. Walker for the democratic mayoralty nomination, tonight attacked the record of Mayor Hylan, accused him of being in conference with the Ku Klux Klan during the democratic convention in Madison Square Garden in 1924 and charged him with being the subservient slave of a man, whom the governor referred to as a "superboss."

The governor's charge that Mayor Hylan had worked with the Klan came in a discussion of the mayor's assertion several days ago that he had no quarrel with the governor and had worked for his election. The governor said:

"A little over a year ago all the democrats of this state and all the democrats in the eastern part of this country stood day in and day out during the long hard siege in Madison Square Garden against the forces of religious and racial bigotry and where was the mayor? In secret conference with the representative of the Klan."

The governor is scheduled for further speeches between now and the primaries.

INDICTMENTS IN ALLEGED RUM RING IN NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Walter L. Cohen, negro, comptroller of the customs for the New Orleans district; Dr. L. A. Celebrate As French And Belgians Depart

Joyous Crowds March Through the Streets of Dusseldorf — Imperial Flag Flown.

DUESSELDORF, Germany, Aug. 27—"Deutschland uber allies" resounded everywhere yesterday and joyous crowds marched through the streets celebrating the departure of the French and Belgians. The city was bedecked with the imperial flag and its "liberation" was feted.

Two young woman charged with being too friendly with French soldiers were threatened with a beating, but escaped with a hair cutting. Numerous persons who were slow to stand when the national hymn was played in the restaurants were thrown out. A torchlight procession at midnight ended at Bismarck's statue with patriotic speeches.

There is wide complaint that the waterways department of forty-four officers and men remains at Duisberg.

OPEN CAMPAIGN AGAINST MAYOR HYLAN IN BROOKLYN

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—Tammany Tiger with Governor Smith and State Senator James J. Walker at its head, leaped across Brooklyn bridge tonight in its first great offensive against Mayor Hylan in an effort to capture the democratic mayoralty nomination for Tammany hall.

Speaking in Prospect Hall, Senator Walker devoted his speech entirely to a discussion of the five-cent fare, the part he had in maintaining it in New York, his plans for future subway construction and improvements in Brooklyn.

The Senator again pledged himself to abide by the primaries.

Tonight's vocal bombardment was preceed by an exchange between Mayor Hylan and George W. Ovsey, Tammany chieftain in which both passed the lie in more or less diplomatic language.

The exchange was precipitated by a statement from the mayor charging that an ex-pool room king, a big gambler and a traction company lawyer had prevailed upon Tammany hall to drop the mayor and to substitute the name of Senator Walker.

Mr. Ovsey almost immediately afterward retorted:

"When he made that wild statement the mayor knowingly stated a deliberate and malicious falsehood."

The mayor, however, reiterated his charges, despite the denial.

The republican leaders, faced with a split in their own ranks caused by the announcement of Alfred E. Simonds, a Bronx leader, that he was against John F. Lyons, against Frank D. Waterman, still maintained today that Mr. Waterman's election in the primaries was virtually assured. Mr. Simmons' charges are that he had been forced a federal receivership by the support of the republican leaders that was ignored on the basis that it was "trivial".

William M. Bennett, the other republican insurgent, continued to ask the leading candidates to state their subway program instead of the "glittering generalities" of their pronouncements.

TWO ARMY AVIATORS KILLED IN COLLISION OF PLANES

CHICAGO, Aug. 27—Two army aviators were killed tonight at the air man field in Maywood when their ship collided with another plane while attempting a landing. Both planes burst into flames following the collision and fell to the ground, the pilot of the second ship being seriously injured. The two aviators who were killed jumped at their parachutes but they failed to open.

The aviators who were killed, Lieutenant Heptig and Lieutenant "Lappy" Smith, were returning from Chicago where they participated in an aerial circus, a feature of governor's day at the camp.

MADE THE VOYAGE FROM NORWAY IN 46 FOOT YAWL

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—In an effort to prove the Viking path across the North Atlantic could be followed successfully in a small boat, three Norwegians arrived at Quarantine today in a 46 foot yawl, eighty days out of Bergen.

The trip was made, the hardy navigators told maritime officials, to prove that the course of the old Vikings in their cruisers to America could be duplicated under modern conditions in a ship approximately the same size as used by Leif Erickson. One expedition led by William Nutting, American marine writer and author which set out from Europe in 1924 on a similar venture has never been heard from.

REGISTERED AIR MAIL DISAPPEARED EN ROUTE

CHICAGO, Aug. 27—Post office inspectors in every important city between Chicago and San Francisco tonight started questioning hundreds of employes of the United States air mail service in an attempt to locate a consignment of registered air mail which disappeared somewhere en route between the two cities. The mail left Chicago August 25 but failed to reach San Francisco.

BURGLAR BROKE INTO 14 RESIDENCES IN SAUGUS, MASS.

SAUGUS, Mass., Aug. 27—(A. P.)—A burglar broke into 14 residences early today, stealing $126 in cash and a quantity of clothing. The houses, in every instance, were entered through first floor windows. The burglaries were all made within an area of a mile and a half, occurring in several adjoining houses. The police believe that the burglar, who wore gloves to prevent leaving finger prints, operated with an automobile.

CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF THE NARCOTIC LAWS

HOLYOKE, Mass., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Fred A. Chapman, manager of a restaurant here, was arrested today by federal inspectors charged with violation of the narcotic laws. He is believed by the inspectors to be a ringleader of narcotic distribution work in Western Massachusetts. He is said to have been arrested in Hartford, Conn., two years ago on a similiar charge. The officers say that he attempted to dispose of a quantity of drugs when arrested.

PETITION RE-HEARING ON FILM TAX AND CENSORSHIP

Filed With the Clerk of the U. S. Court in New Haven By Distributors Who Are Opposing the New State Law—Petitioners Contend That the Law is a Revenue Measure and That Decision Was Based on the Act as a Police Power Measure—Film Exchanges Are Being Moved Beyond the Borders of Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Distributors of motion picture films who are opposing the new state film tax and censorship law, recently held as constitutional by three federal juages, today filed a petition with the clerk of the United States court here asking for a rehearing before the three judges who gave their opinion on the act last month. The petition asks for a hearing, reargument and leave to amend complaint.

The petition for a rehearing is based on three points—that the court decided that the act primarily was a police power measure while it is claimed by the distributors that the amount of money received over and above the cost of administering the act shows that it is a revenue measure the name of the act which reads "an act providing for the imposition of a tax on films from which motion pictures are to be exhibited; no inspection or examination provision is provided for the censorship."

FILM EXCHANGES ARE MOVING OUT OF STATE

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 27.—(AP)—While a meeting was in progress today at the office of State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett, called to bring about a final settlement in the payment of back taxes due on motion picture films shown in this state since the new state film tax became effective, motor trucks were busy moving the film exchanges beyond the borders of Connecticut as a protest against the film levy.

The motion picture producers have agreed to pay the taxes due Connecticut, but they also have decided that no more business will be transacted by distributing exchanges except from those located outside of the state.

The exchanges that closed their doors today included First National Pictures, Famous Players corporation, Producers Distributing corporation, Educational Film Exchange and the Metro-Goldwyn corporation. Hundreds of films were loaded on trucks today and shipped to Boston or New York.

The Rosen Film Delivery Service, which, in the past, has handled practically all of the film deliveries to exhibitors in this state, is formulating plans to care for the shipment of films into this state under a new system which will be placed in operation on Sunday.

All exhibitors holding film contracts with distributors, have been requested to file with the tax commissioner a complete list of bookings for their theaters. The Connecticut Theater Owners' Association is planning to pay future taxes on films which are under contract and for this purpose a $50,000 fund has been raised. Some of the contracts it was said today, will run as long as five months while others will expire within a few weeks. The contracts, it was said, will not be renewed. It was stated by members of the film board of trade today that the responsibility of the state tax on film shipped to exhibitors expired on Monday of this week and that all films used by exhibitors from Tuesday on must be registered and tax paid as same by the Connecticut Theater Owners' Association.

JUDGE SENTENCES PRISONER, THEN SHAKES HIS HAND

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—(A. P.)—Judge William H. Atwell of Texas, sitting in the federal district court, today shook hands warmly with Samuel Alpert, 21, whom he had just sentenced to 13 months in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta for stealing packages from mail boxes.

"When you come out of Atlanta," advised Judge Atwell, 'and meet bad companions, tell them all to go to hell an dsay 'I'm going to be straight.' Give me your hand my boy, promise me you'll try what I have told you."

Sam made the promise, tears streaming down his cheeks.

BALANCE OF POLICE PAYROLL WAS STOLEN IN MALDEN, MASS.

MALDEN, Mass., Aug. 27.—(AP)—The police of this city were unusually stirred by a crime committed in the City Hall this afternoon. A box containing $539, the undrawn balance of the police payroll, disappeared from the office of City Treasurer Walter A. Milliken, only an emergency order from the mayor making good the loss restored the officers to peace of mind. No one was seen to enter but it was supposed the thief reached through the grill work with a stick to obtain the money.

OBITUARY

Patrick Thomas Powers

BELMAR, N. J., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Leaders in America's sport world and Elkdom Saturday will pay final tribute to Patrick Thomas Powers, for many years the mogul of eastern sports, who died here early today.

"Pat" Powers was known to millions of sport followers, was taken ill with a carbuncle several weeks ago and complications developed. He was 63 years old.

Services will be held from his Jersey City home 2617 Boulevard, Saturday followed by mass in St. Aloysious church, Jersey City. Interment will follow in St. John's Cemetery, Trenton.

An associate of William A. Brady, Powers and a few others promoted the first six day bicycle race in Madison Square Garden and until 1912, he promoted the other famous grinds there. He did not confine his efforts to bicycle racing, baseball and boxing called him. Such fights as the Corbett-McCoy, Fitzsimmons-Ruplin, and the championship match between Fitzsimmons and Jeffreys were sponsored by him.

In 1901, he organized the eastern baseball league. This league later was renamed the International League. In 1914, when the now defunct Federal League was chosen to head the Newark team that was put into the field, Sinclair, then depended upon Powers to handle the entire league. Through such association with the millionaire oil man Powers pressed into service in his New York offices and his activities in sports since have been confined to advice to other promoters.

Powers was past exalted ruler of the Jersey City lodge of Elks, past president of the New Jersey Elks Association and past trustee of the Grand Lodge.

Powers is survived by his widow, three daughters and five sisters.

11,000 ACRES LAND FOR AIR BASE NEAR ATLANTA, GA.

ATLANTA, GA., Aug. 27—The Atlanta Journal announced today that Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., and associates have purchased, or have under option, 11,000 acres of land near Atlanta, on which will be established the third largest commercial air base in the country.

Mr. Vanderbilt, who is a member of the research council of the National Air Transport company was quoted as saying that the group of men associated with him in the project, represent the banking organizations and industrial interests of the country. Many of them also have been associated [illegible]

Developments of the plans will require about 20 years and will involve the expenditure of several million dollars, the announcement says. Landing fields for handling dirigibles as well as airplanes will be provided.

Atlanta will be used as a center for which will run west to New Orleans and south through Florida to Cuba. Three separate fields, each a mile square will be constructed.

STUDYING WORKINGS OF ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 27—Premier Ferguson today received the committee of the United States congress which is studying the workings of the Ontario temperance act and 4.4 per cent. beer. In reply to questions, the premier intimated that the Ontario Temperance administration had not been weakened by the amendment to the Ontario temperance act providing for 4-4 beer.

He declared that Ontario temperance organizations "went in too much for politics and not enough for temperance."

The premier declined to discuss the question of rum running at border points, and when Ben H. Spence, secretary of the Dominion Alliance, asked him to "cut loose and give your real opinion." The premier replied "I am afraid you would turn my statement to your uses."

It was admitted that the revenue from the taxation of beer and soft drinks had not come up to the expectations of the government, but the extent of the shortage was not indicated.

The youthful wife said that Since May 30th, last, when they were married her husband had given her but little support and she has received no assistance from him since July 30. The couple have been separated for four weeks. Delude said that he and his wife could not live happily together, as she was always finding fault with him. He admitted that he had not given her any support for nearly four weeks and stated that this was due to the fact that the union had ceased making payments to him as a striker. Payments were stopped, he said, when the union learned that he and his wife were no longer living together. Delude said that he was willing to take his wife away from her mother, provided that he could find employment somewhere. At present he was out of work and could not even support himself. Mrs. Delude agreed to try to live with her husband if he stopped threatening her. After a talk to the couple Judge Foss continued the case to Saturday, September 5.

HERMAN A. DARLING, CHAPLAIN, FOUND DEAD IN BED THURSDAY

(Special to the Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 27—Herman A. Darling, 59, was found dead in bed Thursday morning at his home in Chaplin, following an attack six hours earlier of cerebral hemorrhage. It was stated that he was in the best of health when he retired Wednesday night as far as outward appearances would manifest. He had been a sufferer from kidney trouble in the past but this ailment had apparently been rectified. Mr. Darling had resided in Chaplin about eight years. Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason viewed the body. Mr. Darling was born in Smithtown, L. I., April 18, 1866, a son of Alexander H. and Cornelia Jayne Darling. He never married; he is survived by three sisters, Miss Isabelle Darling of Chaplin, Mrs. Eveline Bullcok of Winsted and Mrs. John Devine of Oyster Bay, N. Y.

RUSSELL BOUGHT NORWICH CAR BUT HAD NOT PAID A CENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 27—Henry C. Russell, a transient was charged with obtaining goods under false pretenses, in the police court Thursday morning, following his arrest Wednesday on suspicion that he was implicated in the burglarizing of the William D. Grant grain store, on Broad stret Monday. He was not put to plea and on request of Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher the case was continued to Saturday morning, when the evidence against the young man will be presented in a more coherent manner. A bond of $500 was named. Russell has maintained a strong alibi through several sessions of grilling by police officials. He had admitted having purchased an automobile from a Norwich concern August 1, on a conditional bill of sale and on which he has never paid a cent, also to having committed minor offenses, including failure to pay a board bill and of obtaining goods from a local party without making a settlement. He refuses, however, to be linked with the burglary. The machine which he had obtained has been returned to the Norwich concern. For the offense of obtaining the goods under false pretences a warrant was made out for his arrest, Thursday morning.

FORMER JEWETT CITY WOMAN BECOMES SUDDENLY INSANE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 27—Mrs. Agatha Hurna, 35, a resident of The Elms, the American Thread Company boarding house became violently insane without warning, late Wednesday night and while half a dozen men restrained her, the police were notified Officer Larievere with Doctors Herman C. Little and Clarence E. Simonds took the woman into custody and she was given treatment by the physicians The woman was taken to police headquarters and placed in the hospital cell in charge of a woman attendant who remained with her until Thursday forenoon. Mrs. Hurna failed to show any signs of improvement and her husband, a resident of Jewett City was sent for to care for his wife. The woman came here July 20 from that borough. Later in the day commitment papers were made out and she was taken to the Norwich State Hospital for the Insane.

MYSTIC

The Garden Club met with Misses Joanna and Rachel Burnet, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. L. P. Allyn the president, presided and introduced Mrs. Carl Williams, a summer resident of Groton Long Point and a winter resident of Florida for many years. She gave a most interesting and detailed report of the citrus fruits, trees, shrubs and flowers that was much appreciated. The leading industry is fruit growing and the people also profit by the tourists. At present 250,000 acres are planted with 20,000,000 trees and 12,000,000 are bearing. The grapefruit is also called pomelo there. It bears twice as much as orange trees. The growers do not plant seedlings but bud them and they are bearing in three years. The trees need to be well fertilized and they have their enemies especially the San Jose scale and aphis. The trees that produce the best fruit bloom in March. There are many kinds just as we have of apples in the north and these vary in size, solor, skin and flavor. It is said that the navel was first introduced into America by two trees being brought from Brazil in 1873 and propagated. Some of the kinds of oranges cited were: Parson Brown in November, pineapple, January and February, Valencia in March, Mandarin type tangerine satuma, King. Last year 20,000,000 boxes were shipped. She gave a good description of trees, including pines, live oak, magnolia (the most beautiful), camphor, cypress, scarlet oak, poinciana, woman's tongue, Jacaranda, Australian pine, and mountain ebony. She described the growing of pineapples, and bananas, and told of many kinds of shrubs, vines, palms, wild flowers and ferns and spoke about the birds. Also she explained why milk is .25 a quart, for little grass is grown in the state that the cows can eat, hay having to be shipped in to feed cattle. The whole talk was one to interest everyone for Mrs. Williams spoke on so many subjects.

The W. C. T. U. meeting was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. B. F. Davis. The meeting opened with singing "Everybody Sing." Mrs. Davis conducted the devotional exercises. Singing All Around the World. Items of business was discussed and each member was asked to make an apron to be sold at the Norwich Fair, in September. Mrs. C. E Newbury gave a report of the meeting which she attended in New London last week when Mrs. Hattie M. Newton, state president, told of her trip to the world's convention in Scotland last June. Mrs. Lamb, the president invited Miss Wilhelmina Schroder to give a talk on her trip to the World's Y. P. S. C. E. held in Portland, Oregon and the other places visited. Her talk was very interesting and greatly enjoyed. At the close she showed pictures of places visited.

The art exhibit of the Society of Mystic Artists, held in Broadway school from August 6-25 closed Tuesday and the pictures were removed Wednesday. COAL COMPANY DIRECTORS RULE SPITZBERGEN WELL

LONGYEAR CITY, Spitzbergen, Aug. 28 (AP)—Europe has many autocrats whose names are household words all the world over, but Spitzbergen has a few less known rulers who understand the art of running a community virtually single-handed to perfection. They are Chief Engineer Sigurd Westby at Advent Bay, Director H. Dresselhuys at Green Harbor and Director Knudsen at Kings Bay. All of these men, who are in charge of different coal companies, wield practically automatic power, and rule judging by results.

By the Treaty of Versailles, Spitzbergen became Norwegian territory. King Haakon has not yet taken official possession of the islands, and among the enforcement of the Statute law now before the Norwegian government there is no Norwegian court, policeman, customs officer or tax collector in all Spitzbergen, and it is the coal company's word that runs throughout the archipelago as much of it as is inhabited.

Rules and regulations have to be enforced in mining camps with a floating population like those in Spitzbergen. Unauthorized drink traffic is dealt with a stern hand. The companies' understanding with ship captains is that any clandestine liquor dealing by their subordinates is not to be tolerated. Of course, smuggling does come in a while but detection entails very severe penalties on guilty parties who have their credit on the companies' books docked by $25 for a first offense. Subsequent infringements may entail social ostracism and deportation from the islands, but the extreme penalty is seldom enforced.

Vienna Forms Welcoming Club

VIENNA, Aug. 28 (AP)—An organization known as the "Welcome to Austria Club" has been formed under the patronage of Dr. Michael Hainsch, the president of the Austrian Republic. Its members make it their task to receive foreigners coming to Austria, to show them about the town, arrange social meetings and act as interpreter for them. The federal chancellor, all ministers and the captain-generals of the provinces are honorary presidents of the club. The club will consider it its duty to render the stay of foreigners in Austria as pleasant as possible.

New, Safe Way To Remove Hair —FOREVER

Avoid now to undergo painful electric treatments to remove superfluous hair; nor to apply ordinary inconvenient hair removers which only remove surface hairs.

Modern science definitely proves that the safest and surest way to remove superfluous hair forever is by the repeated removal of the hair roots with tweezers. Since the discovery of Karma, the marvelous new root-exterminating balsam, thousands of women, in the privacy of their own homes, have been able to banish unsightly hair from face, arms and legs as easily and permanently as the most expert beauty specialist.

For Karma's marvelous ingredients, applied almost as easily as cold cream, penetrate directly to the hair roots, speedily loosen them, and gently lift them out—leaving the skin clean, smooth and even lovelier than before. No fuss, no bother, no growing back of hair stronger than ever. The cause of hair growth has been removed!

Get Karma today and try it! It is positively guaranteed to remove superfluous hair safely and forever—or money refunded. Sold by all good dealers such as: G. G. Engler Drug Store, H. M. Lerou Drug Store, Porteous & Mitchell Co.

Under the circumstances it can be readily appreciated that an attempt to make it a gala occasion could easily lead to reactions and regrets, and by the course followed all was avoided. It was a move for peaceful relationship instead of inviting a spark that would stir up added ill feeling.

The ending of the occupation of the Ruhr should help much in relieving the tension between the nations. It gives Germany a chance to regain its industrial territory and means that French control is completely relaxed. There is a lesson, however, in connection with the whole affair surrounding the Ruhr which should not go unlearned. Germany has had a chance to witness the results of its serious error of judgment, if forced upon itself that which has been most troublesome. It placed a deplorable obstacle in its own way. It believed that it could escape its obligations by its plan [illegible] it was not long in being disclosed [illegible] zing that it had started on a wild goose chase which proved both expensive and embarrassing.

It is well that that experience is over, and yet Germany got an awakening as the result of it which has been of much value in bringing it to a realization of the real situation and the adjustment of its problems. Naturally the Germans are pleased at the ending of the occupation and there is the same feeling on the part of the French for it means that there has been a change for the better in the conditions that necessitated the occupation.

CHINESE FEUDS.

It is quite in keeping with conditions that horror should be expressed at the wars of the Chinese tongs. We can justly say that nothing of the kind should be tolerated, that such people should live at peace in this country or be deported and that they should be given to understand this fact. It is quite logical to maintain that they should not be exceptions to our laws.

But when we dig into this matter a little we find that it is not only the Chinese who have feuds and kill others. We know quite well how long similar feus have existed in the mountain regions of the south and how difficult it is to break them up. Those involved think nothing of shooting a person down in cold blood. When conditions are right they see red and someone must bite the dust.

There is likewise the demonstrations of mob rule and lynch spirit where there is no restraint on the part of many in taking human life and doing so under the most cruel conditions. This is an object defiance of the laws of the state or the country. But it is indulged in by those who have long been citizens of this country.

Likewise there are the gunmen, the gangsters and the criminal class that pays little or no attention to the laws of the country. Thus we may rave at the Chinese who have their fights and think that they should be made to respect the law at all times, but we fail to consider that the examples which are being set for them by citizens of this country are not always what they should be.

The Chinese feuds are relics of the distant past but while they are being made to toe the line there's a long list of others who are not Chinese who should be included with them.

STRENGTHENING ENFORCEMENT.

What must be regarded as the third step in the bettering of the enforcement of the dry law of this country is the treaty which has been negotiated between this country and Canada relative to the enforcement of customs laws and regulations. This followed the adoption of the twelve mile limit to take the place of the old three mile limit and its purpose was of course to create more favorable conditions for putting a stop to the great amount of liquor and narcotic smuggling which has been underway over the border.

This is part of the test of better enforcement. This was begun, following the treaties with Great Britain and other countries, by the campaign against rum row and the smuggling that has been going on along the coast. It has been followed by the reorganization of the dry organization under General Andrews which becomes effective the first of the month and by the first of October it is believed that the stiffening of the enforcement along the border will be in operation.

These changes mean that the promised drive against the wide disregard for the dry law is taking shape. Whether it will be any more successful in getting respect for the law remains to be seen. It will serve to show that something more is actually being done to back up the law, whether it is demonstrated that the country can be made Sahara like or it is found that there are plenty other ways of avoiding the law.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Married life among the moving picture stars grows shorter instead of longer.

Of course if a murderer or some other criminals gets into a tight place these days there's a way out through insanity.

"Uneasy rests the head that wears a crown," and even the anticipation of crown wearing makes some quite anxious.

Probably the plan to depart Roy C. Andrews from Mongolia is due to the fear that he is planning a corner on dinosaur eggs.

The man on the corner says: Those who have long waited for their ship to come in are now watching for delivery by airplane.

It is only a short time now before the struggle will be to get rid of the tan which has been obtained only after long days in the sun.

While claims are being made that the airships are better suited to the arctic a trial may prove otherwise, even as in the case of airplanes.

The way grade crossing accidents continue indicates that some drivers must be concerned in other things than the safety of themselves and those with them.

It doesn't seem to be just what the situation calls for when the police of New York are ordered to lessen motor arrests. But that is one way of dealing with too big a job.

SUSCEPTIBLE.

"It's better than cross-word puzzles," insisted the girl who likes to talk. "More absorbing and requires more finesse and skill!

"I mean fishing around to find out on what line you can most successfully flatter a person. The surprises you get are remarkable. And the most sedate, vinegary, common-sense individual likes it just as well as any of us."

"H'm,' says the lady grimly, pursing her lips, 'they can't flatter me and pull the wool over my eyes!' This is your cue to laugh amusedly and murmur you guess not! They'd have to go some to catch her napping. She'll almost purr.

"Well, haven't you practically said that she is an extraordinarily clever, alert, brilliant person and can give the others cards and spades and run circles all around them? That happens to be her pet brand of verbal chocolate creams and if it makes the poor old girl happy why not feed 'em to her?

"No girl of any wits at all ever flatters a man obviously and openly, because if it doesn't embarrass him he shies away from instinct. 'Hey!' prods subconscious mind when some pretty little creature says right out that he is so big and strong and wonderful. 'hey! stop, look and run like the dickens! She has her eye fixed on you!'

"No, she is far more deadly than that.

"She smiles a trifle when he makes some especially snappy remark or settles somebody's hash argumentatively, smiles in that understanding way which means 'I realize perfectly exactly how deft and subtly clever you have just been! It may have gone over the heads of the other women present, but you see I understand your fine points!'"

"No man living is able to resist any woman who can convince him that she appreciates the intricate workings of his remarkable mind.

"If a man plays a good golf game he knows it and it becomes rather a bore to have women continue to gasp over his drives, envy his niblick prowess and wish, oh, so hard, that they could conquer the green as he does. He knows that they can't!

"He is lots more likely to fall victim to the languid lady all togged out in frivolous Parisian fluffs who drapes herself over the veranda chairs and plays bridge while he struggles out in the hot sun as a strong man should. Her whole helpless attitude is nothing but a wild shout that she knows it is utterly hopeless for a silly creature like herself ever to do the marvels in athletics that he does and that anyhow she doesn't want to!

"Lily-white hands among the teacups appeal to his rugged soul far more than grimy, brown little paws clutched about a golf club.

"If you want to get the affair over quickly it is a simple thing to flatter any man on his business acumen without any delicate probings to see whether the bait is right. A big percentage of men are just as childishly weak-minded when it comes to business affairs and as utter failures in the line as the corresponding number of women are poor bets as housekeepers.

"And in time, maybe, it will be admitted that, though the child's name is John or William, there is no assured reason that he will grow up and clean out Wall street from the back walls of the buildings. But if he's the man you want ask him respectfully about stocks and bonds and inquire surprisedly why on earth the company doesn't make him president, and he'll trot around after you.

"The best-balanced woman has her secret wade, and is susceptible to comments on it—it may be her hands or her hair, her poise in all situations, her devotion to her family or her talent in picking out effective window curtains. There are only a few of us who are too cynical to be affected—

"I think it is wonderful that you can analyse people so keenly," broke in the patient listener suddenly.

"Oh, I don't know," said the girl who likes to talk in a very pleased way. "Oh, nonsense! What an idea!"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Joseph Gordon Coates, the new Prime Minister of New Zealand, is a product of the land, and a vigorous man in the prime of life. His father was an English immigrant who took up land in New Zealand 60 years ago. The future Prime Minister was educated at a small country school, and his secondary education was limited to a short period with a tutor. As a young man he became interested in public affairs, and graduated through his county council to a seat in Parliament in 1911. He was then an Independent with leanings toward Liberalism, but in 1912 he joined the Reform party. He served in the war with distinction, rising to the rank of major and receiving the Military Cross for bravery and coolness in action. Shortly after his return to New Zealand he was taken into the cabinet as Minister for Public Works and Railways. In this post he made a record for energy and efficiency with the logical result that he was chosen to succeed Mr. Massey in the premiership.

From Small Beginnings

Johnson, the Bookseller's Son, the Great Author

To fight disease and poverty for 75 years and in spite of everything to become a leader in the world of letters—a great poet, dramatist, essayist, novelist, critic, biographer and dictionary writer is high triumph. To have disagreeable peculiarities, and yet to win as friends great artists, actors, writers and scholars is still higher triumph. The rise above misfortunes and to inspire the best minds of a period is a proud achievement. Because he did all this, Samuel Johnson is one of the greatest figures in English literature.

As a boy Johnson helped his father, a poor and luckless bookseller. The lad seized every opportunity to read, and in 1728 went from the dusty bookstore to Oxford University. He was so poor that he had to leave without a degree.

His life was one long battle with disease and privation. By nature he had morbid imagination and almost insane peculiarities. He tried school teaching but merely succeeded in frightening most of his pupils. One day, with one pupil, he set out for London. One of these tramps became Johnson, the Literary Dictator of England; the other became David Garrick, the great Shakespearean actor.

In London, Johnson worked for years as a literary hack, writing anything and everything. His genius brought him friends. His paper, The Rambler, produced his excellent essays, the talk of the town. In seven years he wrote the first great English dictionary. His "Lives of the Poets", showed keen literary sympathy. His brilliant conversation, made immortal in Boswell's minute "Life of Johnson," inspired Gibbon the historian; Burke, the statesman, Reynolds, the artist; Garrick, the actor; Goldsmith, the author; Jones and Langdon, the scholars, and scores of others. His charity led him to share all that he had.

Great as a writer, Samuel Johnson was still greater a man. He conquered the ills of life, and lies buried with other heroes in Westminster Abbey.

The battleship Paris will sail from Toulon, France, for Morocco Friday night. She will be accompanied by two destroyers.

Stories That Recall Others

Ordered by the Captain

He was about six and had been spending some time at the seashore where he had become much interested in the sailing of boats in a pond especially built for the children. He had become an ardent sailor, and had great regard for the captain. On the day of leaving for home he stood on the forward deck with his mother watching those on the wharf, but his mind was on the steamer. Finally he said: "Mamma, did the captain have this boat built for him just the way he wanted it?"

Signs of the Times

A well known lawyer, frequently called judge, was carrying a small black bag when he boarded the car a few days ago bound downtown. As soon as he had taken his seat his handbag became the object of a number of good-natured thrusts from some of his acquaintances.

"That grip sure looks suspicious, Judge," said one of the passengers.

"How much does it hold?" asked another.

"Looks like a four quart size," said a third.

"Well, it's just about reached the point where even a judge can't go out any more with a handbag without someone accusing him of carrying some liquor," said the judge. "I think I'll have to get one of those slender, little over night bags or brief cases to avoid suspicion."

The judge later explained to the "kidders" that he was carrying his golf togs down and was planning on getting out to the club later.

Longest Railway

The longest railroad in the world is not in the United States. By the recent completition of a connecting link there is now a continuous line of track from Meekatharra in West Australia to Dajarra, in Queensland, a distance of 5,432 miles. The line from Vancouver to Halifax is 3,622 miles long and San Fancisco to New York 3,109 miles.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Hears a Rumor

You'll find that rumor ne'er will fail
To make the worst of any tale.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit had been spending so much time in the Green Forest and at the Smiling Pool that he had rather neglected the Old Orchard. He was reminded of this one day when Caron the Meadow Lark happened to stop near where Peter was peeping out from the dear old Briar-Patch. As usual Peter was curious.

"What's the news?" Carol he asked.

"There isn't any news," replied Carol. "That is, there isn't any news unless it is news to you that some of the people on the Old Orchard are talking about Jenny Wren and Mr. Wren."

"Huh!" cried Peter. "If you had said that Jenny Wren was talking about other people it wouldn't have surprised me any. Did you ever in your life hear a tongue go as her tongue can? But what are the neighbors saying about Jenny and Mr. Wren.

"They are not really saying anything," replied Carol. "They are just hinting at things. You know what a tongue can do."

Peter rubbed his head thoughtfully. "It — it is some one saying something to somebody that no one seems to know the truth about or just how it came to start, isn't it?" asked Peter.

Carol nodded. "That's it," said he. "Well, some body [illegible] ed up in the Old Orchard this Spring and summer and it is rumored that

"There isn't any news," replied Carol

Jenny and Mr. Wren know more about these things than they will admit."

Peter's long ears stood straight up. "What kind of bad things have happened on in the Old Orchard?" he demanded.

Well," replied Carol, "some eggs have been thrown out of nests and some others have had holes made in them as they lay in the nests."

"Sammy Jay's work!" cried Peter.

Carol shook his head. "No," said he. "It wasn't the work of Sammy Jay. In the first place, Sammy eats eggs when he takes them. In the second place some of these eggs were in nests where Sammy Jay couldn't possibly get at them. Tommy Tit the Chickadee and Mrs. Tommy were among those whose eggs were thrown out, and if you know anything at all about the nesting of Tommy Tit and his pretty little wife, you know that that nest is always in a hole in a tree with a very small opening or else in one of those houses Farmer Brown's Boy puts up. Sammy Jay couldn't possibly get his head through one of those openings. In fact, nobody larger than Tommy Tit himself could get inside. Now, who is there around the Old Orchard as small than Tommy Tit?"

Peter looked startled. He couldn't think of anybody but Jenny Wren and Mr. Wren. Carol saw the startled look on Peter's face and understood it. "You are thinking," said he, "just what everybody else has been thinking. No one knows that Jenny Wren or Mr. Wren threw out those eggs of Tommy Tit and Mrs. Chickadee, but everybody thinks that one or other of them did it because there was no one else who could have done it. Besides, those Wrens have been anything but good neighbors. They have done their best to drive others away from that part of the Old Orchard where they are living."

"I don't believe it," declared Peter. "I just won't believe anything like that of Jenny Wren. She's a great talker and she dearly loves to boss, but I won't believe that she would do anything so dreadful."

"No one wants to believe it," replied Carol, "but what else can you do under the circumstances? Anyway, as I told you before, it is just rumor."

"Well all I can say is it is a mighty bad rumor," said Peter.

Convictions for intoxication in England and Wales for the last year show a slight increase over the preceding 12 months, but the percentage of 18 convictions per 10,000 of population still represents less than half the pre-war aggregate.

BERLIN IS PUZZLED BY RIVAL "PRINCES"

Berlin is bothered. How can one tell the true from the false crown prince of Kurdistan? For both are here. One is in the hands of the police. He wears a strange military uniform. The epaulettes are those of a Turkish general, the stripes on the arms those of a major, the red border that of a captain. The arrested man is glib. He offers to produce a firm, "The Crown Prince of Kurdistan," in which to show the world how the lords of Kurdistan trace their ancestry direct to Abraham. But though he declares he was a Turkish general in the World war, he cannot remember the name of his German officer.

The other crown prince is genuine—perhaps. The two met recently and the second questioned the first, who had only vague notions as to the geography, language and customs of his country. It is possible the civilized Berlin authorities will look him up until his memory improves.

CHEVROLET SEDAN UPSET ON MILITARY HIGHWAY

About 6.30 o'clock Thursday evening a Chevrolet sedan owned and driven by Herbert H. Lyons of Sunnyside, Tantic was upset on the Military highway, some distance south of the Norwich state hospital by a Cadillac touring car driven by George Kramer of this city. Three machines were involved in the crash and all were more or less damaged.

Mr. Lyons, accompanied by his two young sons, was driving towards New London and was being followed by a Chevrrolet touring car owned and driven by Walter Bean, also of Sunnyside, Tantic. Mr. Kramer was turning out of a side road, with a blind approach, just as the sedan was passing. The sedan and Cadillac came together, the sedan overturning.

In an endeavor to avoid hitting the sedan, Mr. Bean swung off the road and drove over a large rock. All three cars were put out of commission and had to be towed to this city. Robert Lyons, who was riding with his father, Robert H. Lyons, in the front seat of the sedan, was cut on one hand, and was treated at the state hospital. Mr. Lyons received a bump on the back of his head.

It is understood that Mr. Kramer assumed the responsibility for the accident, which was largely due to the fact that the side road was a bad approach to the main highway, as the vision of drivers on both the main highway and the side road is greatly obscured at the point where the two roads meet.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Phillip Henry Princeley.

Following a lingering illness the death of Marion Logue Princeley widow of Philip Henry Princeley, occurred Wednesday at her home in Bridgeport. Throughout her lengthy illness she was most tenderly cared for by her children, who were at the bedside at her death.

Mrs. Princeley was a former resident of Norwich, the greater part of her life having been spent in Norwich Town. About 60 years ago in old St. Mary's church she was united in marriage with Philip Henry Princeley. She is survived by several children and grandchildren.

News of her death will be received with regret by her many friends in Norwich and especially in Norwich Town where she will be remembered by many of the older residents as a woman of charming personality.

Mrs. John W. Randall

Following an illness of some time the death of Abbie Frances Randall widow of John W. Randall, occurred Thursday morning at 5 o'clock at her home at No. 562 Central avenue. Mrs. Randall was born in Voluntown, September 15, 1850 the daughter of Harry Gardner and Maria Moffitt Gardner and had lived in Norwich for something over a year, coming here from Appaug, R. I., where she had resided for many years.

Since coming to Norwich she had made many friends and the news of her death will be received with profound sorrow. She is survived by one brother, John F. Gardner of Montville and other relatives.

MAIN STREET MERCHANT'S BODY FOUND IN SHETUCKET RIVER

The body of Isreal Rabinovitch, secretary of the White Star Clothing company, who had been missing from his home at 28 Park street since 12.30 o'clock Thursday morning, was found about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, in the Shetucket river, about 50 feet below Preston Bridge, by Sergeant Myron Morgan and William Meloski, who had been dragging the river in the vicinity of the bridge throughout the day.

Mr. Rabinovitch had been suffering from a nervous breakdown for some time and early Thursday morning disappeared from his home. When he failed to return the family requested the police department to organize a search for the missing man and during the morning, Mr. Rabinovitch's son, Samuel, found his straw hat in the Shetucket river below Preston bridge.

After the body was recovered it was taken to the shore above the bridge and Medical Examiner Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve was called, giving permission to Church & Allen to remove the body to their establishment.

Mr. Rabinovitch was born in Russia, September 1, 1878 the son of Henry and Anna Rabinovitch and came to this country about 35 years ago, coming directly to Norwich where he made his home until his tragic death, Thursday. Upon arriving in Norwich he engaged in the clothing business with his father and later the business was moved to 151 Main street and became known as the White Star Clothing company. Following the death of the elder Mr. Rabinovitch about seven years ago, the business was continued by Mr. Rabinovitch and his brother Max Rabinovitch who headed the concern.

Eighteen years ago in Worcester, Mass., he was united in marriage with Miss Lena Drellinger, of that city, the couple immediately returning to Norwich to make their home.

Mr. Rabinovitch was one of the prominent Jewish business men of the city and was affiliated with order of B'nai Erith, the Brothers of Joseph Synagogue and was also a member of the Norwich lodge of Elks. He was a man of kindly disposition and always stood ready to render a service to friends in need. News of his death, following his suffering a nervous breakdown, came as a shock to a host of friends in this city and the members of his family have their profound sympathy in their sudden bereavement.

Mr. Rabinovitch leaves his wife and three children, Samuel, Anna and Helen, all of Norwich, two brothers, Max of Norwich, who was his associate in the clothing business, and Dr. Alec Rabinovitch of New York city; four sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Lipschutz of New York city, Mrs. Rose Edlin of New Bedford, Mass., Mrs. Nellie Greenberg of Fall River Mass., and Mrs. Sarah Strom of Norwich.

LOCAL BOYS NOW WITH SHENANDOAH, PA., ORCHESTRA

John F. Gorman, E. Christophe and Floyd S. Christman, Norwich musicians who formerly played in local theatre orchestras have been engaged for the season, 1925-1926 at the Strand theatre, Shenandoah, Pa. They left Norwich, August 11th and started the season in Shenandoah, Aug. 14th. They expect to return to Norwich June 1st next for a six weeks vacation. With regard to the orchestra the Shenandoah Herald says:

Every city and town of any pretentions in the country boasts of a musical organization that is just a little bit better than any other organization of its kind in any other city or town in the country. This is only natural and is to be expected, because a city or town that does not take pride in the musical attainments of its residents by demanding the best in the musical line is not keeping step in the march of progress that is in evidence on every hand.

This at least, is the view taken of the situation by the Burman Amusement Co., lessee of the New Strand Theatre. They scoured the musical centers for the talent necessary to give to the Strand one of the best orchestras that has ever played the theatre. An the result has been very gratifying to Strand theatre patrons. The orchestra, under the direction of E. O. Grubb, is an organization the town can well feel proud of and the overtures rendered are one of the daily features at the Strand. The personnel of the orchestra is as follows:

E. O. Grubb, conductor, soloist and violinist, formerly of Crandall's Washington, D. C., and the Capitol theatre, Little Rock, Ark.

Earl E. Moser, pianist, Shamokin.

Joseph N. Daleskie, trumpet, Shamokin.

E. Christophe, trombonist, Norwich, Conn. Graduate Naval Conservatory, Newport, R. I. Former soloist with Admiral Cole's World's Concert band.

John F. Gorman, clarinetist, Norwich, Conn. Formerly with Suffolk Theatre Symphony Orchestra, Holyoke, Mass.

Floyd S. Christman, drums and tympani, Norwich, Conn. Formerly with "Madame Butterfly," "Bohemian Girl," grand opera companies, tympani soloist with New London Symphony Orchestra for three seasons and six seasons drummer at the Capitol Theatre, New London, Conn.

Every member of the orchestra is an outstanding artist of his class. His selection to a place in the organization was made because of his experience and ability to cope with the musical problems that usually beset an orchestra that is so vital a part of the success of any first-class theatre.

COURT CONTINUES LIQUOR CASE FOR TWO DAYS

In the city court Thursday morning the case of Octava J. Caron was again continued by Judge Arthur F. Libby, this time until this (Friday) morning, upon request of Judge John H. Barnes, attorney for the accused.

A continuance of two days was granted in the case of Ludwick Golombrewski of 564 North Main street, charged with violation of the liquor laws, by actual sale. Bonds of $1,000 were continued.

Edward Sheldon was charged with embezzlement and after pleading guilty was sentenced to jail for 10 days, sentence suspended for one year. Sheldon's arrest followed a sale of 30 dozen ears of corn to Tony Longo of Bath street. Longo ordered fifty dozen and took 20 for himself, ordering the other 30 dozen to be delivered to the Terminal restaurant. Sheldon, it is alleged but 15 dozen to the restaurant and sold the other fifteen dozen elsewhere. Sheldon was ordered to settle with Longo and pay the costs of the court.

LAND BANK FILES SUIT FOR FORECLOSURE

Jules Charmatz of North Stonington and the Windham County National Farm Association of Willimantic, are made defendants in a foreclosure action brought in the superior court by the Federal Land Bank of Springfield. The complaint alleges that Charmatz failed to meet payments on a note which was secured by a mortgage page on land in North Stonington and Preston. The Windham County National Farm Association is named as a defendant as it endorsed the note. Foreclosure and possession of the mortgaged premises are asked for in the suit which was filed Thursday with the clerk of the superior court in this city.

COMMIT BOSTON MAN TO STATE HOSPITAL

George Hauset of 6 Liverpool St., East Boston, is an inmate of the state Hospital at Norwich as the result of his being subject to hallucinations. Hauset was formerly employed in a Boston establishment but after imbibing rather freely of the forbidden fluid, he was notified of his dismissal. Thereupon he shipped as a member of the crew of the fishing steamer Elias F. Wilcox last Friday.

After three days of total abstinence George's nerves got the better of him and he became afflicted with hallucinations. The steamer was headed for the factory at Quiambaug with a load of fish and it was while on the way that members of the crew noticed that Hauset was acting peculiarly. Upon reaching the works Captain Grinnell gave him his discharge and endeavored to locate a doctor to care for him, but he made his escape so Officer F. O. Burroughs was notified that Hauset was at large. Officer Burroughs was notified that Hauset was at large. Officer Burroughs rounded up Constable W. A. MacDonald and Officer James Johnson and they started in search of him.

Hauset was found walking along the state highway near Wilcox curve. When ordered to get into Officer Burroughs' machine he did so readily. Burroughs turned to ask one of the crew of the boat who was also searching for him, and had just found him as the officer drove up, if any charges were to be made against Hauset.

Just then the grinding of the speed gears attracted his attention and he looked around just in time to see his car starting away. Burroughs leaped and caught on as the car went past him and just about that time received a beautiful left hook on the nose. He held on, however, and managed to reach through the window and pull on the emergency brake, giving Johnson and MacDonald time to catch up with him and his prisoner. The handcuffs were snapped on to Hauset's wrists and he quieted down again and was taken to the lockup.

It was seen that his condition was serious so Dr. W. H. Gray was called and he recommended that he be taken immediately to the state hospital. Selectman Erdmance was notified and he immediately secured his admission at the institution.

WOULD EXEMPT LEGION PROPERTY FROM TAXES

A resolution calling for the legal establishment of legion posts as a state-wide fraternal organization was drawn up at the state executive committee meeting of the American Legion at New London, in preparation for the opening of the conventoin.

According to Department Commander Edward L. White of New Haven, the motive behind this resolution is to escape taxes which may now be levied against legion posts that are incorporated and have well furnished homes that are subject to taxation. It is desired that all legion posts should be tax free.

Another resolution which was discussed and which will be brought before the convention is one of protest against the discontinuance of the Allingtown hospital for disabled veterans. The lease on this property will expire next June and state legionnaires have been informed that the government does not intend to renew it.

The state legion plans to invite Director Hines of the Veterans' bureau to visit Allingtown in the hope that he will recognize the need of such a hospital in this state. The government plans to send Connecticut disabled veterans either to Worcester or to Castle Point, N. Y., following its discontinuance of the Allingtown hospital.

Among resolutions that may affect charges in the legion constitution is one recommending the election of seven department vice-commanders instead of two. This will afford representation to each district.

ST. JAMES' WOMAN'S GUILD HAS PICNIC

The annual picnic of the Woman's Guild of St. James' church, Poquetanuck was held on the lawn of the Benjamin Lucas residence Thursday afternoon with a dinner which was served at noon consisting of clam chowder, sandwiches pickles, tomatoes, cucumbers, assorted cake, coffee and watermelon. Four tables of whist were played during the afternoon, the ladies' prizes being won by Mrs. Herbert Spicer of Poquetanuck and Miss Gertrude Pendleton of Norwich, and the gentlemen's prizes by Willis Spicer and Frank W. Brewster. A popular feature of the afternoon was the fortune telling by Mrs. Lillian Lucas. The picnic which proved very successful was in charge of the president of the Guild, Mrs. C. B. Weeks, assisted by the following committee, Mrs. Charles Harkness, Mrs. Lillian Lucas, Mrs. Alanson Fuller, Mrs. Fred Nicolai and Mrs. Bert Williams.

Miss Alice C. Williams of Broad St. who with her mother, Mrs. A. P. Williams has been spending several weeks in Utica, De Ruyter and Cortland, N. Y., left Wednesday to pass some time as the guest of Miss Flora Webb, at Madina, N. Y. Miss Webb and Miss William are juniors at Smith College.

NORWICH LEGION MEN AT STATE CONVENTION

For the seventh time in as many years, delegates from the posts, comprising the Connecticut Department of the American Legion assembled for business, recreation and renewal of acquaintances Thursday at New London, when State Department Commander Edward L. White of New Haven opened the convention in the New London state armory at 10 o'clock.

Following the registration of delegates, Department Commander White requested the delegates to take their positions in the convention, the locations of which were designated by standards bearing the numbers of the districts of which there were seven.

For the first time in the history of Connecticut department, the convention conducted its program under its own national colors. Hence it was that Department Commander White called for the advance of colors under a guard of members as The Star Spangled Banner was sung and the hand salute given.

The Rev. Father Timothy M. Crowley, pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, invoked the divine blessing, following which the commander proclaimed the Code of the American Legion and then pronounced convention open.

Department Adjutant N. R. Durant read the call of the convention, explaining its purpose and outlining the business to be transacted.

With appropriate ceremony the new colors were then dedicated as Department Commander White after proclaiming the honor of the national colors called upon the Rev. Father Crowley to invoke the blessing of God upon the colors.

Business, recreation and fellowship did not occupy the entire time of the meeting for at this point the smiles vanished from the faces of the ex-soldiers for Commander White feelingly announced that there were "some who were with us in service, but are not here now."

A half minute was given to silent tribute for the "heroic dead of this nation." Again the National Anthem was sung and salute rendered to the flag, bearing in mind that for which it stood and "for which once we fought and by which we now live."

Mayor Waldo E. Clarke stepped to the edge of the platform as the delegates set up a great applause, it being several minutes before the mayor could make himself heard.

"I know of no greater pleasure that befalls my duty as mayor of New London than the welcoming of such an organization as the Connecticut Department of the American Legion Continuing Mayor Clarke stated that he doubted if there was any other organization that has such principles as the American Legion is striving for in every city in the United States.

Mayor Clarke extended in behalf of every citizen in New London, the hand of fellowship to the Connecticut Department of the Legion. The mayor brought great laughter to the convention when he said that it would do little good for him to turn over the key to the city—which key he said was a key to the homes, clubs and "cupboards" of the city. Mayor Clarke said that the "cupboards" were empty because the United States Coast Guard did "not trust New London" for when it captured a rum ship, the latter was always sent to New Haven or Bridgeport for unloading.

At the request of Commander White Vice Commander Kenneth Cramer responded to the mayor's address of welcome. Vice Commander Cramer said that New London was a most appropriate place for such a convention as one of the American Legion, because of its many historical points of interest. The vice commander, in his response, told the delegates of the many historic incidents connected with this city.

It was voted to send a telegram of sympatny to the Rhode Island department, which because of the recent death of several of its members has done away with the amusement end of its convention. The deaths resulted from the recent Mackinac catastrophe 11 members of the members of the Rhode Island department losing their lives.

A recess was taken at this point and district caucuses held. The various committees were chosen and the chairman of each is as follows:

Credentials—Clarence Reed, District 4.

Resolutions—Edward Barlow, District 3.

Rules—H. D. Pulver, District 6.

Time and place of next convention—Justus Fennell, District 3.

Auditing—C. M. Pfennie, District 1.

Auxiliary—William Anderson, of Norwich, District 5.

Upon resumption of the convention Mrs. A. D. Oliphant, national president of the auxiliary to the legion, was introduced and talked to the delegates in most interesting and forceful manner. Mrs. Oliphant expounded the merits of the American Legion and advocated practical defense measures. Upon the conclusion of her address she was soundly applauded.

A telegram of congratulation was read from Jim Barton, the national adjutant.

Commander White announced that all resolutions to be acted upon by the convention must be received at the convention headquarters not later than today (Friday). Also it was announced that the reading of the reports would take place at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

The convention then adjourned until 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The armory is most handsomely decorated with red, white and blue bunting with a huge American flag making up the background of the platform. In the center of the stage is a huge gold American eagle holding the shield of the United States.

Thursday afternoon the delegates sailed to Fort H. G. Wright, where they were the guests of Col. Ferguson at Governor's day observance. A parade and review of 300 National Guardsmen was held.

A number of the members of Fletcher Post, No. 4, this city are attending the convention.

KAPLAN AND HERMAN DRAW UNPOPULAR AMONG NEWSPAPERMEN AT RINGSIDE

WATERBURY, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, world's featherweight champion, fought a 15-round draw with Babe Herman, of California before a crowd estimated at 10,000 at Brasco park tonight. The verdict, rendered by Referee Jack Sheehan, of Boston, did not meet with popular favor among the visiting newspapermen at the ringside, who were almost unanimous in their opinion that Herman had a shade.

Except for the last three rounds it was a rather tame exhibition, studded by continual clinching, dancing and wrestling. Herman, with a close guard, tied the champion at every turn, forcing him to clinch after his wild swings went wild. On the other hand, Kaplan was not the same fighter who scored a technical knockout over Danny Kramer, of Philadelphia in the ninth round of a 15-round match in the New York state athletic commission's tournament to determine a successor to Johnny Dundee, when the little Italian gave up the crown.

His characteristic luxz saw tactics were missing. His wild left was even wilder than usual. And his aggressiveness was discounted by Herman's supreme generalship. Herman was far cooler than his opponent. He fought with a decided purpose and that was to stop Kaplan's mad rushes and in this respect he succeeded admirably.

The first round was even. Kaplan went under cover with Herman attempted to fathom Kaplan's deceptive crouch. Not until the fourth round did Herman attempt to open up, and then he straightened out his right [illegible] seldom leading without [illegible] All the time Kaplan was [illegible] and wrestling but getting [illegible] nowhere.

Tonight's fight was the [illegible] encounter held [illegible] contest at [illegible] Manager Corbett [illegible] their heavyweight title scrap at Hartford, November 25, 1901.

Kaplan and Herman have met five times before tonight's battle. Three times the verdict has been a draw while each battler has one decision to his credit.

THE FIGHT IN DETAIL

Round One.

The fight started at 9:27 Eastern standard time.

The champion took the aggressive from the start and with his usual buzzsaw motions carried the fight to his opponent. Kaplan shoved three lefts into Herman's face. Then clinched. Kaplan [illegible] Herman to the ropes. Kaplan [illegible] Herman's head without return. Herman jarred Kaplan with straight left. They wrestled. Herman staggered Kaplan with right cross just as the bell rang.

Round Six.

Round Seven.

Round Eight.

Herman tied Kaplan up [illegible] as the champion rushed. There was [illegible] in open fighting. The crowd [illegible] ed for action as clinch followed clinch. Herman jarred Kaplan's ribs. They exchanged lefts to the head. They [illegible] tied in a clinch for [illegible] a [illegible] exchanging body blows as the [illegible] halted the round.

Round Nine.

Kaplan landed three times to Herman's head before the battlers clinched. Herman missed a right and the champion clinched. A beautiful right uppercut staggered Kaplan. They danced around and clinched. Kaplan rushed but missed a wild left swing. Herman poked his right to Kaplan's ribs with terrific force. They were mixing it furiously for the first time at the bell.

Round Ten.

Round Eleven.

Kaplan missed a swinging left but clinched to save himself. He forced Herman to the ropes and landed effectively to the head. Three vicious rights to the head staggered the champion but he tried gamely to counter. They wrestled and clinched. Herman smacked a left to Kaplan's unguarded body. Herman met every charge with a close guard. They were dancing at the bell.

Round Twelve.

Both landed stinging blows to the head and then clinched. A beautiful right shot straight out jarred the champion. Both missed right hooks. Three times Herman's right found Kaplan's ribs. Herman jumped in, landed his right to Kaplan's ear and hips and was out before Kaplan could clinch. Again Herman jarred Kaplan's ribs but the bell prevented a follow.

Round Thirteen.

Round Fourteen.

Round Fifteen.

They shook hands. A clinch followed. Herman started a vicious attack, pouring punches at Kaplan's head and body. The champion missed frequently. Herman staggered the champion with right to face. Kaplan [illegible] to [illegible] For [illegible] continued. A wild left to the head sent Herman to ropes. They wrestled, hey fought furiously at close quarters.

SHEIK LEONARD FIGHTS A TEN ROUND DRAW

Waterbury, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Frankie O'Brien, of Hartford, Conn., won a referee's decision over Buck Kelly, of Conn., in the opening six round encounter, preliminary to the Louis (Kid) Kaplan-Babe Herman featherweight title match at Brasco park tonight. O'Brien weighed 135-2 and his opponent 135. "Jigger" McCarthy of New Haven was the referee.

In an eight-rounder, Eddie Lord, of Waterbury, gained a referee's verdict over Johnny O'Keefe, of Hartford. Lord tipped the scales at 126-2 while his opponent was a pound heavier.

Frankie Leonard, of Wallingford, Conn., fought a ten round draw in the semi-final match with Tracy Ferguson, of Northford, Conn. The men are middleweights. Jim Keefe, of [illegible]

KAPLAN FRACTURES RIGHT HAND IN 8TH ROUND

WATERBURY, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan fractured his right hand in the eighth round of his 15-round tight with Babe Herman of California at Brasco park tonight. An examination of the hand made in the dressing room shortly after the encounter revealed a broken bone just below the knuckle of his big finger. He said he was unable to use his right hand after the eighth round, except [illegible] Herman also injured his hand but a brief examination after the fight failed to reveal a fracture.

NEW HAVEN HARBOR RECORD SWIM BROKEN

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 27.—A swim across New Haven harbor from Savin Rock to Lighthouse Point, late yesterday was won by Alex Sullivan of the Naugatuck Y. M. C. A., with a record of 29 minutes 24 3-5 seconds. The last time heretofore was by Lillian Stoddard of New York, of 1 hr. 1 min. 33 seconds. Yesterday, Ruth Cruickshank of Morris Cove, who led the field the distance 1 hr. 6 min 4 seconds, and Marion Bloomer of Bridgeport, in 1 hr. 7 min 45 seconds. There were 24 entries, the water was a bit rough because of wind at the start which later flattened out and the distance was about 3 1-2 miles.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL TO RACE TRACK DRIVER

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 27.—Jockey Berg died in a local hospital late today from injuries sustained this afternoon when he was thrown by his mount in the third race at Buckeye Park.

Berg's horse, Fair Accompli, slipped in rounding the first turn, throwing the rider directly in front of the second horse, Bridget O'Grady, ridden by Jack Kessner. Kessner's horse, however, missed Berg but stumbled over the fallen horse, throwing Kessner. Kessner was not seriously injured.

SPRINGFIELD WINS WEIRD GAME FROM WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Aug. 27.—Springfield won a weird game from Worcester today 19 to 14. The Pantaels played poorly in the field, and their errors were costly. Kibble sent three runs across the plate in the seventh with a single. Benes was hit twice in one inning by a pitched ball. Score:

NEW HAVEN BREAKS EVEN WITH WATERBURY

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Waterbury and New Haven broke even in a double header here this afternoon, the visitors taking the first 3 to 0, at the expense of Chick Davis, while the locals won the second game 7 to 0 with Bill Morrell allowing the losers but four hits. Lowry hit a homer in the ninth scoring Yordy ahead of him. In the second game Mayer and Miller knocked in all of the Profs' runs, the former having a single and a triple and the latter a single and a double. The scores:

First game:

Waterbury	000	100	002—3
New Haven	000	000	000—0

Two base hit, Helgeth. Three base hit, Lerian. Home run, Lowrey.

TWO AUSTRALIANS REACH FINALS IN AMERICAN DOUBLES TENNIS

BROOKLYNE, MASS., Aug. 27.—(AP)—For the third successive year, a pair of stalwart Australians has stalked rough shod into the final round of the American doubles tennis championship. In the their match through the semi-final round today Gerald L. Patterson and John B. Hawkes of Australia, trampled on the championship aspirations of an American former title holder, Clarence J. "Peck" Griffin and William M. Johnson of San Francisco. The latter held up the Australian advance for only three brief sets, succumbing 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.

Tomorrow two American doubles teams, Vincent Richards, Yonkers, N. Y., and Richard N. Williams, 2nd Philadelphia, and Roberg G. Howard O. Kingsley of San Francisco, defending Chapmoions, will fight it out to decide which will take the courts in the championship round against the antipodeans Saturday.

At first it seemed an even choice between the pacific coast pair and the Australians as they went through the first nine games without either pair breaking through the others service. But when Johnston dropped his service on the tenth game, it gave Hawkes and Patterson the first set. In the end, the antipodeans finished the three sets without once having their service broken.

It was team play, scientific and with comparatively few errors, that gave the Australians their advantage. Hawkes was at his best and his hard forehand drives, deceptive left hand service and excellent volleying gave the pair from "down under" many a point. Johnston and Griffin were both a little spotty in their play, sandwiching flashes of old time brilliance between somber stretches of mediocre nets and outs. Patterson found it hard to volley over the net and was short on his lobs, but made up for this with winning cross court shots, drives and an effective severe service.

Play in the other four tournaments held in conjunction with the national doubles, progressed for the most part to the semi-final and final stages. The national mixed doubles championship saw an upset in the first round when Miss Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, California, and George M. Lott, Jr., Chicago, 4, seeded team, bowed to Mrs. J. B. Corbiere and G. P. Ardner, Jr. of Boston. Mrs. Corbiere and her partner were forced out in the next round, however, by Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, Wilmington, Del. and Stanley Pearson, Philadelphia. The last two succumbed, in turn, to Kathleen McKane, England, and J. B. Hawkes, Australian 8-6, 9-7, who entered the semi-finals as a result.

NUGGETS RUN ROUGH SHOD OVER PALACE

Wednesday's twilight game between the Nuggets and the Palace resulted in an overwhelming victory for George Madden's team by an 11 to 2 score. The Nuggets under the able direction of Acting Manager Charles Risley played great ball and the result of the game was never in doubt.

The Palace was forced to play without their leader, Mike Morin, which weakened their lineup considerably. Mike was accidently hit by a batted ball during practice, and received a painful injury over his left eye. Although painful, the injury is not considered serious and should not keep him out of the game for long.

The Nuggets who have had the reputation of being weak hitters in the league so far, broke out with an avalanche of hits in last night's contest, gathering thirteen safe blows off the combined offerings of Shahan and Chip Dugas. The former started the game and twirled the first four innings, being hit for ten safe blows and six runs. Chip Dugas then took the mound and proved himself to be a better third baseman than a twirler, the Nuggets collecting three more hits and five runs before he could retire the side.

Johnny Greene pitched for the winners and was invincible. Johnny did not have his usual trouble in locating the plate and gave out but one free pass to first. He held the Palace to six hits, and increased his strikeout record by five.

After being retired in order in the first, Madden's team went into the lead in the second with two runs. With one out, Benjamin was safe on Courbois' error and when Papineau singled to left, Benjamin took second.

Ray Jarvis' shot another one base blow to left, and Benjamin rode home with the first run. Bamford, the Nugget third sacker, came through with a double, also to left, and Papineau counted. Shahan then tightened and retired Greene and Guillet in short order.

In the third, the Nuggets added two more on a fielder's choice, an error by Courbois, and singles by Lesseman and Papineau, and in the fourth increased their run quota to five on a single by Bamford, a sacrifice fly, and a single by Lesseman.

The Palace tallied both of their runs in the final frame. Jackson led off by beating out a bunt along the third base line. Joe went down a second and when Lessman dropped Liberty's throw Jackson was safe. After Shahan fanned, Leo Morin was hit by a pitched ball, and Courbois beat out a bunt to first, filling the bases. Keenan shot a single to right, and both Jackson and Morin crossed the plate, Courbois however was caught trying to make third, and Dugas ended the frame with a fly to left.

In the final half of the fifth, the Nuggets made a walk-away of the game, collecting six more runs on singles by Bamford, Greene, and Raille, and doubles by Liberty, Ray Jarvis, and Guillet. The score:

Coupon THIS COUPON AND 69c GOOD FOR ONE $1.00 WEATHER PROPHET

A quaint Swiss-cottage hygrometer, that pays for itself in many ways. It warns you when to take an umbrella, or when not to hang out the wash. When the weather is to be fine the two children will be out; when stormy weather is approaching the witch will come out from 8 to 24 hours ahead of rain or snow. It is surprisingly reliable on local weather conditions. Made on strictly scientific principles. We have secured a special price on a quantity and, as long as they last, will sell them for exactly what it costs us to retail them—only 69c if you bring this coupon. Every village, city and farm home should have one. Come and get yours at once or mail your order. Mail orders 8c extra for packing and postage. An excellent gift.

Recent construction projects in Canada include the establishment of a model town at a cost of $500,000 by a provincial government.

The next total eclipse of the sun visible in the United States will occur in August 31, 1932, and will be visible from northern New England.

Malay fishermen believe that a boat has a soul, and when they have bad luck at fishing a magician is called in to treat the soul of the fishing boat and so restore it to strength and effectiveness.

A new British invention, intended as a means of resting the diseased lung of a tuberculosis patient, is a machine which pumps air into the thorax by way of a hollow needle inserted between the patient's ribs.

Synthetic wood which may be kneaded like bread or putty has been invented in Germany. The putty-like material is particularly adapted to plugging holes in a wood surface, or to moulding into artistic forms. After exposure to the air the synthetic wood hardens and feels and looks like wood. In its hardened state it may be sawed and split like wood.

When J. A. Ford accidentally backed his small motor truck off the end of the pier at Long Beach, Cal., the machine did not sink, but began drifting out to sea. It did not pause in its off-shore course until overtaken by several men in a rowboat, who towed it back to land undamaged. A large empty gasoline tank mounted on the chassis explained the floating feat.

The catbird is an ingenious reasoning creature. So says Mrs. Ernest A. Austin, of Worcester, and tells this tale. She began to place bread out on the grass on the chance that birds would like it. A pair of catbirds showed their appreciation and regularly came for their food. Then as an experiment she put out bread which was exceedingly dry and hard. Finding it beyond their powers of mastication each catbird took a piece in its bill, flew to a nearby bird bath, and perching on the rim dipped the morsels in the water until they had softened. Then flying to the ground they laid the sodden bread on the grass and devoured it hungrily.—Boston Globe.

Roots and Herbs Used in Medicine
The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., of Lynn, Mass., is recognized as the greatest user of roots and herbs in the world. Over half a million pounds are used annually in manufacturing Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. These herbs are gathered with the greatest care at the season of the year when the medicinal elements which they contain are at their best. This, in part, accounts for the wonderful efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in restoring ailing women to health and strength.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The borough is now in what is known as the quiet part of the year. The latter part of August few entertainments or parties of any kind are held. Many of the residents are at the beaches and those who are not would like to be. On Thursday afternoons especially there is hardly any activity of any sort. The daily routine however of the procession of tourists sometimes awakes a little interest in places when a string of machines from different states rolls along. Thursday marked the last half holiday for the Danielson store employes, but some establishments are making plans to keep closed on this afternoon during September also. This is done all the year round in cities such as Providence.

Funeral services for Mrs. Rose Genest, of Moosup, were held in All Hallows' church, in that town Thursday morning by Rev. Joseph E. McCarthy, pastor of the church. Rev. Father McCarthy of Danielson was deacon, and Rev. Father Richards, sub-deacon. The bearers were Alex and Felix Lavallee, Joseph and Fred Tetreault, Oscar Morse, and Mr. Laparle. The flower bearers were members of the St. Anne's society, Mrs. Oscar Morse, Mrs. Champagne, Laura Lavallee, and Mrs. Potvin. Burial was in the cemetery at Baltic and the committal service was read by Rev. Fr. William T. O'Brien.

Funeral arrangements were by Louis E. Kennedy.

Mrs. Annie Watson, colored, 52, who died in the village of Brooklyn last Wednesday morning was the widow of Steve Wilson. She was born in Eastford, Conn., the daughter of William and Lucretia Lambert.

In a session of the town court held by Judge Willaf Fenner Woodward, two cases were disposed of Thursday morning. The case of James Lilley continued from the day before was settled. Lilley was charged with non-support. He pleaded not guilty and was found not guilty.

The other case was that of Raymond Charron, of Plainfield, charged with violating the by law of the borough not to park on a cross-walk. He pleaded guilty and was fined $2 and costs.

John W. Gallup was a short visitor to Stonington Thursday.

A new Reo combination fire truck for the Suffield fire department stopped in Danielson for a few moments Wednesday night. It was not such a big machine as the one the borough owns and was built for work that made it necessary for the truck to go considerable distance when help was required. The machine attracted considerable attnetion while it stood in Railroad square.

Work is proceeding smoothly on the new state highway to Elmville. The steam shovel has reached a point behind the house near the corner of Judd street and encountered a big ledge. The operator of the big machine is very clever in the handling of the shovel and broke through after a short time. The material taken from this hill is being used as filling for the swamp that was dug out the other day.

A new sidewalk is being laid on the school street side of the building occupied by H. H. Starkweather, near the fire station.

Edward A. Sullivan was on a business trip to Norwich Thursday.

The contortionist who played in Railroad square, Wednesday night, did not make himself quite as popular with his audience as he might. When he did not receive as much of a collection as he wanted he promptly cut out a part of the show. He rated the performance highly in his opinion and when the people did not fall for it he offered the excuse that the money picked up was not sufficient to warrant his going through the whole of it. Many of the audience became disgusted at this and left.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Reed have as guests Mrs. F. M. Reed and Eugene Reed of Brooklyn.

Delegates of the American Legion, The 40 and 8, and the Auxiliary of the Legion left Thursday morning for the day's convention at New London.

An interesting example of modern and older methods of fire fighting was that Wednesday evening when the "General Putnam" steam pumper, a veteran with a record of many years of service was drawn to the site of the test by the remodeled Cadillac machine. The steamer is not in use except in emergencies and then is pulled to the fire by the motor that regularly is attached to the hook and ladder truck. The apparatus has been inspected and found in tip-top shape and ready for any demand. The department is now well motorized, having the car for Chief A. P. Woodward, the Seagrave pumper purchased in 1916, and the ladder truck, and provision for pulling the hose wagon and steamer with the Cadillac machine. When the new water mains are in place on Mechanic street the firemen will have a larger amount of water at command in that part of the boro. The fire alarm system is in good working condition and a motor-generator has been ordered for charging the batteries, in the event of the cutting off of the power from the Connecticut Company

PUTNAM

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. King, now residents of East Oneco, where they have recently purchased a beautiful home, celebrated the 42nd anniversary of marriage quietly at home. Joseph Casaire King and Miss Marie P. Ball were the first couple married in the Convent Chapel at Putnam, August 19, 1883 by Rev. Father Vigen, the best man being Romanus St. George and the bridesmaid Miss Melvina Duplisea, a half-sister of the bried.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph C. Jenkins, has announced that the public schools of the Town of Putnam will open Wednesday, September 9 for the Fall term.

Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Lamaitre and son Paul of this city and Mrs. Frank Folsey and son George of Lynn, Mass., are at Mr. Lamaitre's cottage at Quadic for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. George Baker of Fremont street have returned after a two weeks' visit with Mrs. Baker's sister and her family at Southhampton, Long Island.

Leonard H. Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Watson, of Pomfret, recently employed by the Lindeman Sales company of this city has been appointed a member of the State Police force. He has resigned in Putnam and has reported for training at Ridgefield. Mr. Watson is well known both in Putnam and Pomfret and at one time was in the coast artillery. He was one of fifteen successful applicants picked from scores of others who wanted positions and was the only successful applicant from this end of the state.

The structural work of the old bridge on Pomfret street fell with a crash into the bed of the river. Nearly all of the timber had been removed, the iron girders were loosened at one side and with a little leverage on the part of the workmen all that remained of the bridge that was built forty-four years ago for $1,800 went down on the rocks, twenty feet below. There were many evidences of wear from the immense strain of the past few years. The bridge was not built to carry heavy, fast traveling automobiles or ten ton motor trucks with a load as heavy as their own weight. Although the structure had not reached the dangerous stage the highway commissioner inspectors were wise in recommending a new bridge. The work of tearing down has been greatly facilitated by the low level of the water in the river. From the western bank a powerful derrick with a boom that seems too long for its base is picking the pieces and girders out of the river-bed, and clearing the way for the new concrete abutments. The footbridge is completed and pedestrians get to it by a detour back of Kent's shop and up a stairway on the Wheelock mill side.

Ensign W. J. F. Rafferty of U. S. battleship Utah, stationed at Charlestown Navy Yard, is home on a month's sick leave. He has just been discharged from the Naval Hospital after months of treatment for an infected foot. He has been pronounced cured, but the authorities advised a month's furlough to give him time to recover, when he will return to active duty.

Mrs. Lillie Leach leaves today for Grand Rapids, Mich., to attend the National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Woman's Relief Corps. Mrs. Leach is a National aide in the W. R. C.

At the two days of athletic sports to be held by the Mechanicsville athletic association today (Friday) and Saturday a number of boxing bouts have been arranged. So many bouts are planned that there will be no dancing in the evening, as at first scheduled.

Rev. Mother Avarista and Sister Adelaide, from Mount St. Mary's Convent, Manchester, N. H., who have been guests for several days of Mother Avarista's sisters, Misses Ellen and Margaret Dolan of Chapman street, left Thursday for a visit to Naugatuck.

Mrs. Edward H. Burt left Thursday for a visit with her sister in Nova Scotia.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand N. Andrews have returned from a vacation spent near Boston.

Miss Charlotte Manning, of the Flagg Store, is having a weke's vacation.

Mrs. William Geary of Portland, Conn., is the guest of her sisters, Misses Ellen and Margaret Dolan.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Averill and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. John Porter of New York city, have returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Averill's son, Kenneth Averill and his wife, at Springfield, Mass.

Mark Tierney of Waterbury, Conn., and Thomas Dalton of Framington, N. Y., have been guests for a few days of the Misses Dolan.

Miss Beatrcie Lamothe of Plainfield is visiting relatives in Putnam for several weeks.

Rev. Charles H. Bedard, pastor of St. Mary's church who has returned from his pilgrimage to the Vatican at Rome is in the best of health. He arrived home sooner than he was expected and it was a surprise to his people to see him enter the church and celebrate mass. However, his parishioners were no less glad to see him and after the service he was heartily welcomed. He has also been heartily greeted by citizens in general, those who belong to other churches and those who belong to no church at all. Fr. Beard left Putnam nearly three months ago on his trip. He was received in audience by his Holiness, Pope Pius XI, and given the Pontifical blessing. He says his trip was a very pleasant one in other respects but he is glad to get home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roe of Winchester, Mass., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Owler.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Diamond and daughter, Miss Elsie, have been visiting in New York. Robert Diamond motored down and they all returned Tuesday by automobile.

Mrs. Henry Morse of Lowell, Mass., has been the guest of Mrs. William F. Rafferty.

Edgar L. Prince of this city and Ox- ford, Mass., and his son Frederick have gone to Miami, Florida where Mr. Prince will locate in business. Mr. Prince will join him there. Fred Prince will spend two weeks there.

The O. M. Club of Putnam held their twenty-seventh annual reunion at Roseland Park Wednesday afternoon. This club was formed in 1898, 27 years ago. A few have forgotten their vows and are now mothers of families. A basket lunch was eaten and a social time followed.

Major A. D. McIntyre, who has been connected with the Debuvois Company as salesman for more than twenty-five years has resigne das a result of a reorganization of the company. He is now with a Worcester concern making a similar line of products. Major McIntyre is one of the best known road salesman in the east and middle western states.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Davis of Boston are visiting friends in this vicinity. Mr. Davis was a former Putnam boy and lived where the Nikoloff residence now stands.

The engagement is announced of Miss Helen Wilhelmina Von Schagen, of Dorchester, Mass., to Kenneth Sherwood Andem, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Andem of this city. Mr. Andem is now engaged in electrical work at Newark, New Jersey.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Clark of Grove street are entertaining Mrs. Ella Clark and daughter, Miss Louise, of Hartford, residents of Putnam.

Charles V. Cushman has purchased the property of the late John Ash on Prospect Hill in Pomfret. This is one of the most beautiful and fertile spots on Pomfret street and comprises a large acreage for the growing of crops. It has a fine barn and a charming studio built some years ago by Miss Esther Peck, and occuped by her for several years as a summer studio.

County Agent Frank L. Davis, and his family are on a vacation to Onset, Cape Cod. He was in Putnam for an hour Tuesday and said that he would hour Thursday and said that he would not be at home for another week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Kent have motored to Alton Bay, N. H. for a ten days' stay.

At a special town meeting of the citizens of Woodstock it was decided to accept the bequests of Mrs. Minnie Palmer Dean of the Memorial Hall, built several years ago but never accepted, also some land near New Boston and a fun dto erect a public fountain.

Sister M. Lawrence of St. Joseph's convent, Hartford, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Rafferty of Grove street. She is a sister of William F. Rafferty and James H. Rafferty.

Phillip Zaltas of the Public Market has returned from a visit of a few weeks' in Florida.

The Sunday School of Christ church, Pomfret, is to hold the annual picnic at Roseland park Saturday, August 29. Busses are to leave the church at 11 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Renshaw have been on ten days' motor to Cape Cod.

LEO REAVES RECOVERS— UNCONSCIOUS TWO WEEKS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 27—Leo Reaves, grandson of A. B. Saunders of School street, who was in a comotose condition for more than two weeks following an automobile accident, has almost regained his normal health. There was no other injury than the blow on the head and while serious if not fatal results were feared at first because of the long period of unconsciousness, it is now thought that he will soon be as well as ever.

EX-SOLDIER UNDER BONDS, CHARGED WITH BIGAMY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 27—Oscar St. Laurent was presented in the city court this morning charged with bigamy. A little over a year ago he married Irene Falter of South Woodstock. He had been twice before. His second wife died and he says tha tat the time he married her and at the time he married Miss Falter, after his second wife's death, he had been informed and believed that his first wife had obtained a divorce from him. He was held in a $500 bond.

St. Laurent was one of the first men from Putnam to enlist in the World war.

MILL LEASE RENEWED PLAN FOR 5,000 MORE SPINDLES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 28—The Powdrell and Alexander Company, Inc., has renewed its lease of Mill No. 7 of the former Manhasset Mfg. Co. Beginning Monday it will put on a night force in most of its departments. It is also very probable that it will at an early date install 5,000 additional spindles. These statements are made on the authority of George F. Payne, superintendent, after a year's operation here as a subsidiary company of the Paco Mfg. Company, whose main mill and office are at Danielson. The shut down of two weeks was in accordance with the custo mof the Paco Co. as an annual vacation for its employes.

This is very gratifying to the people of Putnam, especially so in view of the fact tha twhen the mill was leased here a year ago it was known that it was to some extent experimental. The releasing is very tangible evidence that Mr. Payne is making a success of the work here and that it will continue to give employment tc an increasing number of employes.

GERMAN SHIPBUILDERS GO AFTER RUSSIAN BUSINESS

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Dishipbuilding firms, including Krupp Wharf and Deutsche Wharf, have approached the Soviet Commercial Navy department with an offer to build a number of commercial and passenger ships on credit for ten to 15 years upon payment of 10 per cent cash with order. The Commercial Navy department considered the terms acceptable and decided to order several tank steamers as well as passenger ships.

In a memorandum addressed to the central authorities at Moscow recommending the offer, the Commercial Navy Department stated that the interse of the Soviet shipbuilding works will not suffer by placing orders for ships abroad, as for the whole sum assigned by the government for Russian shipbuilding, orders have already been placed with Russian works, and that the cost of the ships which will be built abroad will be defrayed from the profits derived from the exploitation of those ships.

Danish Divorce Increase

The National Council of Grand Divorces in Denmark increased more than 100 per cent between 1916 and 1923, according to the latest statistics published. In the former year there were 917 and in the latter 1,872. The majority of the divorces followed matrimonial periods of three to five years.

A chopping block for butchers has been invented that rests upon a strong spring. The shock-absorbing block is said to "give" just enough to relieve the hand and wrist of the force of the blow without interfering with the cutting of the meat.

SINCERITY

A man may study all the forms of speech
Till language has become to him an art,
And yet the minds of others cannot reach
Unless his words are chosen from the heart.

And he may reach to heights of eloquence,
Charming the ears of those who audience give;
Yet, if his words be but a sham pretense,
His arguments are weak, and cannot live.

Though with the imagery of lofty thought
He clothes the theme, his hearers to delight,
His reasoning will fail, and come to nought,
Unless 'tis founded on the true and right.

Things that are wrong in theory and in fact
May for a passing moment charm and lure,
But they will fail and fall, by time attacked;
'Tis only truth and right that will endure.

He who would have his teachings felt and known,
For what he is not never should appear;
For soon or late they will be overthrown,
Unless he is at heart true and sincere.

His words like silvery notes may flow with ease,
His name be sounded like a trumpet
And while he may the listening thousands please,
Unless sincere, they but a day will last.

Few Girls Go Unbobbed

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 28 (AP) —The role of a school girl in motion pictures no longer is being handled by the lass with bobbed hair, it was revealed here recently. The unsophisticated school miss now is identified by her long tresses.

While seeking a player for the part it was found that approximately 9... of 100 girls between 16 and 20 years of age had been lured by the call of the bobbing barber.

Too often a fellow's charity seems to be glued to his fingers.

DO THE "PEEPUL" KNOW WHAT GOOD GOVERNMENT IS?

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

I have a pessimistic friend who, after long observation of the manners and behavior of the great American "peepul," especially in relation to politics, declares his confirmed belief that a controlling majority of the said "peepul" don't know what good government is don't give a tinker's damn for its possible benefits, and actually don't want it.

Some of them want to beat the other side, regardless, so they can brag and celebrate. Some want to help ambitious or needy friends to offices and salaries. Some want to furnish personal enemies. Some are willing to scratch your back in anticipation and expectation of the coming time when you'll scratch theirs. And some just go with whatever crowd they happen to fall in with, neither asking nor caring where it is going,—at least, that's the way my pessimistic neighbor sees 'em.

It won't do to laugh at him and tell him that he's got a bad case of mulligrubs. It won't do even to accuse him of being a "doctrinaire" and a "highbrow." It certainly won't do to ignore him. He's got too many facts marshalled behind him to make that prudent. And yet, if what he says is true, it's a big black cloud of ominous [illegible] overspreading our future.

Take into your consideration, for one thing, the matter of taxation and the cost of government. It would seem as if every man Jack in the country would be sufficiently interested in that pocket-probing function to want economy and low taxes. He ought to demand them in his own personal and individual interest, to say nothing of the larger public relation.

Extravagant or even careless expenditures by government mean [illegible] taxes. In one form or another can government get the money for any sort of expenditure, wise or foolish. It can't spend a dollar for any purpose whatever till it has collected that dollar from you and me, with a trifle over to pay cost of collection. And the higher the taxes the higher is everything else. Prices go up in sympathy and because sellers simply have to get higher prices to pay [illegible] taxes.

[illegible] would seem [illegible] the people [illegible] economies [illegible] on the one hand and [illegible] of economy on the other.

Now, bear in mind that the greater part of federal taxation is indirect, that is, comes from driblets taken from our purchases of imported foreign goods and the added costs of internal revenue taxed products. It isn't taken from us,—meaning by "us" the great majority who pay no income taxes,—in one big lump. It [illegible] over the whole year and [illegible] it. But local taxes are [illegible] collected in one beastly lump and in solid cash. The local collector takes them out of our pockets, willy-nilly, and usually leaves those pockets extremely flat and flabby. [illegible] made his hay [illegible] between a gentle breeze [illegible] day and rather [illegible] fects, and the [illegible] gathered into a [illegible] twisting tornado, [illegible] barn and [illegible] the [illegible]

And yet in only four years the cost of federal government [illegible] almost in half while [illegible] cal governments [illegible] controllable by the [illegible] ties, have more than [illegible]

While the federal [illegible] a wise budgeting system and a persistent executive drive for economy, has cut down the cost of national government beyond all former expectation, the local governments, much more directly responsible to popular will and under [illegible] vision, have [illegible] broad [illegible] up a Big Deal.

Can you blame my pessimist neighbor for saying that people, as a whole, don't want economy of government? If they really did, they'd have it in their local affairs. Yet it is those very local governments which are the worst offenders in extravagance.

Consider, further one effect of this orgy of local spending upon our own industry of farming. It seems to be [illegible] er. At least that is the [illegible] which all writers on farm [illegible] to make. Yet the department of agriculture finds that, taking the country as a whole, the average farmer's return for his management and labor and that of his whole family in the past year was only $649,—a little over $2 per work day. This, while [illegible] miners with an [illegible]

But do they? My pessimistic neighbor says they do not,—and proves it.

Our government is divided into two main departments, the federal government which takes in the whole nation, and the various local governments which look after local details. The federal [illegible] more closely responsive to the general wish of the different people of the 48 states. But these same people have also their local governments, state, town or city, which are supposedly and [illegible] responsive. If the voters of Rhode Island or of the [illegible] Mass., want economical local government with comparatively low local taxes they can have such government readily and simply as turning over their hands. It is a matter entirely within their competence. Nobody outside can compel them to waste local taxes or incur local debts to pay unnecessary [illegible] The purse-strings [illegible] to loosen or tighten as they will.

This being so, it would seem inevitable that local expenditures would be kept at the lowest possible point and [illegible] the lowest [illegible] in any community whose majority voters wanted such economy and efficiency. What are the facts?

Director of the Budget H. N. Lord of Washington answers that question [illegible] completely in a recent published statement. Here it is:—

"Four years ago the cost of government was divided 66 per cent federal and 40 per cent state [illegible] local. In the short space of four years this has been more than reversed. Today it is 36 per cent federal and 64 per cent state and local, showing what economy can accomplish on the one hand and the results of slackness of economy on the other."

"Now, bear in mind that the greater part of federal taxation is indirect,

UNION

The Home Day celebration of the Congregational church, held in Saturday, August 22, was a most successful occasion, about 150 persons being present at the dinner served at noon in the grove at Union Phoenix hotel. Following the dinner, which was served by the Phoenix hotel, the guests repaired to the gayety. Old friends greeted each other, and renewed acquaintances were made. Favorable comments were heard on the new church which is nearing completion. Some people had come a long distance to be present, parts of Massachusetts and Connecticut being especially well represented. Guests were present from Worcester, Providence, Southbridge, Thompson, Holland, Three Rivers, Providence, Hartford, Thompson, Danielson, New Britain, South Lyme, Moosup, Wales, Stafford and neighboring towns as well as from Middlebury, Vt., Marion, Ohio and many other places. The cool air gave people an appetite for the delicious dinner served by Paul Rizzner and a group of assistants at the refreshment booth, had a busy day.

In the afternoon there was speaking at the grove. Recd H. M. Lawson spoke at length on his prophesy for the year 1950, before introducing the chairman of the afternoon, L. M. Reed. Mr. Reed extended cordial greetings to the guests of the town and called upon Roscuis Newell, of Three Rivers, Mass., as the first speaker. Mr. Newell spoke optimistically of the opportunities open to the young people of New England today.

Judge Harry E. Back of Danielson, spoke of the loss to Union in the death of Judge Joel H. Reed who spoke at Old Home Day last year. Judge Reed's influence was felt, not only in the little town of Union that loved him, but throughout the state of Connecticut. Judge Back said that Union had exerted considerable influence not only upon the laws of the state, but also upon the United States. He closed with a tribute to those who had remained in Union and "carried on."

Rev. C. G. Fogg, a former pastor, spoke of Union in the visioned past and a cheerful outlook for the future.

Rev. Harry Newell of Middlebury, Vt., a grandson of Union, as he called himself, delighted the audience with humorous anecdotes. He then said there was no substitute for work, and no better combination than character and a willingness to work. Men and women who believe in God and who live together as Christians, will save America.

Attorney Hartley Reed Walker, of Orange, Mass., spoke briefly. He also paid tribute to Judge Joel H. Reed. Mr. Walker considered men and women the most important production of Union and spoke of what the town owed to Attorney John Buckley, in the securing of its new road.

John Newell of Waterbury related a number of interesting anecdotes.

Rev. Herbert Plumb, of North Ashford, spoke of the need of co-operation between church and community.

The afternoon exercises closed with a cordial invitation from L. M. Reed for every one to come to Old Home Day next year. During the afternoon a ball game was played on Newell Hill between the married and single men. The single men proved more agile at running bases.

The Old Home Day services at the church Sunday, August 23, were well attended, the pews being filled. The beautiful flowers were arranged by Mrs. Ralph Bradway. The special music was very much enjoyed. Robert Oldham of Southbridge was organist. A quartette, Rev. H. A. Coolidge of Union, Mrs. Dudley Clarke, Mrs. Richard McAllster, and Mr. Walkingshaw of Southbridge sang several anthems. Mrs. S. M. Lindsay led the Junior choir as usual.

Mrs. Charles Webster is the guest of Holland, Mass., friends.

Rev. H. A. Coolidge had a special sermon on the theme, The Christian Home. The usual Sunday school hour was omitted in order to give people an opportunity to greet old friends. Quite a number who were unable to be present Saturday at the exercises at the grove had driven long distances to attend the church services on Old Home Sunday, coming from Manchester, Worcester, Brimfield, Wales and many of the surrounding towns. Two veterans of the Civil war were present, George Thayer of Union and Melvin Booth of Brimfield. The townspeople are always glad to greet these veterans.

The vesper service at five o'clock, although not so largely attended proved very inspiring. After the usual song service, Mrs. S. M. Lindsay continued the thought of the morning in an address on "What Giant Power Can Do."

Miss Eleanor Lindsay has been entertaining a college friend, Miss Eleanor Reynolds, of Newark, N. J.

Roscuis Newell and Mr. and Mrs. George S. Gay, of Three Rivers, attended the vesper service

Harry Back, Jr., and his cousin, Harold Taintor, are camping at the Back cottage, on Lake Mashapaug.

John Newell of Waterbury has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Heck.

L. M. Reed and Thomas Reed attended Pomona Grange meeting Monday at Connecticut Agricultural college.

Rev. and Mrs. Herbert K. Job and daughter, Miss Muriel Job, of Amston, were guests over Old Home Day of Mrs. Ella C. Barrows. They returned to Amston Monday accompanied by Mrs. E. C. Barrows and Randolf Barrows, who will remain for a few days.

L. M. Reed and Mrs. Mary Reed had as guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Fred Moore, Charles Moore, Mrs. Grace Abbe, Miss Dorothy Abbe, and Joel Reed, of Worcester, and Thomas Reed.

Mrs. Fred J. Hunter of Marion, O. is visiting her sister, Mrs. Raymond C. Barrows.

Mrs. Mary L. Horton recently spent a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Henry Leffingwell of Oreutville.

Charles Gasc, of West Hartford, and Donald Scrunton, of Hartford, have been guests of their aunt, Mrs. Carl Tanker.

Mrs. George Kostur has been entertaining her two little nephews, Edward and Harold Riznes, of West Dudley.

Lake held a regular meeting and worked the third and fourth degrees

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Baldwin of Detroit, his sister, Dora, and her husband, are guests at the bungalow on Bald Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Turning, of Hartford, were in town for Old Home Day.

Mrs. Frank Peck was the guest of her father and mother over the week end, returning to Old Lyme Monday.

Alexander Magoun of Waterford spent the week end with his family at their cottage on the lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Crawford and three children of Framingham, Mass., are spending several days at Mashapaug.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Crawford of Lexington, Mass., were guests last week of George Thayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Potter and daughter, Dorothy, of New Britain, were recent guests at George Thayer's. Ruth Potter, who has been spending several weeks in Union has returned to New Britain.

Miss Linda Young is spending several weeks at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Eaton and son, Melville, of Watertown, are spending several days at Mashanaug.

Mrs. Nelson Horton, Mrs. Raiza Horton and Delia Heck, Mrs. H. R. Howard, Mrs. H. A. Coolidge and Mrs. George Kostur spent Tuesday afternoon at Lake George, Wales, helping Mrs. Kostur celebrate her birthday.

Broadway Theater

The entire program at the Broadway Theater this week is an outstanding one and we would like to impress local theatergoers not to miss this show.

Riquert that novelty man opens with some sensational feats on the bicycle

In "Aces Up" are featured Russell and Oakes who are as clever comedians as they are clever song interpreters.

"The Tale of the Skipmonk" is a clever story as told by Bobby Roberts and Maud Clark. It is a comedy offering with songs.

Rosita Mantilla and Jack Flynn emanate sense and nonsense. The latter is particularly funny. The entire offering is one you'll enjoy.

Valda and Co. was the big surprise of the day. The offering "The World of Dance" is exceptional in every respect The company is very clever and the scenery will long be remembered. Miss Valda is the only American girl dancing a real Malaguino and Bolerno Spanish dance with castinets.

"Men and Women," a William de Mille production for Paramount, which opened on Thursday at the Broadway Theater, will close its run tomorrow.

Richard Dix, Neil Hamilton, Claire Adams and Robert Ellison head the cast of the picture in featured roles. The story is laid in New York City and tells of a young bank cashier, who steals to make his wife happy by keeping her in pretty clothes.

Clara Beranger wrote the screen play from the Henry C. DeMille—David Belasco stage success of the same name. Flora Finch, Henry Stephenson and others play in support.

TO OPEN VIOLIN STUDIO IN THE DISCO BLDG.

Frank Drago of Hartford who is to open a studio next week Thursday, in the Disco Bldg, as teacher of the violin, has been teaching in Hartford for the past 12 years. He has been a member of the Hartford Philharmonic orchestra for seven years. He is also conductor of the Young Folks Symphony orchestra since it was started in 1922. He has studied violin with the E. Ondricek of Boston, Hugo Kortschak of New York, Paul Betrowitzki of Providence. Also harmony and composition with R. H. Prutting, Daniel Protheroe and Adolphe Rosenbecker of Chicago.

Palace Theater

Chalk up another smashing success to the credit of Lefty Flynn, recent graduate from the western movie school, now the leading candidate to succeed the late Wallie Reid in the place that actor held in the public esteem!

The rangey star's latest vehicle, "High And Handsome," was shown on the screen at the Palace Theatre yesterday, and it proves one of the fastest and strongest comedy-dramas turned out of Hollywood in recent months. A fine cast interprets the action, and Lefty himself has never been seen to such advantage as "Officer Hanrahan," the lovable, human, and self-sacrificing patrolman who beats up a heavyweight champion, not because he is his apparantly successful rival, but because he jilts the girl that Officer Hanrahan loves. There is kick, punch, laughter and tears in every scene in which this unusual police hero appears.

Gerald Beaumont wrote the original story, which appeared in magazine form, and Rex Taylor adapted it to Mr. Flynn's needs. The two big fight scenes—one a "Charity Fund" battle with the champion in which all the city dignitaries and the whole police department are present at the ringside—are magnificently done. There is real comedy, and real pathos among thoroughly real people, and the action of the story moves forward with the speed and smoothness of a racing airplane.

Harry Carson produced and directed this picture, as he did Mr. Flynn's other pictures. It is even better than "Speed Wild," Lefty's last release and the first in which he stepped out of his cowboy roles.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MAKE ENTRIES NOW FOR BEAUTIFUL GIRL CONTEST

The Beautiful Girl contest to be conducted on Friday afternoon September 18th, the second day of the New London county fair at the local fairgrounds is bound to prove to be one of the leading features of this years [illegible] the ten big prizes, the first a free trip to Washington with a letter to President Coolidge offering no little inducement to the girl in eastern Connecticut to enter the competition. Girls [illegible] years are eligible to compete and [illegible] until September 10th [illegible] at [illegible] Broadway.

Many other interesting features will make the time one of the best ever held [illegible] Tuesday, September 15th will be [illegible] at the fair, while the Better Baby [illegible] on Friday morning the Motor [illegible] and Float Carriage parade on Saturday morning and the decorated automobile parade in the afternoon will also prove to be great features. An unusual event this year is to be the Farm Yard Golf tournament which will be run off Saturday and prizes are to be offered to people competing [illegible] championship of the fair.

These features are in addition to the regular features of the fair which include a big automobile show, over 1 models to be exhibited big display of merchandise [illegible] merchants and manufacturers of eastern Connecticut farm and home products poultry, pet stock, [illegible] flowers, farm machinery and many other wonderful exhibits.

The usual high class program of horse racing will be seen again this year and six high class vaudeville acts will be seen free of charge. The midway attractions will also be a feature. Admission prices remain at [illegible] cents for children and 50 cents for automobiles.

Palace

Merchant Nate proved a great success at the Palace last night as he was assisted by all the performers of the bill in the manner of a chain act. A ton of coal was the feature piece followed by many other beautiful presents.

The vaudeville was of the most entertaining being an all comedy bill.

The feature act is Helene Jeska and her Tommies. Tommy Gordon the vaudeville clown was a riot. Kibbell and Dean dish out fifteen minutes of [illegible] best of the year. McMillan and Shannon, two kings of comedy [illegible] a scream. Shannon's song numbers stopping the show. Gasinetti and Muller opened the bill with a comedy novelty hat throwing and wire walking act.

Palace Theater

"Seven-Eleven," the name of a show [illegible] scheduled to appear at the Palace Theater Tuesday, September 1st, matinee and evening conjures up visions of rollicking, happy-go-lucky darkies such as delights the mind of the [illegible] patron. As a matter of fact, the show [illegible] is one of the finest examples of what the negro race has done in the matter of making progress that has been presented in recent years. However, this exhibit is not made at the expense of the rich harmony and the great comedy values present in the American negro, for the show is an excellent blending of the music for which colored folks are famed and enough natural comedy for several attractions.

The progressiveness is disclosed when one seeks to ascertain the owners of the company, only to find out that there is no such person. Heretofore, all of the leading negro attractions were presented by some more or less great theatrical magnate, and it was he who profited most by the accomplishments of the ebony artists.

"Seven-Eleven" is the first notable exception to that rule. It is a co-operative property, owned by its five principals, written by them, presenting songs composed by one among their number, and staged by yet another. All share alike in whatever profits may accrue to their efforts. It's a far cry from the day when the Freshman Brothers gave bond in Macon, Georgia, for the return of the slave boys who constituted the original Georgia Minstrels to this present day production that is entirely theirs.

The production while entirely theirs has a few white persons interested; and it may be said to the credit of these pioneers of their race, that they were not carried away by their emotions and ambitions to the extent that they failed to recognize that no man of their own race was available to man who had the business experience necessary to the handling of a big production. A few of their race had the qualifications but that few had interests of their own.

Enter is Jack Goldberg, a white man with an abundance of experience, happens to be the manager, and he [illegible] one of the advance staff of the show. These boys have been associated with negro talent a long, long time, and they knew that the "Seven-Eleven" group were serious, and that they had a real show. Jack says he has, as yet no occasion to regret the association. He declares that while he has never held any sentiments of race distinctions that the show has actually made him a partisan of the negro; and says that civilization will yet be the recipient of some great artistic achievements from the negro.

In response to the requirements of the Stage Hands Union and stage crew is also white, otherwise it is an all-colored show, and beside an unusual evening's entertainment, the show will give one something to think about that is not altogether theatrical.

Breed Theater

To appreciate all the fine things about Beauty and the Bad Man, which comes to the Breed theater today and tomorrow, you must see the picture for yourself. There is entirely too much to be said in favor of this picture for us to say it here and do it full justice. There is nothing hackneyed and stale about this delightful story which has been adapted to the screen by E. Richard Schayer from Peter B. Kyne's remarkable Cosmopolitan magazine story.

Mabel Ballin and Forrest Stanley, heading an unusually capable cast, carry the story along on a blue cloud, so to speak. The delightful story of a young girl who surmounted the obstacles which cluttered the path to a successful career, it not only written with charm and grace but is interpreted by the cast with amazing intelligence and laudable appreciation.

The locale of the story is California in the later gold rush days, a locale which apparently gave the art director an enviable amount of latitude in both indoor and outdoor sets and the effects he has achieved with both would do anybody justice. He has caught some exteriors that are as rarely beautiful as anything we have ever seen on the screen at any time, and the interiors are precisely what one would expect saloon and miners' cabins to look like back in the days when California was sparsely inhabited and none of the inhabitants went in much for decoration.

It is the story of a disillusioned young girl who ran away from home where she lived with an aunt, to marry a young organist who she believed would help her with her singing career. When a few hours after the marriage she learned the true calibre of the man she had married, she deserted him and went to a small mining town to answer an ad for a music hall singer. There she met Modoc Bill believed by the town to be a bad man, who, attracted by her voice and her beauty, offered to give her $20,000 of the $30,000 he had just won at faro, to allow her to go abroad and study.

Convinced of his good intentions and anxious to get ahead, Cassie accepted the money as a loan and left immediately for Europe. Three years later she returned to the town, a widely heralded success.

During her absence much had happened. Modoc had served a three year jail sentence for murder, and had, without knowing his identity, saved Cassie's husband from death through consumption. Upon her return the consumptive claimed the great singer as his wife and in the altercation which ensued, Hall was killed leaving Cassie free to marry Modoc whom she had not only learn to admire, but to adore as well.

It is palatable—good to eat just as it comes from the container. Can you wonder that it is really neutral in use?

The First Non-Greasy Shortening

Best Foods Shortning is different from all old-style shortenings in looks and results because it is a new idea in shortening.

It is the application of the principle of fat crystals.

What are Fat Crystals?

Fat crystals are the sweet and delicious globular crystals gathered from a pure vegetable oil by the new and exclusive Best Foods process. They are tiny, non-greasy and palatable.

That is why Best Foods Shortning is harder than other shortenings.

Why it keeps in the pantry as well as in the refrigerator—even after it is opened.

Why it does not turn rancid.

Why it can be used over and over again for frying.

And, finally, why it produces such delicious fried and baked foods, Cake Icings, Cream Fillings and Candies.

What we mean when we say "Compare with any other shortening"

When we say "Compare with any other shortening," we mean exactly what we say. Buy a can. Taste it. Compare it on any point you wish.

And if you are not pleased with Best Foods Shortning as against any other shortening, return the can to your grocer and get your money back.

Plenty of Room

There is still quite a bit of room in the world. The whole population of the world might be dropped into Lake Ontario and each person would have no less than 60 square feet to himself in which to float or swim—or sink. Even then the surface would rise only half an inch. So says A. S. Eve, a Canadian professor of physics, and he has the figures to prove it.

ON CORONER'S FINDING, TWO SAILORS ARE RELEASED AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 27.—William [illegible] and Francis Moss, sailors at the submarine base, may consider themselves fortunate that they are [illegible] the county jail instead of smuggling [illegible] at the base. They were in the automobile owned by Deits when the car was driven into a tree after coming from a curbing just [illegible] Saturday night last Sunday morning. [illegible] were out for a joy ride, and had John Hanify with them as a passenger. Hanify was thrown out of the car and against the tree, with such force as produced a fracture of the skull from which he died at Lawrence hospital. Coroner Desmond was called in the case from Norwich and after [illegible] he has been conducting an investigation into the facts attending the fatality. He reported to the prosecuting attorney today, the substance of his report being that he did not find either of the men held to be responsible for the tragedy. Moss was held as a material witness and Deits was charged with manslaughter. On the report made by the coroner, Prosecutor Hollandersky recommended that the complaint against Deits be nolled and that Moss be released from custody. The motion was allowed and the release was made at once. The men were held in jail since last Monday, and Moss was compensated at the rate of a dollar a day.

Thomas Bloomer, 75, died last night at his residence, 12 Shapley street after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Bloomer was a boilermaker by occupation. He is survived by his wife and [illegible] children.

John W. Fitzgerald, 43, formerly of [illegible] died at a hospital in [illegible] Tuesday, death following an operation for appendicitis. He was a son of the late William and Ellen Fitzgerald and is survived by a sister, Mrs. Timothy Lonergan, 58 Cedar street. Mr. Fitzgerald was a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Knights of Columbus and Loyal Order of Moose.

Mr. Fitzgerald, who was familiarly known as "Jack," was employed for a number of years in the freight service of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. He had not resided in New London for several years and was employed by a Western railroad at the time of his death.

Francis Sullivan, 50 Norwood ave- nue, reported to the police Tuesday morning that the night before, a spare tire was stolen from his automobile, while the machine was parked in front of his home. Today Sullivan visited the police station and reported that while his car was parked at the Norwood avenue residence last night another tire was stolen. Sullivan also stated that about 10 o'clock last night his mother observed the thieves, two young men, leaving the car and carrying away the tire, but the report of the theft was not made until today.

Alfred D. Clinch, 70, of New York, a summer resident at Groton Long Point, died late yesterday at Lawrence hospital, Mr. Clinch having undergone an operation earlier in the day. He is survived by his wife, a son, Herbert K. Clinch of Mount Vernon, N. Y., and by three daughters, Misses Elsie and Dorothy Clinch and Mrs. Marie [illegible] of Mount Vernon. A sister, Mrs. Ida Clinch Uhler, of Mount Vernon, also survives. Mr. Clinch was a prominent hardware dealer for many years in New York and was the originator of the formation of the Hardware Club of New York.

The Chinese population here continues to be alarmed over the possibility of the On Leong Tong society's members coming to this city and make an attempt at murder some of the Chinese restaurant or laundry workers, in spite of the fact that it is predicted that the murder scheme of Monday night in several cities had its inception in New York, will be ended and that peace will be established within a few days between the members of the Hip Sing Tong and On Leong Teng. Tonight there were several Chinese about the streets and they openly expressed the belief that the warring factions have not settled upon peace.

H. M. Davis, a chief petty officer, residing in the apartment house, 578 Bank street, reported to the police early this morning that he and Mrs. Davis had heard footsteps in the hallway leading to another apartment and later the sound of walking on the roof of the building was heard. When the police arrived at the Bank street house a short time later, Davis informed the officers that, following the sound being heard on the roof, he went to the roof, but he did not see anyone and that he believed the crooks had travelled over a fire escape and entered an apartment whose tenants are temporarily absent from the city. The officers descended the fire escape and finding a window to the apartment opened, they entered, but a diligent search of the place did not reveal anyone being there and neither was there any indication that intruders had been there.

KENYON-SHAPIRO MATTER GOES OVER TO MONDAY EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 27—The city council held a special meeting this evening at 5 o'clock to act upon the petition of Louis M. Kenyon and Samuel Shapiro for permission to alter a dwelling at 43 Jay street and build there to accommodate the business of the Mohegan Wrecking company and the Auto Parts company. These businesses are separate now, and the owners claim they have to operate in two places to do the business they need to do under one roof and in one yard.

Mayor Clark and Councilor Fox were absent, so Councilor Murray was selected to preside. Mr. Kenyon said he had purchased the property recently and desired to consolidate with the Shapiro enterprise and do the business at 43 Jay street that was now done at the establishment of himself and Shapiro. He explained that the plan was to erect the building they proposed to construct two feet back from the sidewalk line, as he had concluded that at an early date, Jay street must be widened. He was now engaged in the auto wrecking business and was forced to keep cars in the street much of the time. This would be done away with under the new arrangement.

Councilor Streeter asked Mr. Kenyon whether he proposed to keep cars in the street over night and was told that there was no such intention, as a driveway would divide the rising of the rear of the premises so there was a depth of 32½ feet or more. The matter was further discussed, when Councilor Streeter suggested that he would not vote on the granting of the petition until the council members had the opportunity to visit the premises and observe [illegible] as to be done there. Councilor Wheeler concurred in this opinion and then asked to be excused.

Councilor Scott said he was in favor of the premises. He pointed out that the several directors of law the city had employed had given an opinion that the council was without authority to prevent the owner of land from building upon it, and he, the councilor, regarded that opinion as good law. He did not want the owners of the property further inconvenienced by waiting for the council to move in the matter and referred to the stand taken by Councilor Fox at a previous meeting, namely, that the council could not prevent the erection of any building the owners saw fit to have constructed. Councilor Murray and Councilor Woodruff interrogated Mr. Kenyon, and then Councilor Streeter moved for deferring action on the matter till next Monday evening when a stated meeting of the council will be held. The motion was carried by unanimous vote.

FRAUD CHECK STRANGER HAS FLEECED MERCHANTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 27—A slick stranger has again fleeced New London merchants and business men. It became known today that a man representing himself as Edward Leets, salesman for the Wellsbach Companies, Inc., New York, had passed fraudulent checks and had purchased a considerable amount of merchandise on credit. Investigation already made, reveals that there is no such corporation in New York as that which Leets declared he represented.

Leets hired an office in the new Arthur block, corner of Green and Golden streets, but today the office was without equipment of any descriptions and all efforts to locate Leets failed.

BOY FALLS FROM TRUCK, SKULL IS FRACTURED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 27—Herman Steinberg, 14, of Springfield, Mass., temporarily residing at the Commodore Hotel, Ocean Beach, died this evening at Lawrence hospital of a fractured skull, which injury he sustained this morning when he either fell or jumped from a moving automobile.

Young Steinberg was about the beach during the early forenoon when a delivery truck owned and driven by George W. Hannan, 143 Ashcroft Road, a milk peddler, came along, the youth started to go with Hannan about the shore resort while the milk deliveries were being made and jumped to the running board. When the machine was passing through Neptune Park, Hannan looked to the side of the truck to observe the youth, but the boy was not there although he had been a few seconds before. Bringing the truck to a stop, Hannan saw the boy lying on the ground and semi-conscious. He was picked up and placed in the truck and conveyed to the hospital where he suffered a hemorrhage of the brain about 3 o'clock and expired shortly after 6 o'clock and while it was being arranged to operate upon him.

STOLEN RINGS MAILED BACK, COMING FROM HARTFORD

(Special to the Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 27—The police are of the belief that within the next 24 hours they will have taken into custody the youths who burglarized a bathhouse at Ocean Beach Sunday and robbed Mrs. Lena Shapiro, 2 Tinker court, of two diamond rings. Almost simultaneous with the quizzing of the suspected crooks at New Haven yesterday, the rings were mailed to the New London police, the jewels reaching New London this forenoon. After having been identified by Mrs. Shapiro as her property they were turned over to her. Today Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh went to New Haven at the suggestion of Captain Philip Smith, of the New Haven department, in an effort to fasten the crime upon two New Haven youths, who are suspected of having robbed Mrs. Shapiro and who are known to have been at the shore resort Sunday.

Following the robbery of the bathhouse, the local police ascertained that the two boys occupied a bathhouse adjoining that of Mrs. Shapiro and a third boy turned informer, stating that he had overheard the New Haven boys plan to rob the woman. Acting on that information a request was made of the New Haven police to interrogate the boys, whose names and addresses were known. This was done yesterday afternoon, but the youths were not placed under arrest.

This morning the parcel containing the stolen rings was received with it was a note, which read "Returning rings stolen from bathhouse, Sunday, Aug. 23." The rings were mailed in Hartford and it is the theory of the police that when the youths realized that they were suspected of having the robbery they went to Hartford and mailed the loot, a trip being made to Hartford in an effort to cover up the residence of the thieves.

NOTICE OF SALARY RISE RECEIVED 30 YEARS LATE

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug.—(AP)—Notification that he had been granted a substantial advance in salary failed to arouse Sheriff Peter Gunn of Edmonton to any unusual pitch of enthusiasm. Not that he did not appreciate the liberality of his employer but rather to the fact that he will never reap the fruit of the "increase."

The notice of his salary raise came to the sheriff in a letter from the north country written nearly 30 years ago. By some trick of fate the letter had gone astray.

It was dated January 6, 1896, and was written by Ewen Macdonald, at that time manager of the Peace River district for the Hudson's Bay company. Gunn, then comparatively young was employed at the company's post at Lesser Slave lake.

The hardy Scotchman, MacDonald, long since dead, informs Mr. Gunn in the letter that his "services have been highly satisfactory" and that as a result, he has been awarded a "magnificent" increase in English pounds sterling. Just how much the "magnificent" increase amounted to Mr. Gunn declined to divulge but it caused the sheriff to chuckle.

INCREASED SALES SHOW POPULARITY OF TRACTORS

CHICAGO, Aug. — (AP)—Tractors lead farm equipment sales throughout the first half of 1925, as shown by the Research department of the National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers, which surveyed its officials who are heads of most of the 200-odd firms making up its membership and selling through some 21,000 dealers to the farmers.

Plow and tillage tool makers report the first half of the year ahead of 1924, and the tendency towards bigger equipment to eliminate man and horse labor is more marked than at any time in the history of the tractor's development. Oliver Chilled Plow Works reports 20 per cent increase. One great company estimates its two-row cultivator business 50 per cent ahead of last year.

The American Seeding Machine company reports 33 1-3 per cent increase over 1924 in grain drill business.

The first half of 1925 has seen a 24 per cent increase over the same period last year with Fairbanks, Morse & Company on farm scales, gas engines, windmills, water supply systems and feed grinders, the reports show.

HERO OF INDIAN UPRISING HONORED IN CANADIAN PAGEANT

CALGARY, Alta., Aug. — (AP)—Daniel Davis, 70, a constable of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police 50 years ago, who lone-handed escorted 1,100 hostile Indians from Fort Walsh, near the United States border to an Indian reservation at Eagle Hills, Saskatchewan, 180 miles, [illegible] on the program of a historic pageant here this summer.

Davis joined the R. N. W. M. P. at Ottawa in 1876 and when the United States rounded up the renegade Canadian Indians he was commissioned to bring the captured to Canada. During the long trek several elderly Indians succumbed to exhaustion, but Davis delivered the band successfully.

Oyster Hatchery in Northwest

SEATTLE, Aug. — (AP)—An oyster hatchery to produce several million eggs a season is the work this summer of Professor Trevor Kincaid, in charge of the zoology department of the University of Washington.

His object is to commercialize the Japanese oyster which lays 7,000,000 eggs in a few days. Kincaid seeks to retain these eggs and develop them into oysters, though the hatching of Japanese eggs has not previously been successful in this country.

The hatchery is near Bellingham 140 miles north of here, and is one of three oyster hatcheries in the world the other two being in New York and Connecticut.

"Boys will be boys," says an old saw. Just as if they could do anything else.

Jewish Boys Taught Farming

In the national farm school a movement has been started to teach farming to Jewish boys and in that way lead some of them back to the soil. The school soon will be turning out Jewish farmers by the score. The school has been operating twenty-eight years, but only recently has it sought to draw Jewish boys from the crowded cities in the east. The farm school is at Doylestown, Pa.

Nothing furs a man like being compelled to love by contempt.

MARKET WAS ERRATIC

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Erratic price movements reflecting the play of opposing speculative forces, characterized today's stock market. The market opened heavy, quickly swung upward on large buying orders, apparently to some of the standard investment issues, turned reactionary again and closed weak when weakness dropped to some of the high priced motors issues, and then moved irregularly late in the day on a renewed bullish demonstrations in select southwestern rails, shippings, chemicals and equipments.

There were many gains and losses of points scattered throughout the list. Fears of an increase in New York federal reserve rediscount rate, which later proved to be false and repetition of commission advises urging profit taking on the industrials on the theory of so called technical position of the market had been weakened by recent advances in high priced issues, inspired rather extensive selling throughout the day.

Neither the stock, bond nor foreign exchange markets made any response to the publication of the details of the Churchill-Caillaux agreement for funding of the French debt to Britain. In view of the fact that Britain's offer is contingent upon France securing similar terms from the United States, Wall Street was not greatly enthusiastic over the agreement although the settlement itself was considered one of the most favorable of the American commissions had been.

The interest developed in the copper shares when Frisco common touched its highest level to date, and Kennecott is expected to increase dividends to 50 cents before the end of the year, ran up nearly 3 points to a high level at 101 1-4, and Utah Copper appeared in Pennsylvania to within a point of the year's high at 78 1-4. Independents made an excellent showing last month, Sears, Nine common and preferred, Pacific common and Kansas City common preferred all attained high figures for the year.

Oil specialties were mixed. U. S. Steel common closed 1-8 higher at 124. Baldwin showed a small fractional gain at 1116 3-4 after selling high as 119 7-8. American Can at 128 3-8 lower at 128 1-8 after having touched 241. Oil held firm in the face of a sharp cut of 25 cents a barrel in Pennsylvania crude prices.

Specialty speculative movements characterized the trading in motor shares, Chrysler closing five points higher at 139 1-2 after ranging between 135 1-2 and 144. Mack trucks showed a net gain of nearly 3 points at 216 1-4 and Motors yielded about a point.

Aviation, carrying in Jordan, carried that issue nearly three points to 41 7-8. Railway Signal also ticketed new high record to a record high at 89, then fell back to 350 for a net loss of eight points on the day. A run up of over six points on Steel preferred was accompanied by rumors of merger negotiations between that company and the Midvale Steel & Ordnance company. Other specialty spots included Atlantic Gulf & Company and Baldwin Locomotive.

Transfers of funds in anticipation of the month-end requirements, a supply of money on the commercial paper basis unchanged.

Movement of new high records included Texas, and Norwegian bonds, Brazilian bonds features in the foreign exchange market. British currencies ruled around 4.70 cents and $4.85 3-8, Danish kroner opened 10 points higher at 24.53 cents, high and then slipped back and 24.60 cents. Norwegian exchange moved over twenty points to 14.40 cents.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—Cross currents ruffled the surface of the bond market today but an under current of strength was evident in the late dealings. Current firmness of money rates and the circulation of the usual reports that the federal reserve rediscount rate might be increased induced recent buyers to take profits on many issues, but these were quickly supplanted in favor of investors by others which had been neglected.

Revival of agitation to terminate the St. Paul receivership as soon as possible in view of the heavy expense being incurred led to a rally in several of the road's bonds. Members of the bondholders committee held that if a reorganization were effected considerable money now being used for receivership purposes would be made available for interest. Aggressive buying of Frisco obligations celebrated the action of the road's common stock in crossing par to a new record high.

Other carrier bonds which have recently been popular with buyers, however, encountered realizing sales. These included Seaboard, Florida, Delaware and Hudson, Western & Northern, Chesapeake & Ohio, and Kansas City Southern liens, which yielded one to 3 points.

The tentative debt funding agreement between Great Britain and France failed to exert much influence on the movement of French bonds. Some of the municipal issues moved ahead but the governments obligations were only fractionally higher.

Fears that the New York bank rate might be raised, which later proved to be groundless, restricted trading in Liberty bonds and prices moved within narrow limits.

CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—Reactionary price tendencies again predominated in today's curb market with selling pressure particularly acute in the public utilities, several of which closed 2 to 5 points lower. Oils held relatively steady on the announcement of a sharp cut in mid-continent crude prices, net recessions in the active issues being held to fractions.

The outstanding individual feature was the heavy turnover of Maytag, which was admitted to trading today. The stock opened at 22, as against the present subscription price of $20 a share, sold down to 21 1-2 and then rallied to 22 5-8, closing at the top. Public offering of this issue was reported heavily oversubscribed.

Few changes of importance took place among the popular industrials. Goodyear tire, the most active, closed fractionally higher at 37 1-4. St. Regis Paper recovered part of yesterday's loss by rallying nearly two points to 77.

Liquidation of the public utilities apparently was inspired by the belief that recent advances in some of those issues had overdiscounted earnings possibilities American Light & Traction broke five points to 208 and American Power and Light, Middle West Utilities, Power Corporation of New York, Southeastern Power & Light and United Power & Light closed 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 points lower.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Aug. 27—Wheat was hammered persistently until the final hour of trading on the board of trade today but near the close an exceptionally good class of buying developed and final quotations showed substantial gains over previous closing levels. The late buying was attributed to moderately heavy sales of cash goods at favorable prices and the general expectation of a natural recovery after an extended period of depression. Closing quotations found wheat 3-8 to 1 3-4 cents net higher than the previous close. The May wheat making the greatest gains. September closed at 1.56 7-8 to 1.57 and December at 1.56 3-8 to 1.56 3-4. Corn closed unchanged to 1-2c up, September at 94 1-8 to 94 1-4; oats 1-8 to 5-8c advance and provisions at 15c loss to 25c gain.

Corn followed almost exactly in the wake of the wheat trading. Earlier in the day all deliveries of corn touched new low figures for the season, but local well known houses covered long lines of corn during the final hour and prices showed some gains at the end. Oats had a day during which the volume of business showed an increase and showed gains at the fin

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cardin of Linton, Mass., former residents of this village, were callers on friends in town Tuesday.

Peter Lukoff has returned to his home on South B street after spending several days with his cousin Stephen Patrylo of Hallville.

Fibre & Fabric, a textile journal published in Boston, Mass., has a full account of the third annual outing of Eastern Connecticut Mills Association, held at Rocky Point, R. I., Saturday, August 15th. The article has a number of personals regarding the local men who attended the Ancient Order of Yellow Dogs. This list has a great many Taftville, Occum and Versailles names. One of the interesting personals tells about William Hassler of Norwich avenue, employed at the Corbett Manufacturing Co., who "saw to it that there was nothing new to be seen at Rocky Point after he got through, going the rounds."

Miss Victoria Seraba of Occum is a member of the graduating class of St. Joseph's Hospital training school for nurses, as noted in Wednesday's Bulletin. Miss Seraba's name was omitted through error.

John Mastalez has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah company.

Mr. and Mrs. George Marthers have returned from Fisher's Island, N. Y., where they have been spending a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bibeau and family of Moosup are moving to a house on Terrace avenue.

Miss Josephine alFradis of South A street has returned from a stay of two weeks at Oakland Beach, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Celino are to build a new home in Lisbon.

After a week's vacation, Nelson Boulay of the Ponemah house has returned to his work.

Lewis Sowerbutts who has been spending the past two weeks in the village, has left town.

The [illegible] of the tent caterpillar is causing farmers of this vicinity some trouble. Early in the spring, it was seen that the nests of the caterpillar were [illegible] than they had been in the previous year. MAYOR WATERS AWARDS TROPHIES AT LAKE STREET PLAYGROUNDS

The 1925 playground season made its final bow Thursday evening at the Lake street recreation center. Thursday night's programme was in the form of a final exhibition by the children of the various play centers.

From 6.30 p. m. on, Lake street was the destination of all playground devotees. An interesting program was the drawing card. Prior to the opening exhibition the mass physical drill, the spectators were eagerly anticipating the forthcoming list of events.

As a suitable opening number Superintendent Earl E. Brigham chose a mass physical drill for all playgrounds under the direction of Charles Sage. Mr. Sage during the past summer season has officiated as special instructor in calesthenics along with his other duties. Thursday night's skilled exhibition ably testified to his ability in this line of endeavor.

Greeneville's splendid showing in the physical drill, won for them the promised 50 prize points and the possession of the handsome pennant for the greatest number of points accumulated during the 1925 season. The winning score was 350 as compared with the Falls, 310.

The second event on the program was a daintily executed interpretation of the art of folk dancing. The rhythm grace and dainty poise more than proved that Instructor Taft's work had borne fruit.

Athletics had a prominent place on Thursday evening's program. In boxing matches Lake St., held the central ring; Greeneville the ring on the left and Elizabeth had a roped off area on the right of the main ring. The boxing exhibitions furnished plenty of amusement.

Not to be outshone by the exhibitions of the boys the girl athletes from the three larger play-centers put on a most interesting program, which included field hockey and dodge ball.

In the exhibition volleyball contests spectators had an excellent opportunity to compare relative value of participants from various grounds. The chance was offered as there were three exhibitions being contested simultaneously.

As a special added attraction Johnny Dosh, midget athlete from the Falls was seen in a clever little gymnastic act of his own. A generous round of applause greeted his contribution to the evening's entertainment.

Ed Sullivan's uke band intervened proceedings with a few selections. Each number was excellently rendered and well received.

A midget relay race completed the evening's athletic entertainment.

The speaker of the evening was Father John Reilly of St. Patrick's parish this city. Father Reilly's talk held much in the way of common sense appreciation of the playground movement. Throughout his entire discourse he emphasized the value of organized juvenile play.

Chairman William Fitzgerald of the city recreation commission, presented Mayor Milo Waters in a few well chosen words. While distributing the prizes cups and trophies, Mayor Waters complimented each winning school with a generous word of commendation.

Greeneville received a handsome loving cup as emblematic of the swimming championship. Mayor Waters was the generous donor of this trophy. To Lake St., went the silver cup for the championship in field hockey, straddle ball and dodge ball. To Madden's Cigar Store can be attributed this kind donation. For supremacy on the cinder path and field, Jack's Sport Shop offered a suitable loving cup, which was awarded to Matt Sheridan's Elizabeth Street aggregation.

By trimming Greeneville, "National League" baseball champs, the Falls, leaders of the "American League" won the title playground world series champs and the possession of a cup given by the Alling Rubber Co. The Warriors, champs of the junior twilight league, won permanent possession of a beautiful bronze trophy donated by Jack's Sport Shop. Mayor Waters made the final award, the grand commission's banner for the playground having the greatest point total, to the Greeneville grounds. This splendid banner will make fine display as it is run up the Greeneville's flagstaff.

The commission through Supt. Earl E. Brigham extended a vote of thanks to Mr. Davis and John Donovan for their assistance at the evening's entertainment by erecting the grandstand. The Italian band rendered an excellent program a closing feature of the playground exhibition.

The past summer's successful season promises even greater success in coming years.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES AT FRANKLIN ST. PARK

The Evangelistic services at Franklin Street park are still being carried on. Last Wednesday evening Rev. J. H. Graham of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church spoke in English and was followed by Rev. V. Panizzoli who in Italian explaining the pictures of the life of the Apostle Paul. Friday night (tonight) Rev. Bailey of Norwichtown will speak.

PLAN TO ORGANIZE DANTE'S CULTURAL CLUB

Plans are underway to organize Dante's Cultural Club among the progressive Italians of the city.

The aim of the club is to perpetuate the love for truth, freedom and knowledge which were the highest characteristics of the poet.

chards are being attacked by this pest. A walk through the woods surrounding the town, will show the worms on every wild cherry tree that remains alive, and they have also begun to attack other shrubs and trees. In the village, the lilac bushes and elm trees seem to be the favorite homes of the pests. Burning the nests with gasoline torches, etc., does not seem to be a very effective plan, as many of the worms drop to the ground and make their way back to the tree to continue their destructive work. Sprays, directions for which can be obtained at the state agricultural colleges, appear to be the most suitable way of ridding the trees of the caterpillars. It is believed that if they continue to increase as they have in the past few years, the state or federal government will have [illegible] to prevent it, as they are doing in the case of the gypsy moth.

[illegible] Lafleury has resigned his position with the Ponemah company.

Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, pastor of the Taftville Congregational church, who has been spending his vacation at N. E. Margaree, Nova Scotia, will return to his home on North Third avenue next week.

Miss Madeline Stazenski is enjoying a week's vacations.

TELEPHONE CALLS SHOW INCREASE IN STATE

Telephone calls in Connecticut and especially toll calls show increases over the average telephone traffic during the hot spells, according to the records of the Southern New England Telephone Company. A high average of toll calls is maintained throughout the summer months and the local calls increase materially as the thermometer ascends, all of which means that the telephone operator has her busiest summer hours on days when the heat makes her work least pleasant.

To vacationists is attributed chiefly the high average of toll calls during the summer months. Connecticut's shore resorts and country resting places draw large crowds of vacationists every summer both from Connecticut cities and from cities in neighboring states. Most of these people find it necessary at some time during their vacations to make telephone calls to their offices or to their homes and in this way the toll traffic is increased.

The tendency of the local telephone calls to follow a rise in the mercury is caused chiefly by the desire of city dwellers to reach the shore resorts. It is usually necessary for the family to notify its head of such a trip and for this the telephone is used. Arrangements for picnic and swimming parties are usually completed over the wires. Probably the greatest booster of local calls on hot days, however, is the business man who instead of risking exhaustion by traveling from place to place to make his daily calls, sits down at his desk and does his business by telephone.

HOME AFTER AUTO TRIP TO MONTREAL

Joseph B. Downes, and George Smith, have returned after a weeks vacation spent over the Mohawk trail thence to Montreal coming back through New York state over the Catskill mountain and Storm King road. They traveled through six states, had excellent weather and a very enjoyable trip.

PASQUALE MONTESSI AND YACHT HE MADE WITH JACK-KNIFE

Pasquale Montaesswi, of No. 3 West Thames street is this week proudly exhibiting to his many friends a five foot yacht, complete in every detail, which he made himself, painstakingly constructing it piece by piece with aid of a jack knife. It took Mr. Montessi two years to construct the yacht which is a wonderful piece of handiwork.

The keel is 59 1-2 inches long and the total length is 81 inches. The deck measures 18 inches across at its widest point the stern 9 1-2 inches and the bow 3 1-4 inches. The masts are five feet high and the measurement from bowsprit to stern is eight feet.

Mr. Montessi is well known in Norwich, having come here 32 years ago from Farro, Italy. He is 61 years of age and worked on ships for five years when a youth. Mr. Montessi stated that any one interested in the model can see it by calling at his home.

COLCHESTER MAN SEEKS DAMAGES OF $10,000 FOR LOSS OF HIS HAND

William Karpenier of Colchester has brought suit for $10,000 damages against Nathan Manchik of Colchester, for the loss of his hand. The defendant conducts a bakery in Colchester and the plaintiff was employed by him. According to the complaint on March 2, last, the plaintiff was directed by the defendant to remove some dough from the mixing machine in the bakery.

While Karpenier was removing the dough the machine was set in motion and caught his hand. The hand was so badly mutilated that it was necessary to amputate it, at the wrist. The complaint alleges that the mixing machine was out of order in that the starting lever was liable to slip in and the plaintiff alleges that the condition of the mixing machine was known to the defendant.

5,000,000 FEET OF TROLLEY IN CONN. SYSTEMS

More than five million feet of copper wire are necessary to carry the electric current which operates trolley cars over the 1,000 miles or more of street railway track in Connecticut. Eight hundred miles of wire are used to operate the cars of the Connecticut Co. alone. While all the equipment used by the trolley companies in this state is most essential, perhaps the most necessary equipment is the wire, for when a break in the wire occurs, all service over the line must cease.

The overhead wire system of the trolley companies in Connecticut is extremely heavy, since the wire weighs about .4 of a pound per foot. This would make the total weight of trolley wire in Connecticut approximately 1,000 tons. Not only are the copper strands heavy, but they are expensive, each pound costing sixteen and a half cents. It is estimated that the cost of the trolley wire in this state was about $34,848,000, exclusive of the cost of erecting the wire and keeping it in good condition. The cost of the Connecticut Company's overhead system is estimated at $27,878,400.

Even with the 1,000 miles or more of trolley wire, breaks in this state occur on an average of only once a day. About 65 per cent of the breaks are caused by defects in the wire itself usually caused by the ageing of the metal. About 20 per cent of the breaks result from trolley poles flying off the wire. The average life of trolley wire is eight years, which means that the companies must replace about one-eighth of the wire on their system every year in order to prevent unnecessary breaks.

While trolley wire is usually referred to as "copper" it usually contains several other metals used in small quantities to strengthen the fibres. The wire must have strength, high conductivity, and must be capable of expanding and contracting according to the weather without endangering its strength.

Conn. Men to Attend.

Connecticut water company executives will meet with those from the other New England states at the annual convention of the New England Water Works Association, which this year will be held from September 8 to 11 aboard the Steamship Richelieu on the Saguenay and St. Lawrence Rivers.

At this convention it is expected that Connecticut will be highly honored by having Theodore L. Bristol of the Ansonia Water Company elected as president of the New England Association. Mr. Bristol has been nominated for the office and water works men throughout the New England states are favorable to his election. Mr. Bristol recently retired as president of the Connecticut association after establishing a fine record.

General improvement of water works will be the key-note of the discussions on the various phases of the water supply industry will take place aboard the ship on each day of the convention and new ideas concerning each will be exchanged for the benefit of the industry and the public in general. Among the important topics to be given wide consideration will be the filtration and purification of drinking water, which includes the care and upkeep of reservoirs and their watersheds. C. M. Saville, manager and chief engineer of the Hartford board of water commissioners, will be among the Connecticut men who will talk at the convention.

ELECTRICAL MEN TO MEET AT EASTERN POINT

Connecticut, this year, will play host at the convention of the New England division of the National Electric Light association, which will be attended by practically all of the executives of the electric companies in Connecticut and the other New England states. The convention will take place at the Hotel Griswold in New London, beginning Tuesday, September 8 and continuing through September 10. The three day program will be featured by addresses by Governor John H. Trumbull and J. E. Davidson, president of the N. E. L. A.

The convention will open on Tuesday evening with a general session and on Wednesday morning will gather in a commercial session at which Samuel Ferguson of the Hartford Electric Light Company and C. L. Campbell and A. V. S. Lindsley of the Connecticut Light and Power Company will speak. On Wednesday evening, the commercial discussion will continue with addresses on several features of the electrical industry.

On Tuesday, the convention will turn its attention to the technical side of the industry and on Thursday evening will close with a session on public relations. Speakers from all parts of the country will take part in the various sessions.

The convention is annually one of the important events of the year in the electrical industry in New England. The officials of the various companies join together with the object of improving their industry generally by the exchange of data on various subjects which are vital not only to electrical men, but to the customers of the companies.

PARKING SPACE FOR NORWICH LEGION MEN

Word was received by John A. Cunningham, chairman of the On to New London Committee, of Robert O. Fletcher Post No. 4, American Legion, that all local members desiring to participate in the big legion parade, Saturday, would find parking space on the campus of the Saltonstall school, about a block from the state armory. In writing this information, Col. H. S. Dorsey, general chairman of the convention arrangements announced that legion members should get in touch with Patrick Corcoran at the New London state armory and he will see that parking space is provided. The campus will be policed during the parade to ensure safe parking of the cars of visiting legion members.

Evening service will open at seven o'clock. The principal speaker of the evening is to be Rev. Horatio Chase, pastor of the Montauk Avenue Baptist church, New London.

Following a stay of two weeks at Niantic, George F. Hyde and his sister, Miss Jessie E. Hyde are to return today (Friday) to their home on Washington street.

Several from Norwich Town were included in the large attendance at the 65th Wigwam of the Mohegan Indians Wednesday and Thursday at the little church on the hill. Some attended both days to enjoy the delicious food prepared by the Indian cooks. Many acquaintances were renewed and in one instance two met clasped hands who had not met before in forty-nine years. These were Ralph H. Gallup of Stonington road and Dr. Charles H. Lamb, of Town street, both graduates of Mystic Valley Institute, conducted by the late Professor John K. Buckley, a graduate of Brown university. This reunion also involved a third person, Frank Brewster, who resides with his sister, Mrs. Benjamin F. Lewis, of Cliff street, Norwich, also a graduate of the same institute in advance of the other two, who were classmates.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alble Hale of Lathrop avenue, were Mr. George Button, of Hartford and Mr. and Mrs. T. Parker Lathrop (Cora W. Hale) and daughter, Alice, of New Haven. Mrs. Lathrop is granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hale.

Mr. and Mrs. Albie Hale recently returned from a visit to their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Hale, of Ellington, formerly Norwich residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight L. Underwood of Pecks Corner, have been entertaining for several days their cousin Miss Amy Lillibridge, of Providence who returned home Thursday.

A business meeting of the Drop-in Class of the First Congregational church was held Wednesday afternoon at the parsonage. This brought out many interesting things to be accomplished by the class. Plans were formulated for a cafeteria supper, and it is also the aim of the class to raise money enough from time to time, to have a hardwood floor laid in the chapel parlor.

Mr. and Mrs. Erroll Lillibridge of Scotland road are entertaining for a few weeks, Mrs. Anna Goodhue, of Washington, D. C.

MINERS AND OPERATORS TO PROTECT THEIR INTERESTS

They Have Agreed Upon Terms Under Which 10,000 Maintenance Men Will Not Be Subject to the Suspension Order—Pact Will Safeguard the Property For the Owners and Keep the Mines Occupational For the Miners—Order Stands For Suspension of Mining September 1.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28—Anthracite operators and miners, after a forty-four hour deadlock today, agreed on terms under which 10,000 firemen, engineers, electricians, pumpmen and other maintenance men will remain on duty in the mines during the suspension which the union has sought ordered for September 1.

Union leaders at once mailed a supplemental suspension order to the 325 mines in the region which are rallying points for the 158,000 men involved in the walkout.

Meanwhile the mine owners developed another hostile reaction from the miners by issuing a statement of its own policy which, according to the miners, called for a "contract in perpetuity and the sliding scale." Their statement to hand was expressed as follows:

"The joint conference announcement was in the course of a meeting at the headquarters of the anthracite operators' conference here at which operators' scale committee conducted a counting of its stewards' meeting during the recent negotiations to representatives of 115 coal companies. The report was presented by W. W. Inglis, president of the Glen Alden Coal company and chairman of the committee, and stated in part:

"A review of the present situation and conditions strongly recommends that the operators maintain a firm stand for arbitration of the present differences to prevent a recurrence of interruptions such as the one about to start.

"It believes that any settlement finally should be of a permanent basis and provide for a readjustment of the wage scale from time to time, to meet prices for our product that will permit it to move freely in competition with other fuels.

"As to the final outcome of the present controversy the miners won a pledge from the owners on one point, where regular maintenance men are available, their places would not be filled by others.

"On the controversial issue of 'check off' the two sides at last came together in what appeared to be a compromise, namely, that normal collections continuing during past suspensions should be made the basis for adjustment of this matter in the agreement effective Monday midnight.

"Both sides had agreed without a strike from the outset that in event of any wage adjustments in a new contract this year these should be made retroactive to Sept. 1 for maintenance employes."

The miners claimed no "victory" in the terms of the maintenance settlement and preferred to describe it as "just" and as "an improved situation." The agreement put the wages on a "contract basis for the first time in anthracite history," it was announced.

While open hopes for the coming conference were received the finishing touches here today, their effects began to manifest themselves in the upstate anthracite region at large.

Governor Pinchot, who settled the 1923 suspension on the basis of 10 per cent wage increase for the men, kept his lips sealed.

Miners had already begun to remove their tois from the pits, according to advices from various centers. Mine supply firms began to cut down forces. Hazelton, Pa., reported that the Lehigh valley railroad there was preparing to lay off crews handling coal shipments and that the road would close down its shops and engine houses at Delano in Schuylkill county, during the suspension. Company shops at Baltimore would be affected if the suspension was protracted, it was reported.

Wilkes-Barre advised that mine mules would be brought to the surface in various mines in district 1, largest of the three districts. This was taken there to indicate belief that the suspension would last some time.

In Shamokin, headquarters of district 9, however it was announced that mules would be left underground as long the suspension would be "short."

The citizens "no strike" committee of Wilkes-Barre headed by John H. Uhl, tobacco manufacturer, continued to function undaunted by its failure to bring the operators and miners together.

Mayor Daniel F. Hart of Wilkes Barre, on the other hand, came out in favor of a single peacemaker to reconcile the union and the owners, and nominated for the post F. M. Kirby, vice-president of the Lehigh Valley railroad.

Mayor Hart said he had received assurance that Mr. Kirby would be acceptable to miners, operators and the public.

Many contract miners throughout the region will quite work tomorrow, having "blown down" as much coal as their laborers can clean up behind them.

"NO STRIKE" COMMITTEE DISBANDS ORGANIZATION

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 28.—(AP)—The anthracite region business men's "no strike" committee formally disbanded its organization at a meeting here tonight. Hope of averting a suspension of anthracite miners on September 1 was definitely abandoned by the citizen-mediators, they declared in a formal statement.

The committee reviewed its activities in its final statement and concluded by saying: "It is the judgment of this committee that further efforts on our part at this time will not prevent a suspension or result in a renewal of negotiations. Accordingly we submit the foregoing statements of the mine workers' representatives and the operators' committee for the thoughtful consideration of the public.

Truce of Tongsmen Extended Till Monday

Both Tongs Have Agreed to Abide by Decision to Be Made at That Time by Arbitrators.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28—Delegations representing the rival Chinese tongs which were involved in the bloody flareup Tuesday and Wednesday, met today in the office of Assistant District Attorney Pecora to discuss peace terms, an armistice is in effect pending the outcome of the conference which was continued from Wednesday.

Five members of the Hip Sing Tong and an equal number of the On Leong Tong comprised the delegations.

The outcome of the meeting was that District Attorney Banton and the chairman of the Chinese Benevolent Society were appointed to act as arbitrators whose decision in the matter will be final.

The truce was extended until next Monday afternoon when the arbitrators will meet to consider an existing treaty between the tongs which the On Leongs maintain has been violated by the Hip Sings.

Mr. Banton and the Chinese peacemaker at that time will decide whether there has been any actual violation and if it is found there has will decide on what action must be taken by the offender to make amends. Both tongs agreed at today's meeting to abide by the decision of the arbitrators.

The tong war was caused, Mr. Pecora said, by the objection of the On Leongs to alleged unfair methods used by the other organization in taking away its members, and also to the invasion by the Hip Sings of territory which has been conceded to be under On Leong jurisdiction, notably Boston.

Having arrived at the basis for truce the assistant district attorney general was confident a formal treaty would be arranged.

Germany Accepts Proposal of France

Sanctions Meeting of German, Belgian and French Jurists as a Preliminary Measure.

PARIS, Aug. 28—(A. P.)—In a 200 word note the German government places itself on record as accepting the proposal of France, made in behalf of the allies in the negotiations for a security pact guaranteeing Germany's western frontiers, that the first step should be a meeting of German, Belgian, French and British jurists at the earliest possible date.

The communication, the text of which was made public today, is in direct reply to the French note delivered into German hands early in the week. It is written in a friendly tone and says Germany agrees with the allies that the time for exchanging notes has passed.

CHARGES AGAINST MASTER AND ENGINEER OF MACKINAC

Federal Government Charges That Master McVay and Chief Engineer Grant Were Negligent—Both Ordered to Trial Sept 2, in Providence Before Board of Steamboat Inspectors For the District of Providence.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(A. P.)—The federal government's investigation of the explosion aboard the Mackinac off Newport, August 18 which caused fifty-two deaths, resulted today in charges of negligence being placed by the commerce department's steamboat inspection service against George W. McVay, master of the vessel, and John A. Grant, its chief engineer.

The two officers were ordered to trial September 2 before a board of local steamboat inspectors for the District of Providence, Rhode Island. If convicted, they face revocation of their licenses as navigators, any action against them under criminal laws being in the hands of the state authorities.

The Mackinac, bound for Newport, left Pawtucket, early in the morning of August 18 with a capacity excursion crowd aboard. After spending the day at Newport, it had progressed a few miles on its return trip when the boiler burst, enveloping the vessel in a haze of live steam. Nearby vessels immediately went to the rescue, and the injured were taken to nearby hospitals, including that at the Naval Training Station, which took a large part in the work of rescue.

Specifically, McVay was charged in today's report with causing the vessel to be moved from its safe mooring at Pawtucket, knowing that it's boilers were in an unsafe condition. The charge against Grant was that he allowed the boilers or the ship to become unsafe, this condition resulting in rupture of the forward boiler, "thereby causing loss of life to passengers and crew."

PLAN OF PAYMENT TO STATE OF TAX ON PICTURE FILMS

HARTFORD, Aug. 28—(A. P.)—Final arrangements for the payment to the state of the tax on motion picture films by the distributors were made today at a conference in New Haven between Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett and representatives of the motion picture industry. Agreements were also entered into whereby theatre owners of the state will reimburse the distributors for all tax payments made on films.

No increases in prices of admissions are anticipated by theatre owners because of the tax payments. The new arrangement is also expected to allow continued performances in all theatres, at least during the life of present contracts with the producing companies.

Under the agreement, Tax Commissioner Blodgett said following the conference, the distributors will pay the tax on all films which have been shown in the state up to the present since the law went into effect on July 8, as soon as the amounts can be determined from reports of operators and a check up to be made by Special Agent John J. Splain.

State registration of all future shipments of films will be made at the Boston and New York distributing agencies. The tax on these will be paid from records kept at these offices by the companies which will be checked up by another special agent appointed today by the commissioner.

GREAT BRITAIN TO RESUME RELATIONS WITH MEXICO

LONDON, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The foreign office announced tonight the intention of the British government to resume "full official diplomatic relations" with Mexico. The following statement was issued:

"His majesty's government, after a satisfactory exchange of views in regard to the outstanding differences with the Mexican government, have decided on the procedure for a renewal of full official diplomatic relations, and diplomatic representatives will be nominated forthwith.

"Mr. Norman King, British consul general in Mexico City, is to be appointed charge d'affaires pending the appointment of a minister."

Great Britain and Mexico have been without diplomatic relations of any kind since June, 1924, when the British Charge d'Affairs H. S. Cunard Cummins, was ordered expelled by the Mexican government and recalled by Premier MacDonald. Full diplomatic relations between the two countries, however, have not existed for more than ten years since the British government refused to recognize either Carranza or the Obregon governments.

Cummins' expulsion followed friction which lasted for some time, finally culminating after his intervention to support Mrs. Rosalie Evans, a British subject, who later was assassinated on her Mexican ranch. Since his departure the American embassy has taken care of British affairs in Mexico.

PRESIDENTIAL PARTY VISITS PLYMOUTH, MASS.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Taking advantage of ideal weather for cruising on his yacht President Coolidge today visited historic Plymouth, Mass., where the pilgrims landed and, before returning to the summer white house, motored from Plymouth to Cohasset for luncheon with C. W. Barron, publisher of the Wall Street Journal.

On the way he stopped at the grave of Daniel Webster near Marshfield.

When the Mayflower anchored in Marblehead harbor late in the day on the return trip, the president, who spent last night on the ship, came ashore for an over-night rest at White Court before going to Camp Devens tomorrow to witness the final review of the Citizens' Military Training Camp. His son John is a corporal in the camp.

On his trip today, the president was accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary and Mrs. Saunders, Colonel A. S. Cheney, his military aide, and Maj. James F. Coupal, his physician.

MRS. WOODROW WILSON WITHOUT ACCOMMODATIONS

GENEVA, Aug. 28—Although she has leased the famous Chateau Barbioloni, for the month of September, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, is in danger of not possessing a place to live when she reaches Geneva next week. The present occupants of the chateau insist on remaining until November 15, maintaining they are entitled to do so under their lease, and efforts by the agents to induce them to leave the premises have thus far failed.

Knowing that it is the wish of Mrs. Wilson to follow the proceedings of the league assembly next month, because of the part played by President Wilson in establishing the league, her friends here are working desperately to secure hotel accommodations for her. Up to the present they have not succeeded as everything in Geneva was reserved weeks ago.

DEM. MAYORALTY CAMPAIGN IN NEW YORK IS SEETHING

NEW YORK, Aug. 28—(A. P.)—Governor Smith and Senator James J. Walker, Tammany designee for mayor, today left the Brooklyn battlefield to the Republicans and pushed on to the borough of Queens, the second of the three Hylan strongholds.

Following close behind the governor came D. Waterman and John I. Lyons rivals for the republican nomination for mayor, held meetings in Brooklyn.

The democratic battle took on added bitterness today as the result of the governor's verbal broadside at Mayor Hylan last night, a counter-blast from the city hall today, and more activities of snipers on both sides.

Most characterizing the governor's Brooklyn speech as "unpleasant and vitriolic," Mayor Hylan proceeded to blast Arnold Rothstein, reputed gambler, and Thomas L. Chadbourne, municipal counsel attorney, as the men who "sold Tammany hall, in its choice of Senator Walker, as democratic candidate.

"I suppose it is impossible to 'lay the ghost' from telling falsehoods," replied George W. Olvany, Tammany leader. "But I'm going to try," this time.

He denied the accusation flatly, saying that he would not know either Rothstein or Chadbourne if he met them on the street.

Mayor Hylan's perennial enemy, Controller Craig, today hurried the battle to the charge that he has withdrawn city funds from a large bank in order to coerce labor men into supporting him.

He said that $250,000 yielding 3 per cent interest was secretly withdrawn from the Federation Bank, of which Peter J. Brady, is president, and deposited at 2 per cent in the Chase National bank, which Mr. Craig calls "the cradle of the B. M. T."

The B. M. T. he said was reorganized "at a meeting held at the Chase National bank and the bank financed the reorganization. Gerhard M. Dahl . . . has frequently been named by Mayor Hylan as a moving spirit behind the 'conspiracy' of 'traction interests to take over,' is a director of the bank, Mr. Craig said.

The mayor's supporters today were outwardly indifferent about the governor's entrance into the mayoralty fight.

"The much expected eruption in Brooklyn has happened and brought forth a mouse," said Commissioner of Accounts Hirschfield in a letter to the mayor.

The Smith speech, he said, was full of "misstatements and misstatements and pure bunk, bunk and bunk from beginning to end."

Senator Walker in his Queens speech tonight claimed that through his work in the legislature, he and not the mayor preserved the five-cent fare for New Yorkers.

"Tammany's first victory over the mayor was scored today when in a drawing made at the board of elections first place on the primary ballot went to the Walker-Berry-McKee ticket. Mr. Lyons won first place among the republican candidates, with William M. Bennett second and Mr. Waterman third.

TWO GANGSTERS SHOT TO DEATH IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 28—Irving Schling, "the flying bootlegger," and Harry Boman, west side gangsters, were found shot to death near Ashburn field, the air harbor of the Illinois aero club, early today. Each had been shot through the back of the head.

Schling's automobile, riddled with bullets and stained with blood was found later partly submerged in a West Park lagoon, miles away. The police tonight were working on the theory that the slayers took their victims "for a ride" in Schling's car, killed them, tossed their bodies from the machine and drove the car into the lagoon to hide the crime.

Schling had been reported to be making airplane deliveries of liquor from Canada by airplane and the police theory was that he and his companion had been shot by rival liquor dealers or as the result of a controversy in connection with a half million dollar safe blowing at the Parkway Hotel here several months ago in which the police suspect he was implicated.

SHENANDOAH A FEATURE OF CONN. STATE FAIR

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 28—(A. P.)—Through the efforts of United States Senator Hiram Bingham, Connecticut will be given an opportunity of seeing the navy dirigible Shenandoah and probably several big naval seaplanes at the Connecticut state fair in Hartford next month.

Sometime ago, Senator Bingham wrote to the secretary of the navy requesting that the Shenandoah and seaplanes be sent to this state to take part in the Governors' day program at the state fair. The senator announced tonight that he had received a reply from the chief of the bureau of aeronautics stating that the Shenandoah had been directed to make a flight over Connecticut and over the state fair grounds on Governors' day. It is probable, the senator said, that several of the larger seaplanes will accompany the Shenandoah.

SKELETONS OF JAPANESE SACRIFICE VICTIMS FOUND

TOKYO, Aug. 28 (AP) Considerable interest is attached to the recent discovery of a few dozen skeletons of the so-called Human Pillars" in an old one in Gifu, in the past age it was believed that human beings were buried alive under the cornerstone of great structures, the gods would grant permanent strength and solidity to the foundations. And in addition, those who had sacrificed themselves would be immortal. It was considered that those chosen as "Human Pillars" were greatly honored. They were buried alive in a standing position.

The most traditional instance of the "Human Pillars" recorded in Japan goes back to the reign of Emperor Nintoku more than 1,000 years ago. The Yodo river at Osaka, where the emperor had his palace, used to overflow each year, drowning many people and causing much damage. Every time built by the best engineers was unable to withstand the floods. One night the emperor dreamed that the gods had advised him if he would use human bodies as pillars for the construction of the embankment, there would be no more flood troubles. The story has it that the emperor caused human beings to be buried alive beneath the foundation stones of the dike and since then, the embankment has withstood all floods.

PRENTICE W. CHASE RELEASED ON $500 BOND

MIDDLETOWN, Aug. 28.—(A. P.)—Prentice W. Chase, New Haven attorney who was bound over for the superior court on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses and drawing a check on a bank where he had no funds, was released from jail today under bonds furnished by Jonathan N. Rowe, of New Haven. Bail which had been set at $1,000, was reduced to $500.

REBEL RIFFIANS ARE PREPARING FOR DEFENSE

TETUAN, Spanish Morocco, Aug. 28—Abd-el-Krim, chieftain of the rebel riffians, is making feverish preparations to resist the impending Franco-Spanish offensive and is building fortifications in the Beni Uruguel region and the mountainous central district of the Riff, it is reported in Spanish circles here.

MISS C. G. WILCOX WEDS PRINCE DI MONTECALVO

MADISON, Conn., Aug. 28—Constance Grenelle Wilcox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Augustus Wilcox, of New York, and Madison, and Prince Guido Pignatelli di Montecalvo, son of Generale Pompeo Del Dubbi di Montecalvo and Princess Helene Narischkin Pignatelli, of Napics, Italy, were married this afternoon in the garden of Oakledge, the summer home of the bride's parents here.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. T. Mathison of Clinton, formerly arch deacon of Hartford, and Rev. Charles L. Biggs, of Guilford. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Ethel Clinton Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Urquhart Wilcox, of Buffalo and Madison, as maid of honor, and her bridesmaids were Miss Esther Pugh, of Overbrook, Pa., Miss Mary Hale Harts, of Washington, D. C., and her cousins, Miss Marion Bull of New York, and Miss Margaret Platt, of Scranton, Pa., and Madison. Her flower girls were Olive Hicks and Anna Goddard and the pages were Madeline Goddard and Joe M. Hotchkiss.

The best man was Prince Pietro Lanze di Scalea, of Italy, minister of Italian colonies in Rome, who was officially represented by the Royal Italian Consul, Commendatore Axerior. The second best man was Arthur Noe of New York.

The bride's gift to her bridesmaids were monogramed vanity cases.

The bride's travelling costume was of tan and brown cloth with hat to match.

MACMILLAN ARCTIC PARTY RUNS INTO GOOD WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The MacMillan Arctic expedition southward bound after a severe struggle with the elements in the far north has run into unexpectedly good weather.

Melville Bay, where it had been feared that ice and fog again would delay the progress of the two exploring ships, has been found free of serious obstacles and the Peary which is leading expected by tonight to reach Umanak, on Disco Island.

The favorable turn of the weather has encouraged the National Geographic Society and the navy, sponsors of the expedition, to hope that exceptionally valuable work may be done in explorations in Greenland and Labrador.

The belief here has been that the Peary, which carries the navy planes, might keep on her southward course ahead of the Bowdoin, her companion ship, but officials have had no definite word of such a plan. They now are inclined to believe that with favorable weather, the Peary will stay at least long enough to permit some airplane flights, although even if she does so she may come south ahead of the Bowdoin.

British Shipping to the amount of 262,000 tons is now lying idle in Australian ports, due to the seamen's strike.

EXAMS FOR APPOINTMENT TO WEST POINT ACADEMY

HARTFORD, Aug. 28—Three candidates for appointment to the United States military academy at West Point from the National Guard have been allocated to Connecticut, this year, Adjutant General George M. Cole announced today. Preliminary examinations will be given all candidates to determine the necessary qualifications. November 1 to 10 by a board appointed by General Cole. The members of the board have not yet been named but it is probable that they will be same members who have served on previous examining boards for a number of years.

To be eligible for appointment from the National Guard, an applicant must be an enlisted man of a unit recognized by the federal government. He must, at the date of admission to the academy, be between the ages of 19 and 22 years, and have served in the National Guard as an enlisted man, for not less than one year. It is not essential that such service shall have been continuous: former service may be counted in determining an applicant's eligibility.

Following the preliminary examination given in Hartford, the three highest ranking candidates will be authorized to report at West Point to take the regular entrance examination beginning the first Tuesday in March. This final examination is competitive, the allotted number from the National Guard receiving the highest rank will be appointed to cadetships in the military academy.

The appointments resulting from these examinations are made by the president of the United States and are distinct from those made from states at large and congressional districts by Senators and congressman.

Preliminary examinations are similar to the regular entrance examinations and consist of questions in English grammar, English literature, history, algebra and plane geometry. Previous examining boards have been composed of General Cole, President Remsen B. Ogilby, of Trinity college, Professor Edward F. Humphrey, of Trinity and Joshua L. Robbins, of the Hartford high school.

SOFT COAL MEN PLANNING TO INVADE NEW ENGLAND

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Soft coal producers of central Pennsylvania, Maryland and northern West Virginia took steps here today to profit by the approaching troubles of anthracite producers, and also to protect themselves against new freight rates favorable to competitors in West Virginia non-union fileds.

Anticipating the opportunity the Anthracite suspension September 1 presented to producers of hard coal substitutes, the soft coal men laid plans to invade New England and middle Atlantic states at once to the tune of 5,000,000 tons of prepared stove sizes a month. Anthracite men, in commenting upon the proposed drive, asserted that New England already possessed some soft coal in storage for a considerable time.

The conference represented an annual production of 100,000,000 tons. It was announced by Charles O'Neill, secretary of the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers' Association. Mr. O'Neill said the soft coal to be shipped into the anthracite-consuming territory was of low volatile quality, known as "smokeless," and could be delivered at an average cost to the eastern householder of $8 a ton.

This afternoon the producers were in close session with experts of various coal-bearing railroads to discuss defensive measures against what they called the incrimination of interstate commerce commission had shun in favor of their West Virginia rivals. Adjournment was taken until next Wednesday at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel here while delegates returned to their respective districts for further instructions.

The meeting was particularly concerned with the commission's cut, effective October 15, in rates on West Virginia smokeless coal to New England and North Atlantic seaboard points by way of the Chesapeake & & Ohio, Norfolk & Western and the Virginian railroads.

The new schedules it was said, would give 2,000,000 tons of West Virginia coal a month access to these markets. This was deemed unnecessary because this coal would travel 225 to 460 miles more than coal from existing supply areas. Round trips of coal cars on the extra distance would tie up twice the present time, it was said.

A committee of 15 was appointed to direct further action.

GAVE $1,000 FOR SOMETHING SHE DIDN'T RECEIVE

STAMFORD, Aug. 28.—(A. P.)—Martha Johnson, negress, of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., reported to police here today that she had given $1,000 to George Lee, negro, in payment for something she didn't receive, and that Lee had vanished. She first told police that she gave Lee the money when she paid him for a rug. Later she changed her story and said that she had given Lee the money as payment on her share of "valuables amounting to $5,000. Lee and another man found on the street," while she was talking to them.

POSTAL WORKERS HAVE CONCLUDED CONVENTIONS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 28—National postal week, the first of its kind, ended today when five national associations of postal workers concluded their conventions by electing officers and selecting Philadelphia for next year's meeting place. Six other organizations closed their sessions Wednesday.

No definite action was taken on the proposal of the national association of post office clerks to merge all postal employes into one federatin.

A resolution requesting congress to take all postal offices including postmaster out of politics by making promotion from the ranks under civil service, was approved by the national association of postmasters.

MISSING REGISTERED MAIL HAS BEEN FOUND

CHICAGO, Aug. 28—(A. P.)—A package of registered air mail directed to San Francisco and lost en route west from here, was dropped by mistake at Salt Lake city, postoffice inspectors announced this afternoon. The package contained only ordinary registered mail and was not valuable. The inspectors traced the mistake to a clerk in the Chicago office.

WILLIMANTIC

Recovering from a three months' slump which followed the strike of some two thousand operatives of the American Thread Company, business at the local postoffice has taken a turn and is now headed back to a healthy average. The drop became so acute, immediately following the strike, that one of the nine letter carriers was dropped back to the substitute list temporary. The nine city routes were re-districted and covered by eight men. July 1st, however, brought about a change and the waning tide of business was checked. The increase, which is largely due to the incoming of many families within the past two months to work at the thread company plant, has reached a point making it necessary to re-establish the nine city routes and replace Carrier William Geer as a regular.

On request, the letter carriers took a survey of the number of empty tenements in the city and found that but very few tenements that are of any desirability are vacant. Most of those unoccupied are attic and basement rents. While the depression was on Postmaster Walter R. King allowed two carriers and two clerks to take their vacations simultaneously. At present but one clerk and one carrier are given leave of absence at one time. Arthur Leblond, clerk and Norman Paltz, carrier are now on vacations. Clarence C. Palmer and Orland P. Smith start their vacations next week.

The Putnam and Willimantic country club golf teams which met in a match game on the local links Thursday afternoon were the largest total to ever engage in a game in the golfing history of this city. The match closed victoriously for the Thread City players, 50 1-2 to 33 1-2. Twenty-eight players participated in the match for each team. Nine of the locals were defeated by their opponents. In the Comings-Alexander and Nichols-Wheaton contests the golfers received an even break. The scores: Dow Ahern 0. Lizotte 3. John F. Ahern 1. J. A. Gagne 2. Louis H. Arnold 2 1-2, O. White 1-2 G. The kitchen and dining hall of Andover town hall are being repaired and altered so that better accomodations might be given to guests at the many public suppers held there. The walls and ceiling of the main hall have been covered with Upson board, under the direction of Raymond G. Halstead. A new arch has been built in front of the stage and the platform proper has been altered, with added conveniences for the production of plays. New fixtures and electric lights are being installed.

An illuminated shadow dance and entertainment at Lakeside Casino, South Coventry Lake, Friday night, was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyed. The fund received through the dance is to be applied to the payment of legal fees incurred by the Lake Wangumbaug Protective Association in successfully fighting against a measure prohibiting bathing in the lake. The hall was opened at eight o'clock with dancing to music by the Lakeside Orchestra. The entertainment was presented by a group of artists, most of whom are members of the summer colony at the lake. On the program were: Overholtz and T. Young, Bert and Betsy Lee the Young Sisters, Miss Lorraine Turner and Miss rBown, George Hinkel, the Geraldis the Mathieu twins, Elsie Travers and McGrath and Deeds.

Disappointment at Kaplan's display of fighting ability and the general opinion that Babe Herman was given a raw deal, when the referee was influenced by a whirlwind finish of the Silver City lad and called the go a draw, were expected by about one hundred local fight fans, who attended the match in Waterbury Thursday night. That Jack Dempsey's California protege should have been given the decision over the present featherweight champion was what was declared by all those querried Friday. Further than this Kaplan's son.

John Brady, who was picked up by constable Wilbur G. Stevens after he had begged for food from several residences in the village and then trampled it in his hands was released from the local police station Saturday forenoon on condition that he continue on his way to New York where he claimed he resided. DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

It is not yet definitely known just how this town will be affected by the controversy over the new tax law on motion picture films. The issue in question is far from decided and exhibitors, both in this city and elsewhere, do not know whether they will be forced to curtail their shows or can keep them running as in the past. Officials of the Orpheum Theatre have kept in close touch with the situation and have bookings for some time ahead, so that it is not probable that the play-house will be closed very soon. The distributors of the films have reached the limit of the extension of time given them for the payment of the new tax and have decided to leave the state, rather than pay it further. No films will be shipped to them to Connecticut until the matter has been definitely settled, and even if they did send films in, the tax to theatre owners would have to pay would make the showing of the pictures at the old scale of prices impossible. In the event that this happens, Danielson like many other places in the state would be deprived of one of their chief forms of entertainment. The public is unanimous in the opinion that the tax and the establishment of the censorship is highly unjust and impractical. The owners of the Orpheum will probably cooperate with any plan followed by the majority of managers in the state. It is natural, desired that the film be settled as soon as possible as the outlook at the present is none too good. A smaller tax might be imposed that would not make it necessary to purchase the showing of films and still make revenue for the state but so far no one has suggested a remedy. The only thing left is the fine going public to do wait and the means of movies have thoroughly fought out the measure.

Merchants were busily engaged on getting the stage set for the Dollar Day. From the advance some exceptional bargains are offered that are sure to attract attention and put the day over in fine shape. The chamber of commerce through its Dollar committee has obtained additional space for outsiders at the armory, School street, and the Grammar School grounds, all with police protection.

There is to be a band concert at Wildwood Park Sunday afternoon.

DRIVER WHO RAN DOWN CAR HAD LIQUOR IN MACHINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 28—In an accident early Friday morning at the Crapachet Four Corners, an Essex touring car owned and driven by Jerome Keech was run into by a Ford coupe driven by Thomas E. Burke, of Harrisville, R. I. The Danielson machine was coming from Riverside and the Ford was going toward Providence. Mr. Keech foresaw the crash and swung his car sharply and applied his brakes to avoid it. The Rhode Island machine struck his in front and glanced off into a tree. Both cars were badly damaged. The accident was investigated by the Rhode Island State Police and they placed Burke under arrest. Burke and companion were alleged to be intoxicated and the companion was also arrested. Burke was found to have liquor in his car and the specific charges preferred against him are for the possession and transportation of, and being under the influence of liquor. He was badly cut and is now in the Rhode Island hospital. He was unable to appear in court and is under the surveillance of a police officer. In the car of Mr. Keech were his sister Helen, his brother Leta and a friend, Elbertus Briggs of Moosup. Leta Keach has a cut forehead sustained when the Essex was swung to avoid the crash, and a fracture of the jaw. Miss Helen received a bad cut over the eye, the two men were practically uninjured. Mr. Keech was thrown forward through the windshield and broke it, but miraculously escaped being hurt. Let Keech was taken to the Rhode Island hospital in Providence. In session of the court in Cranston Friday morning the companion of Burke was found guilty of intoxication. He was fined and then released.

WOOLEN CO. CLAIM ALLOWED AGAINST FIRST NAT. BANK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 28—It was announced today that the claim of the Putnam Woolen Company against the First National bank of Putnam, now in the hands of a receiver, had been allowed. The claim amounts to $41,377, cash value of bonds which disappeared at the time the bank closed its doors. The claim was refused when first filed and J. E. Carpenter, attorney for the Putnam Woolen company, brought suit in the federal courts. The U. S. Comptroller of the Currency has directed that the first ruling be reversed and the plaintiff in the case will share the claim, as any other creditor. Dividends amounting to 55 per cent have already been paid by the receiver. There are other suits pending against the First National bank to the amount of more than $100,000, which similar claims are made that bonds or other securities entrusted to the bank for safekeeping, or for investment purposes could not be found among the assets of the bank and they were disallowed.

TOPIC OF COVERED BRIDGE IS UNDER DISCUSSION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 28—Older residents are practically agreed that there never was an overhead bridge over the Quinebaug river at Pomfret street; that the only covered bridge that ever spanned the Quinebaug in Putnam was the one on Providence street which was swept away by high water.

George W. Dexter, who is past ninety, says that there has been no covered bridge there within his memory. Charles H. Brown is positive that there has been none since 1834, and in a letter from Major A. I. Moriarty is a statement that the one built about 1868, to which Mrs. J. B. Kent refers and which was torn down in 1881 was not covered, nor was the one now being used. Ansel Buchaman who says that he can remember back 70 years or to 1855, is equally sure that there has been no bridge with a roof during that period.

Judge David Flag is also of the opinion now that the covered bridge he had in mind was the one in the northern part of the city.

Bayles' history of Windham county states that the first bridge over the Quinebaug at this point was built in 1722 by Captain John Sabin of Pomfret. There have been some opinions expressed that this date should read 1822 instead of "1722," others believe that "1722" is correct; that in early Colonial times, long before the Revolution, what is now Pomfret street was part of the main highway between New York and Boston, and that a bridge was necessary in order to cross the Quinebaug; that, as stated in Bayles history, there were seasons of the years when the river was not fordable.

Charles H. Brown mentioned another fact in connection with the bridge that was the predecessor of the one built in 1881, that the grade of the street and the level of the bridge had been raised at least six feet at the time of its construction. "There was a much more decided dip to the roadway at this point" he said "and coasting down Pomfret street to the bridge from either direction was great sport."

The board of selectmen in 1881 when the bridge was built that is now being demolished was composed of John Carpenter, father of J. Richard Carpenter, Lemanson Herndeen and Edward Mullan. They served as selectmen in 1881 and 1882.

Major Moriarty's letter is as follows:

Fort Rodman, New Bedford, Mass. As I am at a safe distance from Putnam, I may be allowed to tell the story of the bridges as I remember them.

I remember very distinctly the old bridge which Mrs. J. B. Kent says was taken down in 1868. It was very old and weather beaten, and, if it had ever been painted, no trace of paint was visible when I was a small boy. I strongly suspect that it was the original bridge, that was erected about the year 1800, by Benjamin Aspinwall and others and about which Miss Larned writes in her history of Windham county.

The bridge which replaced this old structure and which remained in position until 1881 was not a covered bridge, but was similar to the long bridge which crossed the river at Bridge street and which was removed a few years ago. The Long Bridge was built about 1874, at about the time that the present municipal building was finished. This building as everybody knows was Putnam's original High School building and the Long Bridge was built largely for the convenience of High school scholars who lived on the east side of the town.

There was a covered bridge over the Quinebaug at Providence street but this was washed away in a spring freshet about forty years ago. Perhaps Judge Flagg and Mr. Rafferty have this bridge on mind when they say that the bridge at Pomfret street was covered.

THE STATE TRADE SCHOOL HAS HAD A BUSY YEAR

(Special to the Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 28—At the opening of the regular school year in September, the State Trade School will have closed its busiest summer in many years, both from the standpoint of pupils enrolled and from the standard of projects consummated. A new Whitcomb-Blasdell planer, the latest type, has been added to the machine department equipment. This planer will perform operations on steel or castings from very small sizes up to 24" x 24" x 6 ft. in length. In this department thought is given to a consistent training enabling the student upon graduation to be conversant and familiar with operations and general practice employed in the tool department of modern manufacturing plants. The school is receiving inquiries for graduates of this course from various companies in Connecticut.

The Textile department has its new Draper Automatic Loom operating on a high grade of cloth being made especially for shirtings. It is the aim of the school to produce a piece of cloth equally as good as can be produced by the mills and to this end the boys' training, from the selection of material and through the various processes to completion must be watched closely in order that the proper quality of materials and preparation shall show correct workmanship in the finished product. Very important, and closely related to the actual performance of the various projects in cotton manufacturing is the necessity for sufficient and suitable training in academic subjects as they apply to the trade.

Calculations such as Draft, Twist and Tension are necessary in the preparatory processes. These subjects are taken up directly on the job and in conjunction with a specific problem, as well as in class room work. Study of cloth analysis and design are given concurrently with the problems involved in determining the type of weave, qualities of material and set up of looms. It is ever the aim to tie up as closely as possible the academic subject and the commercial requirement in one unit of accomplishment. An excellent course offered in this department is the High School Co-operative. The Russell Manufacturing Co. of Middletown have employed several graduates of this course and are anxious to secure more young men with this type of training with the ultimate aim of working them into supervisory positions.

The Electrical Department has ac- complished considerable work, both in class room instruction and outside projects during the year. A considerable amount of electric wiring for power installation has been done for the Putnam Co. in its new plants. Work in this department includes many phases of practical electrical application from battery repair to motor rewinding. All academic subjects in this department have been correlated so as to tend directly toward supplying the student with the knowledge necessary in mathematics, drawings, and technical information to enable him to handle this job.

Carpentry Department work this year has been particularly interesting as it involved a house building contract. All plans, drawings for all new equipment, and projects are taken up in the drafting room and executed by the boys who are staying the trade to which it applies. From present indications, the number of applications on hand and inquiries or instruction, the school will have the largest enrollment in its history, this year. The increase in student enrollment in the past three years has been such that it will be extremely difficult for any further expansion without additional space. It is the desire of the school management and the policy of its instructional force to render the largest possible service to the youth who applies at its doors for instruction.

SETTLING THE DEBTS.

Arrangements for settling war debts are gradually being made. One by one the number is being reduced. There has been some delay but the good effects of other settlements seem to be influencing those who have not arranged payments.

It was impossible that the terms arranged between France and Great Britain should go unnoticed by others. France was a large borrower and owes billions to this country as does Great Britain. In its settlement with the British the United States accepted the rate of interest a year for the period of two per cent. Those terms have been accepted by each with the exception that the United States reserve the right to make changes in case France makes any different terms with this country. It would seem to be a case where terms were being made to bring influence to bear upon the French negotiations by the United States, but Great Britain has been making its settlements according to its own ideas and there is no reason to suppose that it has not done so.

The basis upon which other terms have been arranged and it is to be expected that the same consideration will be given to the remaining cases.

It will be remembered that there was a move made by Great Britain some time ago concerning cancellation of debts and a step in that direction if this government would join it. Perhaps the fact of the low interest rate with which the terms are lower than the terms between this country and Great Britain is another evidence of what was made it clear that it was opposed to cancel debts but it for the best interest should be paid, but is ready to hear and that is what is to the French commission to carry on the negotiations for debt funding this fall.

INSPECTING IMMIGRANTS.

Secretary Davis of the department of labor has just returned from a visit to Europe and during that time he made a point to look into the operation of the plan whereby immigrants are examined at the ports of departure instead of waiting until they reach these shores. He was doing this while Immigration Commissioner Curran at New York was refusing his opinion to the idea and claiming that the introduction of the plan in the British and Irish Free State ports was showing partiality to certain people, and it is to be noted that after his investigation of this new inspection work he is convinced that it is an excellent move. In addition he has found that it impresses the representatives of other government in the same way if we are to judge by the fact that they have made inquiries with a view to having similar service extended to those of their countries who are contemplating coming to this country.

There is no disposition on the part of this government, and there can be none on the part of the people, to overcome the immigration laws which has been set up for the purpose of meeting conditions which require them. The inspection abroad is not for the purpose of making it easier for the immigrant to get by the inspectors. Such relief as is intended for them comes in the reduction of the hardships of crossing the ocean and then being turned back for failure to pass when it is just as possible to determine the physical and mental qualifications on the other side. Such also relieves the congestion and delays in our immigration stations.

Fears are held that such inspection would be subject to foreign influences. If the inspectors are trustworthy they can be expected to do their work as well in one place as another. If they are crooks they will be just as dangerous while engaged in their work at New York as any port in Europe. If the system is found to develop laxity it can be ended, but it ought not be subjected to adverse snap judgment without being a fair trial.

WRETCHED JUDGMENT

According to his own testimony, and it was testimony that he volunteered, the chief engineer of the Mackinac shoulders the responsibility for the explosion on that craft which caused the loss of more than 50 lives. He knew of the existence of pin holes and he knew that the workmen from a boiler factory, called to make repairs could not do so because of the moisture and yet he decided to take the chance of making the trip and getting back without harm to the hundreds of human beings the vessel was transporting.

It is impossible to look upon his act as other than the worst of judgment. He was apparently giving consideration to the operators of the vessels and possibly to the disappointment of those who had planned on the day's outing. But he failed to give very serious thought to the safety of those he knew he was going to carry. From such testimony as has been received the responsibility seems to be centered in the chief engineer. He is at least shouldering it up to the present. He will not fail to get credit for his admissions but it is impossible to overlook the effects of his judgment. Others who have traveled on that boat may well reflect on what judgment stood between them and eternity.

In the transportation of passengers too much care cannot be exercised in providing for safety. Reliance is placed upon the judgment of the officials in charge of such a vessel. Their duty extends to the passengers as well as the operators of a steamboat and when they fail to meet it it can be expected that other agents will step in and apply the penalty. Such will not bring back the dead but it should have its good influences in preventing other disasters of that character.

MOST OF THEM GET CAUGHT.

Without any question there are many who are inspired to crime by what seems to have been the success of others in this very direction. However much it may seem that crime can be committed and the perpetrators temporarily escape it is invariably true that they are caught and in some measure made to pay the penalty for their actions.

The case of the Los Angeles dentist is an illustration of this. He conceived the idea of killing his wife for the apparent purpose of getting control of her wealth. He knew he could commit the crime and he figured that he was so clever that he could escape detection. His scheme was put into operation and for a time he must have been satisfied with the manner in which he had covered up his tricks and acts. But he gave himself too much credit. There came the time when suspicion was directed to him so strongly that he could not escape. The body was found and circumstances were being dovetailed in such a manner that he realized that he would be convicted. He recognized there was no hope. He knew he was guilty and rather than permit the trial to go further and himself to go through the tortuous experiences of living over his crime he decided to end it all by his own hands. He thus passed judgment upon himself. His act was a confession.

He knew before he took his wife's life what the penalty was. He had hoped and believed that he could dodge it. It is common among criminals to give themselves a higher rating than others for cleverness and yet at some critical point them slip up. Much crime is committed but sooner or later most of those responsible get caught. The California dentist knew what he deserved.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Most men are more or less acquainted with the strategy of baseball. Strategy marks the playing of all excellent games. It is science far more than mere bull strength that gets the victory. A novice watching the game wonders why that undersized apparently weak fellow gets so much applause. When he steps up to bat he doesn't swat the ball hard enough to make all the bases. Sometimes he makes a sickly little bunt that gets him out at first, but three men have shifted bases, and the crowd just yells. Now that sickly little bunt at the right time, and putting the ball in the right place, is good baseball. The little fellow has sacrificed. The highest type of living is the sacrificial. The person who ignores any personal gain just to do a big thigg for somebody else is playing the game true to form. It is as true now as when uttered by the Nazarene, "He that loseth his life for my sake," or for my people, "shall find it." This world would be bigger and better if there were more sacrifice hits.

Does it not seem like a travesty on justice when a man gets off with a comparatively light sentence who has been convicted of driving a car under the influence of liquor? That the man should expose his own life recklessly is bad enough, but he does it deliberately with his eyes wide open, and consequently is not entitled to a tithe of the sympathy that is due to the other fellow who is his victim and an innocent sufferer. There is one thing, and one thing only, that will lessen this menace, and that is to give the guilty party such a stiff jail sentence that he will not be inclined to repeat the offence for some time. In fact make it so stiff that even the craving for bootleg whisky will have fully worked out of his system. Merely to fine a man for this offence is playing with fire.

Hearty endorsement ought to be given to any act on the part of public officials who invent or apply workable devices to safeguard the lives or the health of the people. If they put us at times to a little, petty annoyance, let us remember the good they are intended to do, and think nothing of our little inconvenience. For instance, the latest device for protecting the general public from automobile accidents by tagging all machines that are found to be in any way defective ought to receive the highest commendation. With the number of machines now in use the danger is great enough when all of them are in prime condition. The danger naturally increases just in proportion as they get out of repair. Many a car can run long after it has become a veritable death trap, not only to the man himself but to the other fellow whom he is constantly meeting on the road. Fortunately this act will put many an old rattle-box out of commission.

The other day a friend loaned the writer a booklet to read by an author who is a master of a lively, epigrammatic style. Among other things he has this to say: "The Marne seems like a far-away dream. Von Hindenburg is a ghost of a buried past. Chateau-Thierry and the Argonne are places of forgotten history." This statement seems open to a considerable difference of opinion. It may seem to many who made no sacrifices during the World war that "the Marne seems like a far-away dream." But to the poor widow who lost her only son at the Marne it is anything but a "far-away dream." The dodger and deserter may have recollection of the Argonne but the brave lad who has but one arm finds that it not "a place of forgotten history." Von Hindenburg is quite a tangible ghost as president of the republic. The ex-kaiser is the real ghost.

Perhaps the greatest name produced by the World war was Ferdinand Foch. France knew him as her greatest strategist before the war. But the world did not appreciate the greatness of his moral stamina until his American tour. In his visit to us a side of his character was revealed that was unknown before—at least in this country. Like most of his countrymen, Foch was not a total abstainer, and it was suppose that when he came here he would have with him a large supply of wines and choice liquors. But he did not bring a drop, nor arranged to have any provided for him. In reply to a question asked by a reporter regarding this matter, he said: "I am the guest of the American people and they have gone on record as disapproving of the drink habit. Not a drop will I drink as long as I enjoy their bounteous hospitality." We say that war brutalizes, and we are right, but here was a great commander who could make the finest of moral judgments, and in so doing he pleased his own country as well as ours.

A month has passed since the death of William Jennings Bryan, and we note greater sanity of judgment concerning him than at the time of his sudden passing. The headline space devoted to him and his life work has gone, but more recent things said about him in editorials and monthly magazines are more in accord with the man as he really was. Whatever may be the final estimate of him, he certainly had the faculty of keeping in the limelight more than any other public man in the last 30 years. Ever since his famous "Cross of Gold" speech, which won for him his first presidential nomination in 1896, until the hour of his sudden death he was a stalwart defender of what he thought was right. It may be that he loved popularity, but no one can say that he sacrificed any principle to gain it. His real place in history is by the side of the Old Testament prophets.

During the vacation period a certain man and his wife, who had labored hard and saved, put a part of that money into a trip to Europe. Hardly had the great steamer docked at Liverpool when news reached them that a near relative had suddenly died and they knew that a large fortune awaited them. They made all possible haste to get back to America. The incident reminds us of one of the sayings of Henry Ward Beecher—a name that America will never forget. This is what Mr. Beecher said: "If a child is in a foreign land, and receives intelligence that some relative has died and left him great treasures, how he hies back to his native country! And what does he care for the danger, or sickness, or discomfort of the voyage? He is on his way home, and the more he is withstood, the more he presses forward. We are on our journey home. Our Father's house awaits our coming. Its honors, amenities, and dear delights are ours. And not one thing withstands us that we may not overcome."

It is easy to say that the world is growing better or worse because there are so many viewpoints of observation. Is it growing better or worse? That depends on what you are looking at, and how you look at it. Whatever answer you make you will be right. Take for instance the attitude of the dogmatist and the scientist. It is not hard to see why the dogmatist thinks that civilization is going straight to destruction. His view of the Bible has been largely rejected. Dogma has been made secondary in importance. The awfulness of doom does not seem to trouble people as it did once. Hence (to him) the world is growing worse.

On the other hand the world is growing better from the scientific standpoint. How much has been done in recent years to curb disease and to exterminate many! What wonderful things have been done along educational lines!

SURVEY PROMISES RECORD PROSPERITY IN FALL.

A golden era of unprecedented business prosperity throughout the United States is confidently predicted in a thorough canvass of American newspaper executives just completed and published by the Editor and Publisher.

Under the caption "Greatest Autumn business in history forecast by advertising men," the magazine submits without editorial comment messages from 35 newspaper executives, representing as many leading cities in the United States and Canada, all looking forward to and preparing for a mighty boom everywhere this fall.

From the north, east, south or west the optimistic chorus is the same. Georgia reports the best crops in 25 years; Tennessee and Louisiana the greatest building program in their history; Kansas City, sharp advances in the prices of live stock and grain; New York city, general retail prosperity; Philadelphia, phenomenal industrial activity; Florida, a veritable flood of gold, and St. Paul, general increased purchasing power throughout the northwest.

Steel Industry Recovering

In this tuneful chorus of onrushing prosperity there is but a single discordant note—the steel industry—and that is improving rapidly. Pittsburgh alone of all the cities indicated a slight depression, but it was pointed out that the steel industry always suffers in the summer and Kay Barr of the Pittsburg Press declared business has already started to recover from that seasonal slump.

Summarizing the reports of the newspaper officials, the Editor and Publisher cites these reasons for the assurance of increased prosperity: good crops with prospect of good prices, funds everywhere now free of debt, record-breaking bank clearings, tremendous activity in all lines of building activity, revival of mining in inactive centers, virtually no unemployment, general confidence of retail merchants and unusually early beginning of fall national advertising schedules.

Some Highly Enthused

Some of the messages of the Editor and Publisher were highly enthusiastic. "Increase over last year of 16 per cent in clearing of checks for the twelfth Federal reserve district through the Kansas City Federal Reserve bank is the most definite indication of general business throughout this territory," A. F. Seested of the Kansas City Star reported. H. Doorly of the Omaha World-Herald says a "conservative surveys" shows fall business in Omaha this year will "far exceed that of 1924 in all lines."

Prospects for "a huge corn crop" and a feeling of optimism among farmers are already showing beneficial effects on business conditions in Iowa, according to the Des Moines Capital, while Peoria, Ill., reports not only having smashed its building record during the month of July but declares all industries are increasing forces in preparation for exceptional fall business.

Although using conservative language, the Milwaukee Journal assures good business for its district. But the Cleveland Press asserts bank clearings in Cleveland for the first seven months of this year show an increase of more than $700,000,000 over the same period of 1924. Detroit reports sharp falling off in the number of unemployed and Aberdeen, S. Dak., mentioning fair wheat crops, announces retail trade has already increased over last year. St. Paul says: "High prices for grain indicate increased purchasing power in the northwest," and adds, "the corn crop is the biggest in history," while "other crops are normal." The New York Times thinks "it is evident retail business is enjoying genprosperity," and Boston declares conditions in the textile trades are good while agriculture is above normal. Philadelphia, one of the nation's big manufacturing centers, says advance orders are coming in already, and most of them for immediate delivery.

Bank Clearings Heavy

Buffalo, Wilmington, Del.; Paterson, N. J.; Birmingham, ...; Miami, Fla.; and New Orleans are equally optimistic. Atlanta, Ga., reported that its bank clearings for July were $52,000,000 greater than at the same time last year. Virginia declares "the harvest prosperity has been greatly improved" and "the cotton outlook is now excellent." Nashville, Tenn., broke all records in the matter of building permits and real estate transfers this year.

"Prosperity for Kentucky is indicated by the crop and business conditions," says the Louisville Herald-Post. Little Rock predicts "a bumper cotton crop, estimated to be 236,000 bales larger than ever before" for Arkansas. From distant Portland, Ore., the Portland Oregonian reports the utmost optimism, while Spokane, Wash., is in the midst of harvesting one of the three richest and most profitable crops in the history of the state of Washington. Tacoma, Wash., reports that its industrial establishments have almost doubled in number since 1924.

Prosperity "Cutting New Teeth"

From Denver, Col., comes word that "prosperity is cutting a new tooth in the Rocky Mountain states" with a marked revival in mining, discovery of new oil wells and good crops. Fort Worth, Tex., says trade conditions are "exceptionally good" with prospects for a "splendid" cotton crop. Although San Antonio says its section has been through the worst drought in many years farmers there had previously enjoyed unusual prosperity and the loss of crops has had little effect on business.

Montreal declares that "the province of Quebec field crops for 1925 show an increase of $50,000,000 over 1924" and the minister of agriculture is credited with predicting the value of the crop in that province will reach a total of $200,000,000. The Winnipeg Free Press predicts that western Canada will harvest better than an average crop "over its whole vast area."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Come and let us reason together saith the Lord

Mr. Editor: I like a discussion either vocal or written if the contestants are reasonable, so read many of the letters. A few days ago Mr. Troland took J. N. Eno to task for his evolution beliefs, thinking perhaps, as the church people did years ago, Can any good come out of Yale (Nazareth) because his address was New Haven. But he was graduated from the good old fundamental Rhode Island school, Brown.

Then today comes Mr. Boardman looking for the missing ling to throw at Mr. Troland. While it is true that the church has always been the crucifier of Christ (just as the politicians are the worst menace to a government) yet we are probably better off with such a church or government than with none. When the church people vote to release Jesus Christ and crown him politically then righteousness will exalt the nation that does it. Just as Belshazzer after he had tried all the wise men, the astrologers, astronomers, geologists, anthrologists and embryologists, with no avail, then he sent for a man that had the spirit of God, and the missing link was supplied, Jesus, the man said if any body is doing good forbid them not. He was a liberalist. We can't all see the same thing because we can't all stand in the same place. If we don't believe the other fellow we ought to get nearer his viewpoint before we dispute and if he don't believe us invite him nearer. We need all the truth that all of us can get because the truth makes free. Righteousness first and all else shall be added.

No Missing Links in Our Story

Mr. Editor: It amounts to a precept with this writer, never to put all he knows into one letter, but in each one to rake up what he cuts, (using an adage from the farm). In plainer words he proves his statement as he proceeds. Our readers give us credit for this. We have no quarrel with science. It is doing many needful and useful services for mankind; what we have to say is that evolution, as a solution of the universe is yet lame and inadequate. It suggests propositions which it fails to explain or verify, and which in the nature things are often impossible of verification.

Instead of giving us a simpler story than we have in Genesis, it gives us more complex ,intricate, and less believable theories than we now have, and asks us to discard the old for this. Many yield readily to what is new, but we demur.

Evolution does not yet explain the emergence of the chick from the egg, nor the oak from the acorn, much less shows us which comes first the egg or the hen, the acorn or the oak.

Genesis does not equivocate here, it tells us plainly, God said, "Let the waters bring forth the moving creature that hath life, and let fowl fly above the earth in the open firmament.

Furthermore, it is added that this took place, and that God blessed them saying, "Be fruitful and multiply and fill the waters in the seas, and let fowl multiply in the earth." As there is no hurry indicated in this, we willingly grant nature a chance and time to multiply its species. What we claim, and what evolution must admit and allow is, the operation of the great first cause.

Until science can produce life by spontaneous or forced artificial generation, we rightfully object to excluding the Creator from his own universe—or inviting him to abdicate in favor of unproved hypotheses. Science asks for time, can we allow Him time, who inhabiteth eternity, and to whom a thousand years are as one day, or as yesterday when it is past?

About Prof. Darwin's Origin of Species, Professor Tyndall expressed himself exactly as we did in our previous letter. Mr. Tyndall says "Mr. Darwin comes at length to one primordial form; but he does not say, so far as I remember how he supposes this form to have been introduced."

It is evident that this scientist himself was equally muddled here, and as he says, so we, Evolution needs the creative act, the first form, upon which to begin its later achievements.

Stories That Recall Others

Doing Nicely Without It.

Mary and Jimmie were preparing for bed one evening and dad was in the next room dressing for the evening, when he heard a fragment of their conversation which caused him to eavesdrop a little.

"Mary," said Jimmie, "you haven't said your prayers and you're in bed."

"Uh, huh," returned Mary, "and I didn't say it last night or the night before. I'm not gonna say it tonight, and if I get along all right, I'm never gonna say it any more."

A Fire Expert.

About 30 years ago a farmer boy living outside the city went to a big city in another state to work and obtained lodging in the center of that city. On the second evening after his arrival he noticed a fire bursting through the roof of a house across the street. Having remembered passing an engine house in the course of his wanderings he started on a run for it. On his arrival he found the firemen playing cards. "You men," he said, "had better quit playing cards and do your duty. There's a fire down where I live and you oughtn't be playing cards when there's a fire.

"It's right down that way and you better take some ladders because it's a two story house," said the informer.

Convinced that the boy was in earnest the firemen sprang to action and demanded to know where it was.

That boy is today one of the star arson investigators of the fire marshal's office in that state.

Sunday Morning Talk

The Bible.

The Bible is a structure planned and wrought out in the mind of a divine Architect, who, through the ages, superintended His own workmen and work. Moses laid the foundation, not knowing who should build after him or what form the structure should assume. Workmen after workman followed; he might see that there was agreement with what went before, but he could not foresee that what should come after would be only the carryingout of the grand plan. You read in the first of Genesis of the first chapter: In the last of Revelation, of the new creation—the new heavens and the new earth; there of, the rivers that watered the garden, there, of the pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, there, of the tree of Life in the first Eden; here of the Tree of Life which is in the midst of the Paradise of God.

It s because of the exalted moral and spiritual character of the Bible that it has successfully resisted the assaults of years! It is too strong in itself and in its hold on the hearts of the people, to be overthrown, as well attempt to demolish Gibraltar or to root up by hand one of the cedars of Lebanon. The Bible is too high to be successfully assaulted, as Dr. Breckenridge said, "as well attempt to plant your shoulder against the burning wheel of the midday sun, and roll it back into night." Some may say if the Bible is such a wonderful book, why does not the sceptical find it out. A man may look into the Bible with an eye open only to objectionable features. The unconverted man loves objections, as the condemned man at court is glad to detect a flaw in the agreement which is directed against him, though the flaw may not at all affect his guilt or the real conclusiveness of the testimony. A mind disposed to scepticism opens the word, if at all, not to find moral beauty, but to hunt for something on which to hang a new objection; and hence, most infidels never read the Bible, but take their objections at second hand.

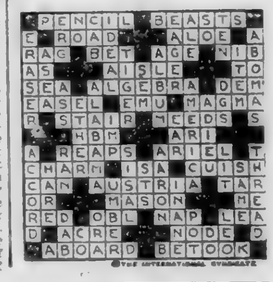
The Bible works moral revolutions in character. Find any other book that has wrought such wonders. Men have studied natural philosophy, astronomy, botany, geology, and histories and poems, inspiring noble aims, moving one to be a truer son, better husband, kinder father? But somehow, from the day men begin systematically to read the Bible, they begin to be sensible of a new power at work in mind and heart, working most of all for righteousness. We have seen men of no secular culture grow grand under the educating influence of this book—their minds expanding under the influence of its elevating, ennobling, inspiring influence. We have seen them grow to beauty of character and conduct, sweetness of temper and disposition, transformed transfigured.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robinson, who has been assigned to succeed Admiral Coontz as commander-in-chief of the United States fleet comes from Pennsylvania and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in the same class with Curtis D. Wilbur, new Secretary of the Navy. After leaving Annapolis he served through ten successive grades until he attained the rank of rear admiral in 1918. During the war with Spain he served as a lieutenant on the Boston. Later tours of duty included shore assignments with various naval bureaus and sea service as commander of the South Carolina and other ships. He also has served as commandmant of the Boston Navy Yard, as military governor of Santo Domingo and as a member of the General Board of the Navy. At present Admiral Robinson is second in command of the United States fleet.

WILHELMINA LISTED AS "MODEST DRESSER"

Queen Wilhelmina is strongly opposed to extravagant modern fashions for women and, like the Pope in the Vatican, she does not tolerate frivolous attire in her palace. The ladies of the diplomatic corps graciously conform to this royal wish and scrupulously avoid exaggeration in dressing. The simplicity of Queen Wilhelmina does not, however, mean that she has a dislike of all modern fashions. She submits quite willingly to some of fashioon's decrees, but she has a strong antipathy to low neck, sleeveless and too-abbreviated frocks. She sets a splendid example of the simply but stylishly dressed lady, and her ideas about woman's apparel have been accepted by Dutch society.



BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Goes Up to See the Wrens

Before you believe quite all you hear
Investigate and have it clear.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit couldn't get over the news that Carol the Meadow Lark had brought to the dear old Briar-patch. Peter had long been fond of Jenny and Mr. Wren. There was no one he welcomed back more heartily and joyously in the spring. He just couldn't believe that the rumor that Jenny and Mr. Wren had destroyed the eggs of some of their neighbors could be true. He didn't want to believe it and he wouldn't believe it. But he couldn't think of anything else. So the first chance he got he ran up to the Old Orchard. He knew just about where to look for the Wrens. Almost at once he heard Mr. Wren singing. He hurried over there. Jenny Wren popped her head out of the opening of a little house Farmer Brown's boy had put up for her.

"Tut, tut, tut, tut, tut, see who's here" exclaimed Jenny Wren.

"Hello, Jenny", exclaimed Peter, "what are you doing in that house? I thought you had your nest in another house."

"So I did," replied Jenny, "I passed one family in that house, and now I'm raising another family in this house."

Peter was looking around. He really wasn't paying attention to Jenny Wren. Jenny noticed it. "Tut, tut, tut, tut, tut! You are most impolite, Peter Rabbit!" she cried. "What are you looking around for when I'm talking to you?"

"Where are all your neighbors, Jenny?" asked Peter, for he had noticed that there were no other birds very near.

"Neighbors! I don't want neighbors. Neighbors too close are a nuisance," sputtered Jenny. "I like to have a little privacy myself. Then too, it is easier to get a living when there are not too many living close together. The neighbors are plenty near enough here."

"But it seems to me there used to be several right around here," said Peter.

"Is that so?" snapped Jenny. "Well, you don't see them around here now."

"That's just it," replied Peter, "I don't and I'm wondering why."

"Don't ask me," retorted Jenny. "Go ask them. This is a free country, and goodness knows, all of them are big enough to know their own minds and do what they please. As I said before, I'm satisfied. Neighbors are all right when they are not to neighborly."

"What has become of Tommy Tit-the Chickadee and Mrs. Chickadee?" Peter asked.

"I guess they're around somewhere, perched on some twig," replied Jenny.

"But I thought they were living in that little house over in the next tree," said Peter.

"They did live there for a while, but for some reason or other they moved. I guess they didn't like it as well as they thought they were going to," replied Jenny.

"Did they have a family in there?" asked Peter.

"No," said Jenny, "they moved before they had a family. They moved quite suddenly."

"Are Sammy and Mrs. Sammy the Swallows occupying their old house?" Peter inquired.

Again Jenny Wren shook her head "No," said she, "they've moved to another part of the old orchard. But goodness, I can't stop here talking any longer. Tut, tut, tut, tut, tut. Peter, you're a dreadful gossip. If you had any household duties to take care of you wouldn't waste time sitting around talking."

Jenny twitched her funny little tail and, turning about, she popped into her house, leaving Peter with such a funny look on his face. He was thinking of what Carol the Meadow Lark had told him. It certainly was queer that Jenny Wren's onetime neighbors had all moved away.

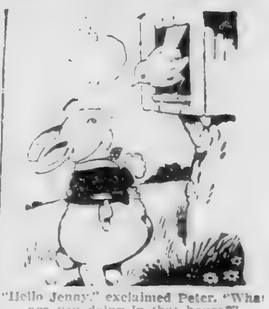
The next story—Seeing is Believing.



"Hello Jenny," exclaimed Peter. "What are you doing in that house?"

N'T'L COMMANDER SPEAKS AT LEGION CONVENTION

"Bootlegging" of undesirable aliens into the United States presents a problem which for seriousness, extent and danger of its consequences to the future well-being of the nation challenges comparison with the better-known problem of rum-running. It is time that action was taken, and drastic action too, to cure this outlaw industry which is openly flaunting the laws of the United States and reaping a golden harvest of thousands of dollars every month.

That declaration marked the address at New London Friday by National Commander James A. Drain of The American Legion, before the annual convention of the Connecticut department of the Legion.

LOCAL PEOPLE ENTERTAIN AT DINNER PARTY

A dinner party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Gallup, on the Stonington road recently. There were ten seated at the table. The dining room was decorated with gladioli and the other tables were decorated with dahlias from the garden at the Gallup home.

Guests included Mrs. Henry O. Hawthorne of Groton, Miss George Gray of Stamford, Mrs. John B. Williams and Mrs. Fred Wentworth of Mystic, Mrs. Robert Chapel of Uncasville, and Mrs. Frank Bushnell of Groton. The last four named are cousins of Mrs. Gallup and the dinner party was given in their honor. Cards during the day included N. G. Williams and two grandsons of Bellevue Farm Ct. and John Williams and daughter Harriet of Harrisburg, Pa.

JAPANESE PREPARING MOBILIZATION BUREAU

Japan's army intends to establish a mobilization bureau to study and prepare for national mobilization in times of emergency. Having disposed of other changes, Lieut. Gen. Ugaki, war minister, is ready to deal with the problem. The bureau will investigate as to what natural resources may be utilized in times of war and the amount of the resources necessary for the sustenance of the nation and the army and the navy in wartime. The establishment of an organ similar to the board of census, now defunct, is advocated by the war minister, to supply material on which the new bureau may begin work.

Army authorities have decided to create the bureau in the army, as the cabinet leaders, owing to lack of funds, are opposed to the establishment of an independent organ in the government. The war minister, however, finds the present situation of the world conducive to the creation of the bureau because European and American powers are endeavoring to prepare themselves with complete systems of national mobilization.

ROMAN ROMANSKI THROWN FROM MILK WAGON

(Special to the Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Aug. 28—Roman Romanski was thrown from his milk wagon early Friday morning by being struck by an automobile driven by Peter Pedek. Both men were going to the milk train, Romanski from the place known as the Desjardine farm and Pedek coming from Preston Way. Pedek stopped for a doctor. Joseph Ruszenas went to get his cows who would not leave the pasture for some reason. He called his son Charles to help him and on investigation, heard groans which evidently frightened the cows. They discovered the man lying in the gutter, and Charles Ruszenas went after another doctor. He complained of terrible pain in his back, and as it was thought advisable, Mr. Lamperte carried him to Backus hospital. The accident happened at the Plorough line on the Pachaug road.

FUNERALS

LECTURERS FROM FIVE STATES ENTERTAINED BY LOCAL GRANGE

About 130 Grangers representing five of the New England states were entertained at dinner at the Elks hall Friday evening by the Norwich Grange. The guests were members of the delegation that has been attending the lecturers' conference at Storrs during the past few days, and were just completing a tour of Connecticut before returning to their homes. Originally it was planned to be simply a Maine affair but the delegations from the other states were having such an enjoyable time with their neighbors from the Pine Tree state that they simply could not resist the temptation to tour with them.

The delegation in about twenty cars was met at the Norwich State Hospital and guided to this city where the guides took them on a short sight seeing tour about the Rose of New England. The delegation had left New Haven early in the morning going to New London where they embarked for Fort Wright, Fisher's Island, where they spent the day.

Upon their arrival here they were conducted to Elks hall where they were welcomed by the reception committee of the local grange, which had prepared a most appetizing supper for the travelers. After singing of America and prayer by Grange Chaplain Charles Ellis the guests were seated and Mayor Milo R. Waters extended a cordial welcome to the visitors and expressed the hope that they would again visit Norwich.

Geer's orchestra furnished music during the dinner and their was singing of grange songs. Past Master John E. Fanning presided in the absence of Worthy Master Arthur W. Avery who was unable to attend owing to illness. There were several short talks by the visitors as well as by members of the local grange. Among the speakers was Merle J. Harriman, State Lecturer for Maine, who presented a handsome and appropriate gift to Prof. Wheeler in appreciation of the courtesies extended the lecturers at the conference at Storrs. He also spoke on the splendid hospitality of the people of Connecticut, in closing he sang a parody in which he cleverly brought in the names of many of his companions and members of the local grange.

Raymond Cooper, State lecturer for New York spoke on Brotherhood and Community Service. He also remarked on the hospitality shown the delegation in all the cities and communities visited by the touring members.

Prof. Wheeler in a brief talk outlined the wonderful trip that has been thoroughly enjoyed. He like the other speakers told of the cordial receptions that had been accorded the caravan in all parts of Connecticut.

A pleasing feature of the evening was a trio number by three young women of New Hampshire who in a clever number expressed the wish to go to Maine next year. The Massachusetts delegation also sang a bright number.

Other speakers during the evening were John E. Fanning, Lewis Aldrich and Mrs. John O. Peckham, members of the local grange.

The tables and hall were prettily decorated with dahlias and gladioli from the Fanning Park gardens of Mrs. Roswell. J. P. Brown who had charge of the decorations.

The waitresses for the dinner were Mrs Richard Carter, Mrs. John Burns Mrs. Paul Waters, Mrs. Vera Steery, Miss Beetham, Mrs. Anna Woos, Mrs Andrew Crowe, and Miss Jane LaVallee. The dinner was prepared by the feast committees, Mrs. William S. Murray, chairman, Mrs. M. R. Waters, Mrs. Roswell, J. P. Brown, Mrs. Eva Higgins, Mrs. Herbert Rogers, Mrs. John O. Peckham, Mrs. William Beetham, Mrs. Leonard Staubly and Mrs. Herman Pukallus.

After the dinner the guests returned to their automobiles and the caravan moved on to Storrs where they will spend the night and today. (Saturday) will depart for their homes, in Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

MORE [illegible]

The parade of La Voiture, Department of Connecticut, La Societe des 40 Homes et 8 Chavaux and the initiation of a number of candidates, about 50, took place in the evening, the parade being witnessed by thousands along the principal avenues of march. The parade was headed by Fire Chief Charles Rose and Deputy Fire Chief Thomas Shipmen and several apparatuses of the fire department, after which the 192nd Co. Band, C. A. C., and the 1,000 marchers walked in various costume, together with the miniature train depicting the famous 40 and 8, so well remembered by the overseas veterans.

Pleasant View Hydrants

The fire protection committee of the Pleasant View fire district has placed orders with the Westerly water department for the installation of five more hydrants along the beach. At present there are 23 hydrants there.

NORWICH WOMAN ADDRESSES WINDHAM COUNTY MEETING

The citizenship school held in Thompson Aug. 20 under the auspices of the Windham County League of Women Voters was considered a big success by those attending. The 60 or more women present during the day were alert, and eager to learn if the number and variety of questions asked and answered could be taken as an indication of interest. Mrs. William Valentine of Pomfret, chairman of the county organization presided. After stating that this was the first county citizenship school and that it was for the purpose of studying county government, Mrs. Valentine introduced Mrs. George Nichols of Thompson, the county secretary who gave a cordial welcome to the Windham county women and their friends from New London, New Haven and Hartford counties. The first speaker of the morning was Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell of Norwich who has been a member of the state board of public welfare for twenty years and is also a member of the republican state central committee. Mrs. Mitchell gave a very interesting talk on county homes for children, their management and needs.

Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, president of the Connecticut League of Women Voters, then spoke on County Government, presenting the subject in the form of questions and answers, which served to impress the facts clearly upon the minds of her audience.

Luncheon at Vernon Stiles Inn was a time of social intercourse as well as refreshment. F. E. Duffy of West Hartford explained the council form of government as it operates in West Hartford. Mr. Duffy advocated this form of government for cities the size of West Hartford or larger and seemed to feel that it might be applied to the county as well. He made clear the fact that under the council the home town has not only made large expenditures for improvements but has reduced the taxes as well. The council form of government tends to abolish politics from the local elections.

A visit to the children's home was an interesting feature of the afternoon. All were impressed with the good results.

There will undoubtedly be othe, citizenship schools in the not distant future.

ENJOYED MOTOR TRIP THROUGH MASSACHUSETTS

James W. Mallett and family of West Main street, returned Wednesday from a several days' motor trip to Massachusetts, where they visited Mr. Mallett's relatives in Lynn, Beverly and Salem.

While there they attended the wedding reception of Mr. Mallett's grandniece. His grand-daughters, Miss Edith Pulsifer and Miss Doris Pulsifer, were motor guests Sunday on a trip to Camobie Lake, Salem, New Hampshire, going from Lynn by way of Newburyport turnpike, passing through Haverhill and Lawrence. The Misses Pulsifer were guests of their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. James Bushey and daughter Doris, at whose home they stayed during their visit.

Chase of New London is to be the principal speaker at the evening service which will be held in the auditorium of the church at Taftville.

LARGE BARN, HAY AND FARM TOOLS DESTROYED BY FIRE

A large barn, together with 40 tons of hay and a quantity of farm tools, on the farm owned by Oscar H. Main on the Norwich and Westerly highway, were destroyed by fire early Friday afternoon. The farm is located near Hallville.

The fire broke out about 1:30 o'clock and the flames spread so rapidly that it was impossible to check them. Men had been around the barn within half an hour of the time the flames broke out. They were only a short distance away when they noticed that the barn was on fire. The flames spread with lightning rapidity and within a very brief space of time the barn and contents were a smouldering mass of ruins. The huge quantity of hay continued to burn throughout the afternoon and evening and the flames could be seen for a considerable distance.

The barn was modernly equipped and a large addition had been constructed some time ago. It was electrically lighted and it is thought that a short circuit in the wiring may have been responsible for the blaze. It is understood that the loss is only partially covered by insurance.

Cellar Stairs Gave Way

While Mrs. T. Edward Davies of Westminster was carrying a pan filled with empty fruit jars up the cellar stairs, Wednesday, two steps and a part of the frame gave way, minus her burden and shattered wood in a confused heap in the cellar. The surgeon summoned responded quickly. Whether a bone is broken can only be certainly determined by use of the X-ray; there were many contusions and the patient will be confined in bed for some days.

The stairs have been repaired and made safe and strong.

BRITISH ARE URGED TO KEEP PARKS CLEAN

King George in opening to the public one of the most beautiful sections of wooded land near London—the stretch of green timber known for generations as Ken Wood—pleaded with the public to avoid littering the park with waste paper.

The waste nuisance is serious in London. Hyde Park on Monday morning is filled with trash. The King's speech at least, made a very wide impression.

CUTICURA HEALS LARGE PIMPLES

On Face and Arms, Burned Terribly, Lost Rest.

"My face and arms were affected with a breaking out of small pimples which later became red and large and burned terribly. My face looked so badly I was ashamed to go out, and my clothing aggravated the breaking out on my arms. I lost a great deal of rest on account of the irritation.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and after using two or three boxes of Cuticura Ointment, with the Cuticura Soap, I was healed." (Signed) Miss Velma McKeen, 193 Andover St., Peabody, Mass., March 26, 1925.

Use Cuticura to clear your skin.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass." Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

The school of nursing connected with the William W. Backus Hospital in Norwich, Conn., is now registering students for the September classes. This school is registered in Connecticut and the course of instruction is two years and four months given in a general hospital of 90 beds. Students must be graduates of grammar school and have one year of high school work. A new nurses' residence opened this year affords each student all of the comforts and conveniences of home.

For circular of information address Superintendent of Training School.

Bids to be submitted to the Secretary of Town School Committee, Fitchville, Mrs. M. F. Sweeney.

MANY BASEBALL ATTRACTIONS SLATED FOR WEEK END IN EASTERN CONN.

Although the baseball season is nearing an end and the gridirons are being put in condition for the approaching schedule of football games the eastern Connecticut fans still have an opportunity to see a number of exciting baseball games, which have been scheduled for the week-end, if the weather man will only be "fair." Among the games slated for Saturday and Sunday are the first game of the little world's series between the Taftville A. A. and J. B. Martin Saturday afternoon at the Providence street grounds and the second game at the J. B. Martin grounds on Sunday afternoon, the first game of the Jewett City-Riverview series at the State Hospital grounds and an all star aggregation under the wing of Tim Coughlin will play the fast Fitchville club Sunday afternoon at Fitchville. The feature attractions are the first games of the Taftville J. B. Martin and Riverview-Jewett City series, which brings together four of the fastest clubs in the eastern part of the state, when action is sure to be furnished aplenty.

Taftville A. A. vs. J. B. Martin

The first game of the series between the Taftville A. A. and J. B. Martin nines to decide the championship team of the mill town, Taftville, will be played Saturday afternoon at the Providence street grounds in what is expected to be a nick and tuck game. Both teams have strengthened their teams considerably during the past week, and each team will work furiously to get the jump on the other by winning the first encounter.

The Taftville A. A. team will present a strong lineup with Shefflot or Desleston, catching and L. Jarvis, Dugas or Gauthier, pitching. The other players include A. Dugas, 1b, Cardle, 2b, Pesler, ss, Cobb, 3b, Leo Jarvis, lf, Gaudette, cf, and Stanley rf. The J. B. Martin team will also present a strong aggregation in J. Murphy c, Pepin or Lemieux, p, Joubert 1b, B. Murphy or Krauss 2b, DeCollese ss, Gley 3b, B. Gley lf, Dona rf, and E. Murphy cf.

Riverview vs Jewett City

The Riverview vs Jewett City River-view-Jewett City series will start Saturday afternoon at the State Hospital. Both clubs have been playing fast ball this season, and this series was arranged after many challenges were hurled in all directions by Manager Liberty of the Jewett City club. The game will start at 2.45 p. m. D. L. T. with Morin and Curran officiating and the cubs going to the late in the following order:

Riverview: Moore 2b, Noell rf, Mills 1b, Normandin ss, West lf, Hamel 3b, Allard cf, Belair c, and Zemke p.

Jewett City: W. Liberty c, Rainey p, Robertson 1b, S. Liberty 2b, Gilbert ss, N. Liberty 3b, Gilbert lf, Ralli cf, and Benjamin rf.

Sunday afternoon play will be resumed at Jewett City and Manager Bill Donovan will send the following men to the plate: Moore f, Hawes 2b, Mills, 3b, Normandin ss, West p, Harre 1b, Noel rf, Allard cf and Belaire c.

VELVETMAKERS CONFIDENT OF SECOND GAME OF SERIES

The scene of the battle of the little world series of Taftville will be shifted Sunday afternoon to the J. B. Martin grounds, when the Taftville A. A. and the J. B. Martin teams clash in the second game of their series. As the rivalry between these two teams is keen there is no doubt but what the fans will have a chance to see a game full of tackle and fast ball playing.

It is rumored that the fourth cog manager has entered his name conspicuously for the week end games and the rooters of the Velvetmakers town hope for a consolidated team, namely among the players of the team that negotiated to win the Taftville A. A. team Saturday game will be the finish of the series, and the baseball honors of Taftville for 1925 will be sewed up in a neat bag.

The lineup of the Velvetmakers will be the same direction of Coach Tighe and be composed of the J. B. Martin players with the exception of the pitcher. This position will be taken care of by either "Gink" Dugas or Porky" Flynn.

COUGHLIN'S STARS WILL PLAY FITCHVILLE SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon at the Cannon Hill grounds, Fitchville, an all-star aggregation under the management of "Tim" Coughlin will clash with the Fitchville baseball club in what is expected to be one of the fastest games of the season. Mgr. Coughlin has signed up Allard and other equally well-known players of the Norwich Twilight League and expects to take the measure of the Quilt-town nine. The Fitchville boys, undefeated in their last three games, have struck their stride apparently and are sanguine of success in the attempt to turn back the Coughlin stars. Manager T. Sullivan will use his regular players in this contest.

HOW LEADING TEAMS STAND IN MAJORS

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The paths of the American league leaders diverged today for the first time in nearly two weeks, Washington overcame an early lead of the Chicago White Sox to win, 3 to 2 in the ninth inning, while a procession of Philadelphia pitchers, including the unusually unmolested Sam Gray, dodged the base hits with which the Detroit Tigers filled the atmosphere, to trail home, 8 to 1. The break in the two leaders' recent see-saw performance gives the Senators a lead of one and one-half games tonight. The standing:

Washington	77	45	.631
Philadelphia	74	45	.622

By scoring two runs in the fifth inning Philadelphia terminated at twenty five the number of scoreless innings pitched by Pittsburgh hurlers, stretching back over two shutouts over Boston. The break was the signal for a free hitting fest, Pittsburgh laying the heavier smoke screen to win in the ninth, 10 to 9, but only after several helpers from the Pirate bench had joined the fray.

The Giants took a ten inning victory from St. Louis, 3 to 2, behind the good pitching of Freddie Fitzsimmons, recent Giant acquisition from the Indianapolis club of the American Association.

The young right hander is credited with three victories and no defeats. The two victories permitted the Pirates to retain their six and one half game advantage.

The standing:

Pittsburgh	74	46	.617
New York	71	56	.559

Although only 28 years of age, Walter Mails, the great pitcher of the St Louis Cardinals, has had wide experience in professional baseball. On the Pacific Coast he has played with the Seattle, Portland, Sacramento and Oakland teams, while in the major leagues he has worn the uniforms of Brooklyn, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and St. Louis.

AMERICAN DOUBLES TEAM WILL OPPOSE AUSTRALIANS

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 28.—(AP)—The American doubles team of Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N. Y. and R. Norris Williams, 2nd, of Philadelphia and the Australian combination of Gerald Patterson and John B. Hawkes, survivors in a field of 32 starters, will meet on the turf courts of the Longwood Cricket Club tomorrow afternoon for the National Doubles Championship of the United States.

The Australians gained the finals yesterday by disposing of the California team of Johnston and Griffin while Richards and Williams, today, defeated the 1924 Champions, Robert C. and Howard O. Kinsey of San Francisco, California, in straight sets, 6-1, 8-6, 6-2.

One National Championship team was crowned today while six others were groomed for the final ceremonies tomorrow. Samuel Hardy and Walter L. Pate of New York, the former an ex-Captain of the American Davis cup team, won the title in the National Veterans' Doubles Championship for the second successive year by defeating Julian S. Myrick of New York, and A. Wallis Myers of England 6-3, 6-4.

The international aspect will prevail in three of tomorrow's four finals. America will battle Australia in the National Doubles while in the National Mixed Doubles America will team with England against Australia and England. The other International match will be played in the final of the Longwood women's invitation singles in which Miss Joan Fry of England today gained the final round by defeating Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Del., 6-2, 7-9, 11-9. The other finalist in this tournament has not been determined. Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California and Mrs. Molla B. Mallory of New York meeting tomorrow morning for the honor of entering the final against Miss Fry. Only one upset inserted itself into today's picture and that was the defeat of the French-English Lacoste-Fry combination in the mixed doubles by the American team of Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J., and Henry Guild of Boston. The latter combination won in straight sets, 6-4, 8-6.

Another match which flavored of the reserve was the overwhelming defeating of William T. Tilden, 42nd, and Mrs. Molla B. Mallory in the Mixed Doubles at the hands of the English-Australian team of Miss Kathleen McKane and John B. Hawkes, 6-1, 6-1. Miss McKane's play sparkled with dazzling, daring, placements and returns which sent the American team down to defeat in decisive fashion.

Miss McKane's play was largely responsible for the victory of the foreign team but at the same time it can be said without fear of contradiction that Tilden and Mrs. Mallory were far off form in their play. This factor for the McKane-Hawkes team sent them into the final bracket where tomorrow they will oppose Vivian Richards and Miss E. H. Harvey in the championship of the English Wimbledon International Team.

The Richards-Harvey team worked its way into the finals by conquering Jean Borotra of France and Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California 6-4, 6-3.

In Providence, R. I. merits Boston in the final round of the National Father and Son Doubles Championship tomorrow. J. L. D. Jones and his son, Arnold W. Jones, of Providence, the latter champion of the 1925 Yale Tennis Team, and Clifford H. Donald M. Hall and Malcolm T. Hall of Boston in the title game.

EXHIBITION BOXING AT MECHANICSVILLE TONIGHT

The first day of the second annual [illegible] which is being given under the auspices of the Mechanicsville Athletic Association Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week, was held [illegible] evening at the French [illegible] Mechanicsville, with a [illegible] which exhibition too [illegible] was given. For the dance music was furnished by Mel [illegible] orchestra of Providence.

The programme will open at noon today (Saturday), with all kinds of [illegible] exhibition boxing. A ball game will be held on the field in front of the hall and the card will comprise Kid Sullo of New Haven vs. Young Rose of New Haven, Leo McKenna of Mechanicsville vs. Kid Chester of Grosvenordale, Noah Kessler of Meriden vs. Kid Pollock of Willimantic, Kid Fitzgoung of Meriden vs. Tony Rose of Middletown and Steve Williams of Webster vs. Buck Plasse of Webster. If the day is stormy the boxing bouts will be held at the French River Inn, where dancing will be enjoyed after boxing program is completed. Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock S. T. a baseball game will be played between the M. A. A. and Over The Top nines, in what is expected to be a fast game.

KAPLAN WILL MEET RIVAL IN RETURN MATCH

MERIDEN, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, who kept his featherweight title out of Babe Herman's corner each Thursday night in Waterbury, will meet his rival in a return match for the 126 pound title, it was announced here this afternoon by Scotty Monteith, manager of the champion.

Monteith stated that he had an engagement with Tex Rickard, in New York where details would be discussed. What might take place then Monteith could not say except that Kaplan will defend his crown in New York and would probably be one of the earlier bouts at the new Madison Square Garden. Jimmy Kelly, manager of Herman, is expected to attend the conference also.

Thomas E. Donohue, of New London, state boxing commissioner was here today and was told that David Fitzgerald, of New Haven, was planning to return his licence because he did not get a chance to referee at Waterbury. This proved news to the commissioner but he stated to the effect that the license would be received as pleasantly as it was sent. Donohue denied very strongly that he had begged Fitzgerald to become a referee. The champion went through an examination of his hand today by Dr. Frank S. Otis and as far as can be determined there is a splintered bone in his right hand near the thumb. A further examination will be made.

RAY WILL COMPETE AT YANKEE STADIUM

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Contrary to reports that Joie Ray had quit the cinder path was an announcement today that the Illinois sprinter would compete in a special two-mile event of the Knights of Columbus international track meet at the Yankee Stadium, Sept. 14. Among others who will try to eclipse the present world's outdoor record for the distance will be Willie Ritola.

PIRATES WIN SLUGGING MATCH FROM PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28—(AP)—A five run rally in the Philadelphia half of the ninth inning fell one run short and the Pittsburgh Pirates won the slugging match 10 to 9.

Fletcher's sluggers collected seven hits off Adams and Sheehan during the rally, but Kremer saved the game, retiring the final batter with the tying run on second.

Cuyler performed the unusual feat of hitting two home runs inside the park in a single game. No one was on base either time. Score:

GIANTS TRIM CARDINALS IN EXTRA INNING GAME

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP)—New York took the first game of a series from the Cardinals today, 4 to 3, Meusel's double scoring Southworth with the winning run in the tenth. The Giants came from behind in the ninth and tied the count when Hafey and Mueller collided in going for Kelly's fly, the ball counting for a triple. Kelly scored on a pinch hit by Snyder. Frisch hit a home run in the sixth.

Snortstop Jackson of the Giants again threw out his knee during fielding practice and had to be assisted off the field. Score:

SENATORS GAIN FULL GAME ON ATHLETICS

CHICAGO, Aug. 28—(AP—Washington gained a full game on the Athletics today by defeating Chicago 3 to 2 while Detroit trimmed Philadelphia. Bill Barrett and Ike Davis handed the game to the visitors in the ninth inning. Barrett fumbled Goslin's grounder which enabled the Senators left fielder to reach second base. He moved to third on Scott's sacrifice and scored when Davis fumbled Bluege's grounder.

The Senators victory put an end to Ted Blankenship's winning streak after he had won ten consecutive games. Blankenship allowed only five hits, two of which came in the fifth inning which with an error, gave the visitors their first run. Score:

UMPIRE BRESLIN BANISHES COLLINS FROM PARK

Pittsfield, Mass., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Shano Collins, manager of Pittsfield was banished from the park by Umpire Breslin in the eighth inning of today's game which Hartford won 9 to 8. It was the first time that Collins was ever put out of a game in his long career in league baseball. He argued over a decision which Umpire Breslin made in calling Leary, running for Sullivan, out at second base, after Sullivan had opened Pittsfield's half of the eighth with a double. The umpires were given police protection in leaving the field. Score:

Hartford	0	0	2	0	1	2	0	0	—9
Pittsfield	1	0	4	2	1	0	0	0	0	—8

Two base hits, Gouger, Colins, MacPhee, Sullivan, Rondeau. Three base hit, Hesse.

EXHIBITION BOXING AT ST. PATRICK'S LAWN PARTY

Among the feature events to be seen at the St. Patrick's lawn party next Tuesday evening will be the appearance of Kid Kaplan of Meriden and Sheik Leonard of Wallingford in exhibition bouts. Kaplan and Leonard fought at Waterbury Thursday evening, the former in the main bout with Babe Herman of California and the latter in semi-final with Tracey Ferguson of Northford, Conn., both being draws. As much interest is manifested among the sporting blood of the city in boxing and there has not been a boxing exhibition in Norwich for some time many are expected to witness the bouts.

DELANEY OPERATED UPON FOR SEPTIC POISING

BRIDGEPORT, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Jack Delaney, of this city, leading contender for the light heavyweight title, was successfully operated upon in St. Vincent's hospital here today for Septic poisoning caused by the swelling of abscesses on his throat.

The operation was performed by Dr. Fralick of New York and Drs. Curran and Johnson, of Bridgeport, who reported that Delaney will be able to don his ring togs again late in the fall.

Delaney was forced to cancel his championship bout with Paul Berlenbach at the Yankee Stadium on September 11 because of this illness.

EAST ENDS BREAK TIE WITH EASTERN CONNECTICUT POWER FOR SECOND PLACE

In one of the crucial games of the season, the East Ends, 1924 pennant winners, defeated the Eastern Connecticut Power team Friday evening 8 to 2, and moved a notch closer to the league-leading Centrals in their race for the 1925 flag. In winning, the East Ends broke a tie with the Power nine for second place, and this morning finds them but a game and a half behind the Centrals.

"Chick" Davis, former sub-base twirler, pitched for the winners and displayed all his old time form. Davis was never in danger, limiting his opponents to five hits and two runs, while six went back to the bench via the strikeout route.

Dickson started in the box for the Power nine and pitched the first four frames. During his stay on the mound, the E. C. P. twirler proved no mystery to the East Siders, who collected seven timely hits, which coupled with three walks, enabled them to score eight runs. Tommy Simcox twirled the last stanza, and although touched for one hit, was not scored upon.

The East Ends scored first in the second inning. Bill Austin led off with a walk, but was forced at second by Mills, Barry to B. Hull. Belair singled to left, and Mills took second. Tim Coughlin rolled an easy grounder to Dickson who threw to second to get Mills. Bill Hull failed to touch second, however, and the bases were filled. Davis fanned for the second out, but Woodmansee walked, forcing Austin over the plate with the first run. Allard came through with a timely single to right, scoring Mills and Coughlin but was out trying to stretch the hit, Joe Hull to Shefflot to Barry.

In the next frame, the East Ends added four more and sewed up the game.

Singles by Coughlin and Davis, a double by Normandin, and a walk, aided by two more errors by Bill Hull, enabled the winners to count in this frame, while two successive doubles by Allard and Gaudette scored another tally in the fourth.

The Power team's only score came in the fourth when they tallied twice. Davis leading off, was safe when Coughlin dropped Chick Davis's throw to first. Clabby singled to right but was out at second trying to stretch the hit, Joe Hull to Barry, Davis taking third on the play. Shefflot walked, and Ed Harris picked out one of Davis' shoots and smashed a hard line single to right, scoring Davis. When Bill Austin let the ball go through him, Shefflot also scored, and Harris too, third. Both Joe and Bill Hull then fanned, ending the inning.

Jack Clabby furnished the fielding feature of the game when he ran back to deep center and caught Austin's long clout in the fourth inning. Gaudette also featured with his second base play.

WESTERLY

The Record, a republican periodical, George B. Utter of Westerly, editor and publisher, was reported to have been the cause of a disagreement of members in the Rhode Island Republican club of which a special meeting was called Friday afternoon in Providence, at 3:30 o'clock to consider the demand of 25 or 30 members of the organization for a special meeting of the club and the removal of Treasurer Edward Edgers.

Judge H. D. C. Dubois, president of the club, said Thursday night that the special meeting which he had been requested to call would depend on the action of the board of governors.

A meeting of the board of governors Aug. 4, was followed by the presentation to Judge Dubois of a petition in which members demanded a special meeting of the club as a whole so that Treasurer Edgers could be ousted. There had been rumors that a shortage had been found in the club's treasury when plans for the organization's annual outing were started.

Later it was declared by Judge Dubois that some of the members had failed to understand a transaction involving payments to the Record Publishing Company, which publishes the Record, a republican periodical. There is some disagreement between members of the club regarding these payments and the anti-Edgers group in the club contends that the kind of man wanted for treasurer of the organization is a business man who is not so closely allied with the republican organization as is Mr. Edgers.

After receiving the original petition for a special meeting, Judge Dubois called a conference of those who signed it. The petitioners insisted on the meeting and Judge Dubois said he would call it. The anti-Edgers group has threatened legal action if their demands are not granted. They make no accusations that any individual has profited from the club's finances, but believe that the organization should be in such condition as to be above all criticism with the G. O. P. organization.

In a previous statement Judge Dubois had said the row had been settled out. Asked later if he believed the situation could be explained to the satisfaction of all concerned, he said it was a hard question to answer. He was not out when questioned, [illegible] shortly.

Asked if he had called the special meeting requested by the petitioners Judge Dubois said he had not.

"When are you going to call it?" was the next question.

"I don't know."

Is it true that a meeting of the board of governors was called for half-past eleven o'clock this afternoon?

"Yes."

What is the purpose of the meeting?

"There are several matters that I want to speak up."

Is the meeting going to consider a [illegible] charge of funds in the club treasury?

"Does it?"

"And does the call for a special meeting [illegible] above described by the board of governors [illegible]?

Judge Dubois said he did not want to [illegible] the situation with the club [illegible] was held Aug. 4 [illegible] Pease and considered [illegible] was expected that the meeting proposed by the petitioners could now [illegible] one way or another.

Judge Turano then took up the trial [illegible] calendar and called the case of [illegible] Chief of Police of Hopkinton, [illegible] H. Brown, vs. John A. Cornier.

John A. Cornier, 42, August 12th was presented on complaint of Chief [illegible] Hopkinton that on August [illegible] operated an automobile [illegible] Hopkinton, at a [illegible] than reasonable and proper. He pleaded nolo. Town Sergeant Ferguson stated that [illegible] was operated at 35 miles per hour on the central street [illegible] p. m. Attorney Roche [illegible] the defendant, said that Mr. Cor[illegible] from Providence, drove on Mason Avenue he ran a [illegible] that complained [illegible] He was fined $10 and costs.

Vernon Herbert, 19, of Pawcatuck was charged with operating an automobile, August 23, on the Watch Hill road, when the automobile was not provided with at least two powerful brakes. He entered a plea of guilty. The trial developed that the emergency brake was useless and that the defendant operated the car of the Dough[illegible] Company as directed [illegible] He was fined $25 and costs.

Frederick A. Jencks, complained of [illegible] operating an automobile without proper registry had his case discontinued.

Joseph Lombardo, who resides in New York, was called and his case passed temporarily as a previous arraignment of his transgression of automobile laws had been taken up.

Tony Loretto, 22, entered a plea of nolo to the operating of an automobile on the Watch Hill road on August 23, when by reason of his emergency brake not working properly he was involved in an accident. He was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs.

Julian Leplante, 40, answered to a complaint in a plea of nolo that on August 25, he operated an automobile on the Watch Hill road not provided with at least two strong brakes. Trial developed that a collision occurred with another car without injury to occupants. He was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $35 and costs.

Frank DeMayo when called was not in the court room, but his father had sent word that he would be present and the case was passed, temporarily.

The remainder of the morning session was taken up with the trial of the case in which Mario DeFanti was complained of as operating an automobile recklessly on the Bradford road on the evening of August 7th in which it collided with and smashed a Ford car occupied by Alexander Thompson and Joseph Thompson of Bradford, they being injured in the smash. DeFanti was represented by Attorney Lester C. Cordery of Providence and Town Solicitor Ferguson cared for the state's case. DeFanti was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs.

The front brick wall of the new United Theaters block on Canal street is rapidly nearing the roof of the building. Brick-piers on the front of the structure have had granite caps set and the brickwork about the front window frames is carried up towards the roof. At the rear of the building the work of construction has been pushed, having been held up for some time until sufficient excavation work could be done to permit the erection of the rear and side walls near the back. The wooden roof for the entire building is nearly completed.

Wooden framework for the west end of the new parochial school of the Immaculate Conception parish on the lot corner of High and Dixon streets, is now in process of erection for the first story. Most of the foundation of the building is in place and the side brick walls for the first story along Dixon street are rising steadily. Tons of lumber, bricks, cement and other building material are stored on the grounds of the new school building.

The Munson line steamship Pan America, of a U. S. transport, sailing from Buenos Ayres on August 13th via Rio Janeiro, on which Misses Bernice E. and Mary M. Whipple, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Whipple of Westerly, returning from a two months' tour of Central and South America, is scheduled to arrive Monday next at the pier in Hoboken.

At this week's fire district meeting, the recommendations of the board of engineers were adopted. It was recommended that assessment be made one month earlier. The rate fixed was .20 at first and thn reconsidered and made .15. The collector dates will be the same as at present, April 15 to 30.

Board of Engineers is to act as a committee on stove-pipes and chimneys. Chief Egger making a report for the committee.

It was voted to authorize the treasurer to borrow money as needed. The moderator was given power to appoint a committee to enter contracts with outside districts to furnish such reasonable fire protection as the district can supply.

Lewis Stanton was moderator of the meeting and Carl E. Burdick was clerk. Everett E. Whipple was elected treasurer and collector. Richard J. Butler auditor. Walter C. Hiscox, Oliver P. Crandall and D. Harold Rogers, assessors of taxes.

Fire Chief George E. Egger was nominated chief by John J. Dunn and elected, his work being characterized as "efficient, faithful and true." The vote stood: Robert Bonner, for 1st assistant engineer *143; George A. McKenzie, 2nd assistant engineer, Columbus Pasetti, 3rd assistant engineer *119; Howard D. McFarland, 125; Maurice Lamb 99, Everett C. Lawton 55.

*—Elected.

ONE OF 14 CHILDREN MISSING RETURNED TO HIS HOME

(Special to the Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Aug. 28.—James Mousey, 19 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Checkory Mousey of Pawcatuck, who disappeared from his home, 7 Farley avenue, West Side, has returned home. For several weeks his parents did not know the whereabouts of their son, one of fourteen children. A letter was finally received from the young man who wrote that he was in the U. S army stationed at Fort Strong, New York, and had tired of the life of a soldier. Inasmuch as he was under age, the matter of his discharge by direction of his parents, was taken up by the Westerly branch of the American Red Cross, with the federal government and word was received that the discharge had been granted. This makes the second time Mousey has returned home after an unannounced departure, having returned home from Pennsylvania, following his first disappearance.

CHAS. H. M'GIBNEY, NORWICH, QUIZZES MOTOR OFFICER

(Special to the Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Aug. 28.—Charles H. McGibney, 19, of 262 Broad street, Norwich, in the Third District court today, entered a plea of not guilty to the operation of an automobile on the Watch Hill road August 23, when it was not equipped with at least two powerful brakes. He was charged. George Madison, motorcycle patrolman, testified to trying out the brakes, and found trouble with the braking mechanism. On his examination of the witness McGibney brought out the fact that the car had new transmission and that he was not permitted to demonstrate that he would be able to stop his car when operated at a speed between fifteen and twenty miles per hour, within a distance of fifty feet. John K. Dodd, a witness for the defendant, who got into the car at Norwich testified as to the examination of the car as well as another young man who also accompanied him. The latter also testified that he had a cousin in Norwich who was told by "Sheriff" Greenwood of White Rock that the car would not be held up for three in the seat as it had been and therefore he had accompanied the other two. It was testified that Joe Jordan, of Westerly, also examined the braking mechanism and the defendant asked the motorcycle officer what right he had to get into his car. In the argument of the same with the motorcycle officer the court directed McGibney to address his argument the court. Judge Turano fined the Norwich man $25 and costs.

Friendly Thoughts

Lord, let me carry where I go
Som little joy to all I know
A touch of friendship, now and then,
To shew my comradeship with men.
Let these into my life be wrought,
A little faith, a little thought,
A little mirth, a little grace
To glorify the commonplace.
And howsoe'er, my hopes shall end,
Let me not cease to be a friend.

The Land of Beginning Again

I wish that there were some wonderful place
Called the Land of Beginning Again,
Where all our mistakes and all our heartaches
And all of our poor childish grief
Could be dropped, like a shabby old coat, at the door
And never put on again.

I wish we could come to it all unaware,
Like a hunter who finds a lost trail;
And I wish that the one whom our blindness has done
The greatest injustice of all,
Could be at the gates like an old friend that waits
For the comrade he's gladdest to hail.

We would find all the things we intended to do
But forgot and remembered—too late;
Little mannerless unspoken, little promises broken
And a few other things undone
Little things neglected that might have perfected
The day for one less fortunate.

It wouldn't be possible not to be kind
In the Land of Beginning Again,
And the ones we misjudged and the ones we begrudged
Their moments of victory here
Would feel in the grasp of our loving handclasp
More penitent than lips could explain.

For what had been hardest we'd know
had been best,
And what had seemed less would be seen
For there isn't a stone that will not take wing
When we've faced it and laughed it away;
And I think that the laughter is most what we're after
In the Land of Beginning Again.

So I wish that there were some wonderful place
Called the Land of Beginning Again,
Where all our mistakes and all our heartaches
And all of our poor childish grief
Could be dropped, like a shabby old coat, at the door
And never put on again.

Vision

The practical man sees a small wooden box
Strung front with the tail of a cat
On which you can scrape with the tail of a horse;
There's nothing more to it than that;
Or so he declares, and it's perfectly true
That's all a violin seems
Unless you have vision, which leads you to see
A casket of loveliest dreams.

The practical man knows a tree is a tree;
He figures its height and its girth;
How many board feet it would yield to the saw,
And just what the boards would be worth,
And get to the man who has vision, it stands
A miracle sprung from the sod,
A green living glory that ever proclaims
The spirit and purpose of God.

The practical man sees a practical world
And runs it impractical style
He's safe and he's sane as an everyday spade
But still every once in a while,
Though practical people make living run smooth,
Let's dwell in the magic thral
Of dreamers whose beautiful visions supply
The reason for living at all.

The Automobile

Like an impatient fiery steed
The automobile stands,
Awaiting in its restlessness,
The chauffeur's commands.
Trembling with nervous energy
To serve the present hour
It's deep volcanic mutterings
Reveal it's hidden power.

When from its irksome bonds released,
Like a charger in the fray,
It leaves the spinning road behind
On its swift and caged way
Scorning fatigue, the hills ignore,
And treat with high disdain;
It measures distance with a smile,
Then valley and o'er plain.

The hamtam roosters and stray cats,
That often it doth meet
It tramples, with all snarling curs,
'Neath it's expansion feet,
Tho I may prestige,
horn,
Or blows its whistle shrill
A warning to pedestrians
It's running at it's will.

Then tis clear the track old crippled hoss
For I am running true;
The center road was built for me,
The ditch will do for you
I'spose you think you own the street,
And bank on past renown!
But things have changed since Hannah died,
I own the street and town!

And thus it be, full well I know,
You've fooled the people long;
And kept your slow and plodding pace
With all the passing throng.
But now your plodding days are o'er,
For you are surely beat,
Old rack-a-bones you've scared north
The shoes upon your feet!

Wild eyed, the wondering steed replies.
Tho I may prestige yield,
This warning admonition give,
Then as I quit the field.
For everydog shall have his day,
And times will surely be
When flying airships will mock you,
Alas as you mock me.

VARY THE MENU

Dear Sisters: here are so many good things to eat in this world that it seems a pity that the ordinary housewife limits her fancy to such a restricted menu, which by a little thought she could give much variety to her table with no extra trouble. The following dishes are most of them novel and all of them delicious and I can thoroughly recommend them, although they are different than any recipes I have seen published.

Nut Cutlets: Grind finely 3 ounces of bread crumbs and chop very fine 2 ounces of walnut and a little onion season with salt and pepper. Put over the fire a scant half pint cream in with a tablespoon of butter, when it comes to the boiling point add the bread crumbs and cook until it does not stick to the pan. When cool add the nuts and a very little chopped herb. Shape into cutlets, roll in egg and fine bread crumbs and fry a golden brown.

Macaroni Cutlets: Boil 4 ounces of macaroni until tender, in plenty of fast boiling water (do not salt while boiling), drain chop into small pieces. Heat very hot half pint of milk and add 1 tablespoon butter previously rubbed with 1 tablespoon flour, stir until thick then add very carefully the beaten yolks of 2 eg. Take from the fire add salt and pepper, and the macaroni. When cool shape into cutlets roll in bread crumbs and egg and fry in hot fat. Serve with tomato sauce and grated cheese.

Nut Bread: Into the sponge of two loaves of bread, stir one large cup of chopped meats mix real hard and treat as you would ordinary bread dough. When cold cut in thin slices and butter.

Coffee Macaroons: After blanching four ounces of almonds put through a chopper and then pound to a paste. Moisten with four teaspoons of coffee (very strong black coffee) add the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs, blended with one pound of powdered sugar, shape into macaroons arranging on paper lined tins; bake ten minutes in a hot oven.

Best Ever Fish Balls: 1 cup of potatoes (cold), 2 cups of codfish, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon of pepper, white of one egg 1 tablespoon butter. Soak fish 2 hours put potatoes through grinder with fish, add butter while hot, then pepper beat up the while hot, then pepper, beat up the white of the egg and stir in the butter sugar, codfish until like cream, make in balls and fry in pork fat. The sugar gives the cakes a wonderful flavor. Frying them while hot seems to soak the grease more. Please try these and advise me how you like them.

Mrs. L: I still use the sugar with my fish balls and agree with you they are much better.

CLUB NO. 3'S PICNIC SEPT. 3

Dear Social Corner Friends: First I than the editor for the pin, he surely good to send to such a big family of writers.

Have been much interested in the letters telling of the different trips taken by the sisters. I have not been on a vacation but my husband and I have had a number of very pleasant trips this summer. Three times we have been to Quarry dock on the Niantic river for picnics. The first time was when the laurel was in bloom and no words can describe such a beautiful sight, just banks of it on either side of the path as we drove in from the road. The next time a party of 21 went there for a fourth of July picnic and the last trip was with Wee Wifie and her husband when we all dug clams. My husband's brother, son and grandson have been spending their vacation here and son had his car with him so we had several auto rides. One day a party of 17 went to Rocky Point where we had a fine shore dinner. Another day we spent at Mantupnuck Beach, R. I. the nicest place I know for a quiet day, a beautiful beach.

Then one afternoon we drove around Groton Long Point, then to Atlantic beach and Weekapaug. Also attended the Union Sunday school picnic at Mohegan park, with about 500 there.

I went to Harrietta's Social Corner picnic and had a nice time but was disappointed not to attend Bumble Bee's picnic. I spent that day in the hay field raking. I enjoy that or anything that keeps me out of doors.

E. L. M.: Glad you met Kenny and I can tell you that you will find her just as nice after knowing her many years as she was to meet for the day. When visiting her I have been to see that wonderful oak tree as it is very near her house. Hope to see you both at our picnic.

The picnic that Club No. 3 was to have this month was put off, as so much else was going on. Now we plan to have Sept 3rd (Thursday) as we want it before the schools begin. It will be held on the lawn by the Baptist church and we hope for a large attendance of members and friends. Hope to see members of other clubs. I know it comes near the time of Club No. 2's meeting, but hope that will not make any difference in the attendance. Please bring your own dishes and silver also something to eat.

My sympathy to those in sorrow.

FINE TIME AT BEACH PICNIC

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: it was my pleasure to be one of the many members who attended the Social Corner picnic at Ocean beach a short time ago. During the day my attention was called to a group of boys at the extreme end of the pier. With a friend we went out to see what they were doing and found they were fishing. Asking a small lad what he was going to do with the fish he had caught, "sell them to you," was the quick reply. On telling the boy, I was too far from home, he resumed his fishing. As the day began to darken and soon the rain began to fall we hurriedly left the beach. Soon we transferred at New London to another electric car that was crowded with people all bound for Norwich. With a thought of no seat in mind—a voice at my side said, "Lady take my seat." I said, "I hate to do so," and the reply was, "I could be no gentleman to let a lady stand and I keep the seat." With a thank of acceptance I sat down. I thought of the kind spirit in which the courtesy was extended to the weaker sex. Reaching home I thought of the pleasant hours spent with the members of the Corner at the beach and how everyone seemed to enjoy themselves.

A short time since in reviewing events of that day, it brought to my mind a fisher lad whom I once knew. As he grew in years he grew in the science of catching fish. Very early in the springtime, almost before the icy clutch of winter had loosened its hold on the streams, you would see him with lighted torch and spear in hand the early fish to stab and as the season advanced you would see the lad forging ahead with an easy stride into a fuller and deeper understanding of fish, making a very apt scholar. After one of his successful fishing trips with a willing mind and generous hand, you would see him going along the road and with a gentle rap at your door, he would hand you a pail and with a wise and eager look in the eye, he would closely scan your face to see if the contents would be accepted by you. And with a nod of your head to signify your acceptance, you would see in the pail very large freshly caught fish. Then refilling the pail with good things to eat as you handed the pail back to him a smile of thanks would light the plain but honest face of the boy and with a springing step he was out of the door and going over the hot and dusty road to his home. This line of distributing fish would be repeated during the spring and summer as the seasons would come and go.

The fisher lad of long ago is a man many years older today, and sometimes I wonder with his knowledge of fishing, if not forgotten and the cunning of his hand if he could connect with the fisherman of today, and making them look well to their laurels in the thrilling and exciting game of fishing also if he muses on the formpleasures that are past and gone, dreaming of boyhood days and the many enjoyable hours spent in fishing the streams around and on the quiet waters of Gardner lake.

A few lines to the husband of Red Clover in his bereavement. His loss but the greater gain to Red Clover, a woman of a pleasing personality. She made many friends and as she is missed in the lonely home—life so will she be sadly missed in the social life.

With good wishes for the Corner.

GUSTA.

A VISIT TO CAPE COD

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Several weeks having passed since I contributed my last letter, will not delay longer, but send in a few items regarding my recent trip. I have been in attendance at the reunion of a family of which I am a member, that of my grandfather on my mother's side. The reunion was held at Sandwich, Mass., on Aug. 12, 13 and 14. There were gathered over 100 people, representing New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, California, New Hampshire, Maine, Missouri, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Massachusetts. Meetings were held in the First Parish church, where greetings between former friends and new acquaintances were made. Address of welcome by the president of the association, good music, varied entertainment and the family reunion banquet were leading features. The weather was ideal and Cape Cod is a most delightful section of the real New England. Those who have enjoyed a motor trip in this vicinity, well know, what the old time houses are, shingled on all sides, with no apparent foundation, some are gamble roof, others long slanting roof from the ridge, two stories high in front, to one story in the rear.

The Cape Cod canal which is 12 miles long, with Sandwich at the entrance, on Cape Cod bay, and Buzzards Bay the town at the entrance of Buzzards Bay. This recent waterway has made an island of Cape Cod, since the right arm of Massachusetts was severed. From Sandwich to the tip of Cape Cod is 58 miles, where we find Provincetown, a most interesting, and quaint old town. As we pass along this route, there are many attractions, which we notice. The numerous cranberry enterprises, the frequent signs of Tea Rooms, with their odd peculiar names, such as Lavendar Tea Kettle, Green Briar, etc. Also many of the old homes have antiques for sale and modern souvenirs, such as miniature windmills of various designs. From the map of Cape Cod, you will observe, that the land becomes narrower, as you approach the tip, and I have been informed that it is only three miles from one side of Provincetown to the other, which makes it nearly surrounded by the great Atlantic.

The wonderful sand dunes are conspicuous and the lack of green fields, only a few scrub pine trees, here and there for several miles, south from the tip of Cape Cod. From there on, we see many pretty little fresh water lakes along the route also coves and inlets on the irregular coast. Salt water marshes, of tall grass frequently appear. Cape Cod has become a popular vacation place, as is evident by the motor traffic, on the fine roads. It is pleasing to notice how well kept are the old time houses, the flowers of the old fashioned type, the various colored tall hollyhocks, by the doorway, the trumpet vine, clinging on rustic arbors, the lawns well cut, everything, a beautiful picture of country life, and associated in many cases with the sea shore. This combination is mostly at the lower part of the cape, in the vicinity where I have often visited. The salt atmosphere is so different from the air we breathe at our inland towns and cities and to most of us, very healthful. I enjoyed my trip to Cape Cod very much, a chance of scenery, new people to meet and a different menu from the ordinary bill of fare.

Best wishes to all.

JENNIE.

CLUB NO. 1. MEETS SEPT. 9

Dear Social Corner Friends: We will hold our first meeting for the fall and winter months on the second Wednesday of September, the 9th in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Willimantic, which have been secured for our place to meet. It is almost directly across the street from Franklin hall where we have previously met. Remember 791 Main street. Please bring dishes and food as usual. Will welcome those from other clubs and hope they can join us frequently.

Remember the change across the street, up one flight of stairs.

FROM ENGLAND TO NEW ENGLAND

Dear Friends, Editor and Cornerites: After coming to your delightful picnic last Thursday, the 20th of August, I would like to express my thanks to all the Cosy Cornerites who were so kind and sociable to me, and each other.

I have not been here a week yet (I arrived here from England last week Tuesday) but I have found something to interest me every waking moment. It is all so very different to life in England. I live near Manchester, in the old country, and here I thought possible to the Garden of Eden. Today I wandered in the woods, along with one Adam, and with about as many clothes as the fig leaf costume amounted to, and saw the most wonderful flowers, beautiful insects, nuts, berries and all kinds of fruit, such lovely apples and nearly found a snake. I wonder if the Adam we read of spoke in the same language as my Adam did when we met some hornets, and I wonder if he made nasty remarks about women's dress being unsuitable for scrambling through brambles? And I wonder if the original Adam ever met a skunk face to face? If so I would like to know what he said, and if he expressed the same sentiments as my Adam did.

The home life here is most interesting to me after city life. I am visiting at a kind of bungalow along side a stream and I love to hear a kind of competition that goes on every morning at daybreak between the roosters that live here, and the ones that live at other homes. After that we get arguments between a flock of ducks and geese. I do wish I could interpret all they say. It looks to me as if those geese consider themselves somewhat superior to the ducks socially, and refuse to allow the ducks to play in their stream while I am wondering what the young trout and other fish are saying. Then we have some great arguments with a big turkey and his harem. I call him the shiek. We also have some pigeons who have some very silly young ones who try to fly and come to earthwith a flop. There are scores of hens who occasionally pick a quarrel with each other and tear each others hair, or feathers, off. There are some lovely Jersey cows, and a great old donkey, who has a great weakness for salt. All these things are very interesting to me, but of course I could see them in England but I never could see the beautiful wild flowers and ferns and wonderful insects, moths, and today I saw the loveliest butterflies, and a great big fat beetle swimming, they call him a skater. And he can skate along the top of the water. These are all new to me, and I hear those are squirrels and chipmunks and a lot more things to see yet. I do believe I could find something new and interesting for every day in the year.

I really must say that those lovely cakes and pies we had at that picnic were quite the nicest, best and most unique things I have tasted ever.

EVE.

HOW BALSAM FIR KEEPS BUSY

Dear Social Corner Friends: Just another story but a bit different from what I have been writing you.

A lady came in and said, "Have you anything particular to do today?" I opened my eyes wide and looked at her, — guessed right away what was coming, as a week ago today (Sunday) I went with the family to Mechanic Falls to attend church. Our friend, Mrs. Jason Merrill's father, preaches there and he is certainly a drawing card.

The Merrill family was occupying a cottage near by, and they were going, so invited the Johnson family and so, of course yours truly was included in the crowd.

The First Baptist church was built in 1847, the only one in the town with a bell on it.

The Rev. Mr. Lamt stood on the veranda to welcome the people, a very fine looking gentleman with such beautiful snow white hair and such a face, just full of sunshine. We listened to a fine sermon taken from Acts 5:24. It seems funny to me with 140 religions in the United States and yet all are founded on the one book, the Bible.

The church has several memorial windows, one was marked 1799, another 1811 and still another 1834 another in memory of Ezra Mitchell 1795. It was a glorious day and we surely enjoyed the ride and the fine air going through the pine woods.

That was a week ago. Then my friends invited me to go to spend the day at their home at Thornton Heights so last Thursday morning I was ready before you could say Jack Robinson, and waiting as usual for another day of pleasure with a state road all the way. For the benefit of those who do not know, Thornton Heights is between Portland and Old Orchard. You know where it is don't you Fan Tan? Well, arrived at eleven o'clock hungry as bears. Miss Ethel Johnson said she was so hungry she could eat a bear. She would have some job, I'll say. Well dinner over there were piano and violin solos and singing and a social time before we started for Portland where we intended doing some shopping with a great many pretty things in windows of course we had to do some rubbering, but we arrived home in time for supper. Then out again to a radio concert.

A friend said she saw by the Social Corner I had been doing some gadding this summer. I'll say I have and no mistake and will keep going as long as the going is good.

Everything is drying up—no citrons nor beets. Potatoes which if it had been wet would have turned out good will be small. The ground is just like ashes. Cucumbers are gone by and nothing but corn will amount to much. If we could have had some of your rain it would have done a heap of good. Already the trees are beginning to put on their autumn foliage. The nights are long and days getting short. The last of the blueberries have been picked. If I could have gotten someone to pick them I could have cleared $100. I have done up 13 jars. None my citrons will ripen, what few there are.

Our new state road is fine and there is plenty of noise now.

Sorry to learn of Red Clover's death.

Olive: I was disappointed in not being able to get down to Ocean Beach. Expected to as I wrote you, but trip was postponed until later. Sorry to learn Crimson Rambler was out of health. I will write you soon, dearie.

Many thanks to Airies for her favor.

I am glad that we are rid of the dust. With such a constant rushing of cars and as dry as it is, doors and windows would have to be closed all the time.

The lake looks pretty good. Guess I have written enough so will go for a row. It is a lovely sunset.

Best wishes to all from

BALSAM FIR.

MY TRIP TO NEW YORK

Dear Friends: I will try to write a few lines as I see the Corner is not any too full. I like to see it full and overflowing. I have been wanting to write and tell something about my trip to New York city but have been so busy since I got back have not found the time. I have had quite a bit of company and have been going quite a bit but now I will tell a little about my trip to the big city. It is surely some city.

Well, we took the steam cars to New London from Plainfield, changed at New London for New York city and arriving at New York about 3 o'clock. The first thing was to find a place to stop for the night. After looking around a bit we found some rooms at the Rutledge hotel, a very large hotel about in the center of the city, especially for women. We found the terms very reasonable. We stayed but three nights but we improved every minute while there. We rode on all kinds of cars. Everyone has to keep moving and it seemed so everybody was in a rush. We went to Bronx park where there were all kinds of animals that you ever heard of, quite a number that I had never seen before except in pictures. It is a very beautiful park and well kept. We rode on the subway trains, sometimes underground for quite a distance and then they had sight seeing busses where they would take you all over the city and tell you about the most prominent buildings. We went to Grant's tomb where we saw Grant and his wife side by side. We also went to Prospect where it was very beautiful. You can't begin to realize the beautiful things that there are in the world until you travel around. We also went down to Coney Island which is noted for its board walk. It was just getting dark when we got there and you ought to have seen the lights. They were beautiful. The people all around were very pleasant. Our time was most taken up so we began to think of how we should get back, so we decided to go back by boat. We had a most beautiful ride. It took nearly seven hours to get back to New London and from there we took the trolley to Norwich and changed there for Plainfield. Someone met us there and took us home, thus ending a very delightful trip which will give us something to think of for days to come. A trip we will never forget.

At last but by no means least, I was fortunate in attending Club No. 4 picnic at Wildwood park. The day was perfect and a good number was out and such nice people. I met quite a good many strangers but all were friendly and what a dinner we sat down to! Fit for a king! I think we are very lucky in having such an abundance of food we never lack for anything which is more than some clubs can say.

Best wishes to all.

RURAL AUNTY.

NO LIFE WITHOUT A PROBLEM

Dear Social Corner: Because her son is going to marry a widow with children, meaning three to come into her household, a women writes for advice as to what to do and whether she should go into an old ladies' home.

It is not easy to answer and advise. I would say be slow in contemplating to uproot yourself from your home if there is any possible chance of your staying in a corner in the world which you can call your own.

So that you will not be left stranded to grapple with an irremediable situation in many an hour of despair.

If not able to keep your home I should prefer living at the Old Ladies home but why not try first and see what would be the outcome? If you find that it is impossible to live with the children on account of their activity why then it will not be too late to break up. You could reserve a couple of rooms for yourself and live in these at times when the noise was too strenuous for you.

All of us need freedom to be ourselves, time to be quiet and alone for our soul's good, opportunity to follow out the interesting inclinations which would mean self development and enrichment along that line. Now my idea is a woman who is so thoughtful of her son's happiness would surely be a great asset to him and his wife, the children would love you and you might get along much better than you anticipate.

Why shouldn't you get along if you do your work your way and let her manage her her way?

The most trouble I have ever known is the mother-in-law nagging at her son because things are not to her liking, or the daughter-in-law because things are not as she desires. It seems as if that could be eliminated by just each one tending to her own affairs. Have an understanding. No life is without a problem, minor or major, trivial or great, and perhaps the best test of our character is the manner, the courage perhaps, with which we meet the difficulties that face us.

The biggest and most difficult problems are those which involve our personal relations. Living with people peacefully whether it be one's daughter-in-law or one's mother-in-law, is a fine and difficult art.

Yet family life, group life, may lovingly but mercilessly arrest from us every claim to individuality. All about us are daughters, sons, brothers, fathers, husbands, wives, dependent relatives, old friends who have lived together for years and who are chafing openly or in secret over their involuntary surrender of individual liberty.

How then may the ties of companionship be preserved and yet the individual find herself unhampered in self-expression of development?

This is the problem of the great majority of letters. How may I do my duty as a member of a family. Or shall I leave and go my myslef.

Now I would cling to those you love, do your part in keeping home together, and at the same time get from life the things, which you individually crave.

For each person, there must be—there is—a just and sane compromise between selfishness and sacrifice. No life is worth while which casts aside its responsibilities, "it membership in the group," but no life has fulfilled its full promise unless it has walked a little in its own chosen paths. Hope I have helped you to reach your decision.

SURE WAY TO CAN CORN

Dear Editor and Members of the Social Corner: A sister asked for a true and tried recipe for canning corn. Well I am an old woman and have canned corn for 30 years and have lost but a very few cans in all that time. My daughter cans also.

We have the corn brought from the field and husk it right away. Then cut from the cob and be careful not to cut too close or scrape the cob. Then we fill the cans full, very full, mashing it down every little while until all is in. Then put a teaspoon pretty full of salt on the top. Put the first clasp down and leave the other off. Have cans very clean and put them in a can or wash boiler. Put in cold water to cover tops of cans, and after it begins to boil, boil three hours, good and smart.

Then take the boiler from the stove and put the other clasp down quick before it begins to cool. Set them somewhere out of the draft to cool.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

News a half century ago, which afforded considerable interest to local readers, is taken in part as follows from the files of the Bulletin of 1875:

Monday, August 23, 1875—Recent rains in this section has caused the water in the rivers to overflow the banks to great depths. A surveyor who was working at Occum and who was called away from his work, came back three hours later and found that the scene of his labors was covered with water to the depth of 18 inches.

The purchase of the residence of the late Senator Buckingham and its removal to make room for the building of a new passenger depot for the Norwich & Worcester railroad, was rumored about town yesterday, but a careful search disclosed the real facts, that is, that there was nothing to the story.

James Calhoun of this city won a foot-race for $2,000, at Boonton, N. J., Friday. His victim was J. W. Lawson of Pennsylvania.

J. L. Galt is in this city with an original view of this city, showing each street and building. The drawing is by the artist Bailey, who has sketched Bridgeport, Springfield and numerous other cities. It is proposed, if sufficient names of citizens are obtained, that it be chromo-lithographed. The work is exceptionally well done, combining accuracy with real beauty.

Tuesday, August 24, 1875—Ebenezer Learned of this city and T. S. Marlor of Brooklyn have been appointed by Governor Ingersoll, on the board of managers to secure a proper representation of Connecticut, at the centennial next year.

Norwich shivered in cool weather yesterday, the sudden change from the hot days recently, causing many people to go back to heavier clothing, at least for the present.

Stonington is divided on the question of building a new $25,000 school house, and is holding a series of evening school meetings to decide the subject.

Franklin street people are talking of petitioning the common council to have the steeple of the Broadway church removed, as it obstructs their view of the city hall clock.

In one of the Westerly churches with a membership of 350 persons, there have been only 14 deaths in the last seven years.

Rev. William Clift of Westerly is to lecture in this city this winter on his experiences in California during his long stay there, during which time he visited many of the big gold fields and other points of interest in that western state.

Wednesday, August 25, 1875—That Norwich people do not like to hear anyone spring jokes about the weather, was demonstratted yesterday, when a man went to the wharf and tried some Longfellow on the crowd "into each day some rain must fall." The crowd went after him and chased him nearly out of the city, thereby giving a warning to others who are inclined to the poetical weather-wise.

The Connecticut wooden nutmegs have nothing on the Providence method of selling tea, according to a local tea merchant, who recently bought a chest of tea from a Providence concern, and, upon opening it, found a stone inside which weighed 11 pounds.

At a meeting of the County Commissioners yesterday, it was voted to proceed with the work on the New London jail, under supervision of T. S. Daboll.

The new pistol shop on Franklin street has commenced business with flattering prospects, and will soon be obliged to increase its force.

The local merchants are looking forward to a good business in the fall and business has slowly been picking up during the past few weeks.

Thursday, August 26, 1875—Willimantic citizens have voted to purchase two new hose carriages at a cost of $500 each.

It is interesting to know as something of a coindence, that a year ago this week the weather was very similar to the present, the evenings being uncomfortably cool.

The Rev. Mr. Bentley of Norwich 92 years old, took a little walk Tuesday from the terminus of the old horse railroad in Westville to Judge's Cave, on the top of West Rock, and back. The New Haven Palladium remarks that this is a rather tiresome climb for a young and active man.

A number of local people who have been in New London this week speak of the beauty of the yacht owned by Gen. Tom Thumb, which is anchored in New London harbor.

The Danish barque Svanen is now at the port of New London and is attracting no little attention. She is the barque which ran into a heavy gale while over 50 miles out and her captain refused to low into port at a cost of $1,000. The captain and his family live on board and have taken delight in showing people over the barque.

Friday, August 27, 1875—The natives think that Block Island is destined to become a great watering place. New hotels and cottages are already being talked of and $4,000 an acre is being asked for land along the cliffs.

People who are compelled to drive horses across the temporary bridge to Laurel Hill claim that they are afraid their horses will fall and be injured. An attempt will be made to make the bridge safer for travel by horse and carriage.

The common council committee is working on the street problem and when the work is completed the duplication of names of local streets will have been done away with for all time.

The first of the new postal cards are to be printed next week but will not be received at the local postoffice for some time to come.

C. W. Johnson of the Wauregan house received a bass weighing 4½ pounds, from a friend at Watch Hill.

Very good peaches are selling at the local markets for five cents a quart and the demand is heavy.

Saturday, August 28, 1875—Capt James E. Carberry of this city has bought the schooner Silver Dart of Newport, on private terms, and will use her in the fish and oyster trade.

Paving stone being used on Union street are being received daily from Mystic.

The Old Lyme and Norwich croquet clubs played a tournament on the local court and Norwich was victor in both cases, winning the match. The first was closely contested but Norwich maintained the lead throughout the game. The second game was easier for Norwich and Old Lyme was held to only ten wickets.

Ice was plentiful in this section last winter and local dealers have been sending ice to southern cities which have run short of their frozen supply.

There has been a large attendance at the meetings at the Willimantic Camp Grounds, this week. Trains have run with big passenger lists and with fine weather the meeting have been more largely attended than in past years.

Nanking Once Had 4,000,000

Nanking, the "southern capital" of China, was founded by the first emperor of the Ming dynasty, who came to the throne in 1368. It was built on the site of a city known to be 2,000 years old. At one time Nanking was said to have a population of 4,000,000. The Tai Ping rebels stormed the city in 1823 and swept away its magnificent buildings, including the famous porcelain pagoda.

FITTING UP THE NURSERY

Dear Social Corner Members: Nothing can possibly be too beautiful or too dainty for the first baby, and because, as a bride the average girl has revelled in her charming household appointments, she instinctively turns toward the frilly, lacy, beribboned trays and baskets and bonnets. In making her preparations for the royal new comer forgetting the simple and homely test "Will it wash." Now the most unobstrusive baby in the world creates a disconcerting amount of laundering, and the mother herself, after her arrival, will have neither time nor strength to be fixing over fussy baskets or starching fresh curtains for Her Excellency's bassinet. Moreover the inevitable habit common to all babies, of outgrowing their earlier quarters almost before they are used to them is a factor seldom reckoned with by the prospective young mother.

There is a great deal to be added to the ordinary house equipment when baby comes. The practical mother will try to plan, so that as little as possible of this expense must be repeated the second and third year. Instead of a temporary bassinet or cradle, therefore why not start with a roomy white enameled crib, the kind that has let down sides, high enough, when raised to prevent even a year old baby from falling out? Such a crib may be used till baby is five years without additional expense. "But," someone may protest, "with a baby basket one may move them from room to room wherever one happens to be. A crib must stay in the bedroom." Very true but why not utilize a strong clean, new clothes basket which can be bought for little more than a dollar, or better still investigate some of the splendid screened boxes on rubber tired wheels, which are combined cribs, porch-pen play boxes, and folding beds and can easily be taken traveling? All these provide protection from flies and mosquitoes by their screened sides and mosquitoe bar tops; and by substitution in the day time of a board flooring over the springs, instead of the mattress, are admirably suitable for either indoor or outdoor use when mother is busy. Being raised several inches from the floor they escape drafts and dirt. At night they can be rolled close to mother's bedside, occupying, nevertheless, for less space than a crib or child's bed.

A lovely white wicker stand for baby's clothing and dressing accessories can be bought for $10. One such stand is square with four compartments that moves outward by means of the pivoted legs. It can be used for sewing when the baby has outgrown it. But I would take the same $10 and invest it in a neat set of drawers which could always be useful, and pass on from one child to the next generation.

The money that would be needed for lace, and pale blue silk and padding, and ribbon to trim the first style of baby clothes holder could be invested, or a small portion of it, in an oblong white enamel tray on which to collect everything for the bath before the august ceremony.

ETHELYN.

STUDYING THE WILD FLOWERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I feel like a "slacker" for not writing before. My intentions to write have been good but they have gone with all other good intentions to help make that noted pavement.

I've been very much interested in the letters relating to the wild flowers. At one time I made quite a study of botany and packed away in the attic of my old home is an herbarium of more than 300 specimens, mounted and labeled.

Some part of nearly every summer was spent at my grandfather's in Foster. There I found many flowers among them some of the orchids the sisters have spoken of, the fringed purple, yellow and white, also rattlesnake plantain, arethusia and pogonia. I also found the purple fringed near the brook that flows through Twice Twenty's land.

I felt like a discoverer when I analyzed the beautiful fringed polygala and found the fertile flowers on the long subterranean roots.

Frost weed was another surprise with the bit of ice clasped in its roots. The common weeds are interesting when studied. My father helped me to know the trees by pointing out characteristics of different trees as we were riding. Now the autos go so fast you can hardly tell a birch from a pine.

The horse was slow but there were compensations. It its not too late would like to say "thank you" to Whirlwind for my card; it made me feel as if I belonged.

I was going to tell of one of my aids in canning but have written so much will save that for next time.

TWICE IN THIS WOMAN'S LIFE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her from Sickness to Health

Ellensburg, Washington.—"When I was first coming into womanhood I suffered terribly every month. My mother did everything she could think of, so she took me to several doctors and they only helped me a little. Mother was talking to another lady about my condition and she told mother of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mother got me six bottles and at the end of the first month I was much better, so I kept on taking it until I had no more pains. When I got married and had my first child I was in terrible pain so that it was impossible for me to do my housework. I thought of how the Vegetable Compound had been of so much benefit to me when I was a girl, so I went to Perier's Drug-Store and got six bottles. It sure did help me and I still take it. I am a well woman today and I can't say too much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will answer any letter that comes to me to answer about what your medicine has done for me."—Mrs. WILLIAM CARVES, R.F.D. No. 2, Ellensburg, Wash.

VISITOR TO NEW LONDON BEACH PAYS FOR THEFT FROM BATH-HOUSE

(Special to the Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 28.—Morris Brennan, 28, married, and the father of a 4-years-old child, confessed himself a thief, in the police court this morning. That was the wisest thing he could do evidently, for it spared him the penalty the superior court would have meted out to him next month, if he went before that tribunal, on trial for the theft of diamond rings worth $200 or more which Brennan stole from the bathhouse of Mrs. Lena Shaperow at Ocean Beach a few days ago. Brennan was slick in getting away with the rings, but, like many other crooks, he did not cover his tracks. Brennan has relatives by marriage in New London, and he came here for a little vacation. He went to Ocean Beach with a lad named Vogt. Brennan and Vogt saw that Mrs. Shaperow's bathhouse contained a shelf on which lay a pocketbook so they stole the money-holder which proved to be the receptacle of two shiners that were given to her husband, a man in the United States navy. Mrs. Shaperow declared today that the rings were the only articles of value she ever possessed and these she was determined to keep. Brennan was the organizer of the robbery. When he was told that the pocketbook was in the bathhouse he conceived the idea of making a hook from the belt buckle of Vogt and attaching a few yards of twine so it he threw the hook into the house and fastened it around the pocketbook, drawing the latter through a window. Then the diamonds were discovered. These Brennan kept, giving the Vogt boy a small amount of change when the pocketbook contained. The pair left for New Haven, but boasts Vogt had been about the bathhouse and suspicion was attracted to him. He and Brennan were questioned at New Haven and apprehended here.

In the meantime Brennan had accustomed his wife with the fact that he had stolen the diamonds. He showed them to her in New Haven. She accepted him, even when the rings began disappearing, without demur, and when she was suspected of stealing them herself she insisted to her husband that Brennan confess. Brennan, on that advice, went to Hartford and from that point headed the procession containing the party who were saying good-bye to the rings. The rings were found in Hartford did not deceive the police here. They began their investigation at the base and soon learned that Brennan and the Vogt lad came from New Haven. There the pair was hunted and found. After pleading Brennan to make a copy of the words contained in the note the similarity of writing was conclusive proof of Brennan's guilt. Still he would not admit the theft till he was brought into court here. Then he broke down and confessed like a kid. As he had never been arrested for an offense against the law and has a wife and a small child, he was allowed to plead guilty of the theft of goods valued at $50 so that the police court might take jurisdiction. This he did and was fined $100 and ordered to pay costs. A suspended sentence of six months was also passed upon him. Relatives paid his fine. The Vogt boy is to be presented to the juvenile court Monday afternoon.

Salvatore Capello was charged with violation of the parking ordinance but sentence was suspended as he violated the ordinance through misappre-

Albert Baton, of Westerly; Mrs. Eugene Fraser, Groton; Frank Turano, Westerly, and Henry Purdy, Groton, were pediatric discharged today at the Memorial hospital.

Norma Gillette, year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Illing, 230 Fulman street, died last night at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. The infant [illegible] ill about one month. Mr. [illegible] instructor in science and mathematics at Chapman Technical high school.

The gas screw sloop Pocomoke, one of the seized liquor craft, was sold at auction at the customs house wharf this afternoon, the craft being purchased by Attorney Louis Halle, of New York, representing the owners of the [illegible]. The price paid was $2,050. The [illegible] has been seized four times as a rum runner.

Two youths were taken into custody this afternoon by Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray charged with theft. They were turned over to the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield for prosecution.

A public service car owned and operated by John Elwood, 10 Alewife avenue, Ocean Beach, struck Mrs. Margaret Cleary, 23 Ocean avenue, as it passed Miss Cleary's home on Ocean avenue. Mrs. Cleary is now a patient at Home Memorial hospital suffering from a fracture of both legs. Mrs. Cleary was crossing Ocean avenue, about 100 feet south of Lee avenue, on her way to her home when the machine driven by Elwood and headed in a southerly direction came along. Mrs. Cleary was caught in the middle of the highway and struck with force, being hurled to the ground. Elwood brought his machine to a stop as soon as possible and had Mrs. Cleary taken to her home, where she was attended by a physician, who found both legs broken. She was then transferred to the hospital. Mrs. Cleary is the widow of Thomas P. Cleary, a former New London alderman.

Misses Helen and Catherine Reagan, of 341 Montauk avenue, are spending a week at Atlantic City.

Edgar W. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Clark, 215 Vauxhall street, and Miss Hilda M. Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Young, 23 Ocean avenue, were married last evening, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, at the residence of the bride's parents. George T. McDougall was best man and Miss Patricia Young, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Mr. Clark is employed at the Robertson Paper Co. plant, Montville.

Charles V. Alquist, 43 Woodbridge street, and Miss Nettie Boyd, daughter of Mrs. Helen Wade, 92 Willetts avenue, were married last evening at the parsonage of the Montauk Avenue Baptist church by Rev. Horatio J. Chase, Richard E. Wade and Miss Hazel Wade, brother and sister of the bride, respectively, were best man and bridesmaid.

Harry Emmerich has returned to his home, 193 Connecticut avenue, and two weeks' visit in Canada.

Alexander Damanbrowski has sold to Sidney H. Miner a tract of land on a proposed street at the extension of Evelyn street.

The funeral of Mrs. Louisa H. Manwaring, widow of Henry H. Manwaring, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. George W. Peabody, 31 Franklin street, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. The bearers were Richard W. Mansfield, William Carpenter, Fred L. Newton and Gurdon Pendleton. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Miss Margaret Mulcahy, of 16 Stillman street, Westerly; Howard Edward Carmichael, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Miss Dorothy Darrow, 312 Main street; Master Harold Kenyon, Ashaway, R. I., and Miss Catherine Moriarty, 342 Montauk avenue, patients at Lawrence hospital, were able to return to their respective homes today.

Three thefts of a minor nature were reported to the police this evening. John Russo, 318 Huntington street, reported that late this afternoon his bicycle was stolen from the yard of Patrick Devine, 27 Brewer street. Later in the day Abraham Bromstein, New York, formerly of this city, who is in New London in the interest of some of his real estate holdings, declared that a copper boiler, which had been installed in the middle tenement of a three story residence, 37 Tilley street, had been stolen while the place was not occupied. The third report was made by Maurice A. Sherman, Hotel Mohican, who stated that while his automobile was parked on Meridian street last night a thief stole a spare tire.

John Sousa, of Waterford, operator of a public service car, with stand at the union station, will be in the police court tomorrow morning charged with evasion of responsibility. Sousa, who is also a constable in the town of Waterford, is accused by Harry S. Cooke, 50 Fair Harbour place, of operating the public service car away, after it had collided with the complainant's car, without stopping to determine the extent of damage occasioned. Sousa denies that his machine was in collision with any car and declares that he was the only driver of the machine during the day. Cooke was operating his machine southerly on Bank street, late this afternoon and between State and Golden streets, Cooke declares that a public service car, traveling northerly collided with Cooke's machine and that the driver failed to stop. Cooke returned to the corner of State and Bank streets and reported the accident to Traffic Officer Jos. Courtney, the latter having recalled on of Sousa operating his car from Bank into State street by a few minutes prior to Cooke making the complaint and also recalling Cooke's car having rounded the corner from state street a short time before. Officer Courtney declared that Sousa's car was the only public service vehicle to come into Bank street into State from the time that Cooke's car passed in the opposite direction. Cooke also reported the alleged violation of the law to the state police at Groton and Officer Bernard Kenerson, who went to Sousa's home and ordered him to make a report of the accident to the police station, stated that there were no marks on Sousa's car, but from the condition of Sousa the officer was reasonably certain that the accused had been drinking.

In the Groton town court late this afternoon Samuel Santanella, 41 Shaw street, George Librizzi, 135 Jefferson avenue, and a public service car driver together with Antone and Dominick Cervola, Center Groton, all charged with transportation and keeping liquor with intent to sell, were before Judge Cornelius C. Costello. In the case of Santanella the accused pleaded guilty to both counts and a fine of $200 and costs was imposed on each count. In the case of Librizzi a nolle was entered. The Cervola brothers were fined $150 and costs on each count each, so that the total amount that was paid into the court for liquor law violation was $1,014.

The accused were arrested two weeks ago following the raiding of a barn in Center Groton by prohibition agents and state police of the Groton barracks and where it was alleged liquor belonging to Santanella was stored there and sold as the demand for it occurred. When the state police and prohibition enforcement agents approached the barn an automobile bearing registration held by Librizzi was observed leaving the barn and when officers put chase to the car the driver abandoned it and fled into the woods. The machine, which was filled with liquor and beer, together with labels, corks, etc., was seized and Librizzi held as owner of the car. Santanella was held for owning the liquor and the Cervola brothers were taken into custody charged with the same offense as Santanella and Librizzi as it was claimed they rented the Center Groton barn to Santanella for purposes of violation of the liquor law. Santanella and Librizzi will also be arraigned before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran tomorrow on the same charges against them in the Groton court this afternoon, but it is understood, that in view of the fact that the Groton court disciplined he accused that the case in thefedrcal court will be nolled.

VIOLATED RULES OF ROAD DRIVER FINED IN COURT

(Special to the Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 28.—Louis Itzovitch, while operating an automobile early in July, ran down on Outer Bank street, Arthur Martin, of Waterford, who was riding a bicycle. Martin was thrown and sustained a broken leg which put him in the hospital and kept him there until a few days ago.

Itzovitch was in the police court today and there was fined $10 for passing an intersecting street without reducing speed and giving warning of the approach of an automobile. Martin has brought suit for damages against Itzovitch and that case will come before the superior court, civil side, next month. The original complaint against Itzovitch charged him with reckless operation of a car, but that complaint was amended today and the violation of the rules of the road was charged. He demurred to the complaint, but the demurrer was overruled.

ITALIANS CELEBRATE FOLK HOLIDAY IN OLDTIME STLYE

ROME, Aug. 28 (AP)—The traditional St. John's Eve festival one of the many quaint religious and folk holidays which have survived into the 20th century from the Italian middle ages, was celebrated this year with a wealth of popular gusto which belied the tale of Rome's fast growing modernization.

Emulating the example of their ancestors, scores of thousands gathered in the spacious square of the Basilica of St. John Lateran and, with whistles, horns, bells and liberal wine-bibbing, made merry almost through the night with a spirit more reminiscent of 500 years ago than of today.

Great torches flickering from atop the ancient Roman walls, upon which the dignified facade of St. John's looks down, lighted up a milling mass of old and young, all making as much noise as possible. Rickety booths and street hucksters sold bells and penny-banks made of rough clay and adorned with crude peasant-made designs. Other sidewalk merchants did a thriving business in fresh lavender sprigs and carnations, for it is a tradition of the holiday that the bethrothed—and nearly bethrothed—exchange carnations.

Older holidayers observed more carefully another of the St. John's Eve traditions by liberally patronizing booths which sold pungantly flavored snails and slices of pork, cut from carcasses fresh from the roasting spit.

RATS IN COAL MINES WARN MEN OF IMPENDING DANGER

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 28 (AP)—Rats in the anthracite coal mines on many occasions have demonstrated that they are friends of the miners in giving the warning of approaching danger. A recent instance occurred in the Empire Colliery.

Anthony Kopnski and his son while eating lunch were attracted by the peculiar actions of two rats which continually annoyed them. Five times they drove the rats away by throwing pieces of coal at them, but each time the rodents returned. This aroused the suspicions of the elder Kopnski, who, directing his son to follow him, went out of the pit.

They had proceeded only about 20 feet when the roof crashed in, bringing down such a mass of coal and rock that would require three weeks to remove it.

The ability of the rats to warn the miners of approaching danger has resulted in many of the men making pets of them. The average miner hesitates to kill a rat, especially if he is working in a chamber where there is bad air or gas.

MANY AMERICANS PREPARE FOR HUNTING IN SCOTLAND

EDINBURGH, Aug. 28 (AP)—A larger number of American sportsmen will be in Scotland this year than ever before for the grouse shooting and deer stalking. The usual occupants of big shooting boxes have renewed their tenancies of "shooting boxes" and in addition others have taken up several smaller ones. Rents have increased considerably since pre-war days and a conservative estimate places the amount of money which goes to Scotland during the short season at $3,750,000.

R. H. McCurdy of New York has taken about 34,000 acres in Banffshire from the Duke of Richmond for shooting and J. H. Steers has leased Glenkindie in Aberdeen hire from Lord Burgh. E. K. Litchfield will shoot with his friends over the Euchless estate and Achnagairn mansion has been leased by C. W. Ogden of New York.

Many Scottish owners are taking friends up to their own estates and several wealthy Britons have obtained estates not required by American sportsmen.

U. S. DENTISTS HELP PLAN INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (AP)—Three American dentists recently held a series of conferences in Berlin as part of a European tour for the purpose of studying the stomatological movement in Europe and organizing an international congress to be held in Paris in 1927.

The group, headed by Prof. Alfred I. Asgis of New York, represented the American Stomatological committee in Europe. Other members were Dr. Elmer E. Chambers of Warren, Ohio, and Dr. Ferdearle I. Fisher of Trenton, N. J.

One feature of the visit was the examination of the teeth of the largest elephant in the Berlin Zoo. This beast, formerly one of the most tractable in the menagerie, had proven so vicious during recent weeks that the Zoo authorities were contemplating shooting it. However, the animal's life may be spared, for the American specialists agreed with he German dentists that a dental operation would restore the elephant to normal behavior. It was decided to perform the operation in the near future.

CELTIC CONGRESS FEARS IRISH LANGUAGE DYING OUT

DUBLIN, Aug. 28 (AP)—There was recently concluded in Dublin an interesting congress representing all sections of the Celtic race, delegates attending from Gaelic Scotland, from Wales, and from Brittany. The discussions were largely concerned with the preservation of the Irish language. Eamon De Valera said that emigration from the Irish speaking districts of Ireland was the greatest difficulty to be contended with. He was satisfied, he declared, that those at the head of affairs, could, if they wished, get the money to establish industries to keep the Gael at home.

Other speakers said the language was dying because the native speakers set no value on it. Professor Gruffydd from Wales said, that any amount teaching of the language in the schools of teaching of the language in the schools was of no more use in saving it "than a tinkling cymbal" unless there were put into it something that gave dignity to the people who spoke it.

It was urged that emigration from the Irish speaking districts should be stopped. A resolution was adopted unanim usly declaring that Irish should be essential in the final examinations for degrees in every college for doctors, lawyers and engineers and that laws should be passed accordingly.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Announcement

Mr. Alexander F. Shaw of Providence, R. I., has sold his summer residence located at Crescent Beach near Niantic to the Berin Brothers' Manufacturing Co., of East Hampton, Conn.

This place is one of the finest summer houses at this popular beach and the Berin family will take immediate possession, he terms of sale are not made public.

The sale was negotiated through the real estate agency of Mrs. Rosa E. Burton.

Broadway Theater

Betty Compson and Raymond Griffith, the funny fellow with the silk hat, are co-featured in the principal roles of the Paramount picture, Paths to Paradise, which comes to the Broadway theater for a 4 days run on Sunday.

Paths to Paradise, a riotously funny crook comedy, was adapted for the screen by Keene Thompson from Paul Armstrong's play, The Heart of a Thief. Clarence Badger, director of New Lives for Old and Eve's Secret and who was also associated over a period of years with Mack Sennett as a producer of laugh films, directed the production.

Fred Kelsey is cast as one of Betty's confederates in the production, while Tom Santschi has the role of the detective whom Griffith impersonates in a successful attempt to get his hands on some valuable gems at a fashionable reception. Bert Woodruff is the owner of the jewels over which Betty and Ray wage a regular battle of wits.

If there ever was a picture with a hand-picked cast this is it. Remember Ray Griffith in Forty Winks, and The Night Club?—the fact that he's in the cast is an entertainment guarantee for any picture.

An augumented orchestra is again featured for Sunday night only in addition to other pictures.

Breed Theater

A girl's heart swaying between the choice of a man of culture and refinement and a caveman of the proletariat is the theme of Proud Flesh, a Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer production which comes to the Breed theater on Sunday.

The picture was directed by King Vidor, whose last film was Wife of the Centaur. Eleanor Boardman plays a somewhat different role as Fernanda a sophisticated girl who, is eventually carried away by the caveman tactics of Patrick O'Malley.

The character O'Malley is depicted by Pat O'Malley, and in this role he awakens in Fernanda desires which overcome the environment in which she has been reared.

She turns from Don Jaime, a suave Spaniard, played by Harrison Ford, to O'Malley. Don Jaime, although a man of her world, is unable to compete with O'Malley, whose mannerisms are indicative of the class he represents, when Fernanda's heart prompts her choice.

The scenes are laid in and near San Francisco and include a thrilling spectacle of the San Francisco earthquake and fire. The character Fernanda is born and this carnage, but taken to Spain on her birth. On her return to her native land she meets O'Malley, and the call of the primeval predominates despite the presence of Don Jaime, an ardent suitor who has followed her from Spain.

Proud Flesh is from the novel of that name by Lawrence Rising, and is one of the most popular books of the year. Mr. Rising, and Mr. Vidor in the film, have treated the story in a humorous manner, making sin, but good-humored thrusts at both ends of the social ladder.

7-11 Show Speedy Smith

Smith is his sure enough name "Speedy" is the cognomen that was handed to him on a carnival lot, when as an eight year old Pickaninny, he showed up on the Ballyhoo stand of the Plantation show with a contract calling for eight dollars per week for doing his assigned part in the performance, not more than once an hour each and every week day. Sixty-six performances to the week!! Wouldn't that make the walking delegate of equity, or any other union have a headache? But it is the sober truth. That's actually how "Speedy" became a performer.

Contrary to his name, Mr. Smith, has not made speed on his upward climb in his chosen profession. Rather, he has been slow and certain. Up through the minstrels, through vaudeville, into the realms of musical comedy as part owner of the production in which he appears. Is the terse history of one of the few black face comedians who has personality and talent enough to carry the comedy burden of a whole evening's show to the complete satisfaction of the most exacting patron.

"Speedy" does justify his monicker, as it is called in certain N. Y. circles, in that he speedily turns dull moments into laughing ones; the speed with which he can detect the need of comedy in a situation, and the speed with which he puts it there. And, moreover, he is one of the few burnt cork artists, of whom none will say that he reminds them of "So-and-So." He is not an imitator, or prototype of any known comedian. He is just himself, a king of comedy in his own right; and there are no clouds on the title.

In fact all the "Seven-Eleven" principals are "Face cards" in the theatrical deck. You will enjoy every one of these folks, and "Speedy" more than all, for despite the name, he gets laughs without once resorting to the game for which the show is named. He and the forty odd others are to appear at the Palace Theater, Tuesday, September 1st, matinee and night and metropolitan and trade paper critics, say it's great.

POETRY

"There Is No Death"

There is no death! the stars go down
To rise upon some other shore,
And bright in Heaven's jeweled crown,
They shine forevermore.

There is no death! the dust we tread,
Shall change beneath the summer showers,
To golden grain, or mellow fruit,
Or rainbow-tinted flowers

The granite rocks disorganize
To feed the hungry moss they bear;
The forest leaves rink daily life
From out the viewless air.

There is no death! the leaves may fall,
The flowers may fade and pass away;
They only wait, through wintry hours,
The coming of the May.

There is no death! an angel form
Walks o'er the earth with silent tread
He bears our best-loved things away,
And then we call them dead.

He leaves our hearts all desolate,
He plucks our fairest, sweetest flowers
Transplanted into bliss, they now
Adorn immortal bowers.

The birdlike voice, whose joyous tone
Made glad the scene of sin and strife
Sings now its everlasting song
Amid the tree of life.

Where'er he sees a smile too bright
Or soul too pure for taint or vice,
He bears it to that world of light
To dwell in Paradise.

Born into that undying life,
They leave us but to come again,
With joy we welcome them the same
Except in sin and pain.

And ever near us, though unseen,
The dear, immortal spirits tread—
For all the boundless universe
Is life;—there are no dead!

—F. L. Stanford

A WANT AD

I want to buy a house—
Amid house,
Standing back among the trees,
With larkspur by the path
And clover for the bees.
I want an orchard at the side
With a crumbling cobble wall,
Where the autumn blackbirds call.
I want a house with quaint, low rooms
And leaded window panes,
With Windsor chairs and ancient rugs
Before a pine-log blaze
I want a house where gentle ghosts
Can flit in and out,
Or sit before my door
And whisper softly happy things
That happened here before.

—Lilla Frost Sprague in Boston Transcript

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Servant—"Rome is burning."

Nero—"Then my wife must be cooking it."—Penn State Froth.

Q.—What is a Plymouth Rock hen?

A.—One that lays hard-boiled eggs.—The Progressive Grocer.

Hazel—Their engagement was quite a surprise.

Helen—To him or to her?—Life.

First man—What kind of leather makes the best shoes?

Second man—I don't know, but banana skins make the best slippers—Exchange.

Saleslady—Really, madam, this evening coat makes an entirely different woman of you.

Madam's Husband—That settles it. Take it, Madge—never mind the price.—Boston Transcript.

"Mac, I'm very sorry to find you in this state of intoxication."

"We're verra sorry, Jamie."

"Yes, Mac, I am really very sorry."

"Ah, weel, if we're verra verra sorry I'll forgive ye."—Stray Stories.

"My mother went to the symphony concert," boasts the first little girl. "Did yours?"

"Didn't need to," responded the second little girl. "We get it all over the radiator."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"You should never point, Johnnie," said Mrs. Brown as they left the store. "It is very rude."

"But what are you to do, Ma, when you don't know the name of the thing?"

"Why, just let the [illegible] certain until he comes to the right one."—Good Hardware.

The Eskimo and most Mexican tribesmen have broad, flat noses. This is due to the fact that the mothers of those races carry their babies snuggling against the shoulders or breast at the time when the nose is in its most plastic state—the frequent pressure making the nose a rather shapeless blob.

University of Washington library officials say that producers of books in the days of Swift and Dryden put more durable binding on their books than printing establishments now do. As evidence it is pointed out that one book published in 1683 and several issued shortly after that are on the library's shelves for circulation.

Gratien Moreau, of Redwood, Cal., inventor of scores of different devices for as many different purposes, sacrificed his life in his inventive genius. He was killed by a device he had perfected to save holdup victims. It consisted of a glass cylinder and a plunger, which exploded when the arm was raised, the idea being to send a bullet into any one who might be standing in front of the wearer.

Among the Tourareg race, a tribe of namadic warriors inhabiting the Sahara, the women rule supreme. They have a voice in all public and family conclaves and they are completely mistress of the tents and their families. At meals the women eat first, and then the men and children have their food.

Return to a free gold market in London, abolished two years ago on account of the war, has brought back an old and picturesque custom. This is the posting on the notice board of the Bank of England's sales and purchases of bar gold and sovereigns and takes place in the ancient yard of this famous institution. At 4 o'clock every afternoon, when the notices are posted, groups of messengers from the numerous financial houses arrive, each taking a note book and carefully copying the figures. This has been the customs dating back hundreds of years.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York

Stocks irregular; Chrysler soars 9 1-2 points to record high.

Bonds steady; Mexican issues rally on debt report.

Foreign exchanges mixed; Scandinavian currencies react.

Cotton lower; easier spot markets.

Sugar featureless.

Coffee easy; European selling.

Chicago

Wheat easier; predictions larger receipts.

Corn declined; September liquidation.

Cattle lower; slow demand.

Hogs higher; light weights firm.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Alternating periods of weakness and strength, reflecting the shifting tides of speculative sentiment, again characterized today's stock market. Public participation was on a reduced scale, the day's sales falling well below one and one half million shares.

An outburst of strength at the opening probably reflected the allayment of fears over an increase in the New York federal reserve re-discount rate, which was announced as unchanged after the close yesterday. The buying was largely of a professional character with the sharpest gains being recorded in stocks in which pools are known to be operating.

A sudden bear drive against American Can which cracked from 239 1-2 to 231, turned the course of prices downward around the end of the first hour. Other high priced specialties were liquidated freely and fell back two to six points but the general list offered stubborn resistance to selling pressure and the recessions, as a rule, were held to a point or less. Meanwhile bullish operators continued in some of the low and medium priced rails and specialties. Slightly better support was forthcoming for American Can. After midday, the stock closing at 233 1-4 for a net loss of nearly five points.

Except for moderate recessions in the shares of some of the hard coal carrying railroads, the announcement that anthracite miners would suspend operations on September 1 was practically disregarded.

Heavy accumulation of Frisco common, which touched another record high at 102 1-2 was accompanied by reports that the directors, at their meeting next week, would not only increase the annual dividend from $5 to $7, but probably dispose of the road's holdings of the common stock of the New Mexico, and Arizona Land company or scale down the bond debt through the issuance of additional capital stock.

Rails in general moved in rather narrow and irregular limits. One of the features of that group was the heavy buying of Atlanta, Birmingham, and Atlantic, which was run up two points to 7 1-2 and then eased slightly on profit taking.

Individual developments influenced the buying of several industrial stocks. Otis Steel preferred was run up 6 1-2 points to a record high at 97 1-2 and Midland Steel Products preferred soared nearly seven points to 145 1-2 on the opening of negotiations here for a merger of those companies and the Trumbull Steel company. Revival of activity in Certain-teed Products reflected the directors' decision to retire the outstanding bonds. Both the preferred issues touched new high levels for the year.

Renewed buying of Chrysler, which closed 5 1-4 points higher at 146 1-4, after attaining a record top at 149 1-2, was in anticipation of a retirement of the preferred stock. Other strong spots included Mack Trucks, White Motors, Atlantic Refining, the Commercial Solvents issues, Gabriel Snubbers, Pittsburgh Terminal Coal and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, all up 2 to 7 1-3 points.

International Business Machines, American Water Works, Nash Motors, Yellow Cab Manufacturing and General Electric yielded 2 to 7 points on profit taking.

Call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent. and then dropped to 4. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. Dealers quoted bankers' acceptances an average of one-quarter of one per cent. higher, asking rates ranging from 3 1-4 per cent. for 30 days to 3 3-4 for five and six month maturities.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling and French francs eased to $4.85 3-16 and 4.69 1-2 cents, respectively. Scandinavian rates, which were strong earlier in the week also showed moderate recessions, Polish Zlotys advanced 1-2 cent to 17 3-4 cents on the announcement that a $10,000,000 credit for the purpose of stabilizing exchange had been planned at the disposal of the bank of Poland by the New York Federal Reserve bank.

TAFTVILLE

Mrs. Thomas Grimshaw and Miss Ruth Grimshaw, Talcott avenue are visiting in Fall River and Newport.

Miss Hazel Chalmers, Disco, and the Misses Marguerite and Elsie Mahoney returned to their home on B street following a four weeks automobile trip through the Providence of Quebec.

NORWICH TOWN

The meeting of the Young People's Endeavor Society of the Methodist Episcopal church will be omitted for the next six months. President, Miss Theodora Brown; vice president, Miss Hilda Minor; secretary, Miss Hazel Chalmers, treasurer, Edward Hazard, also the following committees: Miss Isabel Gimbell, social; next meeting, Mrs Florence Bennett; assisted by Mrs. Wilson.

At the cafeteria supper held under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian association Thursday evening, Miss Harriet Carrie, retiring president, was presented with a gift by the association. Miss Mary Hall, the general secretary, was also remembered. Miss George Manning was in charge of the supper and Mrs. Richard Carter was assisted by a committee. The supper was served from 5:30 o'clock and about the evening. There were 75 persons present. Bouquets of sweet peas were attractively used for the table decorations. Miss William Weaver was in charge of the dining room. Miss Doris Rose. The tables were prettily decorated with baskets of crepe paper, also dahlias, gathered from the flower garden of Mrs. Florence Vermenon of Laurel Hill avenue.

Among the gifts received by the association were a number of books received by Miss Hall from persons attending the Silver Bay conferences. Following the supper, the members remained in the dining room and enjoyed a social time with music, games and community singing. Miss Mary Hall was in charge of the program and Miss Isabel Gimbell was at the piano. Miss Florence Rogers was in charge of the kitchen and Miss Hazel Chalmers was in charge of the dining room. Miss Isabel Gimbell was in charge of the program and Miss Florence Coffee, Mrs. Lewis Aldrich and Edward Howe; punch, Bessie Bacon; candy, Millard Manning and Mark Aldrich.

CHARGE GROTON COUPLE ISSUED BAD CHECKS

Checks, cashed in the last meeting in Denver, ended Wednesday, with the arrest of Jack Tack, 24, an ex-Marine from Idaho Falls, and Mrs. Clara Tack, his wife, of Groton, Conn.

Word followed the return of Tack to Knoxville, Tenn., bank. that a Pittsburgh woman recently had cashed for Mrs. Tack. The check was signed "Mrs. Harry Purdy."

Two couples are alleged to have confessed that nine months ago, when Tack was discharged from the Marine Corps, they were married and went to Denver. They hired an automobile there, then told detectives and started East, purchasing new license plates at Knoxville, Tenn.

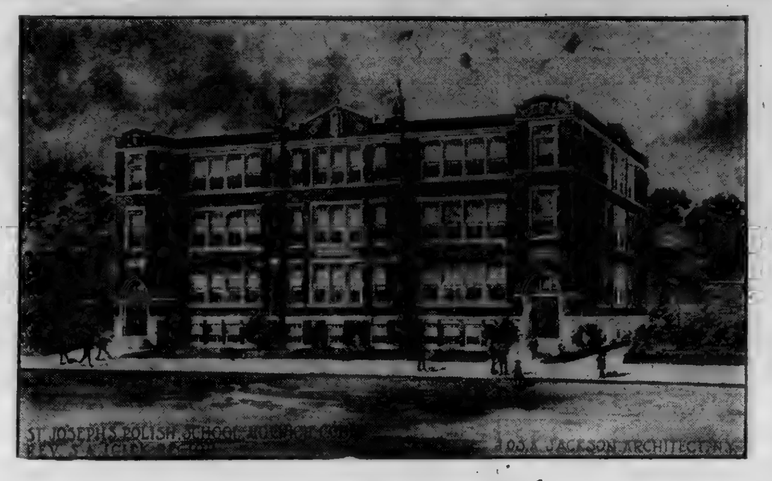
Tack and his wife said that they could not estimate the number of checks cashed, as they kept no record. The automobile, which detectives found stored in a Wilmerding garage, was confiscated and will be returned to the owner.

Among the effects of the pair were found many pawn tickets and a book of blank checks. The checks were signed "Mrs. Harry Purdy," and were ready for use, detectives say. The detectives say they also found records of two loans, one for $225 and the other for $450, made to the couple before they left Connecticut.

SIX FATAL ACCIDENTS IN STATE LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Six fatal accidents were included in the 484 automobile crashes reported to the state motor vehicle department last week. The fatalities occurred at Middletown, West Hartford, Windham, New London, Stamford, and Mt. Carmel.

Fourteen cities reported 247 of the total number of accident. Hartford led all cities with sixty three, Bridgeport was second with forty three and New Haven, third, with forty two. No accidents were reported from Winsted during the week. Other cities reported as follows: Waterbury, 23; New Britain 16; New London 9; Norwich 4; Norwalk 6; Stamford 12; Greenwich 7; Middletown 6 Meriden 5; Danbury 6.



NEW ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL AS IT WILL APPEAR WHEN COMPLETED

BISHOP NILAN COMING FOR LAYING OF CORNERSTONE FOR NEW SCHOOL

Announcement was made Friday evening by Rev. S. A. Icick, rector of St. Joseph's church, that the ceremony connected with the laying of the corner stone for the handsome $150,000 Polish school now in process of construction opposite the church will take place September 20th. Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan, bishop of the Hartford diocese, will preach the sermon and the general public will be invited to attend the ceremony. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The afternoon's programme will include a parade of all the Polish societies in the city. The detailed programme will be announced by Rev. Father Icick as soon as it is completed.

The construction work on the new school is progressing rapidly under the direction of Contractor Patrick F. Sweeney and the building will soon be roofed in. It is expected that the new school will be practically completed by the end of November.

When completed the new school will be one of the finest in this locality. It will be modern in every respect. Three stories in height with a large basement, the school will have 17 class rooms, with a bowling alley and several smaller rooms for the principals office and for club purposes.

The new school will be of fire-proof construction and of tapestry brick. The interior finish will be of yellow pine with oak floors and the latest in heating and plumbing fixtures will be installed.

MYSTERIOUS HAPPENINGS ON LEFFINGWELL ROAD

Last Sunday night three young men from one of the farms in Leffingwell finding that the atmosphere around the farmhouse was a little too close set out for a walk on the state highway in the direction of Norwich. They carried two sticks which would stand in good stead in any hand to hand encounter. A dog followed but he turned out to be more of a hindrance than a help.

They had gone almost as far as the cemetery and were already on their way back when one of them in turning around noticed a number of dim forms behind them, which, for the moment, he thought were threes. To verify his conjecture he turned around again after proceeding a few paces forward and to his surprise discovered that the objects were moving in the same direction. By now it was apparent that they could not be trees and ghosts are out of the question. The one who had taken cognizance of all this hastily imparted his apprehensions to his companions and it was determined to stand aside and allow the procession to pass by. The dog was clinging near his masters and was shaking like a leaf.

Automobiles on the road at this hour were about as rare as skyscrapers in oBrneo. As both groups were without lights they could not make out each other's faces as they passed. It was so dark that one of those standing by mistook two of the moving party for a horse. Four tall masculine forms were counted as the same abreast of the three on the side. One of the four made the significant remark "Have you got it on you, pocket?" to a companion.

When the three combined on their way both groups were again moving in the same direction as before except that their relative positions were reversed. The larger group was outdistancing the smaller. The sounds of their voices had almost died out in the distance when the telephone wires began to vibrate very strongly as if struck by some blunt object. Although the sounds of their voices had died away the owners of the voices were still alive and were determined to intimidate those behind them by the highly specialized sport of hurling stones at innocent and ever useful telephone wires.

At a certain point near the road there is a small cave; the mischief makers now took their last stand in this place. As the marching three came past this point the four occupants feigned drunkenness. But even a deaf man could recognize the unreality in their voices.

Nothing has been head or seen of them since. Perhaps they follow this practice only on Sunday nights.

MOOSEHEART LEGION PLANS PAST REGENT'S NIGHT

The Women of Mooseheart Legion, Norwich Chapter, No. 124, met at Moose Home Thursday evening with Senior Regent Mrs. Mary Hunter presiding at which regular routine of business was transacted. A letter of interest was read in regard to Mooseheart, Moosehaven extension fund, which is for the old folks and young folks homes, at Mooseheart, Ills., and Moosehaven, Fla. The chapter voted to send a substantial check next month to be added to the fund. The next regular meeting September 10, will be Past Regents' Night and the entertainment committee have made a program for the occasion that no doubt will be pleasing to all present. A campaign for new members was opened at this week's meeting.

STATE POLICE GUARD MYSTIC STRIKE BREAKERS

All state policemen at the Groton barracks were stationed at the Mystic Manufacturing company plant at Mystic Friday in anticipation of any trouble that might arise there in connection with the importation of strike-breakers who are taking the place of weavers of the company who went on strike a few days ago. No trouble has been experienced as yet but company officials have requested the aid of the state police in protecting the strike-breakers.

WILL LEAVE FOR NEW HAVEN MONDAY

Rev. Leonel E. W. Mitchell rector of St. Andrews Church in Greeneville, is leaving Monday for New Haven, where he will assume his new duties as curate at Christ Church.

REID M'INTYRE BADLY HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Reid McIntyre of South Manchester, formerly of this city, was seriously injured at Jewett City, Friday afternoon, when the Chrysler sedan he was driving, in some way unaccounted for, ran into a slab on a loaded truck belonging to Mr. Torrance of Norwich. Witnesses said he was driving very slowly, and could not account for the accident. The slab went through the windshield, breaking off the steering wheel and striking Mr. McIntyre squarely in the chest. The accident happened in Sprandale opposite the home of William McNicol, who was well acquainted with him. He was carried into Mr. McNicol's home. The doctors and nurses were all away, but a doctor who happened to be driving through the town, stopped and offered his assistance. Miss Bessie McCluggage on duty at the Jewett City telephone exchange finally got Dr. Paul F. Gaule of Greeneville, and Miss Walsh, the acting district nurse was located. The Backus hospital ambulance carried Mr. McIntyre to the hospital.

With Mr. McIntyre were his wife, her mother, Mrs. Stewart Murray and the latter's grandson, whose name is West, both of Greeneville. The boy was riding behind Mr. McIntyre and was quick witted enough to drop off the seat to the bottom of the automobile or he would have been injured, also. Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre were visiting Mrs. Murray in Greeneville. The Murray family lived in Jewett City some years ago.

At a late hour Friday night Mr McIntyre was resting comfortably at the hospital. While a resident of this city Mr. McIntyre was employed as an engraver at the U. S. Finishing Co's plant in Greeneville and resided on Central avenue.

FOUGHT INTRODUCTION OF GAS IN STATE

Connecticut played an interesting part in the early history of gas, for our state was among the first to introduce its use. The introduction to gas into Connecticut, however, was not brought about without overcoming huge obstacles. Gas at the time it was first brought into this state was used for lighting purposes only and was not considered as a fuel for industrial and home heating as it is now. It happened therefore that the first objections to gas were really objections against the installations of brightly lights in Connecticut.

More than 100 years ago, there was circulated in Connecticut a paper which set forth the objections to gas in the following manner:

"A theorlogical objection: Artificial illumination is an attempt to interfere with the divine plan of the world, which had pre-ordained that it should be dark during the night.

"2. A medical objection: Emanations of illuminating gas are injurious. Lighted streets will incline people to remained out of doors, thus leading to increase of ailments through colds.

"3. A moral objection: The fear of darkness will vanish and drunkenness and depravity increase.

"4. Police objection: Horses will be frightened and thieves emboldened.

"5. Objections from the people: If streets are illuminated every night, such constant illumination will rob festive occasions of their charm."

OLD TOWN MILL WILL AGAIN OPERATE

City Manager William A. Holt, City Engineer George B. Watters and Director of Finance Carey Congdon of New London inspected the Old Town Mill in New London Thursday and settled upon arrangements for the exercises scheduled for Saturday to mark the restoration of the old mill and initial turning of the mill wheel after years of inactivity. Everything was found to be satisfactory and a vast improvement in the condition of the mill property.

Tuberculosis Associations.

Word has been received at the office of the state tuberculosis commission in the state capitol of the next meetings of both the national and the international tuberculosis associations. For the first time in several years these will be held in the same place, Washington, D. C., the session of the national following that of the international. The international meeting will be held September 3, and October 1 and 2, 1926, and the national October 4-8, 1926.

RELIEF CORPS RESUMES MEETINGS AFTER MONTH

After a vacation of a month Sedgwick Corps, No. 16, W. R. C., held its regular meeting Friday afternoon at the Buckingham Memorial with Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury, the president, in the chair. The meeting opened in the usual way, routine business transacted and ten applications of membership were received. The July supper, it was reported, yielded a goodly sum, so did the reunion dinners. A very pleasant time was reported for the 39th anniversary at Mrs. Dean's though there were a good many who did not respond to the request to give a penny for each year or 39 cents a member as only $16.81 was colected out of a membership of 158. The national convention of patriotic societies will be held in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and those who attend from this city will leave here Saturday, the 29th.

The first session opens Tuesday, Sept. 1 at 9.30 o'clock. The G. A. R. parade is Wednesday at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Atterbury has extended a cordial invitation to all to visit her at her cottage at Groton Long Point, Thursday, Sept. 3. It is necessary that all those who wish to go notify Mrs. Atterbury by Monday, Aug. 31, so that provision can be made for room in the bus. The bus will leave the bus terminal at 9 a. m., returning, leaving Groton Long Point at 7.30. A basket lunch at noon will be enjoyed, the hostess furnishing the coffee, and between 5 and 6 there will be a hot dog roast on the beach. Mr. and Mrs. Price have invited the corps to a picnic on their lawn at their home on Lafayette street Wednesday Sept. 16. If stormy the picnic will be held the next fair day. Noroton Day is Sept. 30.

The Corps will hold a public supper in the middle of September. The meeting closed with the salute to the flag and singing of America.

FAREWELL SURPRISE PARTY FOR FLOSSIE WRIGHT

A farewell surprise party was held for Miss Flossie Wright at the home of Miss Millie Langlais, 22 Cliff street, Thursday evening. Dancing was enjoyed to radio music, after which many popular games were played. Vocal selections were rendered by Miss Gertie Hamill, accompanied by Miss Mickey McVeigh, on the piano. Classical music was rendered by Georgie Leonard.

Refreshments were served at ten o'clock by Mrs. Langlais assisted by Mrs. C. Walker, Miss Esther Wright and Miss Mary E. Mack. Those present were: Miss Flossie Wright, Millie Langlais, Mickey McVeigh, Gertie Hammil, Ann Haymam, Miriam Sullivan, Noneen Shea, M. Fitzgerald, Celia Bouchard, Madelyn Foley, Alice McNally, Agnes Dunn, Esther Wright and Alice Lindberg of New York, Louis Grover, Tino Tonchani, Jimmy Mullins, Jimmy Holland, Eddie Brewer, A. Disco, William Heagney, William Mahoney, N. Gonzalgo, George Leonard, Leo Hamill, Austin Covey, Jack Marks, Thomas Lynch and Alvan Lindberg.

THREE MORE BUILDINGS FOR UNCAS-ON-THAMES

State Comptroller Frederick M. Salmon has issued calls for architects plans on three buildings which are to be erected at the tuberculosis sanatorium at Norwich. Under an appropriation granted by the 1925 general assembly, $125,000 will be available for the three buildings. There will be $50,000 for an administration building and the same amount for an infirmary for women, while $25,000 will be available for a two story employes' building.

The administration building will include office and X-ray department, laboratory sleeping rooms and bath, the floor space to be approximately 75 by 45. The infirmary is to be designed to accommodate sixty patients in two wards, with reception room, locker rooms and baths. The floor space of the employes' building is to be approximately 110 by 30 feet.

COMPENSATION FOR THREE INJURED EMPLOYEES

The following compensation agreements were filed Friday in the office of the superior court in this city.

CHAMBER WARNS AGAINST PUBLIC SOLITATIONS

The August membership letter of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce contains a warning to the public of Norwich to use care in donating money for charitable purposes or investing in get rich quick schemes. The automobile parking question also comes in for timely comments in regard to the enforcement of local traffic rules. In part the letter follows:

U. S. Veterans Hospital.

During the last session of congress the federal board of hospitalization was instructed to investigate sites in the territory embracing New England and New York for the erection of a large hospital to care for disabled veterans.

Co-operating with the local post of the American Legion, the chamber wrote to Major General Frank T. Hines, director of the bureau, urging the investigation of possible sites in the Thames river valley. A very fine blue print of the valley between Norwich and New London, furnished by the Eastern Connecticut Power Company, to the Legion was forwarded by them to General Hines. The government plans to build a federal hospital having a 1000 bed capacity.

The chamber also interested the active co-operation of Congressman Freeman in the project.

Correspondence on this matter was started on May 18th. On August 12th, the following final reply was received from Major Hines.

"I have your letter of August 10th, offering certain sites in the Thames River Valley for the proposed neuro psychiatric hospital for District No. 2, and requesting information relative to the location thereof.

In view of the fact that the Federal Board of Hospitalization at its meeting on Monday approved the selection of a site at Northport, Long Island, it will not be necessary to consider any other site.

Thanking you for your interest in the matter, I am,

Very truly yours,

FRANK T. HINES, director.

It is a good business and publicity asset for a community in which, or near which, these various hospital institutions locate.

Solicitations.

From time to time the chamber calls the attention of the general public to various solicitations, charitable and otherwise, by persons coming from out-of-town.

Recently some colored women were requesting funds for a charitable institution located in New York. Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, a resident of Norwich and a member of the state department of public welfare, announced in the local press that these solicitors had not received a state's license to obtain funds.

The chamber's activity in these matters is purely to safeguard our local people from fraudulent or questionable solicitations of unknown persons from other places who have, and do try, to secure money under false pretenses.

An approval card, which does not endorse any solicitation scheme, is issued by the chamber. The possessor of this card shows that his or her particular proposition has been investigated and found to be as represented. A number of requests for approval cards for solicitations by out-of-town solicitors has been refused by the chamber.

When the general public will always request the presentation of an approval Card issued by the chamber before the proposition is even considered, the maximum effect of this method of protection will be attained.

We urge the general public to be very careful in donating money for charitable purposes or investing their savings in get-rich-quick schemes. Ask the solicitor to produce an approval card. One will at least be assured that the proposition has approval after careful investigation.

Parking.

The recent activity of our police department in enforcing the parking regulations has caused both commendable and adverse comment.

There are approximately 25 automobiles of all descriptions on the assessors books in Norwich. We have quite a large trading territory to draw from in this section of the state. Many trading or business people coming to Norwich use their own cars.

In common with hundreds of other cities our business streets are narrow. They can accommodate a certain number of cars and no more. Therefore parking regulations are absolutely necessary. It also follows that parking regulations not properly enforced are useless.

If the people of Norwich desire to see the city grow and prosper they should encourage out-of-town business to come here. This can be done in a large measure, by providing every facility for car parking. The citizens of Norwich have an undeniable right to use the city's streets—they pay the taxes and the expenses for keeping the streets in repair.

Some co-operation on the part of our citizens is necessary however to have our streets produce the maximum amount of traffic efficiency. The public streets are public property—not private garages. Out-of-town people cannot do business in Norwich if our citizens abuse the privilege of parking their cars on our business streets.

It has been commented that Norwich is losing business because of the enforcement of the parking regulations. If people go to Providence, Worcester, Hartford, Springfield, they will find parking regulations more strictly enforced than locally. The police department in those cities have the necessary number of policemen to enforce their parking regulations. Certainly Norwich isn't the only city which compels the observance of parking regulations

A little civic spirit; a desire to see Norwich secure all the business possible; a little co-operation on the part of our local automobile owners, by not using our public streets for private garages, will go a long way in solving our local parking problem.

Membership Meetings.

The chamber will resume its regular monthly meetings commencing in September.

These meetings provide an opportunity for bringing civic matters to the attention of the members. They also acquaint the members with the activites of our organization. A competent speaker is usually secured to address the members on some vital topic of local interest.

The committee in charge of our meetings is endeavoring to secure a speaker for September who will discuss traffic problems in its relation to zoning, and the solutions of traffic questions which exist.

The officers of the chamber strongly urge the members to attend the monthly meetings. It is simply a question of giving up a few hours each month to the civic affairs of Norwich. This should not tax the time of the members.

There are many members who give of their time and talents generously, serving on various committees. Those who cannot give their time and services in this way should at least attend the monthly meetings. The Chamber needs the active co-operation of the members as well as the public. The modern Chamber of Commerce is a democracy. In a democracy every citizen should do his share for the general welfare of the community in which he lives.

TWO COUPLES SEEK FREEDOM FROM BONDS OF MATRIMONY

Herman John Greiner of this city has brought suit for divorce from Jessie Elizabeth Rogers Greiner, formerly of Norwich, now of parts unknown. Mr. Greiner seeks the divorce on grounds of desertion. They were married Dec. 2, 1913, and he alleges his wife deserted him Dec. 1, 1917. Her maiden name was Jessie Elizabeth Rogers. There is one child, June Rogers and the plaintiff asks custody of the child.

Sadie Chapman Corey of Groton has started divorce proceedings against Alvin P. Corey of Sterling, this state. Before her marriage she was Sadie Corey and she married the defendant Dec. 10, 1904. She charges intolerable cruelty between January 1, 1924 and the date of the writ. There are two minor children ranging in age from 4 to 4 years. Mrs. Corey asks a divorce, custody of the five youngest children and alimony of $5,000.

Papers in both of these cases were filed Friday with the clerk of the superior court.

CAPT. DENISON LEAVES TODAY FOR CAMP PERRY

Capt. William R. Denison of Norwich leaves today (Saturday) for Camp Perry, Ohio where he will be a range officer for the National Rifle matches that are held there each year. Capt. Denison reports today to Col. Robert F. Gadd at Hartford who is captain of the Connecticut rifle team. As Capt. Denison has shot with the team for three years he is barred from representing the state in team matches but if time will permit he will enter some of the individual matches. JOHN CUNNINGHAM NAMED DISTRICT LEGION HEAD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 28.—At the New London county district caucus held today in connection with the American Legion in session here, John A Cunningham of Norwich was elected district commander. Other district officers elected today:

Vice commander, Jonathan L. Johnson, Norwich; adjutant and treasurer, Rex E. C. Dunham, Norwich; executive officer, Jonathan L. Johnson, Norwich; historian, Gilbert Miner, Jewett City; hospitalization committee, O. L. Arpin of Baltic; finance officer, H. W. House.

O. L. Arpin of Baltic was elected the district's state delegate to the national convention of the American Legion, with William P. Elder of New London as alternate.

As a result of the convention it was announced that all county commanders automatically become state vice commanders. This means that District Commander John Cunningham will become a state vice-commander.

LEMUEL M. FIELDING HURT WHILE TAKING DOWN TENT

Friday afternoon, while helping take down the leafy wigwam at the Mohegan church which had been used during the two days' festival this week, Lemuel M. Fielding ("Chief Oecum") was struck by a pole and painfully injured. A wedge-shaped gash was made on top of his head which Dr. Clarence G. Thompson took three stitches to close. Friday evening Mr. Fielding was confined to his bed.

A man's egotism may be pardoned if it doesn't degenerate into vanity.

ANCIENT SUN DIAL IS PLACED ON EXHIBITION

On exhibition in one of the windows of the Porteous and Mitchell store on Main street is an ancient sun dial, owned by Dr. Ier J. Manwaring of East Great Plain. Dr. Manwaring who served as a nurse with the allied forces during the war brought the sun dial with her on her return to this country after three years. Dr. Manwaring secured the dial in Chateu Thierry.

John Troland, the well known local authority on sun dials, has repaired the dial and with Dr. Manwaring's permission has placed it in the Porteous and Mitchell window. The dial was built in 1728 and is of slate. It is a beautiful piece of work and highly valued by Dr. Manwaring, who plans to have it placed on the grounds of her residence.

The vogue of the sun dial is increasing. Large optical houses, firms dealing in garden "furnishings" and even department stores report a steadily growing sale of these ancient time tellers.

With the invention of clocks some later, of watches it was thought that the idea of the sun dial had seemingly passed away. Apparently, progress was too rapid for these ancient devices, which were everywhere superceded by the more modern fast-ticking timepieces. It was not until comparatively recent years that the sun dial began to come into its own again, coming at last into popular favor in the modern garden, where it is valued for its antiquity, its show, dignity and business. Recently the "new" possessing of time-saving devices, perhaps, aroused the habit anew, for of day.

The pyramid and the obelisk, both for telling the sun time accurately. Every angle and division thereof appears on the plate is exactly located for the latitude at which the dial is to be placed." Other dials are described as achieving "an equation of time" showing the difference between sun and clock time for every day in the year." The description of these complicated devices explains that: "A beam of light through a small hole in the gnomon acts as an accurate calendar, falling daily, at noon-time on the day of the year as engraved on the analemma."

The faces of these dials are covered with figures, with circles, with arrows and annotations, and also bear the names of the months. They are decidedly complicated affairs, which the early Greek who invented the sun dial would probably never recognize as an expression of his ancient idea. But though design may change, the symbolism of the dial remains forever the same.

CAILLAUX EXPECTS SPEEDY DEBT PARLEY WITH THE U. S.

French Finance Minister is to Sail Sept 16 With the Commission—Expects to Arrive in Washington September 23—Believes Debt Negotiations Can be Completed in Nine Days—The French Mission is Made Up of Members of Various Political affiliations.

PARIS, Aug. 30—(AP)—M. Caillaux, the finance minister, expects an agreement with the United States debt funding commission within nine days after his arrival at Washington, September 23. He believes that in any event the negotiations can be so nearly completed that unfinished minor points can be settled by some of his colleagues, whom he would leave in Washington for that purpose, he himself is determined to depart from New York by the steamer France October 7, so as to be in Paris when parliament reassembles.

Undoubtedly having in mind the fate of the Versailles treaty, he is taking with him influential senators and deputies. His choice has been influenced by these considerations, to have first [illegible] members powerful in both houses of parliament, next, those having special knowledge of America, and finally financial advisers.

It was announced that M. Caillaux would proceed to the United States accompanied only by one expert and that the other members of the mission would follow at an early date. It has now been decided that he will sail together aboard the France September 16.

The mission, composed of representatives of the various political groups, includes Andre Tardieu, leader of the Republican Democratic party, which with its 104 deputies in the chamber had been supporting the Painleve government, but declared recently to withdraw its votes. Minister Kokanowski belongs to the Democratic Group, which, with 48 deputies, has four members in the Painleve cabinet.

Edouard Herriot, Berenger, another member of the mission, holds a singular position in the senate, as for eighty years he has been a supporter of conservative cabinets, without being the partisan of any. What he says on financial questions is generally admitted to have greater weight that the utterances of any other member of the conservative upper house.

Senator Louis Dausset the fourth member, has been elected by the present senate appropriations committee as its supported to draft its support on the budget.

Marquis Pierre De Chambrun, of the chamber, is selected for his thorough knowledge of America and his remarkable acquaintance among American public men. His descent from Lafayette and the fact that he was a member of the Joffre-Viviani mission when the first loans were made have indicated him to M. Caillaux as an effective colleague.

Marquis De Chambrun, as a member of the group of the republicans of the left, with 36 members in the house. Another deputy of position is Lucien Lamoreux.

M. Caillaux's strictly expert advisers will include M. De Monzy, one of the most important permanent officials of the ministry of finance, who more than almost any one in the government has studied the alternative solutions of the debt problem. He will be assisted by a financial inspector and a small staff.

Joseph Simon, director general of Societe Generale is taken as the representative of the great banking houses of Paris.

M. Caillaux's knowledge of English is fully sufficient to allow him to conduct the discussion in that language.

MEETING OF ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAPHERS

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 30—(A. P.)—A cooling lake-shore breeze swept through the banquet room on the second floor of Wilcox's restaurant at Branford this noon and early afternoon as the members of the Connecticut Fellowship club the Connecticut organization of Associated Press telegraphers enjoyed a five course dinner and transacted business relative to their annual gathering. Nineteen members and guests were present.

Addresses were made by W. J. G. Morton of the Associated Press at Hartford, and C. A. Price, division chief of New York. Mr. Morton discussed some of the events of interest which had been handled by the editorial department and [illegible] spoke on the expanding of the [illegible] Associated Press and its relations with its member papers and also spoke of the improved facilities for handling news [illegible]

A number of the operators made [illegible] the occasion for the enjoyment of the [illegible] were present. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, A. W. Comniff of Hartford; vice president, F. D. Hubbard of [illegible]; secretary-treasurer, R. H. White, Torrington Register; directors; A. J. Wood, M.D., New Haven bureau; R. J. Doherty, Ansonia Sentinel; F. J. Connell, Norwich Bulletin, and F. J. [illegible] of Hartford.

Those present besides Operators R. H. White of the New Haven bureau; J. R. L. Graham, Bridgeport Post; V. J. Benedetto, Bridgeport Telegram; J. M. Thompson, New London Day; C. W. Hopkins, Hartford Courant; N. A. McPhail, New Britain Herald; H. E. Simpson Waterbury Republican; E. J. Reilly, Waterbury Republican, and P. Quigley, Waterbury American; and R. L. Gilbert, state day editor, New Haven bureau.

NO IMMEDIATE MOVE BY THEATRE OWNERS

HARTFORD, Aug. 30—The special committee of the Connecticut Theatre Owners' association, which was planning a motoring trip to Governor Trumbull's Maine camp to urge a special session of the legislature on the question on the state sales tax, will make no move in the immediate future, following the report they received that the governor would return to Connecticut before it would be necessary for the committee to take action, J. W. Walsh president of the Connecticut Theatre Owners' association announced tonight.

Most of the theatres here have contracts that will tide them over the next six or eight months, Mr. Walsh said, but at the end of that time, if the law be in effect, those theatres will "positively close." Commenting on the situation, Mr. Walsh said that the producers were in earnest in his thing and at one of their meetings in New York there was a strong sentiment to cancel the existing contracts.

The tax will mean an added burden of about $2,500 to theatres, the size of the Rialto in Hartford, Mr. Walsh said, that the theatre owners, having found that the state does not need the money for revenue, could not understand the reason behind the tax. About $1,200 of this added sum will be paid directly because of the tax, and the other $1,300 is an estimate on the increased cost of doing business with Boston and New York, rather than with New Haven.

HARTFORD WOMAN CHARGED WITH RECKLESS DRIVING

HARTFORD, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Agnes Curtin, of 80 Jane street, Springfield, Mass., was arrested charged with reckless driving early this afternoon when her automobile, which she was driving north on Prospect street collided with a motorcycle going west on Arch street, operated by Homer Gaudette of 52 Belmont street, this city.

Gaoutte was taken to the Hartford hospital where it was said his condition was not serious.

TO HAVE WINTER CAMPAIGN AGAINST RUM SMUGGLING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—The coast guard has completed plans for a winter campaign against rum smuggling, with broadened operations contemplated.

While details of the program were not disclosed today, it was evident that there will be renewed activity in southern waters and a continuation of vigorous movement against the illicit traffic along the northern seaboard despite the wintry blasts.

To meet the conditions imposed by winter, which requires extra vigilance of the service in extending aid to merchant shipping, many important shifts in assignments have taken place in the dry navy. Headquarters here has kept most of its program secret, but it is known that ports which were regarded as important during the summer may rank lower in the next six month. One of the former, the base at Greenport, Long Island, has been abandoned and operations formerly centering there will be directed hereafter from Nantucket Island.

Coast guard officials have been watching the Maine and Massachusetts coast closely in the last two months, and the frequent attempts of smugglers to land their cargoes in that section is believed to be the reason for changing the base from Long Island to Nantucket Island.

More than 30 coast guard boats are scattered along the shore south of the Canadian border, and each has been repaired and painted to make its equipment ready for the rigors of cruising.

While there will be no let-up in the patrol work off New York, fewer ships are now stationed there and along the Jersey shore than at any time since last winter. Officers of the coast guard here explained, however, that ships on duty further north can be sent to the Jersey-New York district within a day if needed to thwart any sudden activity of rum runners.

WHITE COURT MARINES HAVE BEEN COURT-MARTIALED

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Summary court martial proceedings for two members of the marine guard stationed at White Court charged with neglect of duty were conducted last night and a report was placed before Captain Adolphus Andrews, commandant of the Mayflower, today for final approval. While it was not reported the marines, Corporal Andrew Cannos, of Cleveland and Private Clarence Kee of Centerville, Texas, had been found asleep on their posts, Captain Andrews said the court tried one for leaving his post and the other for lying down while on duty. The marines were relieved from their posts after an early morning inspection conducted by Lieut. J. Wright of the Mayflower.

The court's finding will not be made public until approved by Captain Andrews and forwarded to Washington.

The maximum penalty of a summary court martial is loss of three months' pay and confinement for 30 days.

ARREST OF OPERATORS IN ILLICIT LIQUOR TRADE

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—(A. P.)—Many large operators in the illicit liquor trade have been arrested in New York during the last month as a result of an agreement between R. C. Merrick, divisional prohibition chief, and Federal Attorney Emory R. Buckner, Mr. Merrick stated tonight.

Mr. Merrick said that all the 864 arrests made last month in his district were important and involved charges of conspiracy, manufacture or transportation of liquor. This, he said, was the result of his and Mr. Buckner's determination last June to arrest the big bootleggers first.

SEVERE EARTHQQUAKE RECORDED AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—(AP)—A severe earthquake shock was recorded by the seismograph of the United States weather bureau at the University of Chicago early today.

The tremor began at 4:42 o'clock and continued until 6:15 with the greatest shock recorded at 4:52 central standard time. The movement was estimated at 1,700 miles from Chicago.

Outlook is Good For Autumn Business

The Railroads Are Enjoying a High Degree of Prosperity —Improvement a Retail Trade.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(AP)—With the summer season drawing to a close, evidences of improving trade and promises of further expansion in the autumn continued to accumulate, but an appraisal of the exact state of business proved difficult. The familiar measures of industrial activity indicated little change in general conditions, although they left no doubt that most manufacturing operations were proceeding at a steady pace.

Reports of expanded retail trade from the south and west confirmed recent expectations that the agricultural prosperity which has visited these sections would be passed on to the benefit of other lines of business. Assured of good crops and fair prices for the second consecutive year, the farmer is now making purchases which were deferred during the preceding "lean" years. Manufacturers of automobiles and agricultural machinery are feeling the effects of this increased buying power.

Moderate gains were recorded in the basic industries, notably steel. Bookings of rolled steel products at some mills were the largest since last November and the heaviest buyers were the farm implement and tractor manufacturers. These orders, coupled with a better demand for wire products, revealed clearly the stimulation of farm buying. The trade believes it will take another month or more for incoming orders to exceed the rate of shipments. Accordingly, unfilled tonnage of the U. S. Steel Corporation is expected to show another decrease for August, possibly limited to 100,000 tons.

Reports from the railroad field last week gave unmistakable evidence of the high degree of prosperity which the carriers are enjoying. Both record-breaking car loadings, and a series of gratifying earnings statements for July, testified to the magnitude of the country's trade and the increased efficiency of the railroads in handling it. Gross revenues in some cases were the greatest for any month since the war and improvement over July, 1924, was accomplished with only negligible increases in expenditures.

On the basis of reports so far available, net operating income of the class one carriers for the month is expected to total almost $100,000,000. While weekly car loadings in August continuing to set new high records for the year well above the million mark, it is evident that another period of satisfactory earnings is in store. Some of the northwestern railroads have failed to receive the increase in traffic which other sections have enjoyed, apparently because of the smaller amount of grain available for shipment, but their July earnings nevertheless were impressively favorable.

The most troublesome problem confronting the business world is the forthcoming suspension of anthracite mining on September 1, which will involve the closing of more than eight hundred mines and throw more than 150,000 men out of work. Little uneasiness over the situation, however, was apparent in the financial markets.

FIVE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH AT EVERETT, MASS

EVERETT, Mass., Aug. 30—(A. P.)—Five children, all under 13, were burned to death and their mother, Mrs. Irene Scenna, is at a Boston hospital with a broken back, which is expected to prove fatal, as the result of a fire here tonight started by the upsetting of a kerosene lamp in the Scenna home.

The flames shot through the house trapping the children Mrs. Scenna, her clothing on fire, leaped from a window, and fractured her spine. Five other families living in the two story tenement block were driven from their homes. The dead children are Elizabeth, 12, Philomena, 10, Laura, 6, Albert 4, and William, 3 months.

Two other children, Eva, 2, Andrew, 14, were rushed to a hospital with serious burns about the face and hands. Patrolman John M. Quarlino, a world war veteran dashed into the blazing room on the second floor and dragged the baby carriage containing William, the youngest, into the hall. His face burned and blinded by the flames and smoke, the officer stumbled and fell down the stairs, fracturing his ankle. The baby was dead before it reached the open air.

It was said by the children who escaped that one of them had attempted to fill the lamp from a large can by candle light. Something upset the lamp and candle, there was a flare and then the explosion of the can threw flames about the room.

The father, Augustus Scenna, was away from home at the time, it was said.

LULL IN HOSTILITIES CONTINUES IN MEXICO

FEZ, French Morocco, Aug. 30—The lull continues all along the front, both sides profiting to prepare for the approaching struggle. Abd-el-Krim, the Moroccan leader, does not appear unduly downcast by the defection of the tribesmen; he is busy strengthening his forces on the two wings at Quezzan and Taza, either with a view to fresh action in those regions or in anticipation of a French offensive.

His brother has brought together the principal Riffian chiefs at Chefchouen to discuss and decide upon a course to be taken.

Series of Raids in Boston's Chinatown

Police Seized Liquor, Firearms, Opium, Lottery Tickets and Fantan Outfits—91 Arrests Made.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The Boston police, in one of the biggest series of raids ever conducted by the department, late this afternoon descended on Chinatown to clean up the district. In a few hours they had taken 91 prisoners, 25 cases of hard liquor, more than 15 revolvers and other firearms, opium and other drugs, lottery tickets and fantan outfits.

Stirred by the shooting here last Monday night which wounded five Chinese and a white man and started the flare of tong killings in other cities of the country, the police secured 25 search warrants for places in the heart of the district and on seven different streets.

An army of 130 patrolmen and inspectors quietly gathered today in front of police headquarters and started the dash simultaneously in more than 20 automobiles.

Covering on the district so that escape was cut off the police forced their way through barred doors, sweeped down on several restaurants and searched houses from basement to roof.

Tonght their work of classifying the confiscated objects was proceeding slowly while the 91 prisoners awaited the filing of formal charges, which will range from gaming on the Lord's Day to illegal possession of liquor and dangerous weapons.

In the store of Yop Yick Lung on Tyler street the raiders seized 22 cases of old Kwong rice wine, imported from Canton, China, according to the labels. The police stated that the alcoholic content by volume was 29.60. Other rice wines and Nu Gar Pi was seized in other houses.

The police stated that some of the weapons, which included a repeating rifle and hatchets and knives, as well as revolvers, were found in buildings occupied by members of the On Leong Tong.

The basements yielded the greatest supply of narcotics. Opium was found in several and a quantity of morphine in one. The police charge that fan tan games were operated in rooms of one of the restaurants raided.

Lottery tickets by the thousand were seized, scattered throughout the district.

Even Chinese on the streets were stopped and forced to submit to search and at least one arrest for carrying concealed weapons, an automatic revolver, was made in this way.

The Chinese section lies in the district in which District Attorney O'Brien has been pushing investigation following complaints of city police in activity and co-operation.

It could not be learned tonight whether the raids today were made on information furnished by his investigators. The raid however, was planned and conducted entirely by Boston police.

The police estimated the value of the seized drugs at $3,000.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS ASSEMBLY MEETS SEPT. 7

GENEVA, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Whether the next League of Nations assembly, the sixth since the founding of the league, will do big things in the domain of international politics is a question agitating the political minds of Europe. The assembly will open its sessions at Geneva September 7.

The Geneva peace protocol adopted at the last assembly is the doubtful issue. Much depends on how far the security negotiations between France Belgium and Great Britain on one side and Germany on the other have progressed.

As it seems likely that these direct pourparlers for a four-power pact cannot be concluded by the time the assembly meets, doubtless a move will come from the great powers to have all security discussions postponed, for the assembly must act in some way on the peace protocol which England rejected so dramatically the past year. As the protocol has not received the ratification necessary for its going into force, the league council will report to the assembly its inability to prepare for a general conference on reduction of armaments which was called for by the protocol.

The chief features of that protocol are arbitration, security and disarmament.

Foreign Minister Briand of France will serve as temporary chairman of the assembly, by virtue of the fact that it is France's turn to take the presidency of the council, which will probably meet September 2 to make final preparations for the assembly and pass on a number of questions, among them the problem of the Mosul frontier between Turkey and Irak.

YALE DIVINITY STUDENT MISSING SINCE AUGUST 2

CORAM, N. Y., Aug. 30—(A. P.)—Roderick B. Hallock, a senior at the Yale University Divinity school, disappeared on August second from the pastorate of Coram Methodist church where he had been assigned as pastor during the summer, it was learned today. While police have not been notified, church authorities and private detectives employed by his father, R. C. Hallock, of Rockville Center, New York, are attempting to find him.

When he left Hallock took nearly all his clothes and other personal possessions except his theological books. The church here was his first charge, and investigators are working on the theory that he may have found the work uncongenial and left. He was a brilliant student but in delicate health.

Before attending Yale, Hallock was a student at Wesley University, where he was graduated with high honors.

MACMILLAN PARTY VISITED ANCIENT NORSE RUINS

WASHINGTON, Aug 30—(A. P.)—The MacMillan Arctic expedition set aside today to visit the ancient Norse ruins at Godhaven, Greenland.

A message received at the navy department today from Lieutenant Commander Byrd, commanding the navy section, announced the arrival of the steamer Peary at Umanak yesterday and Godhaven would be visited today. Umanak is just north of Disko Island on the west coast of Greenland and the Norse ruins are only a short distance in the interior.

The expedition arrived at Umanak after a quick run across Melville Bay which unexpectedly was found clear of ice.

MINERS PLEDGE A FINISH FIGHT FOR ALL WAGE DEMANDS

Final Reading of Suspension Order Was Greeted With Enthusiasm at Union Meetings Over the Week-End—8,000 Maintenace Men Are to Remain in the Pits to Prevent Deterioration During the Suspension of Mining.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30—Enthusiasm marked the final reading at Union meetings over the week-end of the order calling for suspension of authracite mining operators tomorrow at midnight.

The two orders, the second arranging for retention of about 8,000 maintenance men in the pits to prevent flooding, cave-ins and general deterioration during the idleness, were issued in time to reach all the 325 locals in districts 1, 7 and 9 by yesterday.

All collieries were soon posted with notices for the special meetings called for in union procedure. The attendance according to reports filtering in tonight, was the heaviest some of the locals had ever known save at district election time.

All the miners were, of course, informed in advance through local newspapers of the contents of the two orders as signed by John L. Lewis, international president of the miners' union, and his five colleagues on the scale committee—Rinaldo Cappellini, Andrew Mattey and C. J. Golden, presidents of district 1, 7 and 9, respectively, and Philip Murray, international vice president, and Thomas Kennedy, international secretary-treasurer.

Nevertheless the actual reading in the droning voice of the union secretary became the signal for marked expressions of solidarity and outbursts, punctuated with excited shouts, pledging a finish fight until all wage and working demands were won.

The demands, which the men made conditional to renewal of the working contract with the operators which expires tomorrow night, were formulated at the tri-district convention at Scranton the last of June. A 10 per cent. wage increase for 45,000 to 50,000 ontract miners, $1 a day additional increase for day workers, the check-off, by which company paymasters would take out union dues from the men's pay, equalization of rates (for which the miners have clamored for years) and a two year contract were the principal features in a long list.

Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the anthracite operators conference and for many years operators leader in scale negotiations discontinued this latter service in an address to the joint scale committee of miners and operators at the Hotel Traymore early in July. After hearing the miners terms outlined by President Lewis Mr. Warriner expressed "surprise and amazement" at what they called for. He said wages should go down, instead of up, the present selling price of anthracite coal considered.

He sounded the season's keynote for the owners by saying in effect that they could consider no demands from the men at this time that in any way increased production cost.

MINERS ARE HOPEFUL THE SUSPENSION WILL BE SHORT

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 30—(A. P.)—The anthracite region of Pennsylvania today faces another suspension of hard coal production and its resultant economic depression with an optimistic attitude. Hopes are high among the mine workers that this year's suspension will be short lived. The feeling is general that before six weeks have passed the anthracite operators and the miners' leaders will again be in conference in an effort to adjust differences brought about by the workers' demands and the owners counter-proposals.

Tomorrow night will see the last of the production of anthracite coal, under the 1924 working contract. Mine workers will leave their regular posts of duty carrying with them those tools of their own which for the last two years have rested over night at the collieries. The signals got the "walk-out" will be without ceremony or noise.

A period of waiting will then follow while the usual search for work in other industries will be started by the more thrifty of the idle miners.

There is no barometer here in the hard coal field from which to gauge definitely the possible length of the shut-down. The mine workers, themselves as a class, take the situation with little concern.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE NOT PERTURBED BY COAL STRIKE

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 30—(A. P.)—Swinging into the eleventh and possibly the last week of his vacation, President Coolidge apparently was unperturbed today at the prospects of a suspension of anthracite operations tomorrow at midnight. While the hard coal situation is one of the major issues confronting the administration, it has been indicated that Mr. Coolidge believes that the government has authority to do little if anything to bring the operators and miners together on a new wage scale and that its settlement must be devised by inducing the public an adequate supply of fuel, particularly if there is a protracted shut-down on mines.

One thing is certain and [illegible] a tie-up in the anthracite fields will have no effect on the president's vacation plans. He intends to remain here another week at least and perhaps until after Labor Day. He will depend upon reports from Washington as to developments in the anthracite controversy.

Spending a quiet Sunday, President and Mrs. Coolidge made their customary motor trip to Salem to attend morning services at Tabernacle Congregational church. They were accompanied by their son, John, who returned with them to White Court yesterday, from a month of military training at Camp Devens.

Among visitors on the president's list for tomorrow is John Hays Hammond, who was chairman of the federal coal commission, but it was emphasized that he was calling to present a friend and not to discuss the anthracite situation. Another visitor will be James D. Richards, of Boston, a bituminous operator.

HINTS GIVEN TO PREVENT "AWKWARD" USE OF MONEY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—The public was asked today by the United States bureau of efficiency to use the least possible number of bills in making change and so decrease the present tendency toward an "awkward" use of money.

Declaring that the chief mistake of the public was in the "excessive" use of the one-dollar bills, it urged especially the more general use of two-dollar bills, the avoidance of which appears to "be based on a mere superstition coming down from old gambling days that the two dollar bill is unlucky."

If the public will revise its methods in using money, the bureau declared, it will increase the efficiency of banks and save the government, and therefore the taxpayers, perhaps a million dollars a year now used in printing many small denomination bills. Use of the least possible number of bills, the bureau promised, would:

Decrease the bulk of currency that individuals need carry in their pockets.

Decrease the bulk of currency that change-makers need handle and keep in their tills.

Decrease the bulk of currency bank cashiers need handle, count and carry in their cages.

Decrease the work of money counters everywhere.

Decrease the chances of making mistakes.

Decrease the detail of money counting and recounting at public expense at the treasury department at Washington when new bills are issued or old ones redeemed.

Decrease the bulk of the money to be manufactured by the bureau of engraving and printing for use by the government.

Save the government directly a possible one-fourth the co-st of this manufacture and the public many times as much in the waste labor of counting innumerable small bills.

POLICE LOOKING FOR $8,000 IN CASH AND JEWELRY

NORWALK, Aug. 30—Eight thousand dollars in cash and jewelry is being sought by Norwalk police. The money and jewelry was removed from a table and from the pockets of a number of men who are alleged to have been gambling early today in a building on Main street. The removal according to a report to the police, many hours after the disappearance, was made by six armed bandits who rudely ordered the alleged gamblers to face the wall and "reach for the ceil." While the latter "reached" the bandits rifled their pockets.

Only one of the bandits was masked. The other five were said to have been strangers to the alleged gamblers. The masked robber is thought to have been the leader of the sextet, and to have been a man who had been seen hanging around the place the last two weeks.

SHOOTING AND STABBING AFFRAY IN HARTFORD SUNDAY

HARTFORD, Aug. 30—(A. P.)—A shooting and stabbing affray that caused a near panic in a section of Pleasant and Windsor streets occurred early tonight when Charles Henry, of 207 Pleasant street severely gashed Nicholas Silva, of 76 North street with a razor, struck him on the head with a chair, fired two shots from his revolver at him, striking Silva with one and a passerby with the other, and then attempted to shoot Policeman Daniel J. Hussey. After a short chase, the policeman captured Henry and arrested him on a charge of assault with attempt to kill.

Silva was taken to St. Francis hospital where twenty stitches were taken in his cuts. One gash beginning in the center of the back and extending around to the front just above the waistline, about two inches deep, required fourten stitches to bring the flesh together after the arteries had been tied to converse the blood. Three stitches were then taken in two smaller but severe cuts, one in the back of the head and the other on the neck. Silva also had a laceration on the back of the head where he had been struck with the chair and a bullet wound in his left hand. The attending physician said late tonight that his condition was not serious.

Miss Arnold, 52 years old, of 227 Talcott street, the passerby who was struck by the stray bullet from Henry's revolver, was taken to the Hartford hospital where it was said that his left shin bone was fractured just below the knee. It is believed that the bullet is still in the leg but verification of this could not be obtained until an X-ray is taken tomorrow morning.

STRIKE OF BRITISH SEAMEN IS EXPANDING

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Aug. 30—(A. P.)—The seamens strike which heretofore has only signal affected British ports took a new and serious turn today, threatening to involve trans-Atlantic liners.

A mass meeting of the seamen was held here this afternoon and decided to refuse to sign on except at the old rate of wages. A striking committee was formed and the men present pledged themselves to approach other seamen with the object of bringing about a general strike. Another meeting will be held tomorrow.

FALL FROM THIRD STORY FATAL TO BRIDGEPORT MAN

BRIDGEPORT, Aug. 30—(AP)—Edmund Beardsworth, seven, 133 Bradley street, died early this morning at the Bridgeport hospital, of a fractured skull received Saturday night, when he fell from the third story of a house under construction next door to his home. He was playing tag with other children of the neighborhood, and fell through a hole in the floor of the uncompleted building landing in the cellar. Edmund is a son of Patrolman Norman Beardsworth, of the Bridgeport police department.

WILLIMANTIC

A Ford coupe owned and operated by Dr. Charles Girard, of Jackson street this city was damaged Sunday forenoon when struck a broad-side blow by a Hupmobile car driven by Dominique Blanchard of the Charter Oak Hotel, Hartford and owned by Amedee Boudreau of 56 Buckingham street, Hartford. Dr. Girard started to drive his car away from the curb near the Capitol Theatre on Main street. The physician claimed to have given a warning signal that he was about to start and had gotten a few feet away from the curb, when the cars collided. The matter was reported to the police and a mutual agreement for the settlement of damages was reached.

Arthur Smith and Albert Huard, local men were arrested by Officer Laramee Saturday on charges of intoxication, to which they will make answer in police court this (Monday) morning.

Albert Kelley of this city was arrested Sunday forenoon by Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria for speeding in his Hupmobile touring car. He will be in police court this (Monday) morning.

What at first appeared to be a riot, but later turned out to be a "kid" fight on the railroad tracks near Chapman street drew the attention of the police and led to the arrest of four local boys, ranging in ages from nine to 15 years for assaulting the 14 year old son of a family of strike-breakers. The young man was returning from a swim in the Natchaug River when accosted by the four boys. Stones were thrown and a general mixup followed. One man stopped the fight and detained the young battlers until the arrival of Motorcycle Officer Bombria who notified the youngsters to present themselves for a hearing in the juvenile court Monday.

Irving L. Gardner, charged with cruelty to animals pleaded not guilty through his attorney, W. A. King, in police court, Saturday morning and was discharged by the court after evidence had been heard on both sides. Arthur Gardner, a former employe on the Gardner farm, was the complainant in the case and his allegation was that Gardner kicked twice at a dog owned by him, causing the death of the animal the following morning. The cause of death to the dog was proclaimed by Herbert L. Switzer who performed a post mortem.

Mrs. Rose Gardner testified that on the afternoon of August 14, Gardner had ordered her husband to have the place sold and two boy campers, Jack Gendreau 14, and Arma of Trefan, were sitting on a stone wall abutting the Gardner property when the dog entered the barn and she saw Gardner kick a puppy. The dog staggered and fell and one of the boys took it up to care for it. Jack Gendreau stated that he did not see anyone kick the dog, although he heard Gardner shout at the animal.

Herbert L. Switzer, who claims to have practiced the care of animals for thirty-five years, testified that when the Gardners came to him with the dog he gave it caffeine for a medicine. The dog died sometime after midnight and the next morning he performed a post mortem operation and then buried the body.

Irving L. Gardner testified that about four o'clock on the afternoon of August 14th, on which day he had ordered Kaubher to leave the farm, he was walking his cows in his barn and the dog came in. He feared that the animal might get into the milk and he told his hired man, Mr. Thorsson, to put the animal out. Thorsson was otherwise occupied at the time and his son, young Ralph Gardner, 12, pushed the animal out of the door without any mistreatment. The Gardner boy said that the dog had once before been put out of the barn and knew what it was for. He further said that the dog was not kicked by himself or by his father. Judge Russell A. Andrews announced that he could not find Gardner guilty and he was discharged.

The sixteen boys between the ages of nine and [illegible] were rounded up by Officer Arthur Hurley, following the theft of about three hundred dollars worth of material from the Rock & Son paint shop on Natchaug street, conducted by Harvey H. and Joseph Rock, were on the carpet Saturday afternoon, when an effort was made to ascertain the leadership of the gang. When the boys were apprehended they disclosed their cache and from the bushes along the Natchaug River large quantities of paint, tools, accessories, tools and various other articles were recovered. Small boys material was found in cellars and woodsheds at the homes of the boys' parents to the value of about one hundred dollars, but never [illegible] to be recovered. Some of the stock of paint was used to spray the bushes along the river bank and a quantity of [illegible] on the place on the clothing of the boys, showing the evidence against their guilt was unquestionable. The boys, in all of the cases denied any knowledge that their offspring were implicated in charges on the grand [illegible]. Probation Officer S. Arthur Bolduc was present at the hearing Saturday afternoon. Under the laws governing juvenile cases an investigation will be conducted for one week, when the cases of the boys involved [illegible] of participating will be heard.

Rev. Frederick F. Foshay, who recently resigned as pastor of the First Baptist church, and Mrs. Foshay, were guests of honor at a farewell reception at the church parlors Friday evening. Russell A. Andrews, clerk of the church society, was chairman of the arrangements and Miss Inez Paton was in charge of a fine program. The refreshments were prepared and served by the Ladies' Aid Society, in behalf of the members of the church. Rev. Raymond Bates of Waterbury, formerly of this city, presented Rev. Mr. Foshay a substantial purse of gold. The former pastor was deeply affected by this display of generosity and loyalty on the part of his parishioners and acknowledged the gift with hearty thanks. The members then individually shook hands with Rev. and Mrs. Foshay and offered them the best wishes for a long and prosperous life, in their new field of endeavors. Rev. and Mrs. Foshay leave today (Monday) for Rockville Center, L. I., where the former will take over his new pastorate.

The continued case of Albert Patrick O'Toole, of Hartford, charged with operating an overloaded auto truck in this city three weeks ago, was concluded at the session of police court, Saturday morning, when Deputy Judge Russell A. Andrews found the accused guilty and imposed a fine of $100 and costs, amounting to $105.15 which was paid. O'Toole was represented by a Hartford attorney who explained that O'Toole was employed by Hyman Fink a Hartford truckman. Fink had trouble with the proprietor of the Worcester Steet Trucking Company, Hartford, and the latter had tipped off the state police headquarters that Fink's truck was overloaded. Word was passed on to the local temporary state police barracks and O'Toole was apprehended with an aggregate load of better than 28,000 pounds. The attorney said that it was merely a spite case, that O'Toole was in no way responsible and that he would ask for a nominal fee, in disposing of the case, so as not to interfere with O'Toole's status as a driver. Prosecuting Attorney H. S. Gaucher could not see the case in this light and pointed out that the truck was devoid of registry, weight capacity numbers, was overloaded by nearly two tons and there was no permit allowing the extra poundage. The fine was then imposed

Marc Chappell of Chaplin, was charged with reckless driving, when in police court Saturday morning and he pleaded not guilty. Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria testified that he arrested Chappell at 7:30 o'clock, Saturday morning when the latter drove his Ford car at the rate of 30 miles an hour from Thread Mill Square to Lincoln Square, on Main street and did not sound a warning when passing intersecting streets, or going through traffic. He had previously warned the accused on three occasions against speeding. Chappell said that he had no speedometer on his car and could not tell exactly how fast he was going but he believed that he was using all due precautions and was not speeding. Deputy Judge Andrews found him guilty and imposed a fine of $5 and costs, amounting to $10.15, which was paid.

The case of Raymond C. Comins, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, was taken up. Through his attorney, W. A. King, the accused entered a demurrer, which was overruled by Deputy Judge Andrews who found Comins guilty and imposed a fine of $100 and costs, amounting to $127.35. Notice of appeal to the September term of the Windham county superior court was given and a bond of $500 was named and furnished.

The case against Henry C. Russell, a transient, charged with obtaining goods under false pretenses, viz: not paying his board bill and obtaining merchandise without paying for same, was continued until Monday morning, upon suggestion of Prosecuting Attorney Gaucher, to allow time to secure additional witnesses.

James Doyle pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication. Judge Andrews imposed a fine of $10 and costs, amounting to $15.15 which was paid.

Announcement was made by Prose- cuting Attorney Gaucher, Saturday, that the case of George Deming of Chaplin who was arrested by the state police on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor on Lower Main street had again been continued, this time to September 29.

Frank J. Watson, proprietor of the Hotel Hooker, which has stood in the limelight of legal tangles for the past two years, is defendant in two court actions, for the recovery of judgments secured against the hostelry owner, instituted by Herbert L. Switzer and the Willimantic Lumber & Coal Company. Both are represented by Attorney Samuel B. Harvey. The rentals from the Barber shop, tailor shop and billiard parlor were garnisheed late Saturday afternoon by Constable Joseph Peck. In the first case the attachment is for $190 and for $200 in the latter, the judgments amounting respectively to $68.93 and $89.23. The cases will be heard before a Justice of the Peace on Sept. 21.

Moses B. Haddad has brought civil suit against his son-in-law, Solomon Haddad and Nicholas Mezway, partners in business, to recover the sum of $1,100 as the outcome of a disagreement between the parties concerned over repairs made by plaintiff on a store which defendant vacated some time ago. The case is returnable before the Windham county superior court the first Tuesday in October.

Damages of $1,000 are claimed in a civil suit instituted by Eugene J. Dion, realtor, against Rosalba Hurteau of 33 Park street and a real estate attachment for the amount has been placed by Deputy Sheriff A. J. Greenslit. The damages were incurred when Mr. and Mrs. Hurteau placed a ready built garage in the center of the right-of-way leading to Mr. Dion's property at 35 Park street. The case is returnable in the superior court in October.

Following the institution of civil proceedings by Moses B. Haddad against his son-in-law Solomon F. Haddad the latter was notified Saturday by Constable Joseph Peck to vacate the tenement which he is now occupying at 65 Union street in a block owned by Moses Haddad.

ATTEMPT TO BURN HOUSES OF AMERICAN THREAD CO.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 30—Two of the American Thread company tenements on Ives street were set afire, about four o'clock Sunday morning by some person unknown, believed to have used kerosene in starting the blazes, one of which endangered the lives of three families, including eleven children. The occupants of the tenements are employes of the American Thread Company who came here as strike-breakers and the act is believed to be one of vengeance on the part of one of the strikers, or a sympathizer. At the four-tenement house, 19 and 23 Ives street, occupied by Elzear Theriault and a large family of children, one only six months old, and the Sanschagrin and Martelle families the jamb on the rear door of Number 19 was damaged, a hole about a foot in diameter being burned out. There are no occupants on the lower floor of No. 19. The Theriaault family resides upstairs and when Theriault was awakened by the cries of Octave Lizotte, of 12 Ives street, who happened to be returning from a party and discovered the two blazes, he rushed downstairs and extinguished the fire with a pail of water.

The other fire was at 33-43 Ives street, an empty four-tenement house. The rear door of No. 139 had been unlocked and the fire was set in the hallway. The casing of the outside door, the hall floor and the casing and door leading into an adjoining room were destroyed by the flames here. Lizotte awakened Henry Leclair, a resident of the next house and the latter secured an axe and had the fire under his control when the night crew of Engine Company No. 1, headed by Chief Henry J. Kelley, responded to a call from the state police barracks where Sonin Thibeault, another neighbor had run for assistance. A third case of incendiarism was apparently planned, at the house 51 Ives street, where the lower floor is empty, but the second is occupied. A hole about a foot long and half a foot wide was cut into the clapboards, apparently with an axe. There was no evidence however that the culprit had placed any combustable material in the hole. It is believed that the guilty party took fright upon the approach of Mr. Lizotte. The state police are conducting an investigation. Both fires appeared to have been set about the same time, some fifteen minutes before the arrival of Mr. Lizotte. The larger damage at 39 Ives street was cause dby a draft which came through the open outside door and fanned the flames.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH ENTERED THOUGH NOTHING TAKEN

(Special to the Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 30—What was, either an attempt at robbery, or an act of vandalism, gave the local police further matter for investigation, Saturday, when Charles Dufresne, sexton of St. Mary's R. C. church found the rear door of the edifice open early in the morning. Upon investigation he discovered that some of the cupboard doors and drawers in the rear of the altar had been tampered with and one door broken open. A check-up, however, failed to reveal that any of the articles were taken. Dufresne notified Rev. Fathers H. C. Belec and Edward A. McAulay and the two priests and Chief o. Police Allan McArthur. Lieutenant Frank McLean and Officer Lariviere searched the church for clues as a preliminary step to their investigation. It is thought that either the door of the church was left unlocked, by mistake or some person hid in the edifice. Friday evening, to await an opportune moment to ransack the cupboards. The disrespectful act at the church is the third burglary or attempt at burglary to be committed in that section of the city within one week.

FOUR PROVIDENCE BOYS LEAVE REFORMATORY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 30—The police department received notice Sunday about 1:30 o'clock that four boys had escaped from the Providence State reformatory and were headed toward this city where one of the escaped youths intended to visit friends or relatives at 134 Church street. Another of the boys was to take another direction according to carefully laid plans, which were disclosed by an accomplice at the reformatory, Sunday morning. The remaining three had made Hartford their goal. Two of the boys are 15 and two 17 years.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Labor Day from the standpoint of the contrived proved a big success. The attractive bargains offered by the merchants, coupled with the fine weather drew many people into the town and trade during the day, and especially in the evening, was very heavy. There seems to be some difference of opinion as to whether it was the best Labor Day, according to the amount of business transacted, that Danielson has ever had. Business houses south of the railroad crossing and of the opinion that it was, while those on the other side claim that the first Labor Day was the best. No matter which is right, it is agreed by all the day was good and that there is no cause for complaint. The event drew many autoists and all day long there was a procession of motor vehicles up and down Main street. Very good cooperation among the different store owners made this possible. The merchants' committee idea behind the closing of Labor Day. Early in the week a plan originating the merchants had agreed on all the neighboring communities and sent the people to watch the newspapers for the individual closings of the merchants. Then on the day before, they were prepared, and it was announced that special sales would be on for another day. The plan proved successful, with the exception that some did not see it that way. Those who did not, however, had the opportunity to see it the following day, and the business men's committee feels that the experiment was a success. The committee was complimented on the manner in which it handled the affair.

RICH VEIN OF CINNABAR DISCOVERED IN ALASKA

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Gerdon Beetles, here this sumer on his way to Seattle to buy supplies, reported that he had made a rich strike of cinnabar, the chief ore of mercury on the Kuskokwim River in southwestern Alaska 200 miles from Bethel a town at the mouth of the stream.

Before the United States bought Alaska from Russia in 1867 Russians made good profits by recovering mercury from cinnabar floating near the mouth of Kuskokwim after a landslide. They used a retort made from an old boiler.

In 1920 the property on which Beetes has made his discoveries passed in the possession of "Cinnabar" MacDonald after he had sought for 20 years the source of rich specimens he had found. He was frozen to death four winters ago.

Last winter Beetes investigated the property investigated extensively and located three veins. He found MacDonald's body directly over one of the veins.

WOMAN WEATHER CLERK MAKE REPORTS BREEZY

BUXTON, Eng. Aug. 30—(AP)—The only woman weather clerk in England Miss L. W. Pilkington has grown tired of the official language of daily weather bulletins issued from headquarters and has instituted a new departure which while pleasing the populace of the district does not exactly meet with official approval. Miss Pilkington favors an up-to-date style in forecasting the weather one of her latest readings:

"Temperature: There is an acute shortage of items in the district Winds: Still of an oriental character. Pressure: A steady reliable worker. Local trend: Overflows with happiness. Intrigue: We are qualifying for the final of the weather championship."

Another was worded, "Temperature: Every day in every way it grows warmer and warmer. Influences: All the woollen factories are decked out in their finest garb. The spectre at the feast is no shadows to worry us."

STEEL MAGNATE WILLING TO TAKE MINERS' RISKS

SEATTLE Aug 30.—(AP)—Nathan Eckstein, a Seattle business leader, told a story when the National Foreign Trade Council met here to illustrate the character of James A. Farrell, president of the council. Mr. Farrell, who was a lawyer in steel mills at New Haven, and then at Pittsburgh, is president of the United States Steel Corporation.

Visiting a coal mine on a tour of the company's properties Farrell was told at one shaft, ran the tale, that he must not go inside because gas conditions were bad.

"Are there any working in the mine?" he asked.

Answered affirmatively, Mr Farrell replied:

"Off I go to consult for the men. It's safe enough for me."

Some months were needed for improvements Mr Farrell having made a thorough inspection and gone on his way.

Veterans of 20 Years Organize

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Corporal H. W. Roberts post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has a condition of membership that probably is unique. No veteran is eligible unless he has served a total of 20 years in the army, navy or marine corps. He must, of course, have put in part of that time in foreign territory to comply with the general requirement of the V. F. W.

Average losses on wind and tornado risks on the United States now amount to more than $30,000,000 annually.

Suffrage Leader Returns To United States

©C WRIGHT KEYSTONE VIEW CO. NEW YORK

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, noted New York society woman, returns home on the S. S. Olympic after a visit abroad. Mrs. Belmont is one of our best known women, having married Wm. K. Vanderbilt in 1874, and then marrying again in 1896 to Mr. Belmont, who died in 1906. Since his death she has been more and more devoted to the work of suffrage, charity, hospital work, architecture, abolition of child slavery, better working conditions for women, and has been a contributor to hospital foundations, having given $100,000 to the Mineola, L. I., Hospital. She is the mother of Wm K. Vanderbilt and Harry Sterling Vanderbilt.

WESTERLY

Dr. Edwin R. Lewis of 93 High street, Westerly, left town Sunday afternoon on the 1.35 express for Boston, to begin a 1200-mile journey by rail and steamer, which will take him to Skaguay, Alaska, where he will arrive on the 18th of September At this place he leeves by the last boat of the season to return to Vancouver. Dr. Lewis, who is medical officer in attendance at the coast guard stations in the district embracing the south shore of Rhode Island and neighborhood, also a former game commissioner of Rhode Island for Washington County, is Westerly's best known radio enthusiast. It is along these lines that Dr. Lewis is making his present trip, for his baggage does not include a fish line or any firearms. The trip is made to inspect the broadcasting station of the Canadian National Railway system, its hotels and other enterprises. The stations to be visited include Manston, New Brunswick; Prince Rupert, British Columbia; and Skaguay, Alaska. The trip is made by way of Portland to Ottawa, Canada, where he will be the guest of the Chief of the radio department, Superintendant of Radio McMurtie of that city for the Canadian National System. Dr. Lewis does not expect to be back in Westerly before September 26th and on his return to visit Calgary, province of Alberta; Lake Louise and Mount Edith Caville. Before leaving Dr. Lewis remarked that if he sat at the end of a 100-foot assembly hall in some western Canadaian city, listeners in in Westerly could hear the words of the speaker before him, as sound travels 1080 feet a second while a microphone carried the radio waves at the rate of 168,000 miles per second.

The affairs of the Rhode Island Republican Club with Treasurer Edward Edgers, will continue until the annual meeting in December, 1925, so far as the action taken last Friday at the meeting of the Board of Governors goes. Questions were raised relative to the payment made to "The Record" the republican periodical of the club, George B. Utter of Westerly, editor and publisher, and some of the club members were reported as not liking the way the treasurer is handling funds, though no implication is carried that the funds are misused in any way.

Judge H. D. C. Dubois, club president, announced that "it was the opinion of the board that a special meeting was unnecessary, and that matters in dispute may well be left to the annual meeting in December, 1925." The call for a special meeting to act on Treasurer Edgers' dismissal was turned down, vote of seven to one by the board of governors.

Frederick J. Dane of Providence and New York, who has been visiting Washington county for his summer outings for the the past twenty-five years and in the neighborhood of Watchaug and Schoolhouse ponds, was a visitor in Westerly Sunday morning. He claims that it is the scenery and not the inhabitants which has its appeal to him.

The U. S. government steamship Pan American of the Munson line on which Missess Bernice E. and Mary Whipple of Westerly are returning home from a two months' trip to South America, was reported as 667 miles southeast of Ambrose channel Saturday noon and scheduled to dock this (Monday) forenoon at pier 1, Arthur Portelance and Joseph Portelance, of Greeneville, Conn., are camping this week with Henry Harriman of Norwich, at Atlantic beach.

Benjamin F. Bliven, following a period of ill health was taken suddenly ill at his home, 55 Elm street, Saturday afternoon and was taken to the Westerly hospital for treatment. For many years M. Bliven conducted a fish market on Main street. He was the son of Bradford Bliven, and was born on the Bradford Bliven farm on the Boston Post road. A younger brother is Courtlandt Barber Bliven of Westerly, proprietor of the Wigwam hotel, at Pleasant View.

Misses Louise and Wilhelmine Kräuse and Bertha Thoma have returned to their homes in Norwich, after visiting at the Atlantic View inn, at Atlantic beach.

Guests at the Atlantic View Inn include Miss Mary O'Brien of Norwich and Miss Mildred Sutherland of South Manchester, the latter being entertained by Miss Margaret Edwards: Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland, Mr. and Mrs. Little and Miss Esther Sutherland all of South Manchester having returned to their homes from Westerly Sunday.

Over one hundred members and Masonic guests of the Westerly Masonic Club, No. 176, attended the annual clambake and outing, Saturday afternoon, at Barnes Point, Brightman's pond, when a chowder was served at 1 o'clock with athletic events, baseball, quoit pitching etc. The bake was opened shortly after 5 o'clock. The affair was conducted by a committee consisting of David A. Lowry, William Russell Dower, Frank L. Friend, Frederick N. Robinson and J. Ernest Young.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fraser, 45 Summer street, Westerly, have left, on an automobile trip to New Hampshire, where they will pass September at Jackson.

Town Solicitor George R. McKenna of Pawcatuck and Mr. and Mrs. James W. Burke of Westerly are on an automobile trip to Niagara Falls, planning to return to Westerly Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Laughlin and daughter of Buffalo, N. Y., have been the guests of Westerly and Pawcatuck relatives and friends, on a vacation visit.

Arthur McClellan Weeden returned to westerly Saturday after a week's vacation from his duties as assistant custodian of the Westerly Memorial and Public library. He visited relatives and friends in South Kingstown and Narragansett, R. I., at which latter place at Quahaug Rock, Narragansett Pier, he was successful in landing some excellent black fish.

Dr. Joseph M. Bennett has arrived in Westerly from Providence to join his family at Haversham, R. I., where he will remain at his summer cottage for September.

Mrs. Carl C. Pavey and daughter Barbara have arrived in Westerly from Columbus, Ohio, to be the guests of Mrs. Pavey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben H. Austin.

Harry W. Maxson of Montreal, is visiting his father, C. C. Maxson, in Westerly for a short vacation, his wife having been a visitor here during the summer season.

Mrs. Fred K. Schwenk left Sunday to be the guest of relatives in North Stonington.

John C. Bentley of Elizabeth, N. J., has been visiting Westerly relatives and friends for several days.

Michael D. G. Papalia was in Providence Sunday.

Charles E. Redford of New London arrived Sunday morning to be the guest of relatives and friends in Westerly and Pawcatuck.

Henry M. Smith, station agent of the New Haven railroad in Norwich was a Westerly automobile visitor Saturday afternoon and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Butler were in Providence Saturday, Mr. Butler attending the district meeting of the Knights of Columbus.

MISS LIHME PRINCE'S BRIDE FR. VINCENT OFFICATES

WESTERLY, Aug. 30.—Including the guests, official and unofficial observers, assembled at Watch Hill Saturday afternoon, the Lobkowicz-Lihme wedding, had the largest attendance of any wedding ceremony ever celebrated in Westerly. The guests filled the Union chapel and as many again had assembled outside to await the approach of the bridal party. The ceremony perforced by Rev. Father John F. Vincent, M. S. pastor of the Immaculate Conception church of Westerly, assisted by Rev. R. F. White and Rev. William Foucault, of Van Buren, Me., who have been Westerly visitors this summer occupied scarcely more than ten minutes.

Prince Edward's father, a native of Bohemia, was Privy Counselor and Lord Chamberlain to the Lt Emperor Franz Josef of Austria, and his mother was lace-in-waiting to the Austrian Court.

James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, and his wife, who came to Watch Hill for the wedding, were prominent among the guests who began to gather in the tiny church early Saturday afternoon. Congressman and Mrs. Richard S. Aldrich of Providence and Washington also were there, the latter in a gown of flowered chiffon with border of white, and black Chantilly lace picture hat.

The plain community church was transformed into the likeness of an Italian garden that made a beautiful setting for the wedding. The bridal party entered the chancel through Roman garden gates of wrought iron. Two marble jardinieres of gladioli dahlias and larkspur stood sentinel. Inside was an ancient prie-dieu, covered with a Florentine scarf, upon which the noble couple knelt to take their vows. The rough board walls were completel yhidden by a forest of tall cedar trees, which also adorned the wall and the church entrances.

The name of the clergyman was not announced until yesterday. A special dispensation for the marriage had been received from the Pope. Friends of the Lihmes had expected an Episcopal minister to officiate, as the Lihmes are of that faith, but Prince Edward desired a priest.

Miss Lihme was in every respect a true Princess with her bridal gown of cream georgette crepe, weighted with seed pearls, hand-embroidered in a Point de Venise design. The costume emphasized straight lines, bateau neck, long tight sleeves and a skirt slightly flared at the front and side. Her long court train was fashioned of cream velvet, veiled with the cream net veil, which fell in soft folds from a tiara of pearls. White orchids and lilies-of-the-valley made up her shower bouquet.

The wedding party entered the church at 4 o'clock to music of the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin," played by William G Hammond of Watch Hill and New York, organist of the church. Edward Wilkerson of New Haven, Conn., a violinist, was accompanist.

The procession was led by the ushers, Coun. Francis Vetter, Prince Eugene Lubormiski of New York and Vienna; Count George Apponyi, Baron Rometio Miller-Aichholz of New York and Vienna, Frederick Allen Austin Gray, Georga Lansil, Albert Dewey, Jr., of New York; Harold Lihme, brother of the bride, and Clemens A. Griscom, 3rd, of Haverford.

Following were the seven bridal attendants and the matron of honor: Miss Sarah Mellon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Mellon of Pittsburgh; Miss Mary Starr Grisom daughter of Rodman F. Grisom of Philadelphia; Miss Narcissa Vanderlip, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip of New York; Miss Marjorie DeL. Oelrichs, daughter of Mrs. Marjorie. Oelrichs of Newport; Miss Helen Isham, daughter of Lt. and Mrs. George Snow Isham of Chicago; Miss Margaret McCargo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant McCargo of Pittsburgh; Miss Dorothy Rhodes, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Barbour of Watch Hill and Detroit. The bride's sister, Mrs. Clement A. Griscom, 3rd (Olga Lihme), was matron of honor.

Prince Ferdinand Lobkowicz, the bridegroom's brother, was best man. The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage. Mrs. Lihme, in a canary yellow imitation of Georgette and gold lace, with velvet picture hat, was seated at the front of the church just before the bridal procession entered.

Green and yellow in flowers and shrubbery predominated in the decorative scheme, which was created by Boston artists, and in the Parisian gowns of the bride's attendants. Bouquets of flowers in autumn shades crowned each pillar and alternate pew entrances of the main aisle in the church.

A single vase of Easter lilies and wrought-iron candelabra with white tapers were the only altar decorations. Other yellow and white tapers in iron candle-stick illuminated the sanctuary.

Sleeveless frocks of palest green chiffon, with flaring skirts and double-layer crepe backs, were worn by the bridal attendants, whose picture hats were fashioned of sea-green taffeta, with velvet ribbon bows. Mrs. Griscom wore a corn-yellow ensemble identical in design to that of the frocks worn by the others. All carried bouquests in yellow and green sleeves.

Preceding the church ceremony, the organist and accompanist played as follows:

"My Heart at The Sweet Voice," Saint Saens (arrange from "Samson and Deliah"); "Song of the Evening Star," Wagner ("Tannhauser"); "Morning" ("Peer Gynt Suite"), Grieg; Liebestraume," Bach-Gounod, "Ave Maria," Liszt; "Amaryllis," Ghys; Meditation from "Thais," Massenet; "Le Cygne," Saint Saens.

Among the distinguished guests who attended the reception at Norman Hall were: Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Charles S. Dewey and Mrs. Dewey, Judge and Mrs. Thomas D. Thacher.

Rhode Island was represented in the gathering by the following: Mr. and Mrs. Ashbel T. Wall, Mr. and Mrs. A. Tingley Wall, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Jenckes, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Innis, Mrs. James A. Atwood, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. G. Richmond Parsons, all of Providence, and Miss Rita Dolan of Newport.

The grounds at Norman Hall were gay with Japanese lanterns and varicolored lights, strung everywhere. The bridal party received the guests under a terrace of flowers in the garden. During supper, the bridal party sat at the long table on the lawn, while guests were given individual tables. Dancing continued into the evening on the platform, built on the lawn facing the ocean. Cedar trees and bouquets of gladioli banked the sides. Underneath an awning at one side of the house, refreshments were served to the guests. An eight-piece orchestra played for dancing.

A hand-dozen traffic policemen were stationed about the grounds and on Ocean road, in front of the estate.

Prince Edward and his bride will sail for Austria September 5 on S. S. Paris to spend part of their honeymoon with the latter in Vienna. Princess Lihme was unable to come to America for the wedding, but this week she cabled her best wishes to her son and daughter-in-law.

The bridal couple will spend this week at Homestead Hotel in Hot Springs, Va. Princess Auguste's travelling costume was an ensemble of cadet-blue tan crepe, with velvet hat in brown.

They will be at home after Dec. 1 at 240 Park avenue, New York city. The Prince intends to open an art gallery in New York.

Stonington Manor inn was reserved over the week-end for the Lihmes for their wedding guests. Some of the visitors, however, preferred to the homes of friends and into the hotels which were provided. Motor cars were provided for transportation of guests to and from Norman Hall.

Miss Lihme's wedding yesterday is the culmination of a romance which began last winter in Palm Beach, Fla., while she was spending the season with her parents. Her name then was linked with that of the Prince, but the engagement was not officially announced until the latter returned to Austria.

Princess Auguste was educated at Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn. She has been an enthusiastic golf enthusiast and represented Glenna Collett of Providence in the semi-finals for the Pentz cup at Philadelphia in October 1922. She was a close friend of Miss Marjorie Merriweather Post, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Post, at Watch Hill.

C. Earl Lihme, her father, came to this country from Germany in 1904. He then was a young chemist. Since that time he has become a retired chemical engineer and is now an art collector.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

BULGARIA FACES NECESSITY OF IMPORTING SUGAR

SOFIA Aug 3 —(AP)—Due to a smaller harvest of beets, Bulgaria's sugar cane is expected to fall far short of that of last year, when the country had sugar to export. The reason is said to be due partly to the refusal of the factories to furnish beet seed to the peasants.

Last year there was such a bumper crop of beets and so much sugar manufactured that the price dropped. The manufacturers are said to have guarded against a similar situation this year with the result that many beet growers withheld the seed from the farmers. Thus the beet acreage was greatly reduced and it is predicted that Bulgaria will be obliged to import sugar from Czechoslovakia.

ARGENTINA PUTS EMBARGO ON WAR SUPPLIES IMPORTS

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 30— (AP)—President Alvear has signed a decree prohibiting the private importation of armaments and munitions of war into Argentina without special permission from the war department, in which case they are only allowed to enter through the port of Buenos Aires.

The decree defines these prohibited imports as those which the nation imports for its own defense and also those used by other countries for similar purposes.

Alps to Have Aerial Railway

MUNICH, Aug. 30—(AP)—Construction of a suspension railway the first of its kind in the Bavarian and Austrian Alps has been started under sanction from the Bavarian government, to run from Garmisch-Partenkirchen to the Kreuzeckhaus, a favorite goal of many tourists. The railway will be able to carry 140 passengers per hour and completion of it is expected by the end of this year.

THE COAL STRIKE.

There is to be a coal strike. The edict has gone forth and those who have already thrown down their pick and shovel will do so tonight. There is to be no continuance of work during the period of adjustment. When some settlement is reached or when the men get tired of waiting there will be a resumption of production but the consumer of anthracite coal and those in the immediate vicinity of the coal fields have failed to get any consideration. There's going to be a strike and they must take the consequences along with those who participate. It is a repetition of the old story.

There have been times when the public has been disposed to display more anxiety over the anticipated effects of a coal strike than is to be discerned this year. This portends a reaction which promises an interesting bearing upon the strike. More stress than ever is being placed upon the utilization of substitutes. The danger of serious hardships which characterized former strikes is not so conspicuous this time. It is realized that if there is a shortage of anthracite there will be available an adequate supply of low volatile bituminous which is considered by some to be preferable to anthracite from the heating standpoint.

Just how generally the public is going to participate in the coal situation remains to be seen. It is of course much concerned even as those in the coal region who are bound to feel the effect of idle workmen. But through recognition of the fact that those who have been using anthracite can command consideration by refusing to use it the time is at hand for the public in this part of the country to show its hand and let it be known that it cannot be treated with impunity if it is going to purchase hard coal.

Thus the coal strike is going to be not only a test of endurance between the coal producers and the coal miners but it promises to reveal public sentiment as never before especially if the strike is prolonged until the surplus of hard coal is disposed of before an agreement is reached.

TREATING ALL ALIKE.

Gradually are injustices ironed out. This process seems to be underway in the right direction when the department of labor rules that Canadians returning third class from Europe and on their way to Canada can enter this country without paying a visit to and undergoing decay and tests required at Ellis Island.

In such cases we are dealing with persons who are using the facilities of this country to get home who are not going to remain here but who are paying business to enterprises in this country.

This ruling is new only to the extent that it includes third class travelers under the same treatment that has been accorded to those traveling as first and second class passengers. Just why there has been this distinction made in the past has not been disclosed at this time. The change would indicate that the safeguards that existed under the former standard no longer considered necessary. Third class travelers are considered to be entitled to the same considerations as those who possess more wealth or who at least have spent more for their traveling expenses. The new ruling has removed that distinction and there seems to be good reason for it.

The person who comes to New York to take a train for some point in Canada stands in a different basis than he who comes here to remain. If it is possible to inspect such temporary visitors abroad and indicate on their papers that they are entitled to pass through the country a most important service has been rendered to such people. It is to be expected that there will be safeguards against taking advantage of such privileges and that there will be check-ups on such entrants, but even if there were not when the time comes that this country provides for registration of all aliens, efforts to dodge any such privileges would be quickly upset.

In many ways it is necessary for the immigration service to protect the interests of the country but when it comes to making a distinction between travelers because they pay different fares there can be seen no good reason for it.

VICTOR F. LAWSON'S WILL

During his lifetime Victor F. Lawson, the late owner and publisher of the Chicago Daily News, had made liberal dispensation of his wealth for the benefit of Chicago and its institutions. It was therefore anticipated that he would be generous along similar lines when it came to drawing up his will, and that anticipation has been confirmed by the making public of the document.

Mr. Lawson has given endorsement to the course followed by other large and wealthy publishers. He has made generous provision for those who have been long and faithfully associated with him in the newspaper business, for those who have given equally conscientious service elsewhere and he has liberally provided for charitable and religious institutions in Chicago and outside.

Naturally there was interest in the method he would take in disposing of the valuable newspaper property. This he places in the hands of trustees, and much satisfaction will be gained from the fact that while he gives them authority to dispose of it that is not contemplated at the present time and the same force and policies will be maintained in continuing its publication.

The News represents his life work. There are values there which cannot be overlooked in the administration of his will and in meeting the benevolences which he has designated. He was not only deeply concerned in the welfare of Chicago during his lifetime but he has seen fit to have his good works continued as near as possible as he would have them if he were present. It is thus to be expected that his great newspaper will continue its influential career in the support of the good causes in quite the ardent manner that it has in the deeply he was concerned in serving past. This alone means much to that city but when combined with the other bequests which he has made indicate how deeply he was concerned in serving the best interests of the metropolis of the middle west.

NEEDLESS BUREAUS.

Getting rid of surplus bureaus may well be the ambition of any government. It is desireable from the standpoint of economy and efficiency. It is one of the duties of large corporations and there is no reason why a well administered government should not follow a similar policy.

Just because there are conditions which warrant, for the time being, the multiplication of bureaus, it does not hold that they should be maintained forever. Just because carelessness or the lack of proper oversight has permitted bureaus to increasewithout regard for what they are doing or the manner in which they overlap does not justify a blind continuance. Just because such bureaus open up political jobs does not mean that they should be tolerate at the expense of economical government.

Repeatedly it has been claimed that this government could be operated at a yearly saving of $300,000,000. Even though it was a claim that was made under different conditions than exist today there is reason to give it much credence. The president has done much to show what can be done through a sane application of economy. He is still insisting upon it. He has the country with him in this respect and when it comes to eliminating the superfluous bureaus or commissions in the federal government it is not only probable that it will mean the saving of much money each year to the government but that better results will be obtained. There is no good reason for the maintenance of a host of needless bureaus, and the first important step in getting rid of them is to show that the are needless.

FRENCH TROUBLES

While France is engaged in the task of living about an adjustment of its foreign debts, incurred during or since the war, it is also confronted with war activities which are bad enough without any other financial problems to handle.

France isn't fighting because it wants to but because it considers it necessary in order to discharge the trust that has been imposed in it. France assumed the responsibility for directing the government of French Morrocco. The Riffians have been successful against the Spanish and they are now trying to oust the French. They have maintained their revolt much longer than it was believed possible but with France taking the defensive rather than the offensive. It has been made clear that it is no tin soldier affair and France has so appraised it. What it will cost in frames and men before it is over no one knows.

The situation is not so different in Syria. There France holds a mandate from the league of nations. Objections have arisen at times to French rule there during the past five years. Perhaps the most serious is now underway with the Druses landing a serious initial blow upon the French forces, which will probably not be repeated.

But with France doing its utmost to balance its budget, to settle its debts and to keep away from increased taxation the trouble in the near east and Africa come at a most inopportune time. And yet it never appears that there is just the right time for trouble anyway. France will meet it but it all adds to its weighty burden.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Olive oil added to putty will prevent its hardening.

If the measuring cup is greased first every drop of molasses will run out.

If the oven door squeaks rub a little lard on the hinges and you will have no further annoyance.

Add a good-sized pinch of salt to your hot starch and you will find your ironed clothes will have a beautiful gloss.

Never put a freshly baked cake into the cake box. Let it become absolutely cold before putting it away or it will become musty.

Adding hot milk instead of cold to mashed potatoes makes them lighter. Mash well ,add salt and butter and hot milk last. Beat for a minute with a fork.

When the whites of eggs have been used and the yolks are not required immediately, put them in a dish and barely cover them with cold water. Place a plate on the dish to exclude the air, and stand in a dark, cool place.

When doing a lot of scrubbing, protect yourself from sore knees by folding some soft cloths into squares and tucking them into your stockings before you start the job.

Nothing is better for scrubbing up an' unfinished tile or linoleum floor than sal soda. Put one-third of a package in a pail of boiling water and apply with a mop.

In adding butter to a sauce, drop it in a small piece at a time stirring each until blended before adding another piece. If much butter is added all at once it might cause it to oil the sauce.

If custard curdles while cooking, remove immediately the upper part of the double boiler in which it is cooking, plunge it into a pan of cold water and beat the mixture smooth with an egg beater, then strain.

KEEPS MEAT JUICY

Meat roasted in a gas cooker becomes dry. Gas causes a very dry heat. A simple way to prevent this is to place a common crockery cup half full of water in a corner at the bottom of the oven. When the water becomes heated the steam will keep the air inside quite moist, and you will find when the meat is done it will be juicy.

IN THE KITCHEN

Bake your cake and cookies during the hot weather early in the morning and let them be of the sponge variety and drop cookies. If butter cakes are made bake then in loaves or shallow pans and spread them with uncooked frostings or dust them over lightly with confectioner's sugar. The making of pies in hot weather requires no little exertion—a hot oven is required—and if the pastry is not up to a high standard of excellence they bring disaster to those who are not blessed with a vigorous digestion.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

A little baking soda dissolved in the bath water is as soothing and healing to the skin as any lotion.

The juice of a lemon added to the final rinsing water after washing the hair gives the latter a beautiful gloss, and its regular use will brighten the color considerably. It is especially valuable for retaining the color of fair hair.

Then, again, there is no finer blood purifier than lemon juice. Taken in a glass of hot water night and morning, the juice of half to a whole lemon will in time make the most obstinately sallow and muddy complexion clear and fresh. People troubled with superfluous flesh can especially be recommended to try the hot lemon water remedy.

The beautifying effects of drinking pure, cold water cannot be over-rated. Few people drink enough. It is food and drink combined and, in addition, one of the finest means of flushing the whole system and keeping it free from impurities. Many people who fly to patent medicines immediately the physical machinery goes wrong would find things righted as if by magic if they would only acquire the habit of drinking plain water, and plenty of it, between meals, as well as first thing in the morning and last thing at night.

GARTERS MADE OF RIBBON

Since the round garter also came back into fashion quantities of new and intriguing styles are being shown. The lovely ribbons that are to be had offer innumerable suggestions in garters, and ribbon garters in every color design possible to fancy are made. The gathered ribbon or the latest ribbon or the latest ribbon tube, through which the elastic is drawn, is the usual kind.

FOR THE TRAVELER

Every woman who travels needs a hat box, even if the trip is for only a week-end visit. A really clever new box is medium sized and has the lid fitted out as a dressing case with all the toilet requisites so dear to the heart of the modern woman.

TO CLEAN COVERS

After a few months of constant use, particularly in summer when travel is heavy and roads are dusty, automobile seat covers are likely to take on a griminess which is not only distressing to the eye but also menacing to light summer frocks.

Remove the covers, shake out the dust, and plunge them into a tub or washing machine filled with suds.

Run the machine for about five minutes or wash by sudsing up and down with the hands. As soon as the water becomes very dirty replace with clean suds.

Rinse thoroughly in warm water. Lay flat on the grass or hang over a line to dry. While slightly damp return the covers to their seats to shape. If the covers are thoroughly dried before replacing they are sometimes difficult to fasten in place due to slight shrinking. When they are damp they can more easily be pulled into place and will fit more smoothly. Leave the car in the open to finish drying.

ATTRACTIVE HAMPER

A welcome addition to the bathroom is a large narrow clothes hamper smooth painted sides are further ornamented by a large map. Bands of color at top and bottom make an attractive border.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Very lovely is silk lingerie made of silk that shades from pale pink to coral.

Simple and charming are white georgette coats made to wear over printed or plain silks.

Newest pajama suits are made of plaid or printed silks bound with plain colors.

Toe sash of this season is much more apt to tie in front than in the back, and the collar usually ties in the back.

Gloves in the slip-on style have supplanted those with fasteners. This idea eliminates the fancy cuff. Chamois or suede are the smartest kind now being shown.

While imitation jewelry is terrible, it is perfectly allowable, smart and in good taste to wear colored stones which match or enhance the costume with which they appear.

A very good looking and unique under-arm bag seen is of shiny leather resembling oilcloth in appearance. Yellow is a fashionable color and is often embellished with a huge Chinese initial.

Pajamas are the popular hot weather boudoir garb. These are usually of sheer printed silk and decorated with large colorful designs. Their proportions are equally ample.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Of the more than 7,000 certified public accountants in the United States only 18 are women.

More than 2,000 women in this country are practicing lawyers, with 5,000 more studying law.

Eighteen women were among the 310 electors recently chosen to elect the president of Finland.

More women are employed as stenographers and typists than in any other gainful occupation.

Only one women's occupation—needlework—was represented at the Columbian exposition in 1892.

One out of every three women in the United States drives her own car or knows how to operate one.

A woman suffrage bill passed its second reading without opposition in Bermuda, but was lost in committee.

A woman suffrage bill recently passed by the Italian chamber of deputies will not go to the senate for the present.

A BRIGHTER FERN

About every three months the house fern will appreciate a watering containing a little household ammonia. It will make it green and glossy.

BED SPRINGS

Bed springs that have no covers often disfigure the mattress by streaks of rust. A cover of heavy unbleached cloth, made large enough to tie down at sides and corners, will save the mattress. If left loose it will pull off sidewise.

RECIPES

Vegetable Jam for Soups: For this recipe will be required one bushel of ripe peeled tomatoes, one quart of onions chopped fine, six okra pods sliced thin, 12 ears of corn cut from the cob and one cup of salt. Cook the okra, onions and corn separately from the tomatoes, as they take longer to cook and must be thoroughly done or the mixture will spoil. Combine the two mixtures and boil all together for a minute. Bottle at once, boiling hot. Some people like the addition of a few carrots cut fine and well cooked. This recipe will fill about eight quart cans or bottles. One bottle of this jam added to the soup stock will make a fine nourishing soup.

Quick Sponge Cake: Put two eggs and two-thirds cup of sugar in a mixing bowl and beat with an egg beater until very light. Add five tablespoonfuls of boiling water quickly and beat well. Mix one cup of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Stir this into the mixture in the bowl, stirring it quickly. Add one teaspoonful of vanilla and bake in two jelly cakepans in a hot oven. About 12 minutes will be the time required. When the cakes have risen sufficiently turn off the burner if you are using a gas stove, or open the oven door, if you are using a range, the object being to reduce the heat. Whip one cup of rich, thick cream stiff with enough powdered sugar to sweeten it to taste and spread it between the layers and on top of the cake. If a fancy design is desired for the top of the cake, pour the cream through a pastry bag in any design preferred.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Joseph J. Thomson, whose new theory of light, expounded the other day at a meeting at Cambridge, has roused the greatest interest, is one of the world's outstanding scientific investigators. In the course of his distinguished career he has made important contributions to our knowledge of electricity, the atom, and kindred subjects. His discovery of electrons, 25 years ago, marked a new stage in physical research, and led to important developments in that line of study. For over 35 years Sir Joseph has been Cavendish professor of experimental physics at Cambridge University, where he quickly justified his appointment, and continued to carry on the great traditions of his predecessor, Lord Rayleigh. In 1908 he was knighted, and in 1912 the greatly prized Order of Merit was bestowed upon him. He has received degrees from the leading universities of the world and in 1906 was awarded the Nobel prize for physics.

Do roaches make you fighting mad?

SPRAYING Flit quickly rids the house of roaches.

Flit spray destroys roaches, bed bugs, ants and insect eggs. The cracks and crevices where insects hide and breed are readily reached by Flit spray. It is clean, easy and safe to use.

Kills Household Insects

Flit spray clears the house in a few minutes of mosquitoes and disease-bearing flies. Spraying Flit on garments kills moths and their larvae which eat holes. Extensive tests showed that Flit did not stain or injure the most delicate fabrics.

A Scientific General Insecticide

Flit is the result of exhaustive research by expert entomologists and chemists. More than 70 formulas were tested on various household insects before Flit was finally perfected. Flit is a 100% effective insecticide containing no inactive (inert) ingredients.

"The yellow can with the black band"

From Small Beginnings

William Arrol, Member of Parliament

About 1830 a small boy was brought to a blacksmith shop in England and introduced to the blacksmith.

"I want him to learn the work," said his guardian. "Put him at it, and see that he does what he's told to do, and does it well. Make him work."

"Aye, I'll make him work," the big blacksmith answered gruffly, "or else I'll hammer him out like a piece of iron."

So the boy went to work in the little shop, pulled the bellows that blew the fire that made the black iron turn red and white and little by little learned the difficult knack of hammering and welding and shaping iron into things of use. Grimly the blacksmith watched him, and gruffly he directed the work, but he was kind-hearted for all his gruffness and soon learned to admire the lad. "Billy Arrol has pluck, Lor' bless me!" he said to his cronies, when he spoke about the boy. "He's a worker, I say, and I know. He never tires out. There's a lad for you!"

From the little blacksmith shop the boy passed on into larger and more important places where he learned much more about iron. He became able to use machines and to do difficult work with iron, and to make complicated things. He gained little money but he saved enough that he earned and put it aside for the time when he should start in business for himself—for he was determined not to remain another man's man. The time came, when he was 29 years of age, when he could invest his hard-earned savings in a business of his own. He became a maker of boilers and an employer of workmen. Once again he saved his money and looked to the future. At 33, William Arrol turned from iron to the using of steel. He became a builder of bridges—for he had studied and thought, and had mastered the element with which he worked. Now, in his larger field, he repeated what he had done all his life: he did well the small job that came to him and moved ahead to the bigger job. From small bridges he went to the making of great bridges. Before he died, in 1913, he had constructed some of the great modern steel bridges in the world. Every American knows the great Tower bridge in London, and many Americans have been on the bridge across the Nile at Cairo. These and many great bridges in England and Scotland are lasting monuments to the skill and achievement of the blacksmith's boy.

At the end, the King of England honored him, and made him "Sir William Arrol," and his associates sent him to Parliament. He died, full of honors, at the age of 74.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

PONDICHERRY

"One recollects from his English colonial history that France once held sway over all Southern India. He may be forgiven for forgetting that she still has five separate colonies there, for they are not often conspicuous," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Pondicherry, the principal possession, and capital of French colonial India, lies along the road from Madras to Cuddalore, 122 miles by rail south of the former.

"The charming seashore city of about 30,000 peoples which is the chief town of Pondicherry, and bears the same name, seems to prove the blessedness of a lack of history. It has been two centuries since it participated in any events of more than local import.

"Leaving ship about a mile from shore the visitor has his first distinctive experience by riding the rough surf in a masullah. The usual tender would be engulfed by the lofty breakers that crash against the Pondicherry coast. The type of boat used is built of long planks with high sides and a flat bottom. The floor is lined with twigs to keep passengers' feet dry.

"The trip has all the thrills of a roller-coaster spin for the boat literally rides the waves instead of cutting through them. The planks are flexible and the queer boat can bump ship or shore and rebound like a rubber ball.

"Another curious craft—a one-man car of the shore waiters—is the catamaran. Three logs with upturned ends are lashed together and the surf-rider on this precarious float has a tall, peaked hat that looks like an elongated dunce cap. Inside his hat are pockets for the letters and small parcels he carries.

"Although Pondicherry has no harbor its spacious pier gives first evidence of its modern aspect. At one end is a statue of a great general, Dupleix, hero of the siege of Gingee, India's inland Gibraltar. Surrounding the statue are carved columns, brought by him from the native fortres which was the stronghold of the Mahratta kings whose line culminated in the great Sivaji.

"The romance of Mahratta history, the traditions of the Gingee stronghold built on three hills, and the adventures of Sivaji, from the time he escaped from a Mogul emperor in a confections basket until he became the King Arthur of his people are events which vie with the Arabian Nights tales.

"When in 1750, the French captured the 'impregnable' Gingee alien ascendancy over Southern India was established and, eleven years later, when the British military prowess in India vanished. The three hills stand today off the beaten paths of travel, in the south Arcot district of Madras, as grim reminders of a fascinating chapter in colonial competition. The name of the region where Pondicherry lies—the Coromandel coast—is a memento of the activities of a third power, Portugal, in India's colonization.

"If the visitor has acquired the taxicab habit he will leave his masullah to step into another extraordinary conveyance, a 'pousse pousse,' which, in English is aptly a 'push-push.' This chair resembles a boardwalk conveyance at a seaside resort save that in the land of cheap labor two ebony attendants push it, and two more pull it.

"To one who would avoid dreams of tloping the pall-bearers at his own funeral, it is more comfortable to walk to his hotel. The charm of the Place de la Republique, with its band playing in a central stand, and of the Place du Government, with its greensward and fountain and the public buildings around it, lures the newcomer to contemplation.

"The fountain has a story—everything has in Pondicherry—for it seems that here once stood the home of a dancing girl. A King chanced that way one evening, and mistaking her cottage for a shrine, the king stopped to worship there. When he discovered his mistake he ordered the cottage demolished, which was done, whereupon a fountain began to flow at that place. Sometimes visitors scoff at this story, then they are shown an old Latin inscription which proves it—for does the inscription not record that a dancing girl's home did stand here in ancient times?

"The town is cut in halves by a canal and the European section is notably clean. Its streets are laid out at right angles instead of in the more customary haphazard fashion of the east. Many of them are tree-lined and a promenade runs along the waterfront. Few horse-drawn or motor vehicles traverse its streets: the quiet of the town constitute one of its quaint charms."

That Recall Others

Wasn't In the Curriculum.

A knowledge of pedagogy does not always beget a knowledge of the finer aspects of horticulture or agriculture. For instance, a teacher had occasion to visit with her father the little garden the parent had planted in the small plot he had hired for that purpose.

"Daddy, dear," she said in the tone characteristic of the girls who have passed the 'teen age. "Do the cabbages grow on top of the ground or underneath the ground."

Why He Quit Farming.

While on his vacation Henry met an old acquaintance who knew him as a farmer. The friend was surprised to learn that he had left the farm and asked many questions. Henry was obliged to explain his change as follows:

"When tonsilitis left me without any voice, and I couldn't call in my pigs, I trained them to know it was feed time when I pounded on the fence post with a stick. This worked all right until spring came around and then the dern hogs ran themselves so skinny I couldn't sell them, running to the trough every time a woodpecker hammered on the fence."

BUSY POLITICAL CAMPAIGN IN NEW YORK THIS YEAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—(A. P.)—Hosts of primaries and accusations of opponents poured thick and fast from the various factions in the heated struggle for the New York municipality nominations. The candidates themselves spent the Sunday preparing for another week of intensive campaigning.

Mayor Smith, who made a few appearances last week in behalf of Walker's candidacy for the Democratic nomination, and Walker himself announced his next appearance for Tuesday on the Bronx.

Senator Walker spent the day attending ball games at Ebbets field and the Polo grounds and a reception at Rockaway. Four Walker rallies will be held in Manhattan Monday, the Tammany leaders making short addresses. Two will be held Tuesday.

Governor Smith's appearance in the Bronx Thursday will leave Manhattan the only borough still to be covered by the candidates that week, save for some minor audiences in Queens and Richmond. It was said that he intended to stump Manhattan for the Tammany choice Friday before the primaries.

Mayor Hylan will make the principal address by several speakers at his first campaign appearance with other candidates tonight. The mayor's forces also were busy for their meetings tonight and expressed belief they would be joined by a large number of Democratic voters.

AUTO INJURIES WERE FATAL TO WATERBURY BOY

WATERBURY, Aug. 30—Edward H. Conway, six years old son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Conway, of 72 Lounsbury street, died at the Griffin hospital in Derby this afternoon, as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident on Beacon Falls yesterday. The boy's brother, Vincent T. Conway, 4, with whom he was riding, was killed in the crash.

The boy's injuries were at first not considered to be serious.

The Conway's crashed into by a car owned and driven by Nicholas Jacusco of 11 Elizabeth street, Ansonia. It was pushed to the wrong side of the road when a line of cars were forced to apply their brakes because a slow moving vehicle ahead. The car in the rear of Jacusco's car bumped into it and pushed it out of line. The body was brought here to the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Conway, of 107 Burton street and funeral services will be announced later. Coroner Eli Mix conducted a hearing on the accident in Beacon Falls this morning. Jacusco was ordered held in bail of $1,000 until the issuing of the coroner's finding.

WOMAN COLLAPSED IN STREET IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 30—Mrs. Gabriele Michael, 55, a housekeeper at 231 Everett street, suddenly collapsed while walking along Mansfield St. this afternoon and died while being taken to Grace hospital. She was a victim of a heart attack.

FIRE WAS CAUSED BY BURNING PAN OF GREASE

BRIDGEPORT, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Fire caused by the burning of a pan of grease on a stove in the crew galley of the United States army mine planter Baird attached to Fort H. G. Wright, Fisher's Island, N. Y., this afternoon when the 242 Regiment, Connecticut National Guard, en route from Fort Wright to this city, caused considerable excitement, but no damage.

The steamer had left Fort Wright at 12:30 o'clock and was out but a short time when dense volumes of smoke filled the main deck cabins and passage ways, followed by cries of "fire." Members of the crew and the National Guard who rushed to the galley found the room black with choking smoke and tongues of flames issuing from within partly open oven door.

MADE ARREST ON CHARGE OF SALE OF LIQUOR AT BEAN HILL PLACE

Saturday night at Bean Hill the arrest of James Cirves, 43, was made by Constable Lucius Fenton on the charge of violation of the prohibition law, of which evidence was secured, it is claimed, by George Hollingsworth and Charles Topliff, who were working with the constable. A bottle of liquor claimed to have been sold to one of the two men who was taken into the cellar of the building by Cirves is in the hands of the authorities as evidence.

Cirves has been conducting a pool room and beverage, cigar and cigarette store in a building in the rear of another just north of the Bean Hill green and the arrest was made there by the constable after the alleged evidence had been secured by the two men who were helping him.

Bail was given at police headquarters for the appearance of Cirves in the city court.

Jail and Fine.

The case of Ludwik Golombrowski of 564 North Main street, accused of violation of the prohibition law, was on trial nearly all of Saturday morning in the city court. When put to plea, the accused pleaded not guilty through his counsel, Attorney Roderick M. Douglass. The principal evidence against Golombrowski was given by Francis Paquette, a next door neighbor, who testified to buying a half pint of liquor, which was handed to him by Michael Cloutier, who also handled the $2 bill with which he paid for the bottle of liquor, receiving back $1.50 in change from Golombrowski.

Sergeant Mathew Delaney told of making note of the number of the bill which he furnished to Paquette to buy the liquor and of finding the same bill on Golombrowski when he was arrested. The police sergeant also stated that when Officer Quinn went to the house to arrest Golombrowski they were at first unable to get in but could see Louis' wife pouring some two gallons of liquid down the sink. He could not tell Attorney Douglass whether it was water or liquor that she was pouring down the sink.

After listening for some two hours Judge Libby found the accused guilty and sentenced the man to 20 days in jail and imposed the fine of $200 and costs, Golombrowski paid the fine and went to jail.

On Sept. 29 of last year Raymond Bazinet was arrested and charrged with violation of the liquor law on an actual sale. He gave bonds of $1,000 after being found guilty, fined $200 and costs and given 30 days in jail to take an appeal. He skipped his bond and the bond was called. Late Thursday he appeared in police headquarters and gave himself up. City Attorney Robbins asked to have the case reopened which was done, and the bond returned. Bazinet paid the fine and went to jail to serve the 30 days.

Six months in jail was the sentence meted out to Octave J. Caron of 582 North Main street when he was presented in the city court Friday morning before Judge Arthur F. Libby on a charge of violation of the liquor laws. In addition Caron was fined $200 and costs, a total of $216.28. He paid his fine and went to jail to serve his sentence. His case had been continued several times in court since his arrest.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL WITH THIGH INJURED

George Tragi, a marine attached to the U. S. S. Camden, now tied up at the submarine base, at Groton, was thrown from a Ford roadster in which he was riding about midnight Sunday when the machine struck a telegraph pole near the Clay block, on Laurel Hill avenue. He was taken to the Backus hospital in the police patrol. He complained of pain about his right thigh, but it is not thought his injuries are serious.

According to the driver, George J. Keenan, 20, No. 141 Winthrop street, New London, he had just picked up the marine, who hailed him and asked for a ride to the sub base. After picking up the marine, Keenan had proceeded but a short distance when he claims the Ford skidded in the electric tracks of the trolley tracks with the result that it landed against a telegraph pole on the right hand side of the road.

Police headquarters was notified of the accident and the police patrol and several officers with Sergt. Mathew Delaney, went to the scene. Tragi had been taken into the hallway of the residence of Mrs. Mary A. Bolduc. The marine was placed on a stretcher and taken to the hospital in the police car.

The roadster, which is owned by Mathias A. Keenan of No. 141 Winthrop street, New London, was considerably damaged by the crash. The windshield was smashed, the top practically demolished, one door and the right front mudguard smashed.

SUSPECTED THIEVES MAKE ESCAPE AT WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Aug. 30—Ticket Agent George A. Golden of Westerly had left his home, 14 Dixon street, with his wife to see guests away on the train. He returned home, after an absence of 20 minutes, to find that his house had been broken into. Examination showed that an outside cellar door had been entered and the wood work cut away with a knife around the lock on the doorway at the head of the cellar stairs, giving entrance to the upper rooms of the house. The return of Mr. Golden hastened the departure of the intruders who took a couple of flash lights with them. Police Sergeant Michael Curtin and Officer George H. Champlin made an investigation. As they were leaving Dixon street, four young men were met and as the officer jumped from the automobile two of the young men bolted, possibly the property of High street. The officers visited the West side, as it was learned from the other two boys that the bolters had asked the way to the New London turnpike. At a West Broad street filling station two young men were seen to jump on the rear of an electric car headed for New London grasping the rear fender. The officers pursued the car by automobile and just as the car was overtaken at the junk yard of Henry Walton on Mechanic Street, just above the Lorraine Mill property, the two young men jumped off vaulted the fence and disappeared in the rear of the yard, towards the Pawcatuck river, but not before Sergeant Curtin had drawn his revolver and fired two shots in the direction of the disappearang young men. A thorough search of the premises availed the officers nothing.

New London police and Connecticut state police were notified to be on the watch for the young men who were described as of medium height, about 16 or 18 years; one had a blue sweater.

SURPRISED MISS GALLUP WITH WEDDING GIFT

Miss Henrietta H. Gallup, who for four and a half years has been society editor and proof reader for The Norwich Record was given a complete surprise Saturday morning in the editorial rooms of the newspaper when the entire group of employes assembled and presented her a beautiful eight-day mahogany clock as a wedding gift. Miss Gallup concluded her employment Saturday and is to be married next Saturday to C. Richard Tillson of Amherst, Mass.

Herbert Charnetski represented his business associates in making the presentation, expressing their appreciation of the good fellowship which has always existed and voicing their best wishes to Miss Gallup for a long and happy married life. She responded gratefully and graciously for the gift, which she said would always be a reminder of the friendly relations she had enjoyed with all her associates.

Accompanying the clock was an attractive card entitled "To Our Proof Reader" in which there were three stanzas of appropriate verse composed by Miss Jesse Hill, accountant at the office. All expressed regrets at the departure of Miss Gallup but sincere good wishes for a most happy married life were extended by every one present.

WEDDING

Kirby-Shea.

A wedding of social interest was solemnized at St. Patrick's church, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, when Miss Marion Agnes Shea, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel T. Shea, of 201 Broadway, became the bride of Edward Cornelius Kirby, D. D. S., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kirby, of Oneco street. The ceremony was performed and the nuptial high mass was sung by the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael Henry May.

The bridesmaid was the sister of the bride, Miss Marguerite Shea, the other bridal attendants being the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Francis Shea, her cousin Mrs. Angelo Calderone, of Providence, and Mrs. Frederick S. Crowell.

Dr. Kirby had as his best man his cousin, Charles B. Meehan, of New York. The ushers were Thomas F. Shea, Dr. William T. Driscoll and Charles O'Brien.

Gladioli in pastel tints, with hydrangeas, against a foil of palms, formed the decorations of the altar and sanctuary. The pews along the nave reserved for relatives and guests were designated by bouquets of white hydrangeas.

The bride, who entered walking with her father, who gave her in marriage, wore bridal satin, beaded in pearls. The court train fell from the shoulders. Her veil of tulle was in coronet effect, with duchess and rose point lace and orange blossoms. She carried Anunciation lilies.

The smart frock of the maid of honor was of chiffon in rainbow tints, hydrangea blue, violet and wild rose. Her transparent large hat carried out the same tints in its graceful streamers. Her flowers were blue hydrangeas, knotted with violet streamers.

Of the other bridal attendants, Mrs. Thomas F. Shea was in violet chiffon. Mrs. Calderone wore wide rose pink and Mrs. Crowell's gown was of hydrangea blue. The streamers of chiffon on their transparent hats carried out the hues of their gowns, as did also the rainbow streamers tying their bouquets of gladioli. The harmonizing tints made the entering bridal procession exceedingly effective.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Daniel T. Shea wore a gown of beige lace. Her corsage bouquet was of pansies. Mrs. Edward Kirby, mother of the groom, wore crepe Roma, of cuckoo tint.

As the guests were assembling, Prof. Frank L. Farrell played the following organ program:

Prelude and Fugue ..... Bach
Pastorale op. 42 ..... Guilmant
Romance ..... Franzoff
Serenade ..... Rachmaninoff
Forest Murmurings (New Ms.) Farrell
Benediction Nuptial ..... Dubois
Organ—"To a Wild Rose" ..McDowell
Wedding Roses ..... Eliot
Mr. Murdy

As the bride-elect entered the church the final number modulated into the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, which was sung by the full choir. During the ceremony, Frank R. Murdy sang "O, Perfect Love," by Barnby.

The nuptial high mass began with the special introit, Tobias VII, 8, its opening sentence, "May the God of Israel join you together." The epistle of the mass was Ephesians V, 22-33 and the gospel was Matthew XIX 3-6 ending, "What therefore God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." Monsignor May imparted the nuptial blessing most impressively, beginning, "May the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob be with you." Monsignor May wore for the first time golden vestments from Rome. During the mass, Mrs. Frank L. Farrell sang at the offertory "Ave Maria." The recessional was the Mendelssohn Wedding March.

Following the church ceremony there was a reception and breakfast for eighty, at the home of the bride Smith's orchestra played. The breakfast was served by the Wauregan hotel. The flowers at the church and house were by Geduldig, those at the church being arranged by the Altar Society. The bride received beautiful gifts.

Mrs. Kirby is a graduate of Norwich Free Academy and attended Connecticut College in the class of 1922. She is a member of the Norwich College club and of the Norwich Golf club.

Dr. Kirby was graduated from Norwich Free Academy and from Georgetown University, where he was a member of Delta Sigma Delta. He also belongs to the Norwich Golf club. He and his bride will be at home at 13 Broad street, after November 1st.

Attending the wedding from out of town were: Arthur Grimes, Charles B. Meehan, Mr. and Mrs. John F. McCormack, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. William Conner, of Hempstead, L. I.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Rang, Misses Annie and Kate Royston, Springfield, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Timothy C. Shea, Miss Dorothy Shea and Harold Shea, Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Calderone and Miss Marion Calderone, of Providence; Mathew Rang, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Williams, of Windsor Locks; Attorney James Shea, Miss Margaret Shea, Mr. and Mrs. James Rohan and Miss Nancy Sullivan, of Hartford; P. L. Shea, Mr. Thomas Reilly and Kenneth Shea, of New London; James Shea and Miss Agnes Shea, of Jewett City; Miss Kirby, Miss John Kirby, of Plainfield; Michael Shea, Misses Teresa and Josie Shea, of Canterbury; Mr. and Mrs. Max Rang, South Manchester; Mr. and Mrs. John F. Conway, of Baltic.

"MISS HARTFORD" TAKES THE AIR WITH MAYOR STEVENS

HARTFORD, Aug. 30—(A. P.)—Taking off from Brainard field at 3 p. m., Mayor Norman C. Stevens, and a party which included Mary Brandewicz, better known as "Miss Hartford" made his second trip over the city in the giant Sikorsky plane to broadcast an appeal for the American legion endowment campaign.

The plane, which has been christened the "Yorktown," was in the air about half an hour, circling over the city and swinging out over the surrounding country, while the mayor and "Miss Hartford" sent out their messages to thousands of listeners—in a mile or so below them.

"Miss Hartford" sat in the small cockpit with the pilot, Captain Homer M. Barry, for the first fifteen minutes, while the mayor, sitting back in his wicker arm chair in the cabin, delivered his address into the microphone which had a special extension so that the speaker would not have to move from his seat.

FOUND NEPHEW AFTER 25 YEARS' SEARCH

HARTFORD, Aug. 30.—(AP)—From Main street, Los Angeles, Calif., to Main street, Hartford, Conn., is no small affair in terms of distance, but Mrs. Bella Klewitsky, who twice has crossed the Atlantic in search of the nephew she left at Kuty, Austria, twenty five years ago and who found this nephew Saturday night in the person of Joseph Kalman, of number 1096 Main street, Hartford, counted the trip from California to Connecticut by minutes.

In the little Austrian town of Kuty, Joseph Kalman and his family lived thirty years ago His mother died when he was a baby and his aunt cared for him. Then, when Joseph was six years old, she married and came north to America, living for fourteen years in Montreal before moving to Los Angeles where she with her husband own a hotel at 4319 South Main street. Before leaving Montreal to live in California, Mrs. Klewitsky took a trip to Austria to try to find her nephew who was the son of her favorite sister and whom she had nursed in childhood. No one in Kuty knew where Joseph had gone. His father had married again and Joseph had run away from home.

Again Mrs. Klewitsky made the trip to Austria from California and again found no trace of Joseph. Then two years ago a letter from a former sweetheart of Mrs. Klewitsky living at that time in Hartford, contained the news that a Joseph Kalman owned a restaurant on Main street here. Mrs. Klewitsky wrote to him and the reply assured her that it was her nephew for whom she had searched for more than twenty years.

Her husband was ill. She could not leave to come east until a week ago. When she did arrive late Saturday night it was to find Joseph Kalman grown to manhood and with a wife and three children. He didn't know Mrs. Klewitsky whom he had not seen since he was six year old. And then there was crying and rejoicing.

Happiness brings tears just like sorrow," Mrs. Klewitsky maintained. "I was so excited I didn't sleep all last night. It was to find Joseph Kalman grown to manhood and with a wife and three children. He didn't know Mrs. Klewitsky whom he had not seen since he was six year old. And then there was crying and rejoicing.

Happiness brings tears just like sorrow." Mrs. Klewitsky maintained. "I was so excited I didn't sleep all last night. It was to find Joseph Kalman grown to manhood and with a wife and three children. J. B. MARTIN WINS TAFTVILLE SERIES; RIVERVIEW-ASHLAND BREAK EVEN

J. B. Martin flashed out a winner in the two games of the Taftville-Martin series, which were played over the week end, but both games were won only after a hard battle by the losers, when it seemed as though the breaks in the game were lined up strong against them.

Saturday's game was a fast and furious contest but Sunday's battle was a weird contest and went to the Martins after Taftville fell one run short in their rally in the ninth. The scores read 4 to 3 and 12 to 11 for the mill men.

The Saturday game was played at the Providence Street grounds and was one of the best games played there in years. Errors proved costly to the home team, however, while the Martins were perfect in the fielding. Wonderful fielding cut off Taftville's chances for scoring, one of the run killers being a catch by Dona, who went up the ledge after the ball which looked good for extra bases. Another feature of the game was that not one Taftville man fanned. The J. B. Martin start to victory came in the sixth when F. Gley and J. Murphy hit safely. Gley scored when Shefflott threw wild to third and Murphy counted on Dona's hit. The winning run came in the seventh when W. Gley was hit by a pitched ball and scored on Degelles' hit through short. Taftville had plenty of chances to score the winning run and a total of 16 men left on bases tells the story in itself. The score.

Martins Clinch Title.

The J. B. Martin team clinched the title Sunday at their own grounds when they took a weird contest by a score of 12 to 11. Everything which goes into baseball was seen in this game, but a shower of hits, which could not be checked, spelled doom for Taftville until the ninth and here it seemed as though the Taftville team was going to throw off the jinx and win a game. The rally fell one run short of tying the score and the contest was over.

In the seventh with Taftville leading 8 to 4 every thing looked rosy. It looked even better when Dona flew out and E. Murphy popped out. W. Gley came to bat and touched the pill for a single and from then on it was hit and run. Decelles stepped up twice in this inning and collected two hits, drove in two runs and rounded twice himself. Eight runs were piled up in this inning giving the Martins a lead of six runs.

In the ninth, when everything seemed over for Taftville, the boys started on a hitting spree and seemed due to win until Leo Jarvis hit to short and was thrown out, ending the rally and game, five runs scored being one short of enough to tie the score.

For Taftville Chick Stanley played a whale of a game. Five trips to the plate spelled five hits for Stanley, one a homer, another a double, while others went for singles that meant runs. Another clout looked good for the circuit but the ball hit an automobile and this gave him the two bagger.

Lefty Dugas finished the game for Taftville and held the Martins in check and it is believed that if he had started the contest the score would have been different. The score:

Riverview Loses.

Riverview lost a hard fought battle at Riverview grounds Saturday, the score being 7 to 6. The closeness of the score tells the story in itself but only a fraction of it.

Riverview had a distrastous first inning after they had seemingly put the game on ice for themselves. Five big runs came over to count for Ashland during the first inning. Zemke started to pitch for Riverview but he passed three men, had two wild pitches, was nicked for a hit and was taken out and relieved by Mills. Before Mills could retire the side the total had been brought to five runs.

After this it was a good game and developed into a pitchers battle. Mills allowing but four hits, errors in the outfield being costly and having much to do with the loss of the game.

A chance to win the game came in the final frame for Riverview. The score stood at 7 to 6 against them and with a man on third and one on first, it seemed as though the rally would continue. Nap Liberty, flashy player spilled the beans for Riverview when he went back and nailed the ball for the third out. The score:

Ashland Beaten.

Sunday afternoon at Jewett City Ashland Park, the Ashland A. A. after winning nine straight games lost to the fast Riverview club in a hard fought battle. "Tony" West, former Baltimore International League twirler on the mound for Riverview, and "Spike" Liberty for Ashland were both hit hard, each being nicked for eleven hits.

The game was full of thrills and the six hundred fans present were kept on an edge at all times.

The outstanding features were Gilbert's catch of Allard's drive off the left field fence and Guillett's one hand grab of Hamel's liner.

"Spike" Liberty was the hitting star of the game getting four hits out of five trips to the plate. He was robbed of a perfect day in the ninth, when Harrell went into the air and pulled down a Texas leaguer.

The attraction at Ashland Park next Sunday will be Henry Loughran's Moosup Town team, Eastern Connecticut champs in the first game of the little world series.

EAST ENDS-CENTRAL GAME FOR TONIGHT

With only a few more games to go the twilight league race has drawn up to be a real tight one and perhaps before this week has passed the standing may be different than what it has been of late.

The games last week all proved to be real surprises, it being a case of the tailenders handing out set backs to the leaders. On Monday night Hallville, a second division team with an entirely new team handed the Centrals their second defeat of the season. On Tuseday Yantic another second division team held the East Ends to a 2 to 2 tie and on Wed. night came the big surprise of the season when the fighting Saints the tailenders fighting desperately dragged the E. C. P. out of a tie with the Centrales by beating them two to one. The E. C. P.'s hard luck still held good on Friday night when they received their second defeat of the week from the East Ends and dropped into third place.

Tonight when the Centrals and East Ends meet it will practically decide the pennant winners of 1925 as the Centrals lead the East Ends by a whole game and should they win tonight will practically cinch the pennant, while should they lose the East Ends will go into a tie for the league leadership with them.

Twice during the season have teams come up even with the Centrals only to fall back shortly and whether the East Ends can make the grade will be seen tonight. The East Ends have fought a tough race since the beginning of the season coming from seventh place to almost the top.

While the different teams have all shown a flash in the pan, it is the same Centrals that are leading the league now that set the pace early in the season. While every team has juggled their lineup considerably the Centrals still hold their original lineup and are proving real pennant contenders meeting teams during the season that were gotten together only to play the Centrals. Tonight this same team led by "Lefty" Harroll will give battle to the East Ends led by "Chick" Davis, and what a pitcher's duel it should be with these two veterans opposing each other.

The remainder of the East Ends lineup will be Belair catch, Coughlin first base, J. Murphy second base, Normandin short stop, H. Mills third base and Allard, Murphy, Noel, Joubert, Gaudette and Bill Austin in outfield.

The Centrals will lineup as follows, Eccleston catch, A. Dugas first base Cardin second base, Gaupchier short stop, Yerrington at third, and Gaudette, E. Murphy and Lefty Dugas in the outfield.

LEADERS BACK FROM WEST TO CLASH IN SERIES

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—Two contenders for the American league championship stacked their baseball weapons tonight to shake the dust of a hostile west from their cleated boots and come east with badly battered teams to engage in a two game series at Washington, the first round of a six game struggle between them within the next ten days for the first place.

At the most crucial period of the struggle, both Washington and Philadelphia have been their offensives cracked on a determined western front. The Senators saved a sorely wounded pitching staff, yesterday and today, by coming to the rescue with a revival of heavy hitting to beat back the Chicago White Sox and return to the more peaceful east with a western record of eight victories and six defeats. But the Mackmen retired in complete disorder from Detroit after suffering their tenth reverse in twelve games on the road.

In spite of the fact that the champions today had lengthened their advantage to three and one-half games, Philadelphia fans saw hope in the crumpling of Stanley Harris' veteran pitching staff. Although Zachary came through toward the close of the week to give his mound mates a breathing spell after a steady relay of Washington pitchers had paraded from dugout to slab to dugout, the hurling staff of the champions finished the tour sadly in need of rest.

Piling uncertain defense play in the field on their batting slump, Mack's young team gave every evidence of cracking completely, closing the western books tonight with six straight defeats.

In sharp contrast to the behavior of the American league leaders, the Pittsburgh Pirates, braced by the decisive blow they struck at the crippled New York Giants, last week sailed through Boston and Philadelphia for seven victories in nine starts, lengthening their margin over the champions to seven full games. Brilliant pitching early in the week was topped by terrific hitting at the close, when the Pirate machine fell upon the hapless Phillies with such fury that Fletcher's team was driven from a seventh place berth, they had won after a struggle with Chicago.

With the National league leaders so far ahead, interest was partially diverted last week to the drive of the Braves to vacate the cellar. Crowds almost equal to those of world series days attended the games in Boston, where Bancroft's team, giving promise of better things next year, put up a determined front against the Pirates and closed strongly tugging at the coat tails of the Cubs and Phillies. So hot is the race in the second division at this stage, that only six and one half games separated the Braves from the first division last night.

The Brooklyn Robins combined good hitting with reliable pitching in spots, after a losing series with Chicago, and displaced the Cardinals at fourth place in the National, while the luckless Giants succeeded in holding off Cincinnati from the second peg in spite of an injury which put Ross Young out of the lineup.

Detroit and St. Louis, profiting by the losing slump of the leaders, led the American league in games won and lost for the week, with six victories in seven attempts. The Browns held the fort at fourth place against the Tigers, as a result by the slim margin of one and one-half games.

The Cleveland Indians brought forth a belated show of pitching strength to win five of their six games, but remained locked in sixth place between Detroit and New York, while the Boston Red Sox put in a typically colorless basement week.

COBB CALLED GREATEST BALL PLAYER OF ALL TIME

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 30—Tyrus Raymond Cobb of Augusta, Ga., and Detroit was described as the "greatest ball player of all time," by Ban Johnson, president of the American League, Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics and other speakers at the great testimonial dinner to Cobb which lasted into the early hours of today.

The event was described as one of the most enthusiastic gatherings of the kind. It is believed to be the first time that a major league ball player has been honored by an official testimonial, sponsored by the municipality itself.

It was a magnificent culmination of twenty vigorous record breaking years in the American league for the "Georgia" peach. The eulogies of his exploits poured forth with eloquence and continuity until the time came for Cobb himself to speak. He was so greatly moved by what had been said that he could only deprecate his own exploits and express regret that he had not accomplished more.

Cobb thanked Mayor John W. Smith and the City of Detroit for the $1,000 grandfather clock given him and Frank J. Navin and other owners of the baseball club for the check for five thousand dollars presented him.

Hundreds of telegrams felicitating Cobb on the completion of twenty years American league service were read.

Connie Mack, who was in baseball when Cobb made his debut in the American League, picked the four ball players he regarded as the best in the game today, placing Cobb at the head of the list as "baseball's greatest player". The others picked by Mack were Eddie Collins, manager of the Chicago Americans, Tris Speaker, the manager of the Cleveland Indians, and Walter Johnson of the Washington club.

UMPIRE CONROY TARGET FOR STONES AND BOTTLES

BRIDGEPORT, Aug. 30—Bridgeport and Pittsfield broke even in a double header here this afternoon. The Bears took the first game on Horan's strong pitching, six to two, while the Hillies won out in the free hitting twilight contest 5 to 4.

Umpire Conroy was showered with stones and bottles after a close decision at the plate in the eighth inning of the second game. The scores:

DODGERS TAKE TWIN BILL FROM CINCINNATI

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 30—Brooklyn annexed both games of a twin bill with Cincinnati today, 4 to 3 in 10 innings and 10 to 8.

Hargrave's double with two on the bases drove home the winning run in the opening play. The Robins knocked Luque out of the box in the fourth inning of the final game. Wheat hit a homer with two on base.

Bixey, Reds twirler, was put out of the first game for protesting a decision while in the second contest, Fournier collided with Critz on the base path, the latter being forced to retire. The score:

YANKS LOSE GAME TO BROWNS SCORE 7 TO 6

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 28—Defeat of the Yankees by the Browns today concluded their series here. The score was 7 to 6, giving the Browns two victories to one for New York. Both teams counted three times in the opening inning and repeated in the fifth. But a single tally off the Browns in the second swung the decision.

Babe Ruth was not in the lineup, having left for Chicago this noon, after being suspended by Manager Huggins yesterday. The score:

POETRY FOR WIDE AWAKES

I've Got a Dad

I've got a Dad. The other guys
Have only things that money buys.
And lots of things the others hain't
(I should say ain't)
And some have bikes and radios,
And hear the bands and great solos,
And knows the things that fellers knows,
But I've got a Dad.

I've got a Dad—a jolly chum,
Say fellers [illegible] is gosh some.
And listen to me gee [illegible] what
Some boys ain't got.
Sometimes there is a guy you know
That lives around the house and so
They call him Pop—but gosh, he's slow,
But I've got a Dad.

I've got a Dad—he married, Maw,
But that ain't why I call him Pa.
For he's a regular Scout I get
(Like some ain't got it
There's kids that if they had a camp
Would keep from goin' on the hike;
Believe me I am tickled some
'Cause I've got a Dad.

I've got a Dad oh gee he's swell
We're just on 1 pals—I'm here to tell
A Dad's a thing that can't be bought
(Oh he ain't ought)
And when I say my prayers at night
And he has [illegible] and out of sight
I'm glad the Lord he used me when
To give me a Dad.

Hoofs in the Heatl..

Fetch the cattle through the heather
Mary, blue-eyed lass of mine;
Yellow is the glow of sunset,
Long the shadow of the pine.
Far away the bells are tinkling
In some lush and watered dell;
Lonely are the paths of heather,
Lonely for the twilight bell.

[illegible] you have brought the cattle,
Oh my pretty, slender lass;
You have found them in the valley
Knee-deep in the tender grass.
You have sent them through the starlight
Single-footed with plodding feet;
You have brought them through the heather
Fringed with blossoms, purple-sweet.

Draw the bars and set the stanchions
Mary, bring the cattle home
For the whip-poor-wills are singing
And the blooms of heather gloam.
You may loiter with your lover
If you will, but not too long;
Fetch the white kine through the heather;
For their hoof-beats are my song.

Leslie Clare Manchester.

The Young Dandelion

I am a bold fellow
As ever was seen
With my shield of yellow
In the grass green.

You may uproot me
From field and from lane
Stamp me, pull me—
I'll come up again.

Never flinch or,
Wherever I dwell
Take me an inch, sir
I'll soon take an ell.

Drive me from garden,
In anger and pride
I'll grow and harden
By the roadside.

By Dinah Maria Mulock.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE AWAKES

Well here we are nearly back to school days only a week or two remaining for summer pleasures before the sound of the school bell will be heard throughout eastern Connecticut.

And as soon as school opens and our Wide Awakes are so scattered out on boat [illegible] shall [illegible] a little through a higher grade, which we hope will be as successful or even more successful than the one we enjoyed a year ago this June.

Some days to [illegible] children do not mean what they should for lots of children do [illegible] studying and "slugging" that is necessary to complete a successful journey through the seas of geography, [illegible] grammar and the several other studies of the grade schools.

However there will come a day when every member of the Wide Awakes, when you are some years older of course will look back upon these very same school days, now an entirely different view. It will then be one which brings the thoughts of many happy days of companionship with boy and girl friends. It will also be the time when you will either say, "I'm sorry now that I did not take advantage of my opportunity to learn," or when you will say, "I am glad that I studied hard in school [illegible] groundwork has been of great help to me in making a success of my life."

This same preaching, if you wish to name it such, is probably given to you by your parents and, although it may sound unwise to you now, there will come a day when it will come back to you with force, and you will agree that their advice was timely and should have been heeded when there was an opportunity for study.

Therefore, at the opening of this school year, let each and every member of the Wide Awakes make a pledge to do better than ever before, and, when next June arrives, let's be able to look back over the closing school year and say, "It has surely been a successful voyage and a more successful arrival into the port of promotion."

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Rowing

Dear Uncle Jed: Rowing is a fine exercise for all parts of the body, especially for the muscles of the arms and back. It is not difficult to learn to row well and everyone should know how. The oarswoman sits facing the stern of the boat, with her feet braced and her back straight. The oars are held firmly, fingers close together, wrists easy, elbows close to side, blade of the oar lying flat on the water. Bend forward keeping back straight and chest out, until hands are over the knees. Then raise the wrist, turning the oars at right angles, and depressing the blades into the water, not too deeply. Then make a long steady swing backwards, bringing the oar handles to the chest, putting all your strength into the pull. At the end of the stroke, lift the oars from the water by depressing the wrists and turning the blades parallel to the rest, to "feather." Then reach for the next stroke. To steer, pull more heavily on the oar opposite to the way you are going, for a straight course, keep the stern of your boat in line with some object behind you. To make a landing row with slow short strokes, until to the wharf, then ship oar on the wharf side that is, take it into the boat and row with the opposite oar until you are alongside. To stop or back water reverse the strokes, pushing or holding the oar. If there is any sea running, or you are near the wake of a steamer, be careful to keep the bow of the boat across the waves. If you get between them in the "trough," you are likely to be thrown out. To turn around, pull on one oar until the boat is pointing the way you want it, then go ahead. No one should go on the water who can not swim, and only an experienced person should try to row when there is a heavy sea running. I hope all the little Wide Awakes will read my story entitled Rowing and like it. From a member of the circle.

What Our Domestic Animals Give Us

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write and tell you what our domestic animals give us.

A cow gives us milk, butter, cheese, beef, leather, combs, knife handles, soap and buttons.

Horses give us chair covers, hair for stuffed sofas, and plumes.

Sheep give us mutton, woolen goods rugs, book covers, and carpets.

Goats give us milk, Persian shawls wigs, shoe laces, gloves, book covers, knife handles and water skins.

Pigs give us pork, bacon, leather goods, bristles, lard and glycerine.

Fowls give us eggs, feathers for beds and pillows, and feathers for hats.

Deer give us, knife handles, gloves, hair for stuffing saddles and venison.

New Century Ideals

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write [illegible] Wide Awakes [illegible] and learn a lesson from it.

New century ideals. To prize health as contagious happiness, wealth as potential service reputation as latent influence, learning for the light it can shed, power for the help it can give, station for the good it can do.

To treat others as I would be treated, and myself as I would my best friend; to make no gain by another's pain; to say nothing unkind to amuse myself, and nothing false to please others; failings; and bear no malice toward those who do wrong.

Yours respectfully,

ELLEN DUFRESNE. Age 11.
Fort Point.

A Little Excitement

Dear Uncle Jed: [illegible] Monday [illegible] Wednesday [illegible] decided to [illegible] Mr. [illegible] He suggested that [illegible] would be a treat. The squirrel was to be the reward. Zeke the part off. Then the decision [illegible] the father the prize. Zeke said the squirrel was a chief and they had a right to protect their property. Dan replied that the animal did not know it was wrong to steal, and had a right to take necessary food. He showed how [illegible] the poor thing would be if it had to be confined in a cage. The boys decided the case in favor of the defendant, and the squirrel was set free.

WESTMINSTER

"For I reckon that the sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the story that shall be revealed in us," was the text Sunday morning, the 23rd.

Columbus Smith of Norwich for many years owner of Brookside, and [illegible] a member of Westminster church has attended morning worship at the latter church the past two Sundays.

Mrs. Byron Bingham has accepted the presidency of the Band of Mercy and given the band the motto, "See, hear, and speak no evil."

For the past ten days or so extreme heat has alternated with near frost in surprising fashion.

Mr. and Mrs. Moses [illegible] have concluded their vacation at Rose cottage, returning to Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Stephens, Jr., have lately visited New York relatives, their little son accompanying them.

Westminster jurors for the ensuing year are Frank Linnell, Herman Stephens, A. Banniere, William Stephens, Oscar Olsen, Fred Lachapelle.

A. T. MacLeod is having a garage built.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Bingham were Norwich guests one day the first of last week.

Mrs. Everett Moulton expects to return home from the hospital soon.

Mrs. Fred Brown has lately been enjoying a visit from her mother, Mrs. Herman Stephens, of Woodchuck Hill.

Oswald Olsen, second son of Salve Olsen, of Bogota, N. Y., is visiting those of his family and other friends living here. He made the trip by automobile bringing with him the friends with whom he makes his home in Bogota, Mr. and Mrs. George Cummings their two daughters and a son.

Ralph and Harold Olsen work in Hanover and board with the Millers at Fort Ned.

Mrs. Edwin Edmond and her son, Deacon Arthur Edmond were guests of New Haven relatives over the week-end.

Deacon and Mrs. Charles Barstow went with the latter's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rollins of Attawaugan to the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson of Stafford at the Willimantic Camp Ground attending the services as well as a family reunion of 14 members.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rollinson were guests of the Barstows' Sunday and Monday.

Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald of Northford and Putnam was a caller at the temporary parsonage last week.

John Cooft of Hanover conducted the services Sunday.

Following Labor day Monday the schools open Tuesday.

A Trip to Chapman's Point

Dear Uncle Jed: One day during my father's vacation, we decided to go to Chapman's Point. So we packed our lunch, bathing suits, etc., and started.

We rode through Ledyard Gales Ferry, and Groton and finally we reached Chapman's Point.

My father hired a boat and we went out rowing.

We rowed to Poquonnock. There we pitched our tent and prepared dinner. After dinner I went out rowing with my sister and brother.

We rowed and swam all afternoon and when the sun was setting we started back to the point.

It was low tide on our way back and we had to row through nearly a mile of seaweed. We ran aground once but at last we reached Chapman's Point safely.

When we reached the point we got into the automobile and rode home.

We reached home safely and my mother hurried us to bed.

We had had a good time so we were tired, happy and sleepy.

A Prayer Answered

Dear Uncle Jed: Last night I was sitting in the parlor with my mamma and my papa. I told my mamma that I wished I could get a book to spend my time reading. My mamma told me that Uncle Jed might send me a book. I went to bed at 10 o'clock and I kissed my mamma and my papa and said, goodnight. I went in my room and said my prayer, and went to sleep. I dreamed that Uncle Jed would send me one. I got up in the morning and told her my dream. I told her that I wished my dream would come true. She told me to go and see in the mail box and maybe I might have one. I went to look in the mail box with my brother and I had a book. I was very glad. I hope that the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story.

A FARMER BOY

Dear Uncle Jed: I am seven years old. My birthday was July 22. I am the luckiest little boy. I had a lot of birthday presents. My aunt gave me 30 cents, my mother gave me 15 cents, my sister Yvonne gave me 10 cents, my sister Mildred gave me 10 cents. My father bought me a basket of peaches. We had supper and after supper I separated all the peaches. I am my father's pet and I am the baby of the family.

ROGER MORRISSETTE. Age 7.
Jewett City.

My Farm

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write a letter to the Wide Awakes. I will tell you about my farm. I have nine little baby chicks to take care of. It makes me very busy for I have Tommy, the mother cat and also Dick, the baby cat.

I have a nice garden. I go and see it every day. It makes me think how God is good to me. I sold onions, string beans, cucumbers, and tomatoes. I am a farmer girl.

Since I live on a farm I went to Plainfield, and Central Falls. I was glad to come home because my baby chicks looked like they were lonesome for me. I came home on a Monday. As soon as I came home the baby chicks were all running after me. I hope the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story.

MILDRED O. MORRISSETTE. Age 11

Our Clothing

Dear Uncle Jed: There are many different kinds of cloth. Some are cotton, wool, silk, linen and furs.

In dyeing cloth they are soaked in tubs holding dyes, then passed through squeezers and dying machines to get the dampness out of the thread and at last through finishing machines which gives them a smooth surface. Cotton and linen are harder to dye than wool and silk, and when clothes are made of different materials they have to pass through many different kinds of dye. Wool and cotton are dyed in cotton dye then in woolen dye.

In Greenland and Alaska the people wear furs. In warm climate the people wear cool clothing. In cooler climates they wear warmer clothing.

EVELYN RACIOT. Age 12.

My Trip to Hartford

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write to you and the Wide Awakes about my trip to Hartford.

When I went to Hartford I went to see my relatives. My uncle has an auto and he took my cousin and I around the city. I went to Elizabeth park but the roses had all gone by.

We rode around the capital grounds but did not enter the building.

At home my cousin and I had a fine time playing games. I think I am going up to Hartford again pretty soon.

MELISSA JENKINS. Age 11.

The American Flag

Dear Uncle Jed: I will now tell you about the flag. Raymond Poincare, former president of France, in writing to interpret the spirit and purpose of the United States says: "Have you ever noticed that the Star Spangled [illegible] the only flag which [illegible] a state, king or president? That is significant but 90 per cent of the Americans who read it did not know that the ideal of their nation had this ritualistic observance. The flag of the United States is dipped in courtesy. In that fact is the revelation of the principle which has made for the U. S. to draw citizenship from every quarter of the world and remain a nation.

HELEN M. DAWLEY, Age 11.

Ezekiel and the Squirrel

Dear Uncle Jed: Once when Webster was a boy his brother Ezekiel caught a squirrel that had been stealing corn. Ze wanted to [illegible] Dan [illegible] decided to [illegible] a court. He suggested that [illegible] would be a treat. The squirrel was to be the accused, Zeke the prosecuting attorney, Dan the defender, and the father the judge. Zeke said the squirrel was a thief and they had a right to protect their property. Dan replied that the animal did not know it was wrong to steal, and had a right to take necessary food. He showed how [illegible] the poor thing would be if it had to be confined in a cage. The boys decided the case in favor of the defendant, and the squirrel was set free.

JEWETT CITY

The local movie fans are interested to learn in just what way the new state tax on films will affect the showing of morning pictures in Jewett City. When seen Sunday, Manager Barrett of Finn's Theatre stated that the situation is becoming quite serious. According to an agreement reached between the producers and theatre owners, the producers will pay this tax but will be reimbursed by the different theatre owners of the state. Manager Barrett said that the exact amount to be borne by each theatre had not been definitely alloted yet and that he hoped it would not compel him to raise the price of admission. Of course if this tax is too heavy, it will mean no small raise in prices; but this will not be done unless it is absolutely necessary.

In regard to a possible shortage of pictures, Mr. Barnett stated there was no immediate danger of having to close his theatre in regard to this. Foreseeing the complications which would arise if this new unjust law became effective, a supply of films, sufficient for the next eight or ten months, has been secured for the local theatre, including many of the season's biggest specials, such as "Ten Commandments," "Pony Express," "Vanishing America" and others of a similar caliber.

The chief trouble caused by this new tax seems to be that it will result in a shortage of prints. Formerly, there were 4 or 5 prints of the same picture working in this state at the same time. Now to save the payment of this tax, only one or two will be available. Mgr. Barnett already has received word that several pictures which he had booked here are not available; therefore other pictures had to be substituted.

Sheriff and Mrs. John T. Dolan and son James, returned Saturday night from a trip to Montreal. Sheriff Dolan has a number of relatives there, two of whom are Sisters in a convent. One of these Sisters showed them many notable places in the city.

The body of Miss Nellie McGovern, of Providence, was brought to Greeneville for burial Saturday. The service was attended from Jewett City by her half-sister, Mrs. Patrick Leyden, Mr. and Mrs. William Fogarty, Mrs. Frank Leyden and Mrs. Edward Walsh. Miss McGovern became unconscious while in the water, at Narragansett Pier, and died shortly afterwards. Her home was with her sister, Mrs. O'Gorman, in Providence, the family having a summer home at the Pier.

The McGovern family lived in Jewett City for years, and the older residents remember well when the father, James McGovern was saved by Asher Read, as he was being carried down the river in a boat, at the time of the freshet, in 1886.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Spicer and son Harold left Sunday for an automobile trip to Rochester, N. Y. to visit Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Spicer.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Parkhurst with relatives from North Adams are on a nautomobile trip to Canada and Niagara Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. William Raill and son William, Miss Nellie Connell and a cousin, with Steve Takman as chauffeur, left Sunday for a trip to Canada.

The conference of six churches is to meet at Pachaug church Wednesday, at eleven o'clock, (standard time). The order of service follows:

Organ Voluntary, invocation and Lord's Prayer, responsive reading, hymn, scripture, prayer, hymn, sermon, Rev. Wm. [illegible] Fryling, Wauregan, hymn, benediction, dinner 12:30, afternoon 2 o'clock, praise service, offering, business, address, Rev. Giles F. Goodenough, of Ledyard, discussion, hymn, benediction.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Tracy have returned from an automobile trip to Vermont, visiting many points of interest.

Dr. G. H. Jennings and John Smith attended the State American Legion convention held three days in New London, marching with the Norwich men in the parade Saturday. They reported that it was announced in one of the sessions that Gilbert Miner was the only adjutant in the state who had reported a complete list of the deceased soldiers of all wars for his town. Mr. Miner was elected historian of the Fifth District, which is the New London county district.

Misses Catherine and Annie Shea of Springfield and Miss Grace Sullivan of Providence are guests at Mrs. Hannah Shanahan's.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Campbell are away for two weeks on an automobile trip to Niagara Falls and Canada, with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Campbell of Hartford.

Officer and Mrs. Henry Vegiard, accompanied Mary Ferdinando and her two weeks' old baby to the state farm, Friday. The father has taken [illegible] est child to Worcester. The other children will be cared for at St. Agnes Home for Dependent Children, in Hartford.

Preparations are in progress for the Pachaug Grange Fair. A race track is in process of construction, and a new poultry house has been [illegible]

Mrs. H. E. Paul and daughter, Miss Dorothy Paul, chief operator at the local telephone exchange, spent last week and are spending this week at Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Strickland's in Middletown and at their cottage at Hawks Nest, near Sound View.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Learned, of Norwich, entertained most delightfully Saturday at their cottage at Pleasure Beach. Their guests [illegible] ice lobster dinner. After [illegible] and guests.

At the Freemen's borough meeting this (Monday) evening, the report of the committee on purchasing the water works of the Jewett City Water Co. will be heard, or on making a new contract with the company.

Andrew Krauth of Waterford, Elbert Rathburn of Noank, Oscar Foote of Mystic and Everett H. Bracon, Jr. of Jewett City, members of the Standard Oil office force in New London, spent the week-end at Camp Sunnybrook, at the Quinebaug Camps. Early Sunday morning, a Ford coupe owned by Mr. Rathburn was discovered to be on fire. The top, upholstery and windshield were damaged to the extent of about fifty dollars.

About 150 attended the Pachaug Community Club, Thursday evening. The programme was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Tift, Charles Campbell, Mildred Montgomery and Martha Gray. There was a piano solo by Miss Guile of Norwich, a vocal solo by Mr. Kane of Norwich, accompanied by Mr. Ethier, a reading by Mrs. Ella Geer, of Jewett City, a violin solo by Mr. Russell, of Norwich accompanied by Miss Guile, a solo by John MacLean of New York, accompanied by Mrs. MacLean, and a reading by Leon Young. Refreshments were served. The committee for the next meeting is Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Chesloro, Mrs. Frank Morgan and Mr. and Mrs. Adam Medick.

LEFFINGWELL

Mr. and Mrs John Murphy of Leffingwell and Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong of Bozrahville, have returned home after motoring for the past week through the New England states.

Guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. B. Trafford Mowrey were Miss Hattie Mowrey and Mr. McGonregal, of Norwich.

Mrs. John O. Johnson, Carl Johnson and Miss Ethel Hannan of Baltic, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Beard.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Avery and children, of Bozrah street, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Wheeler.

Miss Ruth Lathrop, of Norwich Town was visiting Miss Mildred F. Leffingwell the past week.

Tuesday afternoon and evening the Ladies' Aid Society held a lawn fete at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Silas W. Leffingwell, at East Great Plain. Sandwiches, hot dogs, cake, salad, coffee, oranage, ice-cream and candy were sold. The lawn was effectively decorated, also the booths. The sale was well patronized and a large sum was realized.

A community dance was held Thursday evening in the schoolhouse. Professor Tinkham prompted and Smith's [illegible] Music. About one hundred were present during intermission [illegible] and ice-cold soda were served.

Sunday evening the B. Y. P. U. meeting at 7 o'clock was led by Mrs. Charles E. Ellis. Her topic was "China's Cry for Faith Born of Need."

Wednesday evening, about forty people held a picnic at Brown's Grove. Bathing, boating and a bountiful supper made the gathering enjoyable.

WEST KINGSTON

The West Kingston Sunday school held its annual picnic at Charlestown beach, Thursday. They engaged a truck of E. A. Wilcox and Edward C. Kenyon acted as chauffeur. The kiddies had a very enjoyable time. Games and races furnished amusement. Mrs. Flora M. Barstow won the running race for women. Little Miss Annie Briston won the running race for the children.

Dr. Kenyon and family attended the Old Home Day of Knotty Oak church Thursday.

Mrs. C. D. Arnold spent part of last week with her sister in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Briggs are spending their vacation with relatives in Boston.

Mrs. Frank May is visiting her sister, who lives near Boston.

Mrs. R. H. Briston entertained her brother, Owen A. Miles and family, of Newport, for part of last week.

Mrs. W. B. Wilcox with her son Ewell, of Norwich Town, Conn., spent part of last week with her mother, Dr. Kenyon and his family.

Seeing Is Believeing

Most people will agree with me
We must believe the things we see.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit didn't want to believe that Jenny Wren and Mr. Wren were guilty of destroying the eggs of their feathered neighbors. It didn't seem to him that he could believe it. Carol the Meadow Lark had told him that there was a robber, which you know, is a story that no one is sure about, going around that the Wrens were breakers of eggs. Now, after having talked with Jenny Wren, Peter was more upset than ever. It was true that Jenny had no very near neighbors, and there certainly was something queer

A moment later he began singing in a tree over near where his own house was about it. It looked very much as if [illegible] Mr. Wren [illegible] Jenny Wren had [illegible] her nest. It was no second guess [illegible] cupied it she had [illegible] the house in and her house. Peter could hear Mr. Wren singing. He was some little distance away. Peter hopped over in that direction. He thought he might be able to find out something from Mr. Wren. Just as Peter started Mr. Wren stopped singing, so Peter didn't know just where to look for him. You know Mr. Wren is so small that it is very easy for him to keep out of sight. Peter looked all around but he couldn't see Mr. Wren. So finally he sat down in the bushes along the old stone wall. He sat down just to rest awhile. By and by he noticed that there was a birdhouse in an apple tree quite near him. It was one of Farmer Brown's Boys' houses. Peter wondered if any one was living in it, and if so, who it might be. Then he heard the soft love of Tommy Tit the Chickadee. Almost at once Mrs. Chickadee put her head out of the doorway of that little house. She looked all around and out she came, and together she and Tommy Tit flew away to get something to eat.

Peter watched them out of sight. Then he turned to again look at the little house. He was just in time to see a tall disappear inside. Peter blinked. "That's queer," said he to himself. "As surely as I'm sitting here I saw some one go into that house. Now who could it have been and what did they go in for?"

Not more than a second later both questions were answered for Peter. Mr. Wren's small head and slender bill were thrust out. Peter gasped. On the end of Mr. Wren's bill was a pretty little speckled egg. Mr. Wren looked this way and that way and the other way. Then he dropped the egg. It fell to the ground at the foot of the tree. Mr. Wren disappeared almost at once he was out with another egg. Peter kept count. Five of those little eggs speckled with brown, were dropped at the foot of that tree.

Then Mr. Wren looked this way and that way and the other way. He was making sure that nobody saw him. He looked every way except down where Peter was sitting. Then swiftly he flew over in among the bushes where he couldn't be seen. A moment later he began singing in a tree over near where his own home was. It was that same rollicking song that every one loves so much. Hearing it you never, never would have thought it possible for Mr. Wren to do anything bad at all.

Peter hopped over to the foot of the tree where those little eggs had been dropped. Those, it [illegible] was now punctured by the sharp bill of Mr. Wren. Somehow Peter didn't want to be there when Tommy Tit and Mrs. Chickadee returned. So he turned and scampered away as fast as his legs could take him. To have seen him you might have taken him to be the guilty one.

"It's true," Peter kept saying over to himself, "that rumor is true. It must be that those Wrens have driven their neighbors away. It doesn't seem possible, but it must be true. And to hear Mr. Wren sing you would think he never had done a bad deed in all his life. Of all the people in the Old Orchard Jenny and Mrs. Wren are the last ones I would have suspected of doing such a thing. You never can tell in this world. No, siree, you never can tell."

HENS SLACKING UP IN STORRS EGG LAYING

During the forty-third week of the Storrs laying contest the hens laid 4,175 eggs or a yield of nearly forty-three per cent. This is 220 eggs less than last week but it is expected that the production will drop from now on until the end of the contest. The high pen for the week was Meadowedge Farm's pen of White Leghorns from Sterling Junction, Mass. These birds laid 52 eggs for the week. Hilltop Farm's pen of White Leghorns from Suffield, Conn., and another pen of the same place with one egg less or 51 eggs each. The third and fourth places were both taken by Barred Rocks, Keewaydin Farm's pen from Darien, Conn., made third place with a lay of 50 eggs and Harriet Smith's pen from Newburyport, Mass., came in fourth with 49 eggs for the week.

Egg laying contests, poultry fairs, etc., have been prompted by the desire to promote the development of better poultry. Contests, whether they be for high trap nest records, excellence of plumage, or the possession of utility characteristics, further the development or breeding of better birds. Based upon this principle is the Connecticut State fair held at Hartford, September 7th to 12 inclusive. The fair directors have sought to encourage a happy combination of quality in the show room and action in the laying pen. This policy is strictly in accord with the principles set forth in the last edition of the American Standard of Perfection, which will be the rule and guide for all decisions. During the past few years this combination of utility and exhibition characteristics has been given a thorough test with gratifying results. The breeder improves his stock both from the plumage and utility standpoint which leads to a more satisfied poultryman, and hence a boom for the entire poultry industry. This is the underlying principle of the Connecticut State Fair at Hartford and the ultimate aim of all poultry fairs.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

Fifty thousand dollars a year, received by a lawyer and by the president of a lumber company, is the highest annual income reported by 261 alumni of the University of Nebraska who responded to a questionnaire sent to a limited number without regard to location, age, or date of graduation. The average income of 238 was $5,021.51. The age range was from 20 to 62, and the average age of the 257 who answered this question was 35.51. The oldest alumni are two physicians, whose incomes are $12,000 and $15,000 respectively.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

The "greater shows" season opens at the Broadway theatre today. It is the starting of the new season and the B. F. Keith Vaudeville and picture will be well worth your while.

Those wonder kiddies, The Three Pallis, come back to Norwich by popular request. On their last appearance at the above playhouse they won such favor that they were the talk of the town. As they were here only three days, many were disappointed. Now again you will have the opportunity of seeing the greatest juvenile act in vaudeville.

Other equally pleasing acts are Joe Allen, the novelty chap; Irving and Elwood, "The Songbirds;" Allman and Nally, comedians; Marie Ilka with Hamilton Christy in "One Night in Spring."

"Paths to Paradise," featuring Betty Compson and Raymond Griffith, now at the Broadway theatre, opens on the scene of a guide showing a group of sightseers through San Francisco's Chinatown. In an underground dance hall we come across Betty Compson as a fictitious queen of a gang of counterfeiters. She is in the act of "taking over" Ray Griffith, a likely looking sap, according to her pals. Ray calls in a friend, after they have relieved him of several hundred dollars by a couple of clever tricks; the two of them flash stars and declare the place under arrest.

"Paths to Paradise" is a fast and furious comedy, decidedly off the beaten track for fun films. Ray's twice as funny as he was in either "Forty Winks" or "The Night Club, and Betty never was more delightfully charming.

Here's one you'll eat up!

Many of the beautiful sets of Egypt became lost in the breakup of the world's oldest civilizataion nor has any modern been able to reconstitute their technique. The picture of ancient Egypt given in the Biblical part of Cecil De Milleas production, "The Ten Commandments," to be seen beginning four days, September 30, at the Palace theatre, is said to afford the most intimate view yet presented of this nation of artists. Neither the examination of museum collections, nor even personal visits to the Tombs like Tut-ankh-amen's, can reproduce historical reality to compare with the screen. Mr. De Mille was aided in his task by scholars of repute who saw to it that the reconstruction was accurate.

The early Egyptians had bath establishments, safety razors, cosmetics, wig shops and beauty parlors. They enjoyed chariot races, prize fights, tennins, acrobatics, vaudeville and concerts. They made exquisite linens and cottons, wove rugs and carpets, perfected culinary art, and invented graceful furniture. Twould be hard to mention a convenience of modern living that they lacked, outside of the devices based on steam coal, fuel oil and electricity. Instead of gas or electric, they apparently had a strange kind of light that revealed interior decoration and objects in daylight colors. Apparently, also they antedated the invention of gunpowder by using a secret explosive to rive the fifty and hundred-ton blocks of solid stone that are among the marvels of their architecture. The more deeply the subject is delved into, the more it is discovered the Egyptians were three or four thousand years ahead of their time in subduing Nature to the manifold uses of art.

What wonderful eyes, she is'nt a colored person, I mean, a negress. She might be a real Malaysian of some sort. Oh, but she must be colored to be in this company. But dear, just look at that hair, it's gorgeous. Wonder what race she belongs to, anyhow?

And so goes the women patrons speculations concerning Mae Brown, the sprite of gracefulness who is the featured woman in the bevy of beautiful contingent of "Seven-Eleven" the peppy musical comedy, that is scheduled to appear here soon.

The answer is that Mae Brown is colored, and what's more is proud of her race whose youth is described by the famous old melody, "The Sidewalks of New York." For she is indeed one of those instinctive child artists whose first terpischorean efforts was on the sidewalks of down town New York, with the curbstone as the footlight line, and a hurdy-gurdy or a hand organ for an orchestra.

Palace Theatre.

A warehouse more than 100 feet long, fifty feet wide and fully fifty feet high erected on the F. B. O. lot for the "Parisian Nights" company under the directorship of Al Sautell was turned into "cannon fodder" in a bombardment which tore great holes in the walls and sent masonry, timbers and sections of staircases crashing down into the interior. And the effect of that bombardment as registered by the camera, didn't mean maybe!

The "masonry" was heavy enough to break Lou Tellegen's toe when a comparatively small piece fell on his foot during the shelling of the building. The actor continued with the few scenes he had to finish after the accident occurred, displaying great bravery despite severe pain, but it will be several weeks before he can walk again without a limp.

Breed Theater

A daring production, clothed in comedy and satire is Proud Flesh, a Metro-Goldwn-Mayer production directed by King Vidor which opened yesterday at the Breed theater for an engagement of three days.

The novel of the same name from the pen of Lawrence Rising was one of the year's "best sellers," and the screen version of it bids fair to surpass the sensation created by King Vidor's last picture, Wife of the Centaur.

The plot of the story has for its theme a young girl of culture and pride who heeds the call of the primeval urge. Born amid the ruins of the great San Francisco holocaust, Fernanda is taken to Spain where she is reared in every luxury.

Her continental education results in a disdain for Americans and their mannerisms, and she returns to her native land arrogant and snobbish.

She meets Patrick O'Malley, a young go-getting Irish-American who has built up a large plumbing company and doesn't hesitate to put on a pair of overalls if necessary. Don Jaime, a suave, likeable member of the Spanish nobility, follows Fernanda to America and a struggle then ensues between Don Jaime and O'Malley for the girl.

Despite O'Malley's mannerisms, which Fernanda looks upon as crude, she turns from Don Jaime, who is a man of her world, and forgets her pride, responding to the call of the primeval woman in choosing a mate.

Eleanor Boardman, as Fernanda, offers something different from the unsophisticated role she will be remembered for in the Wife of the Centaur. Her portrayal of the character is charming, and lays emphasis on her versatility.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(A. P.)—Price movements in this week's financial and commodity markets were generally indecisive which is characteristic of this period of the year, but reactionary tendencies predominated, particularly in cotton and wheat. The most Churchill-Caillaux agreement on the funding of the French debt to Great Britain but because of its being conditional on similar terms being accorded France by the United States, Wall street showed a disposition to withhold judgment, pending the meeting of Finance Minister Caillaux with the American debt mission late next month.

Pool operations provided the chief activity in the stock market with merger and dividend rumors again playing a large part in the advance of many issues. Every bulge in prices met with a large volume of profit-taking which was augmented by sporadic bear selling. Bond prices held firm with the week's total of new offerings the lowest of the year.

The reaction in cotton prices reflected the growing belief that this year's crop will more than provide for all domestic and foreign requirements. Revised upward estimates of the wheat crop also accounted for the selling of grain futures.

Money rates were relatibely firm on the withdrawal of funds in anticipation of heavy month-end requirements, but the rate on small loans eased just before the close on Friday. One of the most significant developments in the money market was the stiffening of the asking rate on bankers acceptances.

Foreign exchanges presented several points of interest. Norwegian and Danish kroner rallied to the highest levels of the year and Brazilian milreis touched the highest level since 1921 in reflection of that country's deflation programme. Polish zloty rallied nearly a cent on the announcement of a $10,000,000 credit to the Bank of Poland by the New York Federal Reserve bank. Slight easing of sterling exchange reflected increased offerings of cotton bills.

THE WEATHER Conditions

Fair weather has prevailed in the eastern U. S. The barometer remains high from New Foundland southwestward to Bermuda. High temperature prevailed Sunday in the middle and north Atlantic states.

Mostly fair weather will prevail Monday and Tuesday east of the Mississippi river but there is some probability of scattered thunder showers Monday or Monday night in the Atlantic states from Maryland northward. The temperature will be higher Monday in southern New England and the middle Atlantic and south Atlantic states but somewhat cooler weather will overspread the mid-Atlantic and north Atlantic states Monday night or Tuesday.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Fresh southwest and weather partly overcast Monday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate to fresh southwest and weather fair Monday.

Forecast

For southern New England: Partly cloudy and somewhat warmer Monday, probably scattered thundershowers Monday afternoon or night; Tuesday fair and cooler.

FAMILY REUNION HELD FOR 90TH BIRTHDAY OF FRANCIS A. BIDWELL

Francis A. Bidwell, a well known Norwich resident, observed his 90th birthday, Sunday with a family reunion at his home, No. 70 McKinley avenue. Present at the family gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Gurdon L. Bidwell, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Riese of Waverly, Mass., James Bidwell, grandson of Francis A. Bidwell, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bidwell and daughter Emily, Mrs. Clinton Higby of Erie, Pa., Mrs. Gertrude Fenn of Perryville, Mrs. Charles H. Remington of Hartford, Mrs. Junius Brand of Norwich and James Bidwell, great grandson of Francis A. Bidwell.

Mr. Bidwell was born in this city and for a half a century was connected with the New York, New England Steamship company. For some years he was engineer on the steamer Maine. Fifty-seven years ago Mr. Bidwell was united in marriage with E. Elizabeth Allen, the wedding taking place in the East Maine street, Methodist Episcopal church, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. T. J. Haynes, then pastor of the church. For nearly 57 years Mr. Bidwell has resided at his present residence on McKinley avenue.

TOWNS ARE IN DEBT FOR ROAD WORK DONE

The state highway department plans to submit to the board of control the situation facing twenty-nine towns in Connecticut which have financed the building of state-aid roads in anticipation of reimbursement from the state and for which they are unable to collect because no appropriation for state aid work was made available by the last session of the general assembly. These towns now find themselves in debt for $953,368.96.

This work was done under authority granted by the statutes some of which dates back for eight years. The law provides that towns having grand lists of more than $1,250,000 shall be reimbursed for three-quarters of the cost of state-aid construction and for those with grand lists less than that amount, seven-eights of the cost is to be borne by the state.

The normal appropriation for this work by sessions of the legislature has been $1,000,000 a year. The maximum amount permitted for towns is $10,000 annually. Therefore, the amount involved this year aggregates $290,000.

The following table shows the towns concerned with the situation and the amount of indebtedness, which is due to them from the state:—

For work completed from 1917 to 1923:—

Branford $36,474.41; Darien $5,173.21; Greenwich $4,604.91; Norwalk $25,262.66; Sprague $21,477.67; Stamford $33,032.45; Trumbull $6,073.14; Total $102,098.43.

For work finished subsequent to July 1, 1923, for which no refunds have yet been made:

Colebrook $19,183.98; Easton $14,237.66; Groton $104,668.27; No. Canaan $16,500.00; Pomfret $8,734.25; Redding $21,864.30; Southington $5,248.09; Stafford $47,106.19; Seymour $1,500.00; Canaan $33,203.52; Total $272,244.26.

For contracts now in progress (amount estimated):

Colchester, East Granby, Hebron, Montville, North Branford, Suffield, Torrington, Windsor, Windsor Locks, Bozrah, Norwich, Sharon, Branford, Norwalk, Total $459,326.27.

SHELTON WOMAN ELECTED LEGION AUXILIARY PRESIDENT

Mrs. Lucy A. Edwards of Shelton was elected president by a large majority at the last session of the women's auxiliary convention of the Connecticut department of the American Legion at New London Saturday.

Other officers elected were the following:

Mimss Helen S. Brock of Plainville, first vice president Mrs. Laura Otto of Seymour, second vice president; Mrs. Ruth Pfennig of Bristol, treasurer; Miss Maude A. Clark of East Hampton, chaplain; Mrs. Emma Carpenter of Wethersfield, historian; Miss Celia Leventhal of Waterbury, national committee woman, and Miss Mary C. Coyle of Waterbury, delegate to the national convention at Omaha, Neb.

Addresses were made by Mrs. O'Brien, past state president of the Massachusetts auxiliary, by Commander Enstish of the New Jersey post. It was voted to give $100 toward the rehabilitation fund.

One hundred and thirty-nine delegates were present at the convention, 40 alternates and two visitors, including a gold star mother and father of Jackson, Mich.

ELECT OFFICERS FOR GALLUP CEMETERY ASSN.

The Gallup cemetery association held its annual meeting Saturday at Ledyard. The business meeting was held at the cemetery and after adjournment the members gathered at the old Gallup homestead, now the summer home of Nathan C. Williams of Vermont, where luncheon was served.

At the business meeting officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Henry G. Peck, Norwich; vice president, Nathan G. Williams, Vermont; treasurer, Jacob Gallup, Norwich; secretary, Mrs. Jacob Gallup, Norwich; caretaker, Moses W. Gallup, Ledyard.

Great interest has been taken by the Gallup family in the care of this cemetery and it is now one of the best cared for of the many family plots in the town. This old burying ground is the resting place of many members of the Gallup family prominent in the early religious, social and military affairs of the town of Groton and Ledyard.

Members of the association were present from Mystic, Ledyard, Norwich, Hartford, Vermont, Pennsylvania, and St. Paul, Minn.

TWO NIANTIC WOMEN HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Michael Litynski of Niantic and Mrs. Nellie Gates of Niantic were painfully injured at about 11 o'clock Saturday morning when a Dodge machine operated by Mr. Carmichael suddenly became uncontrollable near Graniteville and leaving the road crashed into a stone wall.

Mrs. Litynski and Mrs. Gates were riding in the rear seat of the machine and were thrown with much force against the front seat of the machine suffering multiple abrasions and contusions of the body. Both were removed to the Lawrence and Memorial Associate hospital in New London where Mrs. Litynski is still a patient. Mr. Carmichael was not injured. The machine was badly damaged.

GREAT LEGION PARADE CLOSES CONVENTION EVENTS

Hundreds of Norwich people were among the thousands that lined the sidewalks of New London Saturday afternoon to witness the big parade held by the American Legion in connection with their seventh annual state convention which came to a close Saturday. Headed by Houston's East Side Drum corps, the members of Fletcher Post, No. 4, this city, turned out strong. The drum corps made a splendid showing in their natty uniforms.

The procession was one of the most impressive ever held in New London, and was estimated to number more than 5,000 in line.

The parade was reviewed from the steps of the municipal building by City Manager William A. Holt, Mayor Waldo E. Clarke, members of the city council, Senator Hiram Bingham and other dignitaries to the legion, including Department Commander White and the state officers. The line moved at 2.45 o'clock from the corner of Bank and Montauk avenue and passed through Bank, State, Huntington, Broad, Channing and to Granite Sts. where it was disbanded.

From the corner of Bank and Tilley street to the Court House at the head of State street, the marchers had the freedom of the entire street from curb to curb, due to the efficient work of the police department. The streets between these points were absolutely free from traffic and no cars were allowed to park between these points. A platoon of police was furnished to escort the parade.

More than 75 legion posts made up the third division and in the entire parade there were approximately 25 bands and drum corps in line.

Many novel features were introduced probably the most striking and humorous of which was Alderman Charles Schnitman, end man in the Brass City minstrel troupe, dressed as a baby carrying a huge milk bottle. A large placard bore the inscription: "I want to be adopted—promise not to be over 16—want real estate man for daddy." Alderman Schnitman weighs 220 pounds and is a member of Corp Coyle Post, No. 1, of Waterbury, Conn.

The regular army, National Guard, C. M. T. C., Coast Guard and naval units made their usual snappy appearance.

During the parade everything was at a standstill in the city, the stores being closed for the time being.

Harry C. Jackson of Eddie Glover post of New Britain was elected department commander of the Connecticut American Legion on the second ballot of the convention Saturday morning. On motion of Leroy Downes, of Norwalk, one of his opponents, the vote was made unanimous. Among those who graced the convention with their presence were United States Senator Hiram Bingham and National Vice Commander Eugene P. Armstrong and Department Commander of Rhode Island Leo M. Harlow.

Other officers elected were:

Vice Commanders—Robert E. Craig, Plainville, Stanley Dunn, New Haven; W. Parker Seeley, Bridgeport; William A. Baier, Rockville; John A. Cunningham, Norwich; Harry S. Greene, West Goshen and Walter A. Schuter, Chester.

Treasurer—Clarence C. Scarborough, West Hartford.

Historian—George O. Eye, North Haven.

Chaplain—Rev. Daniel Strickland of New Haven.

Adjutant—Nelson Durant, New Haven.

National Executive Committeeman—E. P. Armstrong, Waterbury.

Delegates national convention—Robert Craig, Plainville; Rodney S. Sullivan, Waterbury; J. Fred Collins, Greenwich; Arthur Hainville, Orvid Arpin, E. J. Cardarelli, Clarence Bunnell.

Delegates at large—E. C. White, New Haven; Justus Fennell, Stamford; Frank Anderson, Frank Weiser, Hartford; Nelson Durant, New Haven; Anthony Teta, New Haven.

Judge Advocate—Philo C. Calhoun, Bridgeport.

Amendments Adopted

At Friday afternoon's session several amendments to the constitution were adopted. The most important of these was offered by Attorney Justus J. Fennell, of Stamford and deals with property holdings of Connecticut legion posts.

The amendment rules that after October 1, 1926, all property owned by the legion shall be so held that upon dissolution of a post, it shall not be distributed to the members of said post and in the event property is so held by a post or members thereof, the charter of such post shall be subject to revocation.

This will not prevent posts from holding property other than provided in this amendment but in such case this property shall be subject to taxation. Before the amendment was adopted, there was a lengthy debate in which Historian Harry J. Fisher, of Plainville went on record as opposed to it.

Another amendment adopted calls for seven vice commanders instead of two in the state department. Another amendment adopted covered the filing of vacancies in the ranks of the vice commanders and in the department commanders office.

The report of the department treasurer, Clarence Scarborough, showed $2,517.44 on hand in the treasury. Mr. Scarborough as chairman of the state funds reported that $120,496.39 had been used during the past year in aiding 1,143 cases.

Returning From Europe

Mrs. Vincent Stranz will arrive in Norwich tonight (Monday) from a visit to Europe where she spent her vacation, practically all in Poland. There she enjoyed herself with her parents, brothers, sisters and other relatives, but she will be very glad to be at her home on Central avenue again.

"WHERE ARE THE NINE ?" APT QUERY YET, SAYS PRIEST

The gospel read yesterday, the thirteenth Sunday after Pentecost, in all the masses in all the Catholic churches of the world was Luke 17. 11-19, the miracle of the cleansing of the ten lepers. The epistle of the mass was Galatians 3 16-22. To the customary congregation crowded in the auditory at St. Patrick's at the 9 o'clock mass, Rev. John J. Reilly preached from a text taken from the gospel, "Were not ten made clean ? And where are the nine ?"

This reproachful query of the patient Christ, who had grown so accustomed to hard things during His earthly ministry, indicated His disappointment at the ingratitude of the heedless lepers. The preacher described the loathsome state of these afflicted people of old, shut out and shunned, gathering in their misery about the gates of every large city, which they might never enter. When the compassionate Christ had suddenly made them whole and clean, restored them to their families and homes, we who read can scarcely understand their act in not even waiting to return thanks for such a stupendous favor.

Yet coming down two thousand years, cannot Christ utter the same indictment against us, upon whom God has bestowed endless graces and blessings ? "Where are the other nine ?" can be asked reproachfully of each and all of us. Out of the millions of Catholics in the world, for example, how many are prompt to thank God, for instance, for the greatest boon of all—their faith ? How many, having been cleansed in the confessional from the leprosy of sin, made white through the blood of Christ, stop long enough to utter a prayer or thanksgiving, remain after Mass to express love for the Divine Healer of the tabernacle ?

In return for all that is given us God asks only gratitude; yet how many take what they have, not as coming from God, but as their right ? It is not much—even a child can say "Thank God." Magdelene had a soul black with sin; yet Christ forgave her, on the instant, because she "loved much" was filled with contrition and at the same time with love for that Saviour who had promised pardon.

The preacher came back to the thought that above all, Catholics should manifest their gratitude for signal favors. Social climbers are filled with gratitude to one who will set them to enter any circle above their own. Christ has opened to Catholics by bestowing upon them the priceless gift of faith, entree to the highest of all circles—a life with God in Heaven, always providing they shape their lives upon the life of their Redeemer. Concluding his brief sermon, the preacher cited scripture, logic and reasoning to prove that the Christian, especially the Catholic, should never be numbered in those referred to reproachfully in Christ's question, "Where are the other nine ?" but should make his life one of love and praise, sensible of his blessings, in a word, "thanking God for God."

There is no decrease in the number of August confessions at this church; in giving Holy Communion, Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who read the low mass, required the assistance of Rev. Father Reilly.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR PICNIC WITH TAFTVILLE SOCIETY

The Norwich Christian Endeavor Union held its annual picnic Saturday with the Taftville Congregational society.

During the afternoon games were enjoyed by the young people under the direction of Charles Sage, who presented the following winners with appropriate trophies.

100 yard dash, men, Mr. Speerli; newspaper race, girls, Ruby Houston; obstable race, men, Mr. Speerli; mixed race, Mr. Smith and Miss Krodel, mounted wrestling, men, Messrs Sebastian and Speerli.

At six o'clock a luncheon was served in the cafeteria by the women of Taftville.

The evening service which was held in the Sunday school room was well attended. Rev. George Ferguson of the Third Baptist lead a very enthusiastic song service with Howard Bushnell of Versailles at the piano. The devotional service was led by Mrs. Edwin Crowdis of Taftville who read the twelfth chapter of Romans.

Mrs. John Robish of Hanover sang as an offertory solo, "Take My Life and Let It Be."

Rev. George Ferguson gave a very helpful talk on "Why I am a Christian." He said in part "Worldly pleasures seem to satisfy sometimes but if indulged in too much they will deaden us to the spiritual things. A ship belongs on the water and everything is well provided, the water doesn't get into the ship. So in our Christian life we are in the world, we belong in the world, and everything goes well provided the worldly things do not get into us and swamp our Christian lives."

Miss Edythe Pierce of Preston city, sang "Face to Face."

Rev. H. O. Chase of the Montauk Avenue Baptist church, New London, a former pastor at Preston City, was the speaker of the evening and spoke from the topic, "The Worthwhile Life." Mr. Chase said in part: "Some people have very different ideas about a worthwhile life. For some to have money makes life for them worthwhile regardless of how that wealth is acquired. Some people think it worthwhile if they are well spoken of, and that is worthwhile. I decided to become a pastor because that seemed to me to offer the best of opportunities to make my life worthwhile.

"We must have education and knowledge and training to live worthwhile lives. We must be able to turn an impossibility into an opportunity."

The Mizpah benediction closed this inspiring meeting.

The committee in charge of the day's program were: Rev. George Ferguson, Misses Edythe Pierce, Elizabeth Houston, Harold Muttart and Robert Schmidt.

FORMER LISBON PASTOR OPPOSES SUNDAY BASEBALL

Rev. E. B. Robinson, formerly pastor of the Congregational church, at Lisbon, now located in Holyoke, has expressed himself as opposed to the legalizing of professional baseball on Sunday afternoons in Massachusetts, although he was one of the first clergymen of that city to advocate amateur baseball Sundays. In regard to Sunday baseball in Massachusetts and with reference to Rev. Mr. Robinson's stand on the question the Springfield Republican, under a Holyoke date line had the following story:

There is increasing interest over the plan to legalize professional baseball in this state on Sunday. Rev. E. B. Robinson of this city was one of the first clergymen to advocate legalizing amateur baseball on Sunday afternoons and consistently supported it throughout. He was interviewed as to his stand on legalizing professional baseball and stated that he was opposed to it.

He stated that he favored the legalizing of amateur sport, when that was an issue before the public, because he believes in treating the sports of rich and poor alike, and does not believe in legislation which has as its ulterior aim, the getting of people to go to church. He admitted freely that in many cases the amateur sport law has not worked well, and expressed his disgust with the attitude of those that have tried to use the amateur sport law as a cloak for selfish greed. He feels that teams representing different communities have often abused the reasonable peace of public highways by most unseemly conduct. "But still the action that was taken in 1920 was the only Christian action that could have been taken, in spite of the way in which it has been abused," he said. "Now for years there has been an effort to legalize commercial sport on Sundays. Had it not been for the amateur sport law I believe that professional sport would have been legalized five years ago. The demand grows largely from those that have no aim save to make more money for themselves. Already Sunday is altogether too much of a business day for the best moral good of the nation. Altogether too many people have to work for the ever lessening majority that are free on Sundays. The argument that Sunday professional games are needed by those that are busy week days falls flat because of the great number of high grade semi-professional games now played on Sundays and because of the all too frequent available days now open to the wage earners who almost always suffer from underemployment. Greed is the real basis of almost all of the demand for legalized professional Sunday baseball.

"Much of the 'copy' appearing in the newspapers in favor of this proposed law is such open and unblushing propaganda of would be money grabbers that it will cause thoughtful people to beware of the position that it upholds. Every man should have the legal right to amuse himself on Sunday as he wills. The moral and religious rights are a vastly different matter, and prevent earliest Christians from spending Sundays in ways that they themselves have helped to make legal. But the rights of others also enter into the problem, and those that believe in a day for the highest and finest things have their rights, too, which must not be infringed upon by those that are greedy for money, whether it is to come through advertising, transportation, or admissions. The present law properly enforced, and public, amateur games properly supervised after the famous 'Holyoke plan' with the city paying all proper bills is the best solution of this problem of which I know. What we need is a personal crusade against all unnecessary Sunday business, by reducing our own Sunday purchasing to a minimum. Live and let live."

CHANCES FOR GUARDSMEN TO TRY FOR WEST POINT

Three candidates for appointment to the United States military academy at West Point from the national guard have been allotted to Connecticut this year, Adjutant General George M. Cole has announced. Preliminary examinations November 1 to 10 will be given all candidates who have the necessary qualifications by a board appointed by General Cole. The members of the board have not yet been named but it is probable that they will be the same members who have served on previous examining boards for a number of years.

To be eligible for appointment from the national guard, an applicant must be an enlisted man of a unit recognized by the federal government and must, at the date of admission to the academy, be between the ages of 19 and 22 years and have served in the national guard as an enlisted man for not less than one year. It is not essential that such service shall have been continuous; former service may be counted in determining an applicant's eligibility.

Following the preliminary examination in Hartford, the three highest ranking candidates will be authorized to report at West Point to take the regular entrance examination beginning the first Tuesday in March. This final examination is competitive and the alloted number from the national guard receiving the highest rank will be appointed to cadetships in the military academy.

The appointments resulting from these examinations are made by the president of the United States and are distinct from those made from states at large and congressional districts by senators and congressmen.

General Cole expressed the hope that a large number of candidates would report for the examination, saying that it is one of the finest opportunities for a member of the national guard, who has not had a college education to receive one at the expense of the government. Entrance into the regular army upon graduation from West Point is not compulsory, he said, and the education afforded is broad and thorough.

FOUND AUTO UPSET ON TROLLEY TRACK

A sthe Willimantic trolley car due in Franklin square at 10:45 o'clock Saturday night rounded a curve between Baltic and Occum, it was blocked for a few minutes by a Ford coupe which had upset on the tracks. The trolley crew and others righted the machine and got it off the tracks so that the trolley car could continue its run to this city. The occupants of the coupe were not around when the trolley came across the wreck. It was said there was a strong smell of liquor about the machine. Report has it that there were two young women in the machine beside the driver, but this report could not be verified Sunday.

SAYS SUIT AGAINST KLAN SHOWS NO ILL FEELING

Discussing the $1,000 damage suit which he has brought against the Ku Klux Klan in this state Walter F. Parmalee a member of the K. K. K., who with his wife lives in New London, said he has no ill feeling against the order. The papers in the suit were filed recently with the clerk of the superior court in this city.

Mr. Parmalee seeks to recover $759.57 which, he says, was loaned by him to the order to assist in its organization work in this state. According to the plaintiff, his bills for that sum have not been recognized by high officials of the order of whom Walter Bossett is one. The national vice-president, explained Mr. Parmalee, has already been served notice and will appear in the superior court in Norwich when the case comes up for hearing.

When asked whether he is a member of the Ku Klux Klan, Parmalee, who is a clergyman, answered in the affirmative and denied that he has any ill-feeling against the organization.

"I have no ill-feeling against the klan," said Mr. Parmalee, "and I am resorting to the suit as the only means to recover the money that is owed me. I am still doing klan work. Every Sunday I speak in some Protestant church and never fail to draw a crowd.

Mr. Parmalee said that he had formerly been a Baptist minister in Ohio, producing a minister's license and other credentials. He was born in Traverse City, Mich., February 10, 1863. Mr. Parmalee said that he held a parish in Rutland, O., for eight years and was subsequently a pastor in South Cleveland. A former Chautauqua lecturer, he took the Klan rostrum, according to his own explanation, "at the request of ministers of Ohio."

"The Klan is stronger now than ever before," asserted Mr. Parmalee, in denying a division of the national order into various state organizations.

CONNECTICUT SATISFIED WITH AUTO NUMBERING

Substitution of combinations of one-syllable, easily-remembered words for the present system under which numerals are used on motor vehicle registration markers in Connecticut has been proposed to the state motor vehicle department by a California man who has evolved the new plan.

The contention is made by the author of the plan that "the present system of unrelated fixtures is not only difficult to read on a fast-moving automobile, but almost impossible to memorize. Under his scheme, a pronounceable word of three letters would be substituted fo revery number beginning with 1 and used in combination indefinitely. Thus for example:

Abe	1	Gun	307
Bit	95	Ice	574
Day	071	Lad	491
Fan	197	May	578
Fur	253	Pep	766

Thus a car now bearing the license place numbered 578-071 would, under the proposed system, be "May-Day." There are 1,000 words used in the code which, placed in pairs, gives one million combinations. "Extreme care has been used," according to the author, "to eliminate all words likely to bring ridicule on a car, as "Fat-Hog", "Big-Pig", and so forth. All are in alphabetical order and as readily found as a name in a telephone book."

The plan has been studied at the state motor vehicle department and decision made not to consider it for Connecticut. "Our number plate system is well-known, the public is educated up to it and we have practically no escape in identification and plenty of numbers to choose from," the department has notified the author of the new plan.

SUFFERS FATAL SHOCK WHILE IN SWIMMING

Miss Helen A. McGovern, 58, of 215 Doyle avenue, Providence, who was the daughter of James and Maria McGovern of Meosup, suffered a shock and was drowned Thursday near Olivio's beach, near Point Judith. She was swimming at the time in front of the summer residence of her brother-in-law, Thomas O'Gorman.

Mrs. O'Gorman, from the porch of her home, noticed that her sister, who was an expert swimmer, was in distress at the same moment the swimmer's plight was perceived by several men at Olivo's Beach, including Joseph Capuano of Charles street, Providence. Capuano dragged Miss McGovern from the water, barely breathing, and summoned aid. Futile efforts were made to revive her. Doctors who were summoned pronounced death due to shock.

Memorial Flowers at Church

The flowers at the Central Baptist church Sunday were given by Mrs. Morris J. Anderson and her sister, Miss Alice Ayer, in memory of their grandmother, Mrs. G. D. Andrews, who died one year ago.

POETRY

A Farewell to Arms

My golden locks Time hath to silver turned;
O time too swift, O swiftness never ceasing!
My youth 'gainst age, and age 'gainst time, has spurned,
But spurned in vain; youth waneth by increasing:
Beauty, strength, youth, are flowers but fading seen;
Duty, faith, love, are roots, and ever green.

My helmet now shall make a hive for bees,
And lover's sonnets turn to holy psalms;
A man-at-arms must now serve on his knees,
And feed on prayers, which are old age his alms;
But though from court to cottage I depart,
My saint is sure of my unspotted heart.

And when I saddest sit in homely cell,
I'll teach my swains this carol for a song—
Blest be the hearts that wish my sovereign well,
Curst be the souls that think her any wrong!
Goddess, allow this aged man his right
To be your beadsman now that was your knight!"

—George Peele.

Nature: The Artist

Such hints as untaught Nature yields!—
The calm disorder of the sea,
The straggling splendor of the fields,
The wind's gay incivility.

O workman, with your conscious plan,
Compass and square are little worth:
Copy (nay, only poets can)
The artless masonry of earth.

Go watch the windy spring's carouse,
And mark the winter wonders grow—
The graceful gracelessness of boughs,
The careless carpentry of snow!
—Frederic Lawrence Knowles.
